STATE NEWS.

Things Mentioned in our State Exchanges that are of General Interest The Cream of the News.

A little girl named Winter was bitten by a snake late August.
She recovered with this exception: Ever since the bite of the reptile her eyes have had a green color, and occasionally her tongue protrudes in the same manner as that of a snake.

Raleigh News Observer: Mr.
Chas. Hinton, the Governor's Executive Clerk, comes to the front with the monumental curiosity of the season. On his plantation, near the city, a baby has been born in the family of one of his colored tenants which came into the world with a full set of teeth.
It is the sensation of the neighborhood and people are flocking in troops to see the sensation.
Mr. Hinton may organize a stock company to place the wonder on exhibition.

Charlotte Observer: Col. Charles Bradshaw was one to add to the floral tributes in the Davis funeral car a large and beautiful offering.
In exchange he was given a bouquet of the bier. In it were two cuttings of begonias. These Col. Bradshaw planted and he now has the pleasure of seeing from the mere sprouts, good size plants. Col. Bradshaw values them for their association with the great leader whom he, like all Southerners, loved and revered.

Threats in Cleveland County.

A Dispatch from Shelby to the Charlotte Observer:
Your correspondent is reliably informed that cotton ginners in the lower part of the county have received notice to stop ginning cotton until it reaches 10 cents per pound. Capt. S. D. Randells, a prominent farmer and a ginner received a letter, of course an anonymous one, warning him that if he didn't stop ginning until the price of cotton went to 10 cent, his gin would be burned to the ground. The Captain is guarding his gin day and night, but as yet has not obeyed the commands of the white caps. There is much excitement and indignation over these incendiary letters.

Nobody ever saw a white mule dead or heard of a pensioner dying. Ever since the war the number of pensioners on the rolls has been increasing yearly, but a report from Washington is to the effect that from July 1st to September 1st there was a decrease of 1,604 in the names on the list, leaving only 964,398 of the patriot to be taken care of hereafter by a grateful people. "This," we are further informed, "is the first time in 33 years that a net decrease to the rolls has been shown." Before we begin to rejoice, however, let us wait and see if 1,604 other saviors of their country, with their claims and proofs thereof, do not spring up to take the place of those who have died or become conscience stricken.—Statesville Landmark.

Those kind of fellows who loaf about, complain of "hard times," talk politics and abuse everything and everybody, can yet be occasionally seen upon the streets.
We have several in our mind's eye at this writing who have killed enough time and "red rolicking rye" within the past twelve months to have started (if their time and money had been properly applied and invested) a paying industry of almost any kind.— Lonsburg Times.

The Newbern Journal makes the following thoughtful and timely suggestion, which every town should act upon as far as possible and practicable: "Establish small industries for boys, girls, young men, ladies, and all who are willing to work, both white and colored. It will make better citizens of them and relieve a great many of the embarassing necessity of living on relatives and friends."

Rev. Mr. Moore, of Indiana, is in trouble with the women because he said in a sermon: "God made the earth in six days and then rested; then he made man and rested again; then he made woman, and since that time neither God nor man has had a rest."

WATER OVER THE TRACK

Unique Piece of Railway Construction in California.

A Big Landslide Places a Difficultly Before the Southern Pacific Company, Removing Which Will Cause the Largest Artificial Waterfall in the World.

Making a mountain stream run over and above a railroad track is a unique piece of engineering that the Southern Pacific company is shortly to commence near Wright's station in the Santa Cruz mountains. Last spring there was a big landslide at the northern end of the long tunnel near Wright's station which caused a blockade of the South Pacific coast road for a number of weeks, and caused in about a hundred feet of the tunnel. The moving side of the mountain as it came down the canyon filled up the bed of a large mountain stream to such an extent that it was five or six feet higher than the track, while before it was several feet lower. The creek is dry now, but during the rainy season, unless its course is diverted, the mountain torrent will sweep over the road so as to make its operation at that point impossible.

