A RESUME OF THE TOBACCO SITUATION

SELLING HIGHER ON EASTERN
MARKETS THAN EVER BEFORE

WHAT CAUSES THESE HIGH PRICES?

Intelligent Control of Acreage—Farmers Urged Not to Take Either Extreme of Planting Too Much or Too Little—Use Business Judgment and Individual Ideas.

Tobacco is selling higher on the markets of Eastern North Carolina now than it has ever sold since my connection with the tobacco trade. The average on our floors is from fourteen to seventeen cents daily, while the quality of the tobacco is no better than a very large per cent of the tobacco that has been raised during the last several years in this section. What then is the cause of these high prices? There is hardly a farmer in Eastern North Carolina who does not recall that during the last few years I have repeatedly urged farmers to curtail their crop as the most effective means of advancing the price of tobacco.

The present high price of tobacco is the direct result of a reduction of acreage on the part of the tobacco growers and the subsequent reduction of production on account of excessive rain during the growing season. Last fall I went all over Eastern North Carolina urging the farmers to reduce the acreage from twenty to twenty-five per cent. I believed the condition of the tobacco trade at that time was such that a reduction of this much was necessary for profitable prices to the farmers. I believed if the crop were reduced twenty-five per cent, it would bring more money than if the same acreage were planted of the year before. I don't suppose there are many farmers who will take a different view at this time.

I now want to call the attention of tobacco farmers to the necessity of moving wisely and cautiously in the planting of the next tobacco crop.

I know of no influence that will keep tobacco high when a surplus is made, and I have never seen any influence press down the price of tobacco when the supply was less than the demand. But from my point of view, it would be equally as disastrous to farmers for the time being to make too small a crop as too large a crop—one extreme is likely to follow another, and with a very small production, the price would no doubt be such an inducement that in a short while the production would far exceed the demand. The proper thing, the sane, sensible thing for farmers to do, is to study conditions from their individual point of view and plant the tobacco crop in proportion as the evidence of demand appears to them from the sale of their own tobacco. If farmers would act on this, and this alone, the matter of production would be so uniformly settled by the individual acting in common with his fellow farmers that the result of the whole would almost invariably prove profitable and satisfactory. In other words, if every farmer would plant his crop, not according to the impression of what some other farmer will do, but in accordance with his own convictions as to what is right and what is proper for them all to do, it would be a rare case when prices would not be satisfactory. With tobacco selling at an average of eight cents and the farmers continuing to plant large crops the conclusion is natural that farmers are satisfied at this price, but with tobacco at eight cents and a large reduction of acreage following is the emphatic answer of the farmers that they are not satisfied. With tobacco at twelve cents average, and only a normal crop following, would be taken as an expression of fair prices, while a great decrease or increase in acreage following twelve cents average would prove the strongest expression that farmers could employ to show their satisfaction or dissatisfaction. The bright tobacco industry is a good, healthy condition. There is nothing for farmers to become alarmed about, nor is there anything especially in the prices that are prevailing to justify any great increase in acreage, even though farmers were disposed to do this.

"THOU ART THE MAN" ---SERMON

DAVID'S SIN AND CONFESSION
AND GOD'S FORGIVENESS

CONTRASTED WITH SINS OF TODAY

Congregation Felt The Force of the Sermon and Many Stood in Confession—Cottage Prayer Meetings Now Being Held—Meeting Grows in Interest.

This was the theme of Dr. Black's excellent sermon in the Methodist church Tuesday night, and there was not a person in the large congregation saint nor sinner, to whom the sermon, or part of it, did not apply. It was a discourse that reached men's hearts, and lives, and it was listened to with undivided attention, for every one felt more or less that "Thou art the man."

