Detective stories have always "I owe my life to the love of a horse," said F. M. Hawkins, a member of the Idle Hour Club, in session at the Southern Hotel. "Several years ago I took a long needed to worry when I lay down at night, for Nick was a trusty sentinel, and if he scented danger would take my blanket in his teeth and roll me out of it in a

have told them that. Meanwhile, I kept my eye on Uncle Poffkins. He was the one person who could have no motive whatever in stealing the earrings. He was very rich, most respect-able and extremely slow and noisy in his movements; moreover, my aunt would have given him the earrings at any moment if he had asked for them. Evidently he was the last man to attract suspicion. Accordingly, I narrowly watched Uncle Poffkins.

We passed a perturbed week. The police were running out and Dora cross-examined the housemaid incessantly. Aunt Poffkins went about weeping and reminding everyone she met that the earrings were a present from Uncle Poffkins on My uncle himself affected to make light of the matter, and went so far as loudly and ostentatiously to d—n the earrings. He was wrong if he thought he could put me off the scent by that clumsy manœuvre. I never left him alone, I tracked him to the city, hung about all morning, shadowed him when he went to lunch, when he returned, when he crossed over to the Exchange; unknown to him I was on his 'bus, inside if he rode on the top, and on the top when it rained and he stowed himself away inside. He never escaped me, except when he was shut up in his office. At last, after ten days' weary chase, I had my reward. I need not say that the police had discovered nothing. The house was still topsy-turvy and my aunt subject to intermittent hysterics. That wronged creature, the housemaid, did her work with a mop in one hand and a handkerchief (wet with innocent tears) in the other. Her young man called and asked if any one desired to intimate suspicion of her, inasmuch as he was ready to deal with any such. I rejoiced to be able to assure him truthfully that I would stake my life on her innocence. But to return to Uncle On the tenth day, as he was brushing his hat before leaving the house, and looking at my aunt's tear-bedewed visage, his conscience smote him, and he so far forgot himself as to exclaim been my favorite form of literature. I have read, I think, all there are—at least, all there are published—and have imbibed from published—and have imbibed from them a thorough contempt for probability and the police. The first thing you have to do in face of a crime, is, as I often said to Uncle Poffkins, to fix on the most unlikely man and stick to him through thick and thin. That was the course I adopted when Aunt Poffkin's earrings were stolen, and that course led me—but I must not begin at the end. It was at Abrahams, no doubt, was the receiver; for my uncle went on in a satisfied tone: "He'll make no trouble about taking 'em."

It was evening before I saw Uncle Poffkins. I was going home in a very disconsolate state, when, about two hundred yards Near drew his lips to her dainty ear, She turned with a conscious smile— "I'm going to speak to a man," he said, "I'll be back in a little while." Where the Shoe Pinched.

He was putting the case in his pocket when my feeling overcame me. Respect for one's elderly relatives and the same an atives is a praiseworthy feeling, but it must not be allowed to over not begin at the end. AN OBSTINATE JURYMAN. After an All Night Argument and

Good Trouncing, He Agreed. Mr. Montagu Williams, in his "Leaves of a Life," tells an amusing anecdote to illustrate the methods by which, sometimes, a jury secures the unanimity neces sary to a verdict.

A man named Watkins was charged with being the ringleader in a riot during a Parliamentary election. He was on one side, and a butcher of the other party had been heard to declare that he would get on the jury and then would get on the jury, and then have a leg cut off rather than acquit Watkins. When the trial began the butcher was found to be one of the jurymen. Watkin's counsel stated to the Court the butcher's remark, and then said: "The gentleman will see the impropriety of remaining in the jury box, and will at once retire."

"I shan't budge an inch!" answered the butcher, bracing himself in his seat. "I never said what has been reported, and if I had said it I should stand on my rights as a Briton. I've a right to serve on the jury, and on the jury I'll serve!"

The Judge declined to interfere "We must rely on this gentle-man's good sense and the obliga-tion which he attaches to an oath."

The case lasted for two days, and the evidence was very conflicting. Some witnesses swore that Watkins, mounted on a white horse, lead the rioters. Other witnesses swore that he was in another part of the borough when the disturbance took place.

At 6 o'clock on the second day the jury retired to consider their verdict. At 10 o'clock the Judge sent a messenger to them, asking if they had agreed. They came into court and stated that there was little likelihood of their being able to agree upon a verdict. The Judge informed them that he should lock them up for the night. At 4 o'clock in the morning news was sent to the Judge and coun-sel that the jury had agreed. The court was opened, and when the names of the jury were read over, only eleven answered.

"One juryman has not responded to his name," said the Judge. It was the butcher; his name was called a second time, and a feeble voice answered, "Here."

