The Satsuma orange trees are dead.

The Satsuma orange trees are dead. The cold of last winter finished the last of them. They will stand a cold of 18° to 20°, but lower than this hurts and finally kills them. On our southern coast, I believe they will do well. They will stand our ordinary winter, pounds of a complete commercial fer-tilizer, such as is made for tobacco growing, in the furrow under the onion rows. If you intend to grow ripe onions you should always sow the seed in February, as you can thus raise better onions than you can from sets.

To raise early grown onions it is best to plant sets of the White Pearl onion in October. Seed would do just as well for these if sown in September, but the uncertainty of our fall weather and liability of dry weather at this time renders the germination of the seeds at this time rather uncertain. We therefore advise sets for fall plant-

A mere two-line item against, perhaps, a column; here was an inducement that no newspaper man could resist, and the reporter was not proof against temptation. Still, he was wise enough to stipulate that the story should be given at once. "Well, you have our names and residence from the register,' said the young Benedict-about-to-be, "and we've had quite a little ro mance. She belongs to one of the best families in that country, where her father is quite a small magnate. I went down there about three years ago and started a paper. I did pretty well and am probably as well fixed financially as she is, but, unfortunately, the old man and I couldn't hitch. Before I knew what a charming daughter he had I trod meeting of the sub-committee eson his political toes pretty sharply and he never forgave me. The old lady, too, didn't like me, partly because I was a newcomer and not related to any of the local aristocracy, into which she wanted her daughter to marry.

"Still, Bella liked me, and you know when you have the girl and the dog on your side a fellow can stand a good deal of snubbing. All went along very well for awhile. I proposed and was accepted, but corde and the Pont des Invalides. when I came to speak to the old man about it he fired me out bodily, or threatened to do so, and ordered me never to show my face in his house again. Knowing the old man, old folks watched her pretty closely.

"Finally they decided to remove her from the contamination of my neighborhood, probably on the theo ry that separation is a cure for such cases. Accordingly they came to Washington for a month or so, possibly in hopes that some of these city swells might cut me out. But Bella managed to drop me a note telling me about it, so I followed them They've been here about a week stopping with friends-I couldn't find out where until the other day I hunted through all the hotels and haunted the streets in hopes of seeing them, when finally I remembered that strangers in the city always go to the capitol about the first thing.

"Then I took up my station in the rotunda every day, staying all day long. The watchmen evidently considered me a new crank in town, but finally they came-the old man, the old lady and Bella. I pulled my hat for full description see the division be-tween the heirs of B. F. Eborn about newspaper until they had passed, and then I heard them inquiring the way to the dome. I waited around for a chance to speak to her, but the old man kept her at his elbow, and I had about made up my mind that I would have to knock him down when an idea struck me.

"You know how sound travels over that arch, so that people on opposite sides of the circle can talk to each other in whispers? I had been there before and knew all about it, so I stood just across from Bella and spoke her name. She jumped as if she had been shot.

"Where are you, Will?" she exclaimed, recognizing my voice at once. She had been thinking of me, she told me afterward.

"'Hush!' said I. 'I'm just oppo site you; talk to the wall and I can hear all you say.' "And maybe we didn't talk. It seemed a bit uncanny to be talking to a stone wall and having your best girl answer back. Something like the old story of Pyramus and Thisbe, only they talked through the wall. Well, she told me where she was stopping, and that it would be theless for me to try to see her nearer, as she was watched all the time.

"Just then the old man chimed in and asked her to whom she was talking. She said only to herself. As there was no one within fifty feet of her he had to believe it.

The reporter was on hand at the appointed time and place, but neither bride nor groom prospective appeared. Whether the old folks got wind of their intentions and removed the young lady, or whether some little part of the plans miscarried, can only be conjectured. Certainly the license is still on the books, but no minister has yet certified that he performed the ceremony, and as this fact has not been established it would be rather rough on the young people to give their names. -Washington Post.

A TWENTIETH CENTURY FAIR. Paris Is to Have Another Fair in 1900.