Dr. Black read as a Scripture lesson that portion of the 11th chapter of 2nd Samuel relating to David's sin, and his text was the 7th verse of that chapter. He referred to the disposition of people when any sin is spoken against to try to shift the application from themselves to others, and said he wanted every hearer to be honest with his own heart and life and see if "Thou art the man" for rest assured that even if we can hide our sins from others, and be oblivious to them ourselves, we cannot hide them from God. In referring to David's sins of covetousness, deception, adultery, double life, even murder, and the punishment that came upon him for this, he made the application in discussing numerous sins that mar the lives of people today and the folly of trying to hide and not confess them. David confessed his sin and God forgave him. So He will do for all who make honest confession, but there is no forgiveness without confession. At the conclusion of the sermon a large part of the congregation stood as a confession that their lives were not what they should be and a prayer was offered for God's forgiveness.

At this service two beautiful duets were sung, one by Mrs. Skinner and Mr. James, "Crossing the Bar," and one by Dr. Black and Mr. Eurr, "Y's, There's One." At Tuesday morning's service a duet was sung by Misses Gaston and Smith.

Woodland Items.

Woodland, N. C., Nov. 16.—It has been very dry, but we are having some rain at this time.

There was a large attendance at the conference last week.

Mrs. Martha Baker, of Greenville, came to attend the conference. She was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Barber.

Miss Mabel Craft and Mr. Edwards from near Falkland, came through last Friday to attend the conference. Miss Mills of Cox's Mill, spent last Friday night with Miss Martha Hardee.

Woodland school opened yesterday with an all attendance and Miss Johnson, of Winterville, teacher.

The Woodland boys went to play the Glendale boys last Saturday and lost their nerve when they saw them coming. The game ended 9 to 0 in favor of Woodland. That shows what Woodland is, don't it?

Rev. Phillip Woodard came out Saturday evening to fill his appointment at Piney Grove Saturday night and Sunday.

Count Tolstoi Nears End.

By Cable to The Reflector.

Moscow, Nov. 16.—Count Tolstoi and his wife were reconciled today. The count and countess both lie ill in the residence of the station master in the village of Astopova now far from Tula. The aged writer is suffering with inflammation of the lungs and his death is believed to be imminent. He has been semi-conscious for some time, but recognized his wife when she reached his bedside.

The North Carolina Drainage Association meets in Wilmington on Tuesday 22nd. The meeting will have a large attendance of those interested in draining swamp lands.

EVANGELIST BLACK HOLDING MEETING

UNION REVIVAL IN JARVIS MEMORIAL METHODIST CHURCH

TWO SERVICES TO BE HELD EACH DAY

Meeting Begins Sunday Morning With Large Congregation—The Singing is Delightful—The Hours for Service Are 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Business Houses Asked to Close During Service.

Sunday was as beautiful a day as could be wished for the beginning of the meeting by Dr. William Black, Presbyterian evangelist of the State, which is being held here in Jarvis Memorial Methodist church. It was a large congregation that greeted him at the first service, both the main auditorium and annex of the church being nearly filled. In the opening announcement made by Rev. J. H. Moore, pastor of the church, he expressed gratification at the spirit of unity existing in Greenville as had been shown in the union services in preparation for this meeting, and he felt sure that it meant much later and a great blessing to the community.

While the chorus was not so large at the first service as it will be, because of some of the other churches being open at the morning hour, the singing was delightful and the congregation joined it in good spirit. Besides the general songs there was a beautiful quartet by Dr. Black, Mr. Burr, Mr. McKoy and Miss Forbes, and a duet by Dr. Black and Mr. Burr. The doctor is almost as good a singer as he is a preacher.

Before beginning his sermon Dr. Black spoke of his love for the people of Greenville and the joy it gave him to accept the invitation to come here and hold this meeting, for he believed that the people loved him, or surely they would not have invited him to come back for the third time, he having already held two meetings here in past years. He referred especially to the last meeting he held here in the spring of 1905 when nearly all places of business in the town closed during the hours of service, and expressed the hope that business men were ready to treat him as well this time. God will take nothing from them by making this sacrifice for him. He said that in many other places where he had since held meetings, he had spoken of Greenville and how the people here closed their places of business in behalf of the Lord's work. He announced the hours for service during this meeting at 10:45 a. m., closing promptly at 12, and at 7:30 p. m.

