SON SHOTS FATHER.

N. L. Gray Badly Wounded by His Son "Bud" Gray. On Sunday the colored people had a quarterly meeting at their church, Post Oak, in Carolina township, and a large number of their race were in attendance. A young white man, "Bud" Gray, went out to this meeting. His father, Mr. N. L. Gray, learning that the young man had gone there, went after him and reprimanded him for being there, and also accused him of going for the purpose of selling liquor to the colored people. Young Gray resented the interference of his father and cursed the latter for accusing him of selling liquor, whereupon his father slapped him. This angered the young man more and he left the place and went home for a gun. On his way back with the weapon he met his father in front of the latter's home and shot him at close range in the bowels with a load of bird shot. The elder Mr. Gray was struck with about 80 shot ranging from his waist line downward. From last account today he was resting as comfortably as could be expected.

NUMBER 21

GREENVILLE DEFEATS GOLDSBORO

THE HOME BOYS WIN THE DEBATE

All Acquitted Themselves Creditably and Received the Plaudits of The Audience.

A very large audience assembled in the opera house Friday night, to hear the debate between representatives of the debating societies of Goldsboro and Greenville schools. The occasion was looked forward to with much interest, as both sides had worthy competitors, and the home people went with none too great expectancy that their favorites would win. In fact many held fears that Greenville would go down in defeat, but the result was very different. It was not an easy matter, either, for the visitors certainly made the home boys earn what they got.

The query was "Resolved, That the next legislature of North Carolina should pass a law to go into effect Oct. 1st, 1912, compelling every child in North Carolina between the ages of 7 and 14 years to attend school 4 months in each year."

Goldsboro had the affirmative and was represented by Thomas Daniel and George Freeman, while Greenville on the negative was represented by Charles Haskett and B. F. Taylor.

It was just 9 o'clock when Linda Smith, secretary of the home society, announced the query and called the first speaker in the affirmative.

Mr. Daniel opened for Goldsboro, and the speeches being limited to minutes 15 he lost no time getting down to his subject, but rapidly and with vividness North Carolina's standing in the scale of literacy, and through comparisons and statistics of other countries and other States showed the advantage of compulsory education. He also pointed out the disposition of many North Carolina parents to keep their children out of school, and declared that a compulsory education law was a necessity to bring our State from under the dark cloud of ignorance and raise her to the position she should occupy.

Good speech indeed, was the feeling of the audience as he closed amid a burst of applause. Naturally there was then some anxiety as to how Greenville would measure up in reply, and the audience soon dropped into quietness for the secretary to call the first affirmative speaker.

Mr. Haskett arose, and had not uttered half a dozen sentences before confidence in the ability of the home side was well established. "Compulsion and North Carolina are not synonyms," he began. "Ours are a people who can be coaxed and led, but they are never driven. Mecklenburg, King's Mountain and Guilford Court House bear eloquent proof of this." He then took up the record of North Carolina's splendid educational progress in late years and argued strongly that our people are rapidly rising in the scale without the intervention of a compulsory education law and no such law is needed. He was given an oration when he closed. The next speaker for Goldsboro was Mr. Freeman. He continued the forcible argument of his colleague in favor of compulsory education. "To say North Carolina should have such a law is to say that it is necessary," he declared. "Public education is a failure so far as

CULTIVATION OF CORN.

Some Good Advice From The Agricultural Department.

The Farmers' Co-operative Demonstration work, under the auspices of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is giving our farmers some good advice in regard to the early cultivation of crops. The information obtained from its literature and through its men in regard to corn growing is about as follows:

Corn is one of the crops that requires a great deal of moisture. Every stalk of average size will need three hundred pounds of water to make a good yield. This amount scarcely ever falls during the growing season, hence we must keep in the soil the winter rains for the use of the corn at any time that it may need it. It is a well known fact that a corn crop is ruined by a drought. But if the land was drained early and deeply so that it caught the winter rains and then if by proper cultivation the moisture is kept in the soil a good corn crop can be made in spite of a drought. One of the main objects of cultivation from now on, therefore, will be to cultivate shallow and frequently to conserve the moisture which is lost mainly by evaporation into the air. If the soil is kept loose on top evaporation is checked. Hence a weeder or other light harrow or cultivator should be run over the soil every week or ten days until the corn is too large. This loose dirt on top acts like a blanket would on a wet horse. It keeps the moisture there by preventing the winds from carrying it off. Moisture is always found under a plank or other covering on the ground. The loose soil on top in the field acts in the same way in retaining moisture.

After the first or second cultivation, and after the corn is six to eight inches high, all plowing should be shallow. A turn plow, a long scooter (gopher) or other deep running implement, is not the best thing to cultivate corn with after the roots get set into the soil. Any deep plowing after this breaks the roots, thus cutting off the power of the corn to get food and water. This early and frequent cultivation also keeps down the weeds and grass. It is usually the grass that comes up with the corn that gives the most trouble and that has to be gotten out by expensive hand hoeing. The best time to kill these is before they appear above surface, that is just when they are sprouting. This is always just after a rain. Stirring the soil dislodges them and kills them.