The Judge did not look toward the jury box; he had guessed accurately what had occurred. The butcher's coat and waistcoat were torn from his back; his shirt sleeves were tattered, and his face was besmeared with blood. From the first the jury had stood eleven to one. After nine hours of argu-ment, the eleven had pounded the butcher until he was willing to return a verdict of "Not Guilty."

Matches First Made in Sweden. The oldest and, it is said, the largest match manufactory in the world is in Sweden. Matches were made there long before the old roughly-trimmed splinter of wood, tipped with sulphur, was discarded with the tinder boxes, for which they were used. In twenty-five years the export trade of Sweden in modern matches increased 1,000,000,000 boxes a year. Some of the machines for making matches which we used in these days make 200 revolutions a minute each and turn out about 2,500,000 matches daily. Rather more than five matches per head for the whole population are used daily in the United States. Strange to say, the quality of these Swedish matches, in many cases, is so bad that the State intends to resume the manufacture, and computes that the profits will produce a revenue of $1,000,000. Altogether there are in Europe about 50,000 factories, and they yearly produce matches valued $50,000,000.

Sunflower Industry in Russia-In 1842 a Russian farmer conceived the idea of extracting oil from the sunflower. His schemes were considered most visionary, but he persevered, until now the industry is one of enormous proportions, there being 700,000 acres under cultivation in Russia. There are two kinds, one with seeds that are crushed for oil, and a second species which is consumed by the people in the same way that peauuts are in this country. Getting Along With One Dress.

Quickening my pace, I stealthily approached within a few yards of him. He opened the gate and passed in; noiselessly I followed. A little further on, sheltered by the shrubbery, he stopped and, after a stealthy glance toward the house, took from his coet pocket a small morocco case. I stood on tiptoe just behind, and, with mingled horror and satisfaction as I looked over his shoulder, I saw the earrings! I was right!

Uncle Poffkins sighed. "Shall I give 'em to her or not?" he said to himself. "Its rank waste. Still, it would keep her quiet."

I watched the struggle betweer KISS.

Philology Makes It Less Romanth Than It Sounds

The word "kiss" is Anglo-Saxon, and may, indeed, be taken as an instance of how pleasant Anglo-Saxon can be. The philologist assures us that it is allied to the Gothic kustus, a proof or test, and to the Latin gustus, a taste, which suggests the old saying, that "the proof of the pudding is the priein" o't." That same Gothic kussus comes from the verb kiusan, to choose, from which one would imagine that among the Gothis kissing went by favor. According to Prof. Skeat, writing with all the austerity and scholarship of an expert, a kiss is "a gust, a taste, a something choice."

Rowena, the beautiful daughter of the Saxon Hengist, is credited with having introduced kissing into these fortunate islands; but it seems to me that had the natives been so utterly unenlightened, the Romans could hardly have failed to anticipate her. The Romans had a really delightful word for a kiss-osculum, which came from os, the mouth, and meant a little mouth, a sweet mouth. "Give me a sweet little mouth," would be the phrase used when—a good little Roman boy asked his mother for a kiss.

Our English word occurs pretty nearly in its present form in Anglo Saxon, Dutch, Icelandic, Danish, Swedish and German. And this is worthy of note, because, natural as kissing may seem to be (to many of us), it is a practice unknown to the Australians, to the Maori of New Zealand, the Papuans of New Guinea, the people of Tahiti, the negroes of Africa, the Botocudos of Brazil, the sav-ages of Terra del Fuego, the Laplanders, the Esquimaux. Most of these benighted mortals have not got beyond the low stage of rub bing noses together.

CAUSES OF BASHFULNESS. Various Reasons Advanced to Account for the Unpleasant Affliction. Bashfulness is what is known medically as a functional disorder -that is to say, it does not depend upon any actual disease, but is due to some temporary interference with the natural action of the brain. When the natural ac-tion of the brain is thus interfered with, we say it is inhibited.

The first chief cause of bashfulness consists in a man's attention being directed to himself. The man who is quite at ease in his office—bashfulness is most often an attribute of the male sex-becomes self-conscious in the drawing room and very shy.