The officials first entertained the idea of carting away large quantities of dirt to lower the bed of the stream to its old level. But that plan was abandoned because of the great expense it would entail, and it was then decided to extend the tunnel northward two hundred feet and pass the point where the stream crosses the track by an arch of solid masonry.
Plans for this stone tunnel have been completed.
The arch will be twenty feet high and composed of huge blocks of stone that will stand the wear and tear of the weather for years. On the inside it will have the same width and height as the tunnel proper and will be constructed in such a manner that the stream of water flowing over it will not percolate through. The top of the arch, when finished, will be about fifteen feet above the present bed of the stream, so the latter will have to be raised up to its level. This will necessitate filling in for a distance of several hundred feet.

As the stream flows over the top of the stone arch it will have a fall of not less than twenty feet on the other side of the track. It will be a precipitous fall, and during the winter time, when the volume of water is large, will make a very pretty waterfall. The officials are inclined to think it will be the largest artificial waterfall in the world.

IT NEVER FAILS.

A Natural Ice-House That Does Its Work in Cold or Heat.

A natural ice-house, on a very large scale, has been discovered on the north side of Stone mountain, in Scott county, Va. An old settler really found it in 1830, but as the land on which it was situated could not be bought he refused to tell its whereabouts, and died without even revealing the secret to his own family.

Recently a party of ginseng diggers entered the region and came upon the ice, and had it not been for them the secret might have remained one for years, as the mountain is seldom visited.
The bed of ice covers an acre of ground, and is protected from the sun's rays by a thick growth of moss, like that which hangs from the oak trees of Texas and Louisiana. The bed is a few inches thick in some places and several feet in others.
The formation indicates that it had been spread over the surface in a liquid state, and then congealed.
There are several theories as to how it formed, the most plausible being that there is a formation of ether beneath the bed, and that the process of freezing goes steadily on through the heat as well as the cold.

LITERARY HEN WOMAN.

How Miss Kate Sanborn Supports
Her "Abandoned Farm."

In spite of the serio-comic woe which Miss Kate Sanborn depicted as falling to the lot of the woman farmer, in her "Story of an Abandoned Farm," she seems to find life on hers pretty endurable. If all the women who have longings after green fields and cozy cottages could be guaranteed such good fortune as has fallen to this literary woman, there would probably not be an "abandoned farm" in the country or a worn-out school-teacher in the city, at the end of a month.

Under Miss Sanborn's fostering care the bare New England fields have been made to blossom like the rose. The bare interior of the farmhouse has taken on the peculiar elegance of the antique. In the dining-room the buffet is filled with old blue willow ware and quaintly flowered china; colonial chairs and tables are in the various rooms. An old "grandfather's clock" ticks from the stairs and in the great fireplaces are pot-hooks and trammels on the crane.

All this interior elegance and outward picturesqueness is supported, not by Miss Sanborn's pen, but by her hens. They are her chief source of income, and her pride and glory.
She has two or three hundred hens, including all the rare varieties. Forty dozen eggs are shipped each week, besides a large number of chickens for cooking. She is about to immortalize her birds in a volume called "A Hen Farm by the Sea."

QUEER BOOKKEEPING.

The Original Method Employed by a Dakota Hotelkeeper.

"Talking about bookkeeping," said Mitt Brishine, when everybody Yankton, "there used to be a man in Yankton who used to keep everybody's accounts wonderfully efficient.
He kept a hotel and he could neither read nor write. He did not know how to spell his own name, but he did a thriving business and collected every dollar of his accounts.
Once, years ago, when I first came to this country, I went to his hotel and stopped there two weeks. When I left he presented me with a statement of what I owed him, and it was a curiosity. He had copied it from his ledger. At the top of the sheet there was a rude picture of a soldier on the march, and after it three straight marks. Then there was a scene showing a man at a table eating. Then appeared a bed with a man in it. In the amount column there was a picture of a roll and after it the two letters RS.
After the picture of the man eating there were forty-two marks. After the picture of a man in bed there were fourteen marks. I looked at the account, then at the proprietor, and told him it would take me a week to answer that account. I was completely stumped, and when that hotel man deciphered the account for me it was this:

"The picture of the soldier walking meant March, and the three marks supplied the date, March 3, when I began boarding. The man at the table with forty-two marks after it indicated that I had eaten forty-two meals. The man in bed with fourteen marks showed that I had slept in the house fourteen nights. The doll with RS after it meant 'dollars,' and in the figure column appeared the figures fourteen, which was the amount I owed him. And it was a true bill."—

To Fight Long Hours.