This work must be done just as soon after a rain as the soil is dry enough to allow it. After the grass is an inch high and after the soil has crusted the weeder or harrow will not do much good. Many farmers make signal failures on this point by waiting two or three days too long after a rain and often until they see a coat of young grass. The farmer must watch conditions and get there in time or his work is largely lost. Such implements should be used as will not require more than one or two trips per row. This is economy—one of the things not often given much attention on the farm. The important thing, then, is never to let a crust form on the soil since by that time the grass is growing above ground and the moisture is going out at rapid rate.

The Confederate monument fund is growing, but not so fast as it did last week. W. B. Wilson, treasurer, Monday received a check for $10 from J. STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

Littleton, May 15.—Several days ago quite a sensation was created here by the report that Mrs. Daniel, the young wife of R. K. Daniel, a well known young man of this place, had endeavored to kill her husband. It is alleged firing five shots at him. Friends, upon learning of the trouble, which is said to have been caused by his ill-treatment of her, intervened, and Rev. Francis Joyner, rector of St. Ann's Episcopal church, swore out a warrant against Daniel, charging him with whipping her. The case came up some days ago but there was no trial since Mrs. Daniel had mysteriously disappeared.

Shelby, May 17.—Charlie Walker, of this county, met his death today under most remarkable circumstances. He had for some time entertained a grudge against automobiles, especially a certain one driven by a young man of Shelby, Mr. Rush Thompson. The young man with his car carried Dr. T. E. McBrayer, wife and three children to Fallston, and passed Mr. Walker, who was plowing a mule near the road. The mule was frightened by the machine, but was not unmanageable. The tragedy occurred as the automobile party were returning home. When within about two miles of Shelby, on the same road, they met Mr. Walker again, this time driving the mule to a buggy. When Walker saw the machine he got out of the buggy and pulled the mule and buggy directly across the road, thus obstructing the passage. Mr. Thompson requested him to come on and pass, he having already stopped the car. Mr. Walker refused to move. But Walker Thompson attempted to do, but just as the machine began to move Walker raised a gun he was carrying in his hand and aimed it at the automobile party. Just as he did so he fell in his tracks and without a struggle died. Dr. McBrayer got out and examined him and found that he died of heart trouble.

Asheville, N. C., May 17.—Another tragedy occurred in North Buncombe early this morning when Grant Brigman and John Briggman, residents of the Big Ivy section, neighbors and kinsmen, "fell out" over some lumber and engaged in a fight resulting in the death of John Briggman.

New Bern, N. C., May 17.—Two fires were discovered on the county bridge across the Neuse river yesterday. The largest was found about noon and a bucket brigade was soon formed and the fire extinguished. About a month ago a fire was found on the bridge, which is a mile long, and about two weeks ago a second fire was discovered. Taken with what was found yesterday it looks as if somebody is trying to burn the bridge but so far no motive or suspect has been found.

Dr. H. O. Hyatt will be in Greenville at Hotel Bertha on Monday and Tuesday, June 7th and 8th, for the purpose of treating diseases of the eye and fitting glasses. Parties desiring to see about having work done will be charged no fee unless terms are agreed upon. 5 18 eod & w tf

MINIATURE ELECTRIC ENGINE

Built From Old Parts of a Sewing Machine.

Mr. R. M. Zahnizer, chief engineer at the water and light plant, is quite a genius in several callings—literature, sign lettering, electricity, etc.—as perhaps every one in Greenville knows. His latest efforts and achievement is in electrical lines. He has lately constructed a miniature electric engine that is both a wonder and a curiosity. It is about 18 inches in length and is not more than six or eight inches in height, constructed entirely of old parts of sewing machines, clocks, etc. The drive wheel, shaft and bearings are taken from the sewing machine and the piston rods are parts of an old time brass clock, the switch handles are from old cork screws, while the other parts are from various old things of a mechanical line, nothing in it being new. Even to the brass tacks, which serve as rivets, were taken from old chair bottoms.

It has three speeds—slow medium and fast, and will reverse immediately and run backwards, this feature being entirely original.

Mr. Zahnizer says he was inspired to try his hand building an engine from old mechanical parts by hearing of an electrician in a Northern city who built a beautiful chandelier from old metal. He said he thought he could beat him in this line so he sailed in to do so. We have not seen the chandelier and consequently are not qualified to say whether he has out-classed the Northern man or not, but we know that Mr. Zahnizer has certainly succeeded in building a wonderful little engine. He is very courteous about showing and explaining it, too.

SENSATION IN KINSTON.

J. S. Longfellow Arrested on Charge of Bigamy. Kinston, N. C., May 19.—On a warrant sworn out by a wife he has living in Wilmington charging him with bigamy, J. S. Longfellow has been arrested here and is held in custody pending trial.

NO RACE SUICIDE THERE.

It will be recalled that the announcement was published in The Free Press week before last that Mr. Longfellow and Miss Bruce Swift had been married in Norfolk about May first by a Rev. Mr. Wingate, and following the marriage went to Maryland to visit relatives of the groom, then came to Kinston, the former home of Miss Swift. Mr. Longfellow denies that he was married to Miss Swift, and declares that he is innocent of the charge of bigamy. The affair has caused a sensation here, and the outcome of the trial will be watched with interest.