Although capable of joining in the conversation, his witty remark is forestalled because he is too slow in giving utterance to it, or too timid to hear his own voice. The ordinary action of his brain is inhibited by his self-consciousness. The second cause is emotion. The extreme bashfulness of many men when they are in love is proverbial, and the surprisingly few married men who suffer from bashfulness is noteworthy. These causes are, however, usually insufficient to produce bashfulness, but there must be some further necessary condition. Many conditions predispose to it. For example, a highly nervous temperament, deficient moral courage, with which is associated lack of self-assertion. These may be regarded as constitutional causes. Another predisposing cause is defective education. The general education may have been neglected, or the want of opportunity of acquiring self-confidence in society may have been experienced. Bashfulness is natural to youth. "Modesty is the graceful, calm virtue of maturity, bashfulness the charm of vivacious youth, and unless a young man takes advantage of opportunities of entering society, he will retain "an air of bashfulness which is in reality the want of habitual intercourse with the world" (Waverly). As long as 1570 Ascham wrote that "If a young gentleman be bashful and soon blush, they call him a babishe and ill-brought up thyng." Deficient social education is therefore a cause of bashful-

Habit also predisposes to it. A mere indisposition to exert one's self, if indulged for too long a time, many eventually result in confirmed bashfulness. This inference may be due to a want of sympathy with the surround-ings or may have its origin in un-alloyed selfishness — for many bashful men are extremely selfish -or may be due to vanity. The man who is the life of the taproom because there he can do no wrong is painfully ill at ease in the society of his equals, and the bebayior of Hastings in "She Stoops to Conquer" is an example of this. Lastiy, excessive smoking or ex-cessive drinking and immoral or inhealthy pursuits of all kinds are sometimes the cause of bashful-

Fashion Notes.

Black and white lace is finding place in the dinner and reception zowns for the approaching social season.

The redingote train, developed rom a redingote or princess back, s used on afternoon gowns for the house.

Little violet velvet toques are to be worn this winter, with perhaps i tiny edging of sable, and a group of shaded velvet roses at one side. A tea gown in striped brocade-white, pink and sea-green—is charming. The entire front is of point d'esprit, draped with coniummate grace. The outer gar-ments include an imposing fullength carriage wrap, in faced eloth, with inserted sleeves of eminence velvet. Collarettes of bright ribbon plaited, or of two ruffles of silk calloped on the edges' and buttonholed with colored silk, are worn to brighten dark house dresses, and long bows of chiffon, shirred and tucked into shape, come in all bright tints for indoor wear. . Changeable silks are used for skirts. The favorite trimming on simple taffeta petticoats is three ruffles of pinked silk overlapping each other. More elaborate imported skirts are finished with a wide ruffle of black lace edges and insertions over a colored silk flounce.

A new mode of skirt is adopted for a dinner gown of striped bro-cade, showing black in alternation with dahlia. The skirt is not trained, but laid in full plaits all the way around. The waist has a sash of dahlia velvet confining a full corrage of black chiffon. Of full corsage of black chiffon. the latter material there is a bertha encircling the shoulders.

KAILWAY MAIL SERVICE.

An employe of the railway mail service gives the KEFLECTOR the following statistics from the last annual report: At the close of the fiscal year there were 1088 railway post-office lines in operation. These lines covered 144,833 13-100 miles of railroad upon which 5,861 postal clerks were employed in the distribution of mails. In addition there were 35 steamboat lines upon which 48 regular and 2 acting clerks were employed. Those at work on railroad lines travelled 147,571,944 miles; those employed on steamboat lines, 1,719,502; these together received, handled, and distributed 9.994.775 pieces of mail matter in transit, exclusive of 325,689,129 pieces which were redistributed and prepared for immediate city delivery. They also received receipted for, recorded and properly dispatched 16,879,160 registered packages and cases, and 1,299,529 through registered pouches and inner registered sacks. To the 159,318 miles of railroad service in operation July 1st 1891, 3.067 of new service were added during the fiscal ending July 1st 1891. 3.068 of new service were added during the fiscal year ending July 1, 1892. During the fiscal year ending July 1, 1892 to every error, 5,466 pieces of mail were handled correct.

There were 44,256 sents to railway post offices during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, in which 5 clerks were killed, 60 seriously and 112 slightly injured. In the spring of 1892 on the New York and Chicago fast mail there were killed 6 postal clerks at one time, which was the heaviest accident known.

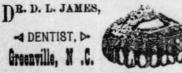

Commercing Jan. 1, 1893 the fast mail goes from Washington D. C. to Charleston, S. C. The postal clerks will run the whole distance being 559 miles without either sleep or rest. The clerks on that line are now required to work Florida mail in addition to the other four States, namely Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

Something of Interest to Farmers!

NOW that the planting season is again near at hand, the question which is of the most interest to farmers, is, what shall I plant, where shall I plant, and how shall I plant it. After determining what to plant and when to plant, it is of equally as much importance how you plant and cultivate. We think it is conceded by all that no land will make a good crop unless properly cultivated. The result of last years crops, we think, goes very far to show that a judicious use of commercial Fertilizers pays on the lands in this

It is with much pleasure and satisfaction that we again offer for sale to our friends and patrons the High Grade and Reliable Brands of Fertilizer which we name below. The results from their use justify us in saying they are all well adapted to the soils of this section. We will sell them for cash, or on time, upon usual terms, and we guarantee to give you a better grade of goods as cheap or cheaper than you can buy elsewhere.