Dr. Black read for a Scripture lesson the parable of the sower, and took as his text Luke 8:18: "Take heed therefore how ye hear." Many times during the sermon, which was upon the parable read, he emphasized the text by repeating it. There is a great deal of poor preaching in the world, and a great deal of poor listening, but people often judge the preaching to be poor because they are not listening at what is said. The mind is the greatest tramp on the face of the earth, and instead of being concentrated on what is being said from the pulpit, is wandering everywhere, on business on pleasures, on sin. He discussed clearly and logically the different classes representing the four kinds of soil mentioned in the parable, and that it was only those represented by the good ground, those who take heed how they hear, that bring forth good results.

The congregation Sunday night was even larger than the one at the morning service, and there was more of the soul-inspiring singing. The Scripture lesson was the 12th chapter of Romans and the text the 1st verse of that chapter: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God to present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." God beseeching sinners to come to Him through His services, which are greater than can be enumerated, and desiring our bodies and our all to be given to Him, was the theme of the powerful sermon. Dr. Black uses many forceful illustrations to carry the truth to the hearts of his hearers, and it could be seen from the intent listening that there was deep interest among them. He speaks rapidly following one truth with another, yet all so clear and plain as to be readily understood by every hearer.

MISS HARRIS ENTERAINS A NUMBER OF HER FRIENDS.

A Shakespearean Contest and Cards The Amusements.

(Reported for The Reflector.)

Miss Fleming with Mr. Forbes, Miss Dupree with Mr. Percy Forbes, Miss Cobb with Mr. Barnhill, Miss Tunstall with Mr. Gorman, Miss Pittman with Mr. Hooker, Miss Woodard with Mr. Smith, Miss Little with Mr. Moore, Miss Jenkins with Mr. L. J. Smith, Miss Outterbridge with Mr. Hearne, Miss Critcher with Mr. Smith, Miss Scott with Mr. Bagwell, Miss Rives with Mr. Smith, Miss Forbes with Mr. Hutchings, Miss Higgs with Mr. Tom Hutchings, Miss Deans with Mr. Greene and Miss Cullins with Mr. Kittrell were delightfully entertained by Miss Nina Harris at her hospitable home on Cotanch street on Friday night. From ten to ten-thirty, Miss Cobb and Mr. Barnhill received at the door. The guests were then led to the punch bowl where Miss Dupree and Mr. Forbes presided. They were next conducted to the parlor where they were heartily welcomed by the hostess, Miss Harris, ably assisted by Mr. Hearne.

Cards and a Shakespearean contest were the amusements of the evening followed by the brilliant recitations of Miss Harris, instrumental music by Miss Pittman, and several vocal selections charmingly rendered by Miss Cullins. A prize was given at the close of the contest to Mr. William Smith who found himself the lucky possessor of a handsome leather-bound volume of Shakespeare.

An elegant luncheon was served during the evening consisting of club sandwiches, crackers, pickles, dentasse and after-dinner mints.

At twelve o'clock the guests reluctantly began leaving, declaring the text by repeating it. There is a great deal of poor preaching in the world, and a great deal of poor listening, but people often judge the preaching to be poor because they are not listening at what is said. The mind is the greatest tramp on the face of the earth, and instead of being concentrated on what is being said from the pulpit, is wandering

Mice for Whooping-Cough.

A fairly relic of medieval nostrums came to my notice recently. A mother was discussing with her housekeeper the probability of her children taking whooping-cough, which was then prevalent in the community. The housekeeper, a most dependable, valuable helper, of more than average good sense and judgment, said, "Mrs. R., if you'll let me, I can keep your children from having whooping-cough. I've kept lots of children from having it, but I wouldn't do it without telling you first."