SCRAPPED OVER THE ORDER.

Two Women Have Rough and Tumble Fight.

Every day while the sale is going on at Munford's a large paper balloon is sent up from the roof of the store, and crowds stand along the streets to watch the flight of the air ships until they disappear from view in the distance. On one balloon sent up Friday was an order for $2.50 worth of goods free to the person who returned the order to the store. A young man came in Saturday with this order and to an amusing story about it. He said the balloon came down in a field about 8 miles from town where two colored women were at work. They both went to the balloon about the same time, and seeing the order for the goods they struck a difference as to which should have it. Words led to blows and they used each other up considerably in a rough and tumble fight. The young man seeing the fight went to separate the belligerents. In the mix up the order was lost, but the young man found it later and came for the goods himself.

Toledo Firm the Purchaser.

On Saturday the Board of Aldermen opened the bids for the $20,000 short term bonds of the town of Greenville authorized by the last legislature to pay off the floating debt of the town. Seven bids were received and the bid accepted was by the Security Savings Bank and Trust Company, of Toledo, Ohio. The bid of this firm was par and a premium of $355, the blank bonds to be furnished free. This is a good price for the bonds and gives an idea of Greenville's credit in the financial world.

POOR PRINT

As you have probably noticed, most shoes have a tendency to wrinkle and "lunch up" across the toes after the shoes have been worn a few times. This is the fault of the lasting (the process of pulling and stretching the leather over the wooden last.)

The RALSTON method has remedied this fault. Ralston vamps are first crimped (see illustration) then lasted. There are no lumps, no wrinkles, because every part of the vamp fits the last perfectly without straining the leather at any point. This adds to the wear of the shoe. It also explains the reason why Ralstons retain their smart appearance until worn out.

There are other unusual features of RALSTON SHOE construction which will appeal to you. Come in and look over our new styles.

FRIDAY MAY 21 1909.

You can't stump Greenville.

Greenville always goes in to win.

This is the creek and Charlotte is the place.

Haskett and Taylor are a pair of debaters right.

Charlotte is full and Thursday will be overflowing.

It is time something else was coming forward for Greenville.

The Raleigh News and Observer says strike to 'em until the 20th.

Every man working only for himself is not a good way to build a town.

The Greensboro Record advises us to stick to 'em until the first of June.

It looks like Uncle Sam will find it necessary to take charge of Cuba again.

The conviction of Hains shows that the insanity dodge does not work every time.

Davis is accused of hypnotizing his victims. Very sharp work for a crazy man.

Governor Kitchin might save trouble for himself by making the appointment early.

Ge! Charlotte has even got eight-seeing automobiles with capacity of 28 passengers.

Town politics is being talked now and will have the right of way for the next three weeks.

Charlotte lost to Baltimore in the effort to secure the Southern Baptist Convention next year.

There is no doubt that many minds have undergone a change of opinion as to President Taft.

The senators are consuming as much time abusing each other as they are discussing the tariff.

The fellow who has the biggest income is the one who kicks most against having to pay tax on it.

If the ground hog is getting any satisfaction out of this near frost weather he is more of a hog than ever.

New York must be getting better, as more convictions come in murder trials up that way than formerly.

If the list keeps growing there will be as many applicants for Judge Connor's successor as there were for Judge Purnell's.

Suggestions for Greenville's slogan are coming in to The Reflector and the prospect is there will be many to select from.

No, it does not take a real vacancy to bring out the candidates. The prospect of there being one is enough to start them going.

We believe that Governor Kitchin will do the right thing about it, but that does not mean that everybody is going to be pleased over it.

North Carolina Methodism lost an excellent minister in the death of Dr. E. A. Yates, of Durham, which occurred suddenly on Friday last.

Some of the Republicans have not yet quit kicking about it. Others have concluded it best to say but little if they want to catch the president's ear.

After the Raleigh Times' slaughter house disclosures, Raleigh folks have just about quit eating meat. It is lucky that the vegetable crop is close by.

The next time North Carolina would be judges want their teeth examined, they may try the home dentists and find it cheaper than taking a trip to Washington.

New Bern is on a move to have street cars. Greenville will have to wake up to that need some of these days, as the town is already nearly large enough for it.

May should stop monkeying with these cool nights and get down to her summer work. If the weather keeps up these capers we will never know when it is safe to take 'em off.

Kissing a pretty girl to cure her of the blues is the prescription of a St. Louis druggist. If it becomes popular men will be rushing into the drug business and be likely to overcrowd it.

Train hold-ups and robberies have not yet become extinct in the West. There was a bold one Saturday night on the Great Northern railroad in Washington and the robbers made a big haul.

The New York Central and Hudson River railroad has been made to pay fines aggregating $136,000 by the United States circuit court for violation of the law in regard to freight rebates.

Governor Kitchin can keep the fun going by appointing a man who already has an office as successor to Judge Connor. That will create another vacancy and bring on a scramble for that also.

Maj. Charles M. Stedman was among those mentioned for appointment as successor to Judge Connor on the Supreme court bench, but he has notified Governor Kitchin that he will not be a candidate.

