-His Nerve Gave Out and He Suf-fered a Collapse-A Story with a Moral. At a Detroit hotel the other day was a guest whose countenance wore such a frightened expression that he was an object of attention and remark from all others. Some said he must have been thrown sky-high by a Texas steer within the last day again?" or two; others that he had been run across a trestle-work by a passenger train; others still that his wife had suddenly pulled a gun on him and taken the reins of government in her hands. It is easy to find out all about people if you have a knack for it. "Why do I carry such a wild, scared look?" queried the man in reply, as he made blosself comfortable in a blg arm-chair. "I dattered where off, but I begin to doubt if it will ever pass away entirely. I've been trying hard to look placid and contented for the last hour, but it eems to have been a failure. "Did a bear, panther, alligator, Indian warrior or a ghost have any-thing to do with it?" asked the interviewer. "No-nothing of the sort. Young nan, did you ever ride on a locomotive?" "Yes." "On a railroad snowplow?" "No. "Well, perhaps you know that a ailroad snowplow is about the biggest, strongest and ugliest looking

SENT AS WRITTEN. Young Operator's Bad Attempt Revising a Message.

Several years ago a young man, whom we will call H, was employed as night operator at a small town in Illinois.

The second night of his service a circus arrived in town and with it a great many farmers from the surrounding country. H went on duly at seven o'clock in the evening. About an hour later a stranger came in to send a telegram. As soon as he had written and paid for the message the operator sat down to the instrument and proceeded to tick off the telegram, which was brief, and read, not including address and signature:

"Have sean the party send mee the muney."

When the operator had nearly finished sending the message the receiving operator telegraphed back, "What are you givin' us?" referring to the spelling of the message.

The rules of the Western Union Co. prohibit any conversation on Co. prohibit any conversation on the wires between operators, but Pitt Co., N. C. nevertheless this rule is frequently broken. It is also a strict rule that messages shall always be sent and words spelled as they are written, even if, as is often the case, the words are spelled wrongly.

But at the time H took this job he was as ignorant of these rules as an Indian, so to the operator's query as to what he was "givin' him" he re-

The dowager empress of China has had a romantic history. She was an extremely beautiful girl, the daughter of poor parents who lived in the suburbs of Canton. When the family was starving she, knowing her commercial value, persuaded her parents to sell her as a slave. She was purchased by a renowned general, who, delighted with her beauty, disposition and general cleverness, adopted and educated her as his daughter. When later the general was summoned to Peking, he could think of no finer gift to offer his sovereign than his daughter. The emperor found her so charming that he made her his wife. When her husband died, in 1881, this slaveempress became regent, the present emperor being only seven years old. She found China crippled by debt and torn by internal rebellions, yet five years ago, when she handel over the governing power to her son, peace and prosperity reigned throughout the vast empire. - Chicago Tribune
