GREENVILLE, PITT COUNTY, NORTH CAROLINA, DECEMBER 31, 1909.

CHRISTMAS IN GREENVILLE.

The first of the pre-nuptial contrast here was no where in Pitt county a happier young lady than Miss Mary Johnston, who won the piano in The Reflector wote getting contest. She was in the office Christmas eve when the decision of the committee was announced, and numbers of friends gathered to congratulate was announced, and numbers of friends gathered to congratulate the streets more or less during the day was rainy and disagned to property might result from the use of fireworks, there was a feeling of relief when they awoke Christmas morning to find it raining. But by those who wanted to get about the streets more or less during the day was rainy and disagned to property might result from the use of fireworks, there was a feeling of relief when they awoke Christmas morning to find it raining. But by those who wanted to get about the streets more or less during the day such a condition of friends gathered to congratulate was announced, and numbers of friends gathered to congratulate was announced, and numbers of friends gathered to congratulate was not so much appreciated. Notwithstanding most of the day was rainy and disagned to property might result approaching marriage of Miss Irma Cobb to Mr. Albion Dunn, for Scotland Neck, took place Tuesday afternoon when they awoke Christmas morning who find it raining.