Mrs. Taft, wife the president, is ill and cannot take the contemplated trip with him to Charlotte tomorrow. The absence of the first lady of the nation is going to be a disappointment to many people.

The Reflector will have to take back what it recently said about the Wilmington Star.

That paper has now changed its style of make-up and lost the familiar ear-marks given by its former owner, Major Bernard.
The troubles of ex-Chief of Police Mullins, of Raleigh, are not at an end by his suspension for irregularities. The board of education has instituted suit against him for fines which it is charged he failed to turn in to the school fund.

Some of the papers are wondering what the Greensboro Industrial News would say about the president's appointment of Judge Connor, if that paper was now alive. Why do you fellows keep trying to disturb the slumbers of the dead?

It is intimated that Governor Kitchin will not make much delay in naming a successor to Judge Connor on the Supreme court bench as soon as the latter is confirmed as Federal judge of the Eastern North Carolina district.

Claus Speckles, the late sugar king, who recently died in California, left an estate worth $30,000,000. His relatives have gone to scrambling over these grains of sugar and proceedings to upset his will have been started.

Professor Lovenhart, of the University of Wisconsin, has discovered what medical men believe is a cure for lockjaw. If his discovery proves a success he will be indeed a benefactor, for this dread disease has been hitherto deemed incurable.

If congress has made up its mind to wrangle all summer over the tariff revision, things will be mighty warm around Washington. But it might have adjourned the next day after the special session met without the country being any worse off for it.

General Stoessel, convicted by court martial and sentenced to imprisonment for the surrender of Port Arthur during the Russia-Japanese war, has been stricken with apoplexy, is now at the point of death in Peter and Paul fortress prison in St. Petersburg.

The Raleigh Police Commission has completed the hearing of the charges against Chief of Police J. H. Mullins, under which he was temporarily suspended on the eve of the recent primary in that city, and as a result the suspension of the chief was made permanent.

From the absence of Joe King's column of editorial paragraphs in the Durham Herald for several days last week, we concluded that he had gone a-fishing, but it turns out that he was serving as a juror in a murder trial. Very unusual thing for an editor to be doing.

Prohibition is rapidly forging its way forward in the Virginias. Charleston the capital of West Virginia joins its ranks the 1st of July, making Kanawha county completely dry, so says a special to the Reflector. May we realize the hope of absolute prohibition in this beautiful country of ours ere this generation ceases to be.

UNIVERSAL PEACE.
Shakespeare said 300 years ago, "Universal peace is almost at hand." Since then we have had some of the bloodiest wars recorded in history to take place. Perhaps he was reckoning time according to the Scripture, "A thousand years is but a day with the Lord."

To us, even now, such a condition seems far in the future, but it seems much nearer to the point of realization in the present time than in Shakespeare's day. A few weeks ago the National Peace congress looking to universal peace, held its second annual session in the city of Chicago. And the "silent peace demonstration" of 10,000 people on Saturday, a ringing in of "Peace Sunday" by hundreds of church bells of that city, the preaching of peace sermons from a large number of pulpits—all intended as a tribute and a welcome to the congress—were certainly very impressive and its efforts a new impetus will receive from such incidents.

This is the day of idealism and we dare not say what will or will not be accomplished by these good people. In our opinion, though, it will take "precept upon precept" drummed into the individual youth from generation to generation, forever strengthening faith in God and bringing out peace in the individual "the peace which passeth all understanding." In that way universal peace will come about naturally without force; and we will not be found saying "peace, peace!" when there is no peace. The question of national armament will then fade away—be solved and there will be no strife between men, consequently none between nations.

Pickpockets are on hand looking for a harvest in Charlotte this week. They began their work Saturday night when one visitor was reported to have been relieved of a purse containing $120. People who carry large sums of money in their pockets among great crowds are in the same foolish class with those who hide it away around the house instead of putting it in bank.

The greatest success comes when the people stand together. Even though Greenville has done well, there is lack in this particular of unity. Let a meeting of the Merchants' Association be called, for instance, and you will not find more than a handful present.

J. C. Davis is one man who should be either confined continuously in the insane asylum or in the penitentiary. He is certainly not the kind of man to go at large. The ease with which he robbed people, mainly widows, shows how readily they bite at investment fakes offered by strangers.

Unless some plans slip an income tax measure may be adopted along with the proposed tariff revision, as it is reported that Democrat and Republican senators who favor an income tax have got together on a compromise bill that stands a show of being adopted. The conference abandoned the graduation feature and substituted a straight percentage basis to apply to all cases.

GRADED SCHOOL CLOSING.
Recital Friday Afternoon—Annual Address at Night.
The final exercises of the graded school will be held in the Masonic opera house Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock. The program will consist of six or eight piano selections, some choruses by thirty or forty pupils, and of the annual address.

Our speaker this year is Dr. D. H. Hill, president of the North Carolina College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts. President Hill is a strong man, and I think we were fortunate in being able to get him. His address will, I am sure, be a treat to all who are fortunate enough to hear it.

In the chapel of the graded school Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock a recital will be given by the class in piano. In connection with the recital the teacher of drawing will have an exhibit of some of the work of the pupils during the year. The recital and the exhibit will be of much interest, especially to the parents of the children, and we hope all who can do so will attend.