The tailors have met in London "to prepare for the abolition of the sweating system and long hours and for the coming battle of the tailors of the world." The twenty-five thousand members of the organization are threatened by the master tailors with a destruction of their union. The chief means looked to for this purpose is the introduction of cheap female labor. In 1891 there were nearly three-quarters of a million of persons engaged in the tailoring trade in the United Kingdom, and of late years there has been an enormous increase in the female workers. The latter, though, do not join the unions.

A Puzzling Question.

A small boy in Maine, who brought home a mud turtle from a pond a quarter of a mile away, noticed that whenever he set free the turtle set off in a bee-line direction toward the pond. The boy tried to confuse the turtle in every way he could devise, but the turtle was too smart for him and always started off in the right direction as if he knew where he was going and was bound to get there in the quickest time possible.
And now the boy has puzzled the whole township by demanding to know how that turtle knew in what direction his ancestral pond lay.

The Intelligence of Dagobert.

"You've heard of my dog Dagobert." said the man with the ginger beard.
The grocer admitted that he had.
"Well," continued the man with the ginger beard, "one time I was comin' home after sellin' a load of my money—seven gold ticks—out through a hole in my pocket. Says I to Dagobert: 'I have lost my money.' It's too bad," he says, in dog language, and with that he started back to hunt for it. I went home, feelin' just as easy as you please, 'cause I knowed he would show up with the money in an hour or so if his record as a smart dog was worth two cents, and I rather guess it was. 'Stead o' that, he didn't come home till about midnight, an' instead of havin' my seven gold ticks he had four hundred and forty dollars in bills. Tell you, I was okey for myself, as I 'lowed he had been stealin'." But the next trip found the dog hadn't been stealin' at all. What do you suppose he had been doin'?"

The Grocer gave it up.

"He had stopped at St. Beasley's joint with my seventy and won all that money playin' faro bank. Course I had to lick him for it, even if he did win, for riskin' my money that way, though it nigh broke my heart to do it."

The grocer said that he believed it looked like rain.—Indianapolis Jour- nal.

Blossoming of a Woman Poet.

Rose Hardwick Thorpe, the author of "Circumstances Not Ring To Night" is now living in California, but her early home was in Litchfield, Mich. The poem was written one afternoon in school, when the writer was only fifteen years old.
She showed the verses to her teacher, who said they ought to be printed, and accordingly they came out in the local paper. The Litchfield inquirer read the poem, cut it out and sent it to Horace Greeley, who sent it on its road to elocutionary fame.