"Well, Martha, what is it?" "You catch a live mouse and kill and dress it and stuff and bake it and feed it to the children. It isn't bad to take, and of course, they don't know what it is—that would spoil the charm."

To my friend's exclamation of horror she replied with conviction, "I've given it to lots of children, and never one of them had whooping-cough."—Mar Newell Youtz in The Designer for December.

Discredited.

William Howard Taft, president of the United States, stands before the nation discredited. His most fatal error was that he occupied both sides of the tariff question. Before election he advocated downward revision of the tariff. After election he accepted revision upward and said that it was good. But he has made many other errors that have helped to lose him the confidence of the people. One of these in his position in the Ballinger matter, not so much that he stood by his secretary of the interior, but that he tried to fool the people with regard to the true facts in the case by mis-dating a report in the matter so as to make them think he had read it, when in fact he had not done so. Then his treatment of the western insurgents, in trying to force them to vote for measures they did not approve of by withholding patronage from them was another thing that cannot be excused. No president ever came into office enjoying the confidence of the people as fully as he. But his administration is already a failure beyond redemption and he will go out of office discredited and repudiated in the nation as he was Tuesday repudiated by the people of his own city and state.—Raleigh Times.

ATLANTIC COAST LINE ENTERS PENN. STATION.

Opening of the Pennsylvania Railroad Station, N. Y. City.

The Atlantic Coast Line makes official announcement that all their New York trains will enter the new Pennsylvania Railroad station, seventh avenue and thirty-second street, New York, on and after November 27th, and that the West Twenty-third street ferry, and the Brooklyn Annex ferry will be discontinued on and after that date.

The "Florida and West India Limited" will leave from the new station at 10:16 a. m. and arrive 2:31 p. m. The "Palmetto Limited" will leave at 3:38 p. m. and arrive 1:50 p. m., and the "Coast Line Florida Mail" will leave 9:30 p. m. and arrive 5:59 a. m. Upon the inauguration of the "New York and Florida Special," January 9th, that train will leave New York 1:26 p. m., and arrive 4:06 p. m.

It will be seen from the foregoing, that passengers will have considerable advantages, not only from the convenience of reaching the station, which is centrally located and adjacent to street car lines, extending to all parts of the city, but in a later departure and earlier arrival in the city.

The travel to the down town station section will be provided for by trains from the Manhattan Transfer station, located near Harrison, N. J., and at which all through trains from the South will stop. They will be taken to the passenger station in Jersey City and can reach the lower Manhattan by the Hudson and Manhattan Tubes, or by ferry to Cortlandt, or Desbrosses street, which service will be continued.

Passengers to and from Brooklyn will transfer in Pennsylvania station, to and from Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn, via the tubes under the East river, thereby saving much time and annoyance.

The location of the station appeals directly to the hotel guests, the shopper, the amusement seeker, the business man, the professional man and every class of travel to and from New York, over the Atlantic Coast Line, as the station is in the very heart of the hotel district, and only one block from Broadway, two blocks from Fifth avenue and one block from the center of the retail dry goods section, which is supposed to be the busiest part of New York City.

How Reading Pays.

By reading what other men have done, and are doing, I believe that any thoughtful man can add at least $500 a year to his income more than he could without the reading. The discoveries of scientists that are helpful to the farmer can only be learned by reading about what they have done, and how their discoveries can be applied in practice the farm press tells us. And yet, there are thousands struggling with poor land, and not knowing how to better it, who will not read and learn. The great problem with those who would help these men is how to get at them and induce them to learn. I sometimes think that the only way we will ever get a reading farm population is to raise it through the rural schools and the colleges of agriculture working together and thus to finally replace the non-reading people—W. F. Massey, in Raleigh Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

STUPID LUXURY.

David Graham Phillips Blames American Wives.

In this money-madness that results in stupid luxury, our women lead our men, says David Graham Phillips in the Delineator. The American man has not time to reflect. As soon as he is old enough he plunges, or is plunged into the great scramble for wealth. He does not pause to ask whether the scramble is worth while. He sees all the other men scrambling. He has energy; he wants to do something. He sees nothing else offering. Once engaged, once heated and excited, he keeps on. It is not natural that he should? But how about the American woman?