No tickets of any kind will be issued for either of these entertainments. The public has a cordial invitation to attend these exercises, and we hope as many people will come out both Friday afternoon and Friday night as can do so.

CHANGES AT WINTERTVILLE.
New Principal of School and New Correspondent of The Reflector.
As will be seen from the Winterville correspondence in this issue, the trustees of Winterville High School have elected Prof. F. C. Nye as principal of the school to succeed Prof. G. E. Lineberry who has accepted higher work as secretary of education of the Baptist State convention. Prof. Nye has been connected with the school for seven years, and is thoroughly qualified to keep it up to its high standard. The trustees were wise in naming him.

The election of Prof. Nye as principal of the school also brings about a change affecting The Reflector, as the more responsible duties upon him have necessitated his resigning as manager of the Winterville department of the paper. We are fortunate, however, in having to succeed him in this particular Mr. S. C. Carroll, a young man who has been a pupil of the school under Prof. Nye and a talented writer. We wish the highest success to all mentioned in the foregoing changes.

TRIBUTE TO THE CONFEDERACY.

EXTRACTS FROM MR. E. L. STEWART'S SPEECH.

Delivered to the Bryan Grimes Camp on Memorial Day.

He spurned all that was low and wicked, and now wrote in a blank book a number of maxims as rules for his life. One of these rules every young man should keep in mind. It was, "You may be, whatever you resolve to be." We shall see that this was indeed the guiding star of his life. Whatever he would do, he always did by sheer force of endeavor. At this time it was evident that it was his purpose to place his name high on the roll of earthly fame.

Reverend his shy and modest manner, there burned the desire to be great. His life was not yet ruled by the love of Christ, but shows some of the highest and noblest aims.

Jackson was twenty two years of age when he left West Point as second lieutenant in the United States army. Our country was then at war with Mexico, and he was sent to the South of that country. The American army, with its waving flags and bright guns, presented a spectacle of splendor which Lieutenant Jackson never forgot.

After the first battle he was placed in the light artillery service. This charge was just what young Jackson wished for though more dangerous, the light artillery service gave him a better chance to win the honors for which his soul thirsted. He knew no fear; battle contained no horror, for beneath the dark cloud of war shone the sun of glory, and he was striving to bask in its presence.

Shortly after he was promoted to the rank of captain, the battle of Chapultepec was fought, in which Jackson's command of two regiments were nearly all killed by the deadly cannon of the enemy. The commanding officer sent him word to fall back. His reply was this: "Send me ten more men, and I will advance and take the guns which are doing such deadly work." Then turning, and with the aid of one man, he wheeled a cannon across a ditch, and began a rapid fire into the enemy's ranks forcing them to retreat. The victorious Americans entered the city, and Mexico was forced to sue for peace. For his brave conduct in this battle Jackson was promoted to the rank of major. So we see step by step, he gradually mounts the ladder of fame; and his gallant and meritorious services were heralded to the world through the official reports of his superiors.

Jackson remained in Mexico a while longer, and was then sent home. After thinking seriously for the first time in his life about religion, he was now baptized and admitted to his first communion. Soon after this he was elected professor in the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington. Here his life was marked by great faithfulness, and by an earnest yet unobtrusive spirit. Conscientious fidelity to duty marked every step of his course here. Strict, and at times stern in his discipline, he was not always a popular professor; but no teacher ever possessed to a degree the unbounded confidence and respect of the cadets for his unbending integrity and fearlessness in the discharge of his duties. For ten years he prosecuted his unwearied labors as a professor, making during this period, in no questionable form, such an impression upon those who from time to time were under his command, that when the war broke out the spontaneous sentiment of all cadets and graduates was to serve under him as their leader.

He left the institute in 1861 in command of the corps of cadets; and as dangers were rapidly thickening around the state, he reported for duty at Richmond. Duty became now, more than ever, the rule of his life—duty to God, and duty to man. Like St. Paul he kept his body under and would not allow any weakness to overcome him. He used neither tobacco nor spirits, giving as a reason that he was more afraid of them than the Federal bullets. The immortal Jackson, afraid of strong drink! What a lesson to those who have not the courage to say "No," when tempted to do wrong.

In 1861 he married the daughter of a minister of North Carolina, and he now lives in Charlotte, N. C. His home life afforded him much happiness, for there, above the clang and roar of musketry arose the cry of Jackson, Jackson. The men rushed on through the swamp, across the creek, and up into the wood, driving the enemy from point to point, until they gained the top of the hill. The enemy, now thrown into wild disorder, retreated all along the line, and the battle of Cold Harbor was won by the Confederates. The very name of Jackson had struck terror to the heart of the foe.

The name that swells the poet's song, That makes humanity sublime; That teaches patriots to be strong, That teaches the warrior list of time.