<h3>Convicts and Road Making.</h3> A correspondent says that what to do with the convicts is a question of growing importance, and his solution is that they should be worked upon the public roads. That is the thing. Crime costs North Carolina a great deal of money annually, and the State should get some return for it. If the convicts support themselves on the State farms, the State, while relieved of expense, it is true, is still nothing the gainer. It should be reimbursed, in some measure, for feeding them until their trial and then convicting them. In speaking of the State in this connection we refer to its subdivision of counties. Thus, Iredeell can afford to convict, feed and guard her criminals for twenty years if at the expiration of that period, she could show a system of good public roads as the result of their labor. Not only could she afford this expense, but it would be money in the pockets of her people. Of course, under any ordinary system of convict work, and with the average number of convicts, all the roads cannot be made good within the term of years indicated, and we use twenty years to illustrate the idea. But the two prominent facts in the matter are: (1) that our public highways are a public scandal and (2) that our criminals are very expensive citizens who recompense us nothing for the money they cost us. Let us associate these ideas and see if we cannot make something out of the combination. Thus: the roads need to be worked and the convicts need to be profitably employed; and there you have it.—Statesville Landmark.	<h3>The South Carolina Liquor Law.</h3> Despite the many legal difficulties which have beset it the South Carolina experiment of restricting the sale of liquor to the public dispensaries has thus far made an astonishingly good record. Whatever Governor Tillman's faults, lack of determination is not one of them. With an iron hand he has put down the sale of liquor at private hands. In quite a number of counties the freeholders have refused to petition for a dispensary, and in these according to the Charleston News and Courier—there has been up to date, real prohibition. Where the dispensaries have been established the room is always a plain one, and no liquor is sold in the evening or to minors or inebriates, or at any time to anyone to be drunk on the premises. This means that while citizens may buy liquors freely to drink at their homes, there are no loafing and treating places in the State. The moral results of this change, as described even by its opponents, are all the friends of the experiment hoped for. The mayor of Aiken, who contributes to the September North American a protest against the new system because of its violation of what he deems the personal liberty and property rights of the old saloon keepers, states in conclusion that the new system "is not, however, totally bad." "There has been," he says, "a marked decrease in drunkenness since it went into operation." In Greenville, the third largest city in the State, there was but a single arrest for drunkenness during the first seven weeks of the new system. The legal difficulties with which the experiment has had to contend have not been so serious as the press dispatches have indicated. The decision on one local judge that the law was unconstitutional was promptly superseded, and the flaws that have been found in the law relate only to minor matters. So long as Governor Tillman remains in control there is little likelihood that the old system will be restored.—Review of Reviews.	<h3>The Present Year.</h3> In the memory of us all the year 1893 will be long remembered says the Winston Daily Sentinel. It is a year of disaster from the storm of loss of life by accident, of murders, thefts, lynchings. One of its most remarkable aspects is the enormous numbers of failures, computed now at some 12,000, with liabilities of $354,087,768. And yet when liabilities are compared with assets there is a remarkable showing, for while average liabilities are usually double average assets, this year the proportion of assets is much greater. In other words, the per cent of assets to liabilities is generally about 50, but this year the proportion is 70, a fact which speaks well in behalf of many a merchant or bank. The proportion of assets is far higher than it has been in a dozen years, or even a much longer period. The year 1893 is peculiarly a year of financial disturbance, not merely in a business sense, but also in a legislative sense.	<h3>Cause of Hard Times.</h3> Dr. Whitaker, editor of the Spirit of the Age, gives the following cause for a great deal of the so-called "hard times": Last Thursday while waiting for the Raleigh train at Henderson, we got into conversation with a farmer from Franklin county and in the course of the talk he incidentally alluded to another farmer of that county—a hard-working man—who had carried some tobacco to Henderson, and sold it for a good price. A little more talk, brought out the fact that the said farmer was then lying drunk in a barroom, and the probability was that he would spend or lose most, if not all, of his tobacco money before he left town. Whiskey is making more hard times than any other one thing, and it hurts those who don't drink as dady as those who do, in many cases.

New let the assignees of the people of Arizona get together.—Minneapolis Journal. <h3>Valuable if True.</h3> If celery were eaten freely, says the New York Times, sufferers from rheumatism would be comparatively few. It is a mistaken idea that cold and damp produce the disease they simply develop it. Acid blood is the primary and sustaining cause. If celery is eaten largely, an alkaline blood is the result, and where this exists there can be neither rheumatism or gout. It should be eaten cooked.	<h3>Rockien's Arnica Salve.</h3> The Best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fetter Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and All Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. Dollars
AND
Brain and Bullion

are the wheels upon which rest and run the business of the world. Some have one, some the other, and on the favored few have both. Not to take the trouble to see and buy our bargains is to prove one of the three things: * * * *
Either you have the sense without the dollars, or the dollars without the sense, or neither the dollars nor the sense.

NOW LISTEN!
We have just returned from New York with the largest and most select line of DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, Notions, Boots & Shoes ever shown in Greenville. Come and look at our Goods and we will send you home rejoicing. Respectfully, BRIGHT SPARKS.

There are some valuable parcels of real estate advertised in the REFLECTOR to be sold at auction. Two very desirable homes are offered.
The number of drunks Saturday would suggest that Mr. Joyner got his gold cure guns in readiness. His institute will open November 1st.
The crowd in town Saturday was large and there was a good picking up of trawls. A large number of delegates passed through Greenville yesterday.
The damage done by the late storm to the Presbyterian church was not so great as at first expected, and we are glad that the work is going rapidly forward.
Thad Langley, a colored man of this county, was killed at Farmville Monday. A pile of lumber fell on him inflicting such injuries as to cause death in a short while.
Mr. Carey J. Hunter, once a business man of this town but now a citizen of Raleigh, was married last Wednesday to Mrs. Genie A. Tomlinson, of Clayton. Many friends here extend best wishes.

