“WOLVES IN SHEEP’S CLOTHING.”

Did you ever notice how sin tries to ape righteousness? The evil never tries to gain a following by first showing all his hideousness. When Christ combated his temptation in the wilderness with a Scriptural quotation, the Devil answered Him back by also quoting Scripture.

It is often that one hears the Bible quoted in the attempt to justify some evil. But the point we are coming at just now is the prohibition campaign in this State. If there ever was a question that women should stand solidly for, it is prohibition. It is said that the best and most convincing speeches that have been made for prohibition in this campaign were by a woman—Mrs. Curtis, of Texas, who is national organizer of the Woman’s Christian Temperance Union.

Now look at what the whiskey crowd are doing. Seeing the good this noble woman was doing for the cause of prohibition, they have undertaken to offset it by importing a woman from New York to come to North Carolina and make whiskey speeches. They first had this importation to try her hand in Salisbury, the headquarters of the whiskey crowd, and reports from her speech there say she even disgusted some of the anti-prohibitionists and turned them into temperate advocates. Not even by aping righteousness can they turn the tide of prohibition in North Carolina.

The Durham Herald says: “The Democratic party is about as ungrateful to the whiskey interests as the Republican party is to the negro.” It strikes us that the Democratic party can get along as well without whiskey as the Republican party can without the negro. The lap off is an improvement to both parties.

You folks who put off paying your bills when there is no real necessity for doing so, should stop and consider to what extent you are keeping the other fellow from meeting his obligations. A little extra effort to pay bills when times seem dull would be a great help to business.

It is a man has even the remotest idea of being a candidate for anything, it matters not how far in the future, he should be very careful what he says or what kind of letters he writes now. These things may come to light many years hence.

One danger is that the campaign for the gubernatorial nomination will arouse dissension and bitterness in the party that will be hard to overcome. There are going to be some badly disappointed folks if their man does not get it.

Marion Butler says he is not out of North Carolina politics, but most of the other Republicans think that he is.

Mr. A. H. Boyden, chairman of the Anti-Prohibition League of the State, tried to buy space in the newspapers in which to print matter against prohibition. It is a pleasure to see that very few of the papers, though possibly all of them need all the money they can get, would sell their space to help debauch their readers.

Charlotte has issued a new city directory, and the summing up gives the city a population of 41,325. This will put Greensboro to stretching out over a few more miles, counting noses again and making another book.

It was too bad that those New Jersey delegates to the peace conference at Wilmington were made to come down a year too soon because the wrong date was given them.

If a wire frame resting on the shoulders could go along with the merry widow hat to help support it, the strain on the neck of the wearer would be greatly relieved.

President Roosevelt would have you know that he is commander-in-chief of the army and even if he cannot have his way in all other matters he wants to boss.

No, they have not found any money while digging up the street for the paving, but Mayor Wooten says they would like to find some money to keep the digging going.

That night railroad building at High Point, and tearing it up the next day, reminds us of some old times in Durham.

The weather predictions and reports of county gubernatorial primaries are running a race to see which can ring up the most changes in conditions.

Being a delegate to the national convention costs a good pile. May be that is why some of them are declining to go, especially as they know how it will come out anyway.

The commencement orators and prohibition speakers visiting Pitt county just now are giving our people something worth hearing.

Atlanta feels that she is doing it a little bit bigger than anybody else. In a second fire there the other day destroying a block of buildings, 175 horses perished.

One man says he believes all the money has gone to the North Pole. If that is so we wish Welman would hurry up and find the pole.

Men are getting to losing their heads now over politics. All they can do is to get up a scrap over candidates.

Bursting the sewer pipe for a whole block is right expensive experimenting with a road rolling machine.

If you want to vote in the prohibition election May 26th be careful to know that you are registered.

As it belongs to Hetty she has the right to spend it to suit her self.

RESOLUTION.

Adopted by Washington Conference of the M. E. Church, South. At the recent conference of Washington District, M. E. Church, South, held at Aurora the following resolution was adopted: Whereas, Our church has always been committed to temperance and the prohibition of the whiskey traffic.

And whereas, the legislature of North Carolina has at its recent special session passed a law submitting the question of prohibition to the people of the State to be voted on May 26th, now therefore be it resolved: That it is the opinion of this conference that every Christian will not only vote for, but will give liberally of his time an influence to bring about an overwhelming majority expression in favor of the legal prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in North Carolina.