It seems as though some supernatural power was ever present to direct and guide this mighty man. In the principal battles of the war, the Stonewall Brigade, which he commanded, took a part prominent and distinguished, reflecting great glory on their chief. The secret of his success, was beyond all doubt due to his realization of his utter dependence upon Almighty God, the giver of all good and perfect gifts, and whose Holy presence he never failed to evoke when on the eve of battle. In the terrible battle of Chancellorsville, which commenced at eight o'clock at night, and raged till ten, Jackson was at the head of his column. The pale moon sent her silvery rays down into the heart of dismal wilderness, whose echoes awoke to the sound of tramping feet, the rattle of musketry, and the groans of the dying. Through moonlight and shadow, with those sounds ringing in his ears, Stonewall Jackson rode forward to his death. Having ridden up to the turnpike a short distance, and finding the enemy advancing, he attempted to regain his lines, when the Southern men taking his staff for a squad of Northern cavalry, opened a rapid fire upon them. He was wounded in his right arm and right hand. His horse, no longer controlled by the reins, galloped back toward the enemy, when Jackson seized the reins with his bleeding right hand and turned him back in the road. One of his aides now stopped the horse, and placing Jackson upon the ground, summoned a surgeon. Soon after he was placed upon a litter, but the fire was so deadly that it was put upon the ground, and the officers lay down beside him to escape death. When the fire changed, the party attempted to move on, when one of the men caught his foot in a grape vine, letting the litter strike the ground. Jackson fell upon his wounded shoulder, and for the first time groaned most piteously.

Er long they reached the hospital, where about midnight his arm was amputated, and he fell into a quiet sleep. On waking he asked one of his aides to go to Richmond for his wife and child. He talked about the battle, and other things, but principally of the Omnipotent God, and the world beyond. He knew that death was very near, that he was soon to sheath his sword, and enter into another career. But ah! that peace, which descends like rays of golden sunshine, and permeates the Christian's being, had so filled him, that when the time came he fell to posterity as the first brigade in this our Second War of Independence. Farewell!" He then waived his hand, and left the ground at a gallop, followed by the cheers of his brave soldiers.

I have seen the light come over the eastern hills in glory, driving the haze darkness like mist before a seaborne gale, 'til leaf, and tree, and blade of grass, glittered in the myriad diamonds of the morning rays, and I thought it was grand. But the grandest thing, next to the radiance that flows from the Almighty Throne, is the light of a noble and beautiful life wrapped in the destinies of men, and finding its home in the bosom of the Everlasting God.

Let us not forget our fallen heroes—for the history of the world presents no sadder, nor yet more magnificent page, than that wherein is inscribed the heroic fortitude, and sublime sacrifice of our gallant dead. Let the honored soldiers of proud, imperial Rome sleep forever in the catacombs of Italy. Let England bury her dead in that grand mausoleum where sleeps forever the dust of centuries.

Let France erect her proud Pantheon, where after life's fitful fever they sleep well. But let the honored shrine of our gallant Stonewall Jackson be erected in the great heart of our Southern people, a temple not made with hands, eternal and sublime.

He and Lee are buried side by side near the Virginia Military Institute. There the sweeping winds proclaim our heroes' fame, and nightly the glittering stars chant in heavenly chorus, "They shine, they shine with our brightness."

The muffled drum's roll has beat, The soldier's last tattoo; No more life's struggles shall meet That brave and fallen foe.

His shivered sword is red with rust, His plumed head is bowed; His haughty banner trampled in dust, His lance and spear shall meet That brave and fallen foe.

And when I, my pilgrim have made, And I am numbered with the dead; I'll join in Heaven the old brigade, With Stonewall Jackson at its head.