TAXES—Important Dates.
State and County Taxes are now due. The taxpayers of Pitt county are notified that I will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of collecting such taxes. The law compels me to collect, account for and settle for the same at once and I hope every body who have not paid the same will meet me and do so. Those who prefer will find me in my office in the Court House, they can settle with me provided they come in the month of October: Penny Hill, Friday, October 27th.
Farmville, Saturday, October 28th.
Faulkner, " " " Bethel, " " "
Burney's Roads, " " " Pactolus, " " " Aydin, Tuesday, October 31st.
Grifton, Saturday, November 4th.
After November 1st I shall proceed to enforce collection by law. Pay in time and save costs. R. W. KING, Sheriff Pitt county.

Her absent children, Mrs. Sadie Jones and Mrs. Annie Harrell, of Suffolk, Va.; Mr. R. H. Williamson, of Drivers Va., and Miss Mittie Williamson, of Washington City were notified by wire of her condition and came at once to her bedside.
Capt. Swift Gal'away while on a visit to our town on professional business the last two days of last week was invited by a number of his old comrades in arms to attend and address the reunion of ex-Confederate veterans held last Saturday at Pollard's Mill about 3 miles from town. He begs us to express his deep regret at his inability to attend. In condition of his health the inclemency of the weather prevented his going.
Never too Old to Wed.
Register of Deeds Harding issued a marriage license to an aged couple one day last week. They were Yr. John Simmons aged 83 and Mrs. Nancy Briley aged 65. Besides being an old man to take unto himself a bride, Mr. Simmons has the reputation on being the champion eater of the county.
Colored Wedding.
There was a swell wedding in colored circles here last week. James Edmunds, the liverman, went out in Belvoir township and to k unto himself a wife. A long procession accompanied the couple back to town and a reception was given at the home of Herbert Edmunds brother of the groom.
Help the Sufferers.
In response to the item in last week's REFLECTOR Mr. D. B. Evans handed us $1 to be sent to the yellow fever sufferers at Brunswick, Ga. Are there not others who will give? No doubt there are, but they should give without delay as the need is urgent. Greenville ought to send a nice sum and should not require much solicitation about it.
Married.
Our young townsman Mr. H. C. Edwards was married on Wednesday afternoon of last week to Miss Mary E. Garris at the home of her father, Mr. R. H. Garris, of contentnea township. The bridal party returned to Greenville that evening and a reception was held at the home of the groom, corner Cotanch and Fifth Streets.
The Old Soldiers.
Notwithstanding Saturday was a very rainy disagreeable day there was a good gathering of Confederate veterans out at Pollards Mill, Saturday to take part in the reunion and picnic. The names of seventy-five veterans were enrolled on a roster together with their company and regiment. Short talks were made by Messrs E. A. Moye H. Harding and F. A. Nichol's. A good dinner was spread and all present enjoyed the occasion.
Sociable.
A pleasant party was held at the home of Sheriff R. W. King on Wednesday evening of last week, given by Mrs. King to a few friends. There were present Misses Mollie Rouse, of Tarboro, Hortense and Rosa Forbes and Florence Williams, Messrs. R. Hyman, Geo. Harrison, R. B. Jarvis, James Starkey, B. F. Tyson and A. J. Jo-lyn. Music, dancing and whist were favorite amusements of the guests. At 10:30 o'clock an elegant lunch was served and much enjoyed.
Inferior Court Question Settled.
The Supreme Court of the State last week decided that there was no error in the case of Moore against the Commissioners of Pitt county. This was the case in reference to the Interior Court that was appealed from Judge Hoke's decision and that the Magistrates of the county had no authority for assembling themselves in meeting for any purpose unless called together by the Board of County Commissioners. The Supreme Court sustaining him in this decision puts an end to the matter as it stood. If the county has an Inferior Court, the Commissioners must call the Magistrates together in order to make their action legal.
Shooting Scrape.
There was a shooting affair out in Farmville township Friday. Mr. Jim Moore, who has charge of a plantation belonging to Mr. J. J. Nobles, ordered a colored tenant to move a lot of stumps belonging to the negro out of his (Moore's) barn. The negro refused to move the stumps and threatened to kill Moore if he put them out. Moore moved the stumps out of his way and the negro man sided by his wife and son made an attack on him. Moore shot the man in the leg and stopped the attack. The boy ran back home and got a gun, and seeing Moore coming out of his gin house later fired at him killing his breast with shot. Moore fell but raised up and fired at the boy, striking him with two shot. The two negroes are in jail.