W. A. Forbes, J. F. Bruton, M. T. Plyler. Purity of the Ballot. The Monroe Journal argues in favor of the ballot, both in primaries and in general elections. But the Journal’s plea will amount to nothing as long as weak voters use their heads merely for hit pegs and permit “workers” to fix up their tickets at the primaries. Any white man who can read ought to be punishable by law in snooking a man down who insults him by trying to “influence” him at a primary election. And a man who can be “influenced” by a paid worker has about as much use for the ballot as a mule has for mathematics. It is disgusting to a man who does his own thinking and votes for a candidate of his choice, to see a paid worker lead up six voters that can be “influenced” and deposit as many votes against the man who is guided by his conscience and better judgment. If there is some way to choke the paid workers off, it would relieve things wonderfully.—Our Home.

MR. D. L. DUFFY DEAD.
The End Came Suddenly This Morning—A Shock to the Community.

The announcement early this morning that Mr. D. L. Duffy had died suddenly was indeed a shock to the town. Friends hurried to the residence on Washington street only to find that the report was true and that his spirit had passed away.

Mr. Duffy had for some days been complaining of not feeling well, and suffered from an attack of colic Tuesday, but had not taken his bed and was out on the street after supper Tuesday night.

When other members of the family arose this morning, one of the boys heard a noise in his father's room, and turning in the room found Mr. Duffy lying across the bed with his feet coming in heavy struggles.

A physician was summoned, but Mr. Duffy was dead when he reached the home.

Mr. Duffy was about 33 years old, and is survived by a wife and two sons, both small. He was a civil engineer by profession and came to Greenville from Chattanooga, Tenn., about two years ago to assist in the construction of the railroad through that city and Washington.

His wife has been preparing for shipment and will be sent to Chattanooga for interment.

His sympathy is expressed for the wife and two boys by their great sorrow.

Funeral services were held at 10 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Duffy, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Wooten.

Interment was at the cemetery.

"Dixie's Land" or "Dixie's Land" is not derived from one Dixie, a kind boisterous slave owner on Manhattan Island in the latter part of the eighteenth century.

His treatment of his negroes caused them to regard his plantation "Dixie's Land" as the short of an earthly paradise, and when any of the slaves were taken away from that old house they were always pining for "Dixie's Land" and talking of the life there.

When slavery was abolished, the same kind of a gentleman calling on the creator of "Monte Cristo" had been asked into a room adjoining the host's studio, the servant to bring him to go in, as Mr. Dummas was alone.

At that moment, says the narrator, I heard a loud burst of laughter from the inner apartment, so I said:

"I would sooner wait until Monsieur's visitors are gone."

"Monsieur has no visitors. He is working," remarked the servant, with a smile. "Mr. Dummas very often laughs like this while at his work."

It was fine indeed. The narrator was alone, or rather, in company with one of his domestics, at whose smiles he was chatting.

"Ever noticed a salesman for a grocery house that makes a business of supplying the big New York books, that if you stroll upstairs and look at any of the big books you will see them all pretty well lighted up?"

"I have seen several of them. Well, that's sometimes a theft. The help has orders to light up a number of the front rooms every evening just so that the hotel would look like a graveyard."

One of the clerks, who had been coming in to the office to see the manager, was in the company with one of his domestics, at whose smiles he was chatting.

"No," replied the draught, "but"—

"Yes, you are a very good man. I have something that is for you. I have something that is for you. I have something that is for you."

"I have something that is for you. I have something that is for you. I have something that is for you."

"I have something that is for you. I have something that is for you. I have something that is for you."

"I have something that is for you. I have something that is for you. I have something that is for you."

"I have something that is for you. I have something that is for you. I have something that is for you."

He Noticed the Likeness. A Parisian spool had a crayon picture of himself made, which he afterward pretended to find fault with.

"It does not bear the slightest resemblance to me," said he, "and I will not take it."

The artist protested, but all to no avail.

After the dandy had left the painter added to the portrait a magnificent pair of red ears and exhibited it in the window, thus altogether, to the gaze of the curious public.

It hadn't been long exposed when the dandy entered the artist's studio in a towering rage, and, finding that threats amounted to nothing, he at last offered to buy it, even at a considerable advance upon the original price.