delivered by Dr. W. L. Pateat, president of Wake Forest. He was able and belittlingly introduced by Rev. T. H. King. The subject of Dr. Pateat's address was the "New South." There was a time when the idea of the "New South" was hoisted by our people but it is no longer true, we all see the great transformation that has taken place. There has been a great educational awakening. Education is no longer confined to the higher places, but the poorest and humblest man has an equal chance of educating his children. The South has inexhaustible wealth in her fertile soil. Mines will not last always but the soil will, and with the modern methods of farming our people will become rich. With all this bright outlook for the South, there are dangers. Materialism instead of manhood is too often thought of by the young. Too often the idle and the sport is the girl's ideal, while the young man seeks the girl who has the "rucks" (money) and does not give the least consideration to character which is the principle thing. It matters not how much money a man has, but the great question is, "Is he a man?" Would that every one in N. C. could have heard this great address. After the address came the presentation of certificates to the graduating class by Prof. Lineberry. The following received certificates of having completed the college preparatory course: Misses Bertha Carroll, Mamie Chapman, Juanita Dixon, Olinde Newton and Mesrs. W. R. Kirtland and W. T. Lineberry. Those receiving certificates of having completed the course in English were: Misses Lizzie Harris, Ethel Ives, Olive Butt and G. G. Dixon. After this came a very touching scene when Prof. Lineberry announced that although his connection as principal of the school would be severed yet he should always consider Pitt county his home, and that in his new work as educational secretary he would give probably a fourth of his time to the interest of our school. He turned down some flattering offers in order that he might do this. Through these columns we want to express to him our heartfelt thanks and deepest appreciation for his great work here and especially for making a great sacrifice on his part in order that he may remain in touch with the school. Next Prof. Ragsdale spoke a few words expressing his admiration for Prof. Lineberry and his great work. He said that he felt that his right arm was gone. He said that he was too full to ever attempt to express his feelings. Prof. Ragsdale was not the only one who had a full heart. The debate in the afternoon by six young men from the Vance Literary Society was one of the best ever given here. The query was, "Resolved, that the present tendency toward centralizing the power in the National government is for the best interest of this republic." The affirmative was masterfully represented by Messrs. P. N. Strother, G. G. Dixon and J. D. Rogers, the negative by Messrs. L. G. Whiteley, D. R. Jackson and M. L. Tingle. The following gentlemen acted as judges: Prof. W. H. Cale, of Grifton, Prof. J. A. McArthur, of Ayden and Rev. B. F. Huske, of Greenville. The judges rendered a decision in favor of the affirmative by only a small margin, each speaker quitting himself most admirably. The closing concert by the Philanthropic Literary Society Friday evening at 7:30 was fully up to the average and was attended by a packed audience. Many were turned away for lack of room. This has closed one of the best years in the history of the school. Jones-Tunstall, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. WINTERVILLE COMMENCEMENT. The Best Exercises in the History of the School. Winterville, N. C., May 15. The ninth annual commencement of Winterville High school is now history, closing Friday night at 10:15 o'clock. The weather was ideal from beginning to end and the audience that attended each exercise was a record breaker. It is generally customary to say that the last one is always the best, but we think we can truthfully say that this was the best all round commencement in the history of the school. On Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock the annual sermon was preached by Rev. Chas. L. Greaves, pastor of the First Baptist church of New Bern. His text was from Gen. 37:5, "And Joseph dreamed a dream and he told it to his brethren; and they hated him yet the more." The sermon was a gem. It was so appropriate for the young. If we ever amount to anything in the world we must dream dreams. The great men of ages dreamed of high and lofty aspirations in life. God was in Joseph's dreams, even so is he in our dreams of noble and pure things. A Joseph knew God was in his dream. Happy are we, if we recognize God as the giver of all noble aspirations. The sermon has been spoken of as the best ever delivered here on a commencement occasion. The exercises by the graduating class on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock were of an exceptionally high order and were greatly enjoyed by a packed audience, as was so well described in Friday's paper. On Friday morning at 11 o'clock, the literary address was delivered by Dr. W. L. Pateat, president of Wake Forest. He was able and belittlingly introduced by Rev. T. H. King. The subject of Dr. Pateat's address was the "New South." There was a time when the idea of the "New South" was hoisted by our people but it is no longer true, we all see the great transformation that has taken place. THE KING'S DAUGHTERS. STATE CONVENTION IN SESSION HERE. Brilliant Reception to Delegates Tuesday Night—Interesting Reports at Today's Session. Though not so many delegates to The King's Daughters convention as were expected arrived Tuesday evening, there was a good number, and those here were given a public reception from 9:30 to 11:30 at Carolina Club. The club parlors were appropriately decorated in the colors of The King's Daughters organization, white and purple. Many of our home people were present, and these with the visitors made a charming and brilliant assemblage. In the receiving line were the officers of Carolina Club and their wives, State officers of The King's Daughters, officers of Patient Circle of Greenville, ministers and the delegates.

PROMISED $500 TO KILL HUSBAND. Bloody Assaults of Thos. Farmer Implicate His Wife. Snow Hill, N. C., May 20.—At his home in Bull Head township this county, Tuesday night between ten and eleven o'clock a murderous assault was made upon Thomas Farmer with a club and pistol. He had retired and was dozing when in his semi-conscious condition, after vaguely hearing whispers in the room, he was struck with a club, but was able to jump from the bed and in spite of other blows and a gunshot wound in the abdomen he fled from the house, closely pursued by his assailants, finding refuge at his sister's home, a few hundred yards distant. He was able to recognize his assailants—John Howell, white, 17 years old, and Ben Farmer, colored, 20 years old. Both fled, but were arrested at the home of Ben Farmer's sister, near Statonburg, in Wilcox county, this morning about four o'clock by the sheriff of this county. They were both in the same bed when arrested. Farmer confessed, implicating Tom Farmer's wife, stating that she had promised them five hundred dollars and a mule and buggy if they would kill Farmer, and that she turned them in the house. Howell also stated that but for him the negro would have shot Farmer through a window at his sister's house, to which he fled, but that he (Howell) stopped him. Mrs. Farmer and the two boys are in jail here at Snow Hill now. Only recently Mrs. Farmer entered into possession of several thousand dollars' worth of property from her father's estate. The physician states that Farmer has a fighting chance for life. It is stated that about two weeks ago Farmer, after eating dinner, was taken deathly ill and a physician who was near and who was called in stated that he was suffering from an overdose of strychnine which was supposed to have been administered in his food. To the aged mother this death is inexpressibly sad. Three times in the same number of years, the dead body of a loved child has been brought home to her for burial. All hearts weep with her in this great sorrow and commend her to God in whom she trusts for comfort and strength to bear her afflictions. The funeral will take place at 5 o'clock this afternoon, services being held in Memorial Baptist church by Rev. J. B. Cook, the interment following in Cherry Hill cemetery. The pall bearers are Messrs. R. C. Flanagan, H. A. White, D. L. James, J. C. Tyson, C. O'H. Laughinghouse, B. F. Tyson, J. W. Perkins, J. B. Little, B. E. Parham, R. J. Cobb, H. W. Wheabee, W. L. Brown and J. L. Fleming.