TOBACCO DEPARTMENT

Conducted by O. L. JOYNER, Proprietor Eastern Tobacco Warehouse.

OYSTERS, 'POSSUM FAT AND OTHER GOOD THINGS.

Tuesday Oct. 17th, was an unlucky day for 'possams and a lucky day for the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade. Two gentlemen selling tobacco on the floor of the Greenville Warehouse brought 'possams along and offered them for sale on their tobacco. The tobacco of course brought a good price and Mr. Morgan, of the American Tobacco Company, bought one and Mr. R. W. Ryster, the other. The two were lapped together and given for a supper for the Board of Trade. The managers of the Greenville Warehouse, then came to the rescue and gave a ponderous and luscious oyster supper which with the 'possams made the most tempting feast that we ever beheld. Every buyer and nearly every one connected with the tobacco business took part and those who could not do justice to the oysters made up lost ground on the 'possam, cake, wine and other goodies. It was one of the most social and pleasant gatherings of the tobacco men that we have ever had and it will be long remembered by those who took part in it. Messrs. Forbes & Evans, Gorman & Rostover have the sincere thanks of the entire trade.

Cooper's Warehouse, at Henderson N. C., has been making the past week fine sales of new bright tobacco. All bright tobacco free from green is selling at Cooper's fully as well as at this date last year. Try him with a shipment of bright tobacco.

AN APPEAL TO THE EASTERN TOBACCO GROWERS.

A few weeks ago the Winston Tobacco Journal published an article headed "Eastern Carolina Tobacco, Greenville the central and natural market of the East."

Starting out with this thought we will say that it is the opinion of leading tobacco men all over the State that Greenville will in time be the leading tobacco market of the world for the sale of bright tobacco. But in order to make it such there are two classes of people that must throng together their efforts and co-operation, namely, the farmer who produces the tobacco and the buyer who handles it and prepares it for the manufacturer. The first requisites for a tobacco market are sales, floor and handling room. These must be had before anything can be done, and then buyers who are prepared to pay as much as any other market for the same grade of tobacco offered. With all these nothing can be done unless we have the farmers' co-operation. With the farmers' co-operation, with the farmers' patronage no barrier then stands between Greenville and the greatest success that has ever crowned human efforts in the establishment and upbuilding of a live, thrifty and progressive tobacco market.

In buyers we are fortunate in having them for every grade from the meannest tip to the finest silky textured wrapper that is made, and what we lack in prize room can easily be supplied for this year, while already there are numbers of our business men who are ready to build more prize room next summer. We are authorized and backed up by every buyer on the market (and there are sixteen of them now and more expected) to say that no pains, money or effort shall be spared on their part to make your tobacco sell for every cent it is worth if you will bring it to Greenville where they have located and expect to make their future home. They further say that they came to Greenville to buy your bright tobacco and help you to establish a market where nothing but bright Eastern Carolina tobacco is sold. Just here we wish to say if the eastern tobacco growers, continue to take the best and brightest tobacco to some market where there is a mixture of every kind and class of tobacco grown, in almost every section of the country, they will not only drive the bright tobacco buyers away from our market but they are seriously damaging their own interest, because their tobacco cannot and will not bring the money on a floor where every kind and class of tobacco is sold as on a floor where only one class of tobacco grown on the same kind of land is sold. Drummers from these markets that ask you to ship them tobacco will tell you a different tale but we have our information from personal experience and from such men as R. W. Ryster and numbers of other of the best judges of tobacco that have ever been on this or any

GOLD NOT AVAILABLE.

The Troubles of a Man with a Twenty-Dollar Gold Piece.

He Had Plenty of Money, But the Money Wouldn't Get a Square Meal or a Ticket for a Street Car Trip.

