North Carolina and the Civil War

The following from the War Records Office of the War Department as printed by the N. Y. Times furnishes facts that will be read with pride by every North Carolinian.

It shows North Carolina stood first and foremost in the late civil war. Read it and you will see the facts as stated by these Records.

Though but little has been printed concerning the work of the War Records Office of the War Department, yet this has been a tremendous task.

The most interesting feature of the work is an exhaustive compilation from official records of the casualties on both sides in the war.

The table of death and wounds that are given measure the actual fighting as nothing else can.

The heroic valor of the North Carolina troops excites the highest admiration, and Pennsylvania, which lost more in killed and wounded...

SOME FUSION JUSTICE.

A correspondent writes us from Myrtle that a few days ago a gang of three negroes—Dan Davis, his mother and sister—went to the home, after having been forbidden the premises, of A. A. Hordin, a white man in feeble health...

A warrant was sworn out before Esq. Purgason, and the negroes were arrested and taken before him for trial.

Our correspondent, who is one of the good men left out of the fusion movement last year, says that he "has been waiting, hoping, trusting and praying that the fusion party might do something honorable, but he has been bitterly disappointed."

The fact that the negroes were guilty of two grave crimes, to-wit: assault with a deadly weapon and forcible trespass was clearly proven by reputable witnesses.

This is an outrage, but we confess it is nothing more than we expected from the cattle elevated to the magistracy by the Fred Douglas gang—Rutherfordton Democrat.

Marvelous Results. From a letter written by Rev. J. Gauderman, of Diamond, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery...

Several years ago the legislature of Michigan under mistaken sentiment, abolished capital punishment in that State, but the change effected no good purpose.

The Newton Enterprise tells of a small sized negro in Lincoln county who at one sitting last week ate fourteen cans of sardines and a pound of soda crackers.

$10,000 Wasted in Printing.

Secretary H. C. Brown, of the Railroad Commission, speaking of the outrageous charges made by Stewart Brothers, public printers, for recent work turned out, said as far as the Report of the Railroad Commission was concerned, it would take him thirty days to read the proof of the book, and as it had to be read by him, the expense and trouble of a month's stay in Winston was involved in all the mess of having put the contract at this distance from Raleigh.

As to the books for which a bill was coolly made at treble price, the acting Auditor, Mr. Palmer Jerman, when the bill was presented, promptly and properly refused to issue a warrant for the manifestly overcharged work.

What Mr. Canislo Has Lost. The Chicago Times Herald has the following:

Mr. Canislo rarely goes on a railway journey without losing an umbrella or an overcoat or leaving a night shirt in a sleeping car.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear, there is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies.

Hotest Day for Twenty-five Years. CHICAGO, Ill., May 29.—The records of the weather bureau do not show a hotter day than this one in May for the last twenty-five years.

THE MODEST VIOLET.

Significance of This Most Beautiful Flower of the Spring. It is a Favorite in Gay Paris in February—The Pretty Little Flower Has a History in the French Capital.

Never were violets so fashionable in New York as for the latter part of winter and early spring just past, says the New York Herald.

In Paris where spring comes earlier than in New York, the boulevards are beautified by masses of fresh violets sold from flower stands in the open air.

The Tobacco Department.

Conducted by O. L. Joyner, Proprietor Eastern Tobacco Warehouse.

There is nothing more healing, soothing pleasant and refreshing than to take our little petty troubles and burn them up, so to speak...

Mr. W. R. Horne, of Farmville, spent yesterday in town. He says tobacco seems to be looking better than any other crop and that while the excessive rainy weather has to some extent damaged the crop there are good hopes yet.

We are informed that the organization of the tobacco growers in and around the Farmville section was effected Saturday evening in the face of the rain.

Greenville is almost on a boom (Providence forbid that it should form a co-partnership with one). There is more building going on in Greenville to-day than ever before...

WORK TOBACCO NOW. If there ever was a time when young tobacco demanded extreme attention it is now. The hard and constant rains have run the soil together and unless it is loosened up tobacco will begin to run up and batten very early.

IRON STOVES. Dr. Franklin First Made Them for the Burning of Coal. One of the very first attempts at making an iron stove was by Count or Cardinal Polignac, of France, early in the eighteenth century.

There is nothing more healing, soothing pleasant and refreshing than to take our little petty troubles and burn them up, so to speak...

By all means now is the time to stir the tobacco plants. Let our inferior crops go. Your tobacco demands your attention and unless you give it your attention when it is needed there is no use applying the treatment when the crop is hopeless.

SPONING PARTIES.

Origin of a Term Used in Certain Regions in a Romantic Relation. Apropos of the recent disturbance in religious circles over the definition of 'spooning,' the Tennessee version of it is given:

'Spoonings' parties are popular in some quarters. They take their name from a good old English word, which was intended to ridicule the alleged fantastic actions of a young man or a young woman who is in love.

When a spooning party is given the committee in charge of the event gets a spoon from each person who attends, or else presents each guest with a spoon.

Of course, the distribution of the spoons is made with the greatest possible carefulness, the aim being to so place them as to properly fit the case of the young people to whom they are presented.

The fact was the Prussians for several weeks past had been cruelly ravaging the country.

The flying carriage contained some German officers who were the bearers of secret orders to St. Omer.

'Tonnerre!' he growled. 'My horses will die when they reach their stable if they do not break their necks going round one of these steep curves!'

That afternoon the enemy had taken possession of the village of Ottrott, and, as their custom was, had installed themselves in the people's houses.

A TALE OF ALSACE.

The carriage was going at a terrific pace. The horses, unusually excited by the white wine that had been poured over their oats, dashed through the air which whistled past their ears.

The mad, furious course in the darkness had something strange about it, something mysterious, sinister, and all the more so, perhaps, that it was taking place in the antique terrible—the terrible year when the Germans were in Alsace.

When the vehicle, which had been flying down the slopes of the Ottrott, raced through the village, passing like an express train the houses with their low roofs on which the moon cast a silvery light, the good women, suddenly frightened, made the sign of the cross with a trembling of the knees and a whispered prayer.

Then he crouched down on his hands and knees and waited. A few seconds more and the carriage with the four German officers would be upon him.

He uttered a terrible cry of "Vive la France!" to which Barka replied with a joyful laugh.

The man rose and peered over the edge into the black gulf of death. He was not a man, but a stone wall.

preposterous. Anyone who could have read it in his mind would have been shocked, terror-stricken!

While a farm hand harnessed the horses to the carriage Lux put a saddle on Barka, an Arab horse, a faithful animal which he loved and cared for himself with his own hands.

A mysterious dialogue seemed to commence between the man and the horse, which, suddenly sending the sparks flying from beneath its four feet, vanished into the darkness like a phantom.

"It is yonder," he said to himself in a deep-voiced growl, "it is there that they are to perish."

At this point the road made a sudden turn, and apparently came to an abrupt end. As a matter of fact, however, it did not terminate, but continued on a steep, terraced slope.

Then he crouched down on his hands and knees and waited. A few seconds more and the carriage with the four German officers would be upon him.

He uttered a terrible cry of "Vive la France!" to which Barka replied with a joyful laugh.