Drop us a line for prices and terms, or call to see, and will take pleasure in naming you low figures and explaining to you the merits of the different brands. To individuals or clubs wanting a car load or more we will make special figures. We offer for your consideration and choice the following well established and high grade brands of Fertilizers:

BIG MONEY IN CORN.

HOW MR. A. B. PAGE RAISED OVER 116 BUSHELS OF CORN TO THE ACRE ON TEN ACRES OF LAND.

[From Wilmington Messenger, Nov, 15th, 1892] Mr. A. B. Page, of Nichols, S. C., has this season gathered the enormous yield of 1162 49-56 bushels of corn from ten across of land. This makes an average of over 116 bushels to the acre, and it will be interesting to know how Mr. Page secured such fine results. In a letter to Messrs. Worth & Worth, of this city, he writes as follows, telling how it was done: "Statement showing result of a ten acre field of corn cultivated by A. B. Page, Nichols, S. C.: Land was broken with two-horse turn-plow, November, 1891, having been highly manured for several years before this. February, 1892, I broadcast thirty five bushels green cetton seed per acre, broke them in with turn-plow, then bedded out in seven and onehalf foot rows. I then put in water furrow seven tons compost made from Boykin, Carmer & Co's for-Fertilizer tilizer is equalled by the possible before the beginning of few and excelled by none. This Lent.

Which will be adopted for the coming the compost made from Boykin, Carmer & Season—and are, for available phosphoric over 1,200 pounds on one acre and it made to be season—and are, for available phosphoric over 1,200 pounds of seed cotton. And turn furrows, planting one double row of corn with goods has been thoroughly tested the past two seasons for tobacco and in no case has it failed to give entire satisfaction. It is equally good for both Cotton and Potatoes good for both Cotton and Potatoes until last plowing, which was done about the last of June with a Stonewall sweep. During cultivation I applied in furrows side of corn 150 pounds cotton seed meal. In the field there were sixty-eight double rows. Nine rows were measured with flour barrels, yielding an average of 114 barrels to the row, or 7703 flour barrels to the ten acres. Each barrel vielded 844 pounds shelled corn, 65,121 pounds or 1162% bushel to the ten acres. A. B. PAGE."

Jackson, N. C., Oct. 17th, 1892.

Messrs. Boykin, Carmer & Co. Gentlemen: - In reply to your enquiries as to the effi-cacy of Home Formula, I have used the same for the past six years in quantities varying from 3 to 25 tons. I consider it one of the most reliable fertilizers I have ever used and, cost considered, cheaper than other fertilizers that I have used. My experience is confined to its use under and by the side of corn and cotton only. When carefully and properly made, and used as per directions, I consider it unequaled. Respectfully, GEO. P. BURGWIN.

Baxley, Ga., August 12th, 1892.

I have the best cotton and corn in my vicinity. Please write me terms and lowest prices for ten formulas, delivered to Surrency, Ga. Chemical analysis will prove that Pearline has no caustic qualities, but that the ingredients of which it is made have been so skilfully manipulated, that Pearline stands to-day the greatest household detergent known. Science applauds it; its rapid adoption by intelligent and economical housekeepers, who use many millions of packages each year, is proof positive that science and chemistry are right. These facts should lead those who do not use Pearline, to try it at once; directions for easy washing on every package.

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not, and besides are dangerous. PEARLINE is never ped sled, but sold by all good grocers. 148 Manufactured only by JAMES PYLE, New York.

We are still doing business at the same old stand, where we are better prepared than syer before to handle to advantage the fine bright Tobacco from the "New Golden Belt." We have a very large corps of buyers who are anxious for New Tobacco and are willing to pay good prices for it. "Eastern Tobacco" stands well on our market and is eagerly sought after both by our order men and speculators. We are very glad that we can say to the "honest yoemanry" of Pitt and adjoining counties that tobacco has "started off" better this year than we have known it in several years and that we look for good prices during the season. Hogsheads can be had FREE OF CHARGE by those planters shipping to us, by applying to S. M. Schultz & Co., Greenville, N. C., or to Amos G. Cox, Winterville, N. C. Remember that we bid lively on every pile put upon our floor and buy targely of all grades that we sell, and will see to it that you shall have highest market price for every pound sold with us. Recollect that it cost you nothing to collect our checks as they are payable in New York Exchange without cost to holder. Don't forget to try us with a good shipment and we will convince you that we are "hustlers from way, back" and that we "get there" every time on big prices and you know they talk-will have your tobacco graded for you in our house by skilled hands at $1.00 per 100. Thanking our friends for the very liberal patronage bestowed upon us in the past and pledging them our very best efforts to please them in the future, we are with best wishes, BULLOCK & MITCHELL