"I had a twenty-dollar gold piece," said he, "and I wanted to get five cents out of it, so as to get home on the elevated. I had tried to at stations, and the ticket sellers wouldn't or couldn't change it. 'You ought to have more sense than to bring that here,' said one fellow, and he looked as though I'd attempted to rob him. 'Well, I retreated downstairs and went into a restaurant and got a glass of beer. When I tendered the twenty-dollar gold piece the bartender went to the other end of the counter, and instead of getting the change, brought out a big club. I didn't stay to see what he was going to do with it. 'I went out and walked a block in deep thought. I needed not only that five cents to get home on, but I had to change for some little things up town, and something to get back down town the next day. For you might as well have had a one-thousand-dollar note as that twenty dollars in my neighborhood. Still I felt that I couldn't reasonably expect a man to change a twenty nowadays for a five-cent piece. Having arrived at this conclusion, and being hungry, and morally certain that I had missed my dinner, I went into a restaurant to get something to eat. They didn't know me in the place, and I was certain to get a square meal anyhow. I ordered a very substantial dinner and leaned back to read my evening paper. Just as the food was due the head waiter came to me and asked me to change a two-dollar note. I told him I was sorry—couldn't do it. In fact, I was sorry in need of change myself. 'What's your smallest?' he asked. 'Twenty-dollar gold piece, all I've got,' said I. 'Then you can't eat here,' says he. 'We've had that worked on us until we haven't got a nickel in the house. You'll have to go somewhere else.' 'Here was a pretty go. But there was no help for it. Then I walked two blocks the other way till I came to the place of a man who knew me by sight, a place where I had often lunched. Being one of his regular customers, I felt that I had the right to presume on him a little. Well, I went in and had a good dinner, for I was getting all-fired hungry by this time. I washed it down with a couple of bottles of beer and felt better. When I came to pay him, however, the cashier simply asked my name and place of business. He put these down on a sheet of paper. 'But I want to pay,' said I, 'and I want some change.' 'Sorry,' says he, 'can't give you no change—rather trust you.' 'Then I told him the fix I was in. He listened and said I was not the only one. And he finally lent me five cents to get home.'—N. Y. Herald.

Try Cooper, at Henderson, with some fine white tobacco, and he will please you. Send your tobacco where you can get the cash for it. Cooper is always "well healed."

UNDER NO OBLIGATIONS.

Cut Despite His Failings She Could Not Discharge Him. One day on Powell's river in the Tennessee mountains I rode up to a comfortable-looking farmhouse to inquire the way and I ran plump into a one-sided "scrimmage" between a sharp-visaged woman and a meek little man at a wood pile, says a Detroit Free Press man. She was scolding him right and left and he was taking it silently. 'Hello!' I broke in. 'How far is it to Tazewell?' 'Fourteen miles, the way you've got to go,' she replied. 'Who lives here?' 'I do.' 'That wasn't very definite, but I didn't let it bother me in the slightest. 'Thanks,' I responded. 'Could I get my horse fed and a snack for myself?' 'No. But you kin half a mile further down the road.' By this time she had come nearer the gate. 'You seem to be having some trouble with your farmhand,' I said at a venture. 'Yes, he's the laziest, ornierest white man in the state. 'How long have you had him?' 'About four years.' 'Why don't you discharge him?' 'Can't do it very well, mister.' 'Why is labor scarce?' 'No, not scarce, exactly, but I'm kinder use ter him an' he don't give me no back talk.' 'But I wouldn't be annoyed by such help.' 'Well, mister, yer can't quite call him help. I reckon he's too ornery fer that.' 'Then why not send him off?' 'Din't I tell you I couldn't?' She was getting hot again. 'Why not?' I persisted. 'Are you under any obligations to him?' 'In course I ain't; he's my husband.' 'Oh,' I laughed, and I got away in time.

How Absurd to Wash a Fish!

At an eastern school of cookery two passages from a recent examination paper are amusing. One question was: "Describe a thermometer and its notation." It brought forth this answer: "A thermometer has two good points, the boiling point and the freezing point. The former is useful for potatoes and the latter for ice cream." The other reply was elicited by the lecturer in giving a practical lesson on fish cookery, who said: "First, you take the fish and wash it well, and then—A Dupul (interrupting)—'How absurd! Just fancy having to wash a fish—and after it has spent all its life in water, too!'"

As a Woman Thinker So is She.

Amelie Rives Chanler is happy in the serene conviction that she is beautiful. She "is devoted to her own beauty and to beautiful women in general." At least she is so quoted. Furthermore, like Marie Bashkirtseff, she revels in admiration of her own face and figure, and she says that she thanks God daily for his gift of loveliness. It will be seen that Amelie has no lingering doubts on the matter.

SAVED BY A DOG.