"It wasn't strange you didn't recognize your resemblance to the picture at first," said the painter, "but I knew you'd notice the likeness as soon as I added those ears."—Spare Moments.

How Dummas Amused Himself.
An interesting anecdote of the older French, illustrating the author's personal flow of fine spirits, has been told. A gentleman calling on the creator of "Monte Cristo" had been asked into a room adjoining the host's studio, the servant to bring him to go in, as Mr. Dummas was alone.

At that moment, says the narrator, I heard a loud burst of laughter from the inner apartment, so I said:

"I would sooner wait until Monsieur's visitors are gone."

"Monsieur has no visitors. He is working," remarked the servant, with a smile. "Mr. Dummas very often laughs like this while at his work."

THE COMMENCEMENT AT GRIFTON
thoughts equally as beautiful as those mentioned in the foregoing. Seeing the writer going to Grifton on the train to hear him, he remarked pleasantly "You might have stayed home in your office today and saved the trip by just saying ex Gov. Aycock made his same old commencement speech that everybody has heard before, and long ago grown tired of." But not so. It was a speech that more than repaid time and expense in going to hear, for no one could hear it without being benefitted.

Superintendent Cele announced that this school at Grifton having won the prize of $25 by the Woman's Betterment Association of the county, the local association, in recognition of the worth of Miss Lillie Grant in leading the work, desired to present her a gold bracelet. County Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale was requested to perform this pleasant duty, which he did most gracefully and in beautiful language.

Miss Janie Toberson, teacher of the third and fourth grades, had so won the hearts of her pupils that they presented her with a silk umbrella and requested Miss Ragsdale to also make this presentation for them.

After the exercises a bounteous dinner was spread on the school grounds to which every one present was invited. Grifton certainly has every reason to feel proud of her school.

STORE BREAKER CAPTURED.
And Committed to Jail to Await Court.
Today Mr. W. C. Hines returned from Bethel bringing with him a colored man named Sam Brown who was placed in jail. On Sunday night some one broke into the warehouse of Blount Bros. at Bethel. They telephoned at once for Mr. Hines who went over with his blood hound. The dog ran a trail to the house of Brown, but other evidence was waited for before arresting him. With this clue enough evidence to fasten the guilt upon Brown was not hard to find, and arrest, preliminary trial and commission to jail on failure to give bond for his appearance at Superior court, followed in regular order.

MR. J. C. TRIPP DEAD.
Mr. Joshua L. Tripp, aged 80 years, died at 4.30 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon, at his home on Pitt street. About two months ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis, but had recovered sufficiently from this to get about some on a rolling chair, but on Wednesday of last week became worse and continued to grow weaker until the end.

Mr. Tripp was a thoroughly good man and had a host of friends. He was a native of Pitt county and a Confederate soldier. A wife and eight children survive him. These are Mr. J. B. Tripp, of Texas; Mr. J. L. Tripp, of Washington City; Mr. H. B. Tripp, of Greenville; Mrs. Eliza J. Tripp, of Mrs. D. C. Cox, of Mrs. J. C. Tripp, of Mrs. M. S. Branch, of Mrs. A. F. Cox, of Mrs. J. E. Ayscue, of Greenville.

Funeral services were held at 10 o'clock at the residence conducted by Rev. J. E. Ayscue.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:
The people of Wake and through your columns wish to place the name of R. R. Cotten before the voters of this county in our coming Democratic county convention. As we recall the fact that his name was before our convention two years ago and he made a strong year lead in the election, as the people of the county so well know, his name is well known. It is a man of conservative and prudent views and a most successful farmer and business man. Also he is connected with our great interest in close union with our general welfare. Therefore we feel that the county will make no mistake if they will send him to the legislature of 1909.

J. C. Cotten, P. G. Dupont, Mr. Levia, J. L. Conant, S. M. Cripe, E. C. King, R. J. Little, C. V. Bondenier, J. G. Garrison, W. T. Pierce, W. L. Brown, J. E. Meeks, G. A. Meeks, W. H. Meeks, J. W. Garrison, W. M. Smith, W. Leslie Smith.