MRS. M. M. NELSON DEAD. Passed Away Friday Night at Washington Hospital. Mrs. M. M. Nelson died just before twelve o'clock Friday night in the hospital at Washington, and the remains were brought home this morning on the early Norfolk & Southern train. Though for some time her condition had been so critical that her death was almost daily expected, yet the announcement that the end had come brought sadness to the hearts of many relatives and friends. Mrs. Nelson was 53 years of age, a daughter of Mrs. P. E. Dancy, and besides the aged mother is survived by two sisters, Mrs. V. N. Seawell, of Philadelphia, and two brothers, Messrs. J. J. Dancy, of Richmond, and W. C. Dancy, of Bethel. Several weeks ago Mrs. Nelson was taken sick and from the first her condition was serious. As a last hope of benefitting her she was taken to the hospital at Washington two weeks ago where an operation was performed last Sunday. She continued to grow worse until death came Friday night as a release to her intense sufferings. Mrs. Nelson was truly a most excellent woman and will be sadly missed in the community. Here was a faithful Christian life, filled with acts of kindness and deeds of love for others. She was a member of Memorial Baptist church, and for many years, as long as her devoted teacher of the infant class of the Sunday school. It was a beautiful picture to see her each Sunday morning surrounded by scores of bright little faces, every one beaming with love for her. Among these little people there are many sorrowing hearts today that one whom they loved is no more. To the aged mother this death is inexpressibly sad. Three times in the same number of years, the dead body of a loved child has been brought home to her for burial. All hearts weep with her in this great sorrow and commend her to God in whom she trusts for comfort and strength to bear her afflictions. The funeral will take place at 5 o'clock this afternoon, services being held in Memorial Baptist church by Rev. J. B. Cook, the interment following in Cherry Hill cemetery. GRADED SCHOOL CLOSES. Concert Friday Afternoon and Annual Address at Night. Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock a recital was given in the chapel of the graded school by the members of the music class. In connection with the recital, the teacher of drawing, Miss Lewis, had quite an attractive exhibit of some of the work done by the classes in drawing this year. In spite of the threatening conditions of the weather, the chapel was well filled. The children acquitted themselves well, thus adding a happy conclusion to another year of Miss Gaston's thorough and efficient work as teacher of music. The specimens of drawing, as exhibited by Miss Lewis, showed that the pupils have been in charge of a teacher who knows her work and does it well. The specimens showed a marked tendency toward the mechanical side of drawing, the great demand which Southern schools are so feebly meeting. It was gratifying to note the efforts being made in Greenville in this direction. Such training is of incalculable value to the young people. Friday night in the presence of a large audience in the opera house, several of the music pupils rendered a delightful program of instrumental and vocal selections that were creditable to both themselves and their teacher. After the musical program had been rendered Mr. W. F. Evans introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. D. Hill, president of the A. & M. college, Raleigh. Dr. Hill's address was one that touches the practical side of life, and entertained his hearers along a line of thought that was refreshing and exhilarating. In a clear and convincing argument he showed why the boys and the girls of today should be trained to the highest degree of economic efficiency, so as to successfully combat the rapidly diminishing resources of the nation's natural wealth. His reference to the fact that the girls should be trained not only in the artistic, but also in the practical affairs of life, and should especially be able to prepare a meal along economic and healthful lines, was timely, and by the expressions from the audience, seemed to meet with its approval, from the male side at least. Dr. Hill's address was quite original in its scope, and was such that tends to call the young mind to a close communion with the future problems of life, and no doubt did lots of good.

BAPTIST BARACA CLASS. Had Another Interesting Day Sunday. Notwithstanding the inclement and wintry weather Sunday morning, the Baptist Baraca class had a good turnout, 77 being present and collections $42.22. A fine showing indeed, and portrays the great interest taken in this work. In the absence of President Fanagan, Vice President T. R. Moore presided over the class and gave some good words of cheer and greeting to the members. Teacher J. W. Bryan made a most excellent and interesting lecture on the lesson, picturing vividly the results of the first missionary work recorded in the Bible as given of Paul and Barnabas' travels and preaching. Upon suggestion of Mr. Little a reception committee to welcome visitors and new members was appointed. Dr. Bryan read a letter to the class suggesting a date for a visit and lecture from the national field secretary, and Secretary Thomas was instructed to take the matter up and arrange a date for his coming, which will be very instructive to the class and the public to receive information of the great Baraca movement of the nation. It was decided definitely to run the Baraca excursion to Raleigh on June the 10th, round trip $1.50 open to the public. This date was settled upon in order to hit the date of one of the State league base ball games on the 10th. An invitation was read inviting the class to attend the marriage of our worthy and high esteemed secretary, E. B. Thomas on June 2nd. A note of thanks and to attend was unanimous. Some of the remarks to the motion brought smiles to the secretary as they bid him good-speed on the new journey of life. This was indeed a pleasant and instructive day for the class, so don't mind the weather, absent brother, and next Sunday pick your flint and be there on time. The public cordially invited.
