CONCERNING SOME FOLKS.

Some foiks are allers grumblin', no matter what they've got,
A-findin' fault with what they have and wartin' what they've not:
And you'd think, to hear em kickin' and cussin' of their luck,

That the world's a bad investment, an' the Lord's a gettin' stuck. An' it riles me up to hear 'em a-com-plainin' all the time, With their measly misconception of the works o' the Sublime ; Au' it sets me to reflectin' on the ments of the case, An' a drawin' of conclusions appertaining to the race.

Till I've sorter got to thinkin' that it's sinful to compiain; That there's just as much of pleasure as there ever was o' pain ; That there ain't no more to cuss about than what there is to bless, An' things are nearly ekally divided up,

I guess, For when you strike a balance 'twixt the shadder ap' the sun, The two will allers ekalize when all said an' done; An' the world is balanced even or it wouldn't spin aroun'. For the hills 'ill fill the hollers ween the thing is leveled down. There's another old-time doctrine, an' I've found it mighty true, That you never get a thing without alosin' somethin' too : That there never was a gain without a correspondin' loss, That you're not a-goin' to wear a crown less you bear the cross ; An' when you see a pint of life, the where you'd like to get, You may make it soon or later, you'll pay for it, I bet.

A man may get the larnin' of the sciences an' sich, An', another deal in futures, an' may strike it sudden rich : But the first has lost the peace of mind that once he used to feel, An' the last has lost the relish of the hardearned honest meal :

An' when you see a feller's got all things so extra nice, You can gamble that fur all he's he's paid the market price. An' if your life was figured out, I'll tell you what, my friend, You'd find it balanced just the same as his'n at the end. Then quit your fool complainin', au' studyin' how to shirk, For the time you spend in cussin' you can better spend in work ; Things take on a billious look, at times,

I must admit, But a kickin' an' complainin' wouldn't help the thing a bit; An' the clouds that come a driftin' 'ill vanish one by one,
An' a-peerin' from behind em' is glory of the sun. There's as much of sun as shadow in every drap of dew. There's as much of day as darkness when you take the whole year through; There's as much of sun as shauder in every human heart, An' of day an' night in every life you'll find an ekal part; An' should there be a residue, a-standin' either way, The Lord 'll make it ekal on t'other side, some day.

GOD IN OUR POLITICS.

When God said "Let there be light"-and there was light, his will was not less apparent and potent than when He said-"Let there be a Democratic party in American politics"-and there arose a Democratic party God's hand is as apparent in our country's history and safety, as it is in the rock based Church that he founded and commended to St. Peter. His hand is apparent in the work of our Revolutionary ties in the early history of the government.

The Democratic party is not coeval with the government. Under the administration of Washington and John Adams the Federal party was the sole power in the government. It was a proud, centralizing, aristocratic party that distrusted the people. Had the Federal party remained undisturbed in the possession of power, the Government would not have lasted a hundred years. It would probably have been overturned by bloody Revolution. But God's edict created the Dem ocratic party and since its creation it has been upheld by his Almighty arm and has survived through the mightiest convulsions known to history. It has been tried by fire and been purified by adversities, and under the chastisements of the Almighty, it has always become stronger; and just as sure as God rules it will It is predicated that notwith- survive its present trials and be standing the low price of cotton restored to power in God's good and the immense crop this year, time, wiser for the lessons of d'sthere will be no reduction of aster and stronger by the power acreage in Texas next year, the of Him who created it. THE FUTURE OF COTTON.

There is no doubt at all that the continuance of the present price of cotton would bankrupt the Gulf States and very seriously affect the trade balances of the country. They are entirely right, however, bilities: its development has but who say that it is impossible for such prices to continue.

Cotton is below the cost of production, and there is no hope of reducing cost-at least not in the is no counterpart, and the richest immediate future.

Say! how does the idea strike you of sending an exhit of our tobacco as well as other farm moving out, court proceedings, Saturday Night Assault.

Saturday night some parties went to the home of a man named W. H. Strum, about seven miles from Greenville, for the purpose of making an assault on him. His wife heard some voices talking in low tones near the house and opened the door to see what opened three men rushed in and started to attack Strum, but the latter fired his pistol at them and they fled. While they were in the house two of them were recognized as Redding Norris, Strum's father-in-law, and Jesse Baker. Later some parties were again heard at a window trying to get in when Strum fired at the window and they again fled. During the day Sunday while Strum was go ing along the road another attack was made on him. Strum applied to J. W. Smith Esq., for three warrants for Redding Nor ris, Jesse Baker and W. H. Norris. The parties were brought to Greenville Monday and placed under bond for their appearance at trial yesterday. The two Norrises gave bond, but Baker failing to do so were already and placed trial yesterday. ing to do so was placed in jail to await trial. While here Monday Strum applied to B. S. Sheppard,

In one of the fashionable quart. ers of Chicago, according to the Times, lives an Irishman who has made a fortune as a contractor. He has never forgotten the friends of his youth, especially one Casey, a boss mason, who still lives in Goose Island district. Casey does not feel exactly at home in the big house, but out of regard for his old friend often side spends an evening there with him. On a recent occasion of this sort, a heavy rain set in just as it came time for the visitor to take his leave. "Look here, Mike," said the contractor, as they reached the door, "there's no need of you going home in this flood. I have a spare room for charity. up stairs. Stay over night wid me." "None whatever. Some of the brightest brains the world ever produced belonged to people addicted strongly to the use of tobacco.

"There is not an ingredient in a cigarette that anybody, no mat ter how prejudiced he may be, can prove to be unhealthy. Tobacco is a vegetable that has been used for ages, sugar is fattening and healthful, and glycerine is healing and purifying.

"Tobacco is used by many people as a remedy for 'that tired feeling.' Good tobacco helps a man to think. It brightens the mind and makes one feel like getting up and doing something."