The site of the exposition of 1900 has been definitely selected. At the pecially appointed to settle the question, it was decided that the Champ de Mars, the Trocadero, the Esplanade des Invalides, the Quai d'Orsay, the Palais de l'Industrie and the surrounding ground should all be devoted to the great world's show that is to be held there at the close of the century, and that the banks of the Seine should be further connected by a bridge to be constructed between the Pont de la Con-It is interesting to note, now that this problem has been solved, that all the members of the sub-committee who attended the meeting were in favor of this choice, M. Berger, who was the sole absentee, being the face, I never did, but managed to only one who would have preferred ally shared by most of his colleagues. It was objected, however, that the distance from the center of the metropolis would be too great, and the Parisian tradesmen, fearing that a smaller number of visitors would thus be attracted to the city, also made their voices heard with good effect. One by one the subcommittee were brought around to the opinion that the old site was. after all, the best, and the resolution at which they have arrived completely settles the affair.

One of the principal entrances to the exhibition will be on the Place de la Concorde, but the square itself will not be interfered with, nor, indeed, will any attempt be made to include such well-known establishments as Ledoyen's restaurant and the cafe chantant of the Horloge, situated between the Place de la Concorde and the Palais de l'Industrie, within the boundaries of the world's show.

People have been inquiring with much curiosity whether the Eiffel tower, which was the crowning feature of the exhibition of 1889, is to be allowed to stand, as the architect of the city of Paris has spoken in favor of its partial demolition. M. Pickard, however, said that nothing had yet been decided on the subject.-London Telegraph. CAPTURING A BULL MOOSE.

How It Was Accomplished by Hunter Sellick.

Hunter Sellick has for several years been the possessor of two fine cow moose, and his great ambition has been to go into the moose-raising business. Year after year he has endeavored to capture a male moose, but up to this winter failed. Some time ago he left Moncton for illicit distillery .- Atlanta Journal. the forest country lying between the bead waters of the Tobique and Miramichi rivers. For days his search was unavailing, until one day, about thirty miles from any settlement and in the heart of the forest, he sighted the object of his search.

It was a magnificent specimen, nearly six feet high. At this season its antlers had been shed, but the new ones were already jutting forth. The dogs were set to nipping the moose in the rear, driving it toward a tree. Sellick, creeping round, suddenly threw his lasso over the animal's head, twisted the rope around a tree and had the moose a prisoner.

It is comparatively easy for a suc cessful hunter to bring home a dead moose, but it is not so easy with a live one. It took five weeks, climbing over the hills, wading the 5 plus 4 plus 3 plus 2 plus 1 equals morasses or fording the rivers which 100.-St. Louis Republic. marked the thirty miles' distance between the scene of the capture and the first settlement. The hunter at times had to employ a catamaran to cross the streams, the moose swimming behind. Finally he reached

A woman lately returned from Brazil tells of the curious nomenclature of the streets of Para. They are Biblical or commemorative of some event in the Brazilian history. It seemed to her quite irreverent to be told that a desirable locality was "at the corner of St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist streets." She went with her uncle, who was on business, to dine at the

In a recent press article, in referring to saltpetre as a fertilizer, the writer had in mind Chili saltpetre, or nitrate soda. There is an other saltpetre, the nitrate of potash, which of course contains potash in addition to nitragen. As was stated, saltpetre is not a complete fertilizer, and other incredients must be added to it. This is so with either form, but in the case of nitrate of potash only acid phosphate or some form of phosphate is needed to make it a complete application. The Chili saltpetre (nitrate soda) was meant because it is the only saltpetre that here is used agriculturally.—H. B. BATTLE. lowa's Ice Cave.

Decorah, Winneshiek county, Ia., has the finest specimen of the typical ice cave to be found in the Mississippi valley, being a far better epresentation of that class of natural curiosities than the famous "Natural Icehouse" in Minnesota.

It has been known to the inhabitants of that portion of the Hawkeye state for more than a quarter of a century. It was first scientifically described by the White geological surveying party in 1869, and has noted scientists of this country and Europe. To this Iowa oddity, if to any, the evaporation theory of ice accumulation may be applied.

The walls, and especially the roof, of the cave are very near the surface, in no case being more than twenty-five feet below the surroundings, and in some places not more than ten. A fact which goes a long way toward establishing the truth of the rapid evaporation theory as applied to ice caves in general, says the St. Louis Republic, is that where the walls of this Winneshiek mystery are thinnest the ice accumula tions are thickest. The floors and the base of the walls are the only places where ice is est months of the year, say during the five months beginning with May. Charles White, director of the Iowa geological survey of 1870, says that "the Winneshiek ice cave is about 100 feet in length, taking all its windings into consideration.'

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use ef such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point, We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