Married in Buggy.
Last Sunday afternoon a couple drove up in front of the residence of 'Squire C. D. Rountree, on Greene street, and called for him to come out. The couple were Mr. Jordan Hedgpeth and Miss Perina E. Carney, from the north side of the river. The young man handed 'Squire Rountree a marriage license and requested him to perform a ceremony at once. He proceeded to marry them as they sat on the buggy, and they drove off happy.

"Not How Cheap, But How Good."
We desire to call attention to the new advertisement of L. H. Pender which appears in this issue. Mr. Pender has long been in the tinning and heating business here and is well known. Since the town put in sewer he has added plumbing to his business and employs the best workmen. When he turns over a job to you can bank on it being right. His motto is "Not how cheap, but how good."

ONE GOOD WEEK'S WORK NOW WILL TELL FOR ALL TIME TO COME.
Seven Days Unrelenting Effort by Advocates Will Settle the Prohibition Question in N. C.
To the Temperance Forces in North Carolina:
We are this morning entering upon the last week of the most momentous campaign in the history of our State.
Today victory is ours, and the enemy know it, and yet so far from quitting their activities, these next seven days find them in the forefront, and bitter warfare of all the campaign thus far. They know that we have won—and yet they hope now, in one terrible cyclonic campaign, acting in the open where it will do secretly where that plan is best, corruptly wherever money will count by misrepresentation and lying wherever they can impose upon the ignorant or the fair-minded, and with a belated energy and ferocity in which they hope to smite our people, aware, they are going to work in desperation to reduce our majority to a point where it will be discouraging to us in the future.

Temperance men of North Carolina, they must not succeed! I appeal to you to match your vigor against their vigor, your zeal against their zeal, your reasonfulness against their reasonfulness, and let us see to it that not one man breaks ranks on our side in this last week of our struggle.

Vigorously and nobly have the moral forces of North Carolina worked in this campaign, with more zeal and heroism indeed—but next week will be the time for saying this.

My appeal now is for one final week of untiring, unselfish, unwavering action in behalf of our prohibition cause.

One week's whole-hearted, unrelenting effort on the part of the Temperance advocates now will settle this question for all time to come. One week's untiring and heroic action will mean a twenty years' more of agriculture.

Pick up an old geography and it will tell you that North Carolina is noted for its tar, pitch and turpentine. This was true half a century ago and something later but it is not true now, our genial, if somewhat learned friend the razor-back hog is very largely responsible for the change.

This hog is a connoisseur, by the way, and cares nothing for the roots of any tree except the long-leaf, which are sweet. So he plays havoc with the timber. If he were exterminated, or improved as to hunger and taste by being kept at home instead of being allowed to lead the life of a savage, as at present, the result would be enormous.

The man who will have the whole State will pass for a monument, then a vast stretch of country that will be seeded and the long-leaf pine, which is the prince of Southern forests, will be restored—Col. Fred A. Olds, in Charlotte Daily Observer.

Rev. D. W. Arnold.
Will preach on prohibition at Parkers chapel on Sunday May 24th, 1908 at 3.30 o'clock p. m. A cordial invitation is given to the public to attend this service and hear this plea for prohibition.

FOR A STATE STOCK LAW.
Col. F. A. Olds Advocates This for Eastern North Carolina.
If there is one thing which a very large area of North Carolina needs, it is the stock law, and the particular area which needs it worse has, perhaps, less of it than any other part of the State, this being the long-leaf region.

It is useless to try to give a synopsis of Mrs. Curtis' speech as nothing short of a stenographic report could do it justice. She said so much, and every sentence was so forceful and so appropriate to the subject in hand, that it would be hard to decide which to mention to the exclusion of others.

She gave some statistics bearing on drunkenness which showed the hundreds of thousands of people who annually fall victims to it. Going back to the Bible from which she gave some quotations, and declaring that God was the first prohibitionist and made the first prohibitory laws, she took up and rapidly answered every objection that has been raised against prohibition. She followed right off his feet and left him with nothing to stand on, while the "it won't prohibit" hypocrit, well, he will be ashamed to say that in public any more if he heard Mrs. Curtis. She told the fellow who said God made whiskey and left it here for us to drink "Well, God made rattlesnakes and left them here. Why don't you eat snakes?"

As to the ballot, Mrs. Curtis said it was never given to a man as a means of expressing only his personal liberty, but was intended to be used in bringing
