THE RACE PROBLEM SOUTH.

DR. G. T. WINSTON'S ABLE ADDRESS.

Recently Delivered Before the Patria Club of New York—President Winston Thinks That the Problem is Not Social Nor Political But Industrial—At the North the Negro Has All the Social Privileges He Can Get, But He Cannot Get Any—The South's Kindly Feeling for the Negro.

In the address recently delivered before the Patria Club of New York, President Winston, of the University of North Carolina, discussed the race problem in the South, essentially, as follows:

The race problem cannot be understood without knowing what intellectual, moral and material progress the negro has made since emancipation and to what extent this progress has affected the social, political and industrial relations between the two races.

Intellectually the negro has made great progress, mainly through education. In North Carolina he enjoys better facilities for education than the mass of whites.

Physically the negro has made great progress, mainly through education. In North Carolina he enjoys better facilities for education than the mass of whites.

The moral progress of the race is very discouraging. Both the average white man and the average negro over forty years old in the South will tell you that the younger generation of negroes are worse morally than they were in slavery.

Besides the highest class and the great mass of negroes, there is a lowest class, which did not exist in slavery. It is made up of drunkards, gamblers, loafers, vagabonds, petty thieves, professional prostitutes and others who live by vice instead of labor.

The criminal propensities of the race are very marked. According to the census of 1890 the negro furnished 34 per cent. of the penitentiary convicts in the United States, although he constitutes only twelve per cent. of the population. In the North Atlantic States he is five times as criminal as the white man; in the South Atlantic States one and a half times; in the South Central one and a half; in the Western ten times. It is a striking fact that the negro is more criminal in the Northern States, where he has long enjoyed freedom than in the Southern States, where he is still greatly restrained by fear of the white race.

The material condition of the race is similar to the moral. The great mass is essentially in the same condition as before. Those who had bad masters are probably better off; those who had good masters are possibly worse off. The highest class is very much improved, and enjoys all the comforts of life in a great degree.

The struggle over the negro as a political factor began in the convention that framed the Federal constitution, and has continued since with a violence and a power that have shaken the foundations of our government, and threaten to destroy its balance.

The real struggle of the negro at present is not for social equality, nor for political power, but for industrial opportunity. The difference between the races is so immense that any other conflict between them is simply impossible.

In the whole country the negro has diminished from one-fifth of the population in 1790 to one eighth in 1890. He is less than two per cent. of the population in twenty-four States and Territories; less than ten per cent in thirty-four over ten in no Northern State; over two per cent in only three States that voted for Harrison.

What is home without a newspaper? A home without a newspaper is a home at all. It is a kind of dreary den—a rendezvous of bedbugs and fleas, where the inhabitants live in blissful ignorance of what the world is doing.

The First Colony of the Waldenses Reach Burke.

Some months ago it was announced that the Waldenses Church, which has its home in the Alps, contemplated founding a colony in North Carolina. Later it was announced that an agent of the Church had bought 12,000 to 15,000 acres of land in Burke Co. Monday last the first of the colony passed up the Western North Carolina Railroad and took possession of its new home.

The negro himself is recognizing this fact, and negro leaders in the South, of intelligence, character and education do not differ from white leaders in their views of what is best for the development of their race. There is abundant room for Northern philanthropy, but the elevation of the negroes must be accomplished by their own efforts under the guidance of their own leaders, assisted by Southern white men, who appreciate their virtues and sympathize with their vices.

To Keep a Wife Young.

A certain amount of social life is absolutely essential to us all—to the old as well as the young, writes Edward W. Bok in a pertinent article on man's inability to see things as others see them, in the May Ladies' Home Journal.

Old age is beautiful and has its advantages, but a man makes a great mistake when he rushes a woman unnecessarily toward it. And he does it most perfectly when he deprives her of those enjoyments which every man should give his wife.

The Valdosta (Ga.) Times quotes a prominent alliance man of that section as saying: "We made a mistake by going into politics, but we were led astray by false teachers, by demagogues, and now we are going to begin over again to reorganize on the old alliance principles. 'Every organization,' he said, 'makes mistakes, and after all, the alliance has been more sinned against than sinning.'"