The Story of a Wonderful Rescue on Penobscot Bay.

An Irish Setter Was All That Stood Between Seven Helpless Fishermen and Certain Death in the Shape of Drowning or Exhaustion.

A good story is told in Dumb Animals of a red Irish setter dog belonging to a Washington gentleman. The dog, however, lives on Penobscot bay all the year round, in charge of a fisherman. Not long ago the dog, whose name is Pat, rescued no fewer than seven persons from a fishing smack that had been thrown on a reef in a heavy gale. The smack was wedged on one of the reefs on Great Spoon island, about two hundred feet from the shore. The men hoisted signals of distress and were in momentary danger of being swept away. Tremendous waves were running, and the crowd of excited fishermen on shore knew that it would be fatal for them to attempt a rescue, as no boat in their possession could live in that sea. Suddenly the one who had in his care the dog Pat bethought him that the dog had been taught to not only retrieve, but to tow boats from one point to another, and often when a boat would get adrift he would be sent for it, and he would run his nose under the painter until he would come to the end of it, and he would take it in his teeth and fetch the boat to shore.

Pat was at once called. A long cod line was attached to a piece of lath and flung as far as possible into the water. Pat promptly sprang in, swam to it, and brought it to the shore. Several times he repeated the performance. The fishermen were in despair. The waves were splashing so high they could not direct the dog's attention to the men on the reef. Finally Pat seemed to comprehend that there was something more serious on hand than he at first thought. He raised his head and looked intently over the water. His eye caught sight of the boat with its signal of distress and the waves dashing over it. When the lath with the cod line attached was again thrown into the water Pat at once sprang after it, took the lath in his teeth, and, instead of turning to the shore, struck out through the roaring surf to the reef. Many times he was buried under the waves, but after a few minutes of intense suspense he was seen from the shore clambering up the side of the reef, and a great shout went up as the imperiled sailors took hold of him and lifted him into the boat, in an almost exhausted condition. In brief time a strong rope was attached to the cod line. The men on shore were signaled to haul away, the rope was made fast to the reef and the shore, and one by one the men passed hand over hand from their place of danger, the brave dog following when he had got his second wind.

Jewels and Customs.

Jewels in astonishing profusion were worn at the queen's last drawing-room, and the handsome apartments which flashed with rainbow colors. The Marchioness of Tweeddale had all the seams of her dress-skirt outlined with diamonds and emeralds, and many seams of bodices were, butterflies and flowers of jewels, dress and boot buttons of diamonds, many ornaments of turquoise and emerald and amethyst, now in high favor, were worn. And if some one, reading this paragraph, should wish to moralize on the extravagance of these wealthy English dames, let him consider that the seekers for gems, the cutters and polishers, the dressmakers, milliners and jewelers were just so much richer for this fine display than they would have been had all the grand ladies kept their pounds and pence locked up in the bank instead of spending them for their benefit.

A Mild Defense.

The pickpocket was before the Chicago police judge for relieving a visitor to the fair of one hundred dollars or more. 'Guilty or not guilty?' inquired the court. 'The prisoner looked surprised. 'I took the money, your honor,' he said, 'but I don't like your way of asking me if I did.' 'Sir?' stammered the astonished judge. 'I beg your pardon, your honor,' continued the prisoner, 'ain't we running the fair for the money that's in it?'"

Are occasioned by an impure impure condition of the blood. Slight impurities, if not corrected, develop into serious maladies, such as SCROFULA, ECZEMA, RHEUMATISM. An other troublesome disease. To cure these is required a safe and reliable remedy free from any harmful ingredients. It removes all impurities from the blood and through it cleanses the system. Thousands of cases of the worst form of blood diseases have been cured.

Every Man A Capitalist.

You can become a capitalist at once by laying by a small part of your yearly income and investing it in a Tontine policy of the

Equitable Life

For $20 you can instantly secure a capital of $1,000 (or for $200 a capital of $10,000), thus acquiring an estate which you may leave to your heirs, or retain as a fund for your own support in old age, if your life be prolonged.

Such a plan will prompt you to save, will strengthen your credit, will increase your confidence, will preserve you from care and will give you lasting satisfaction.

The Plan is Simple. The Security Absolute.

It is the perfect development of the life policy. To-day is the right time to get facts and figures. Address