We hear much of the superiority of this lady. And, to be sure, she does look superior. She has nothing else to do. The American man—I am speaking now as throughout this article, only of the well-to-do class—the American man gives her all her time, leaves her free to use it as she pleases. He gives her a luxurious home; he gives her a servant or servants; he gives her credit at the finery shops. He leaves her alone all day, and is usually so tired that he would be glad if she left him alone all evening. Plenty of time to reflect, hasn't she? Well! And what is the net result of this reflecting?

The other evening a woman, wife of a rich banker, said, "this afternoon I couldn't think of a thing to do, so I just took a hot bath." Three women—the wife of an eminent doctor, the wives of two eminent lawyers—lifted themselves heavily out of an automobile, and waddled up to the door of an art gallery, only to find that it was closed. They stared blankly at each other, "What shall we do?" said one despairingly—this in a world where millions on millions of men, women and children have to toil twelve, fourteen, sixteen hours a day, just for poor bread, rags and a hovel! "We might go to a continuous performance till lunch time," said the doctor's wife. "No," said the third woman, "let's go look at those blouses." And off they went to harass the clerks of the blouse department of some shop.

Plenty of time to reflect—all day long, uninterruptedly, if they choose. And the result is bridge—and yet more bridge—and showy, ill-fitting, ill-selected dresses and hats; and bodies overlaid with carriage fat and automobile fat and street-car fat and theatre-seat or home-chair fat; and skins disordered from lounging and eating candy; and showy, ill-kept, tasteless houses or flats, and many dollars spent for every dollar in value—even in doubtful value—acquired.

Thanksgiving Day—Orphan's Day.

The work of the orphanages of North Carolina appeals most strongly to reason and to sympathy. These institutions are worthy of the heartiest support of our people and they have a large place in their interest and gifts and efforts.

At the Thanksgiving season minds and hearts turn especially toward our orphanages and many are practical expressions of gratitude made to this cause by a people richly blessed.

These love-prompted gifts to carry on this blessed work with these little ones surely must be acceptable to God, the Father of the fatherless.

It seems that here in North Carolina, Thanksgiving Day has been specially set apart as "Orphan's Day" and we rejoice that this is true. The contributions made at this season help very much indeed in the support of our various orphanages.

We trust that even larger offerings will be made at this Thanksgiving season than ever before to the aid that these institutions may be the better able to perform their service. They need funds for maintenance, or improvement and for the extension of the work.

THE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Hold an Interesting Meeting Saturday With Large Attendance.

The weather was ideal for the occasion, and Prof. W. H. Ragsdale was highly delighted at the record-breaking number of teachers and visitors present.

At 11.30 the association was called to order by President H. B. Smith, and the devotional exercises were conducted by the president.

The president called our attention to the value of the Education Bulletin in regard to the opening exercises of our schools as suggested by Mr. S. J. Barwick of the educational department. He then spoke of the policy that would be followed by the programme committee this year. He said efforts would be made to have programmes that would interest the teachers of all the grades, laying special emphasis on the fact that each teacher should be familiar to a certain extent with all the grades of work.

The association was highly entertained by some excellent reading from the second, third and fourth grades of the Greenville graded school under the direction of Misses Hampton, Knight and Gray, teachers of the above grades.

An excellent paper on "The Ideals of a Teacher" was ably read by Mrs. Kate R. Beckwith, of the Training School.

The association was glad to welcome Prof. H. E. Austin, who did so much to make the association a great success last year by his excellent series of lectures on the "Recitation." We are exceedingly fortunate again this year in securing his services for a lecture on "How to Study," at each of our meetings this year. He outlined his work for this year, urging that each teacher should purchase a book and study carefully each subject assigned.

After some brief announcements by Superintendent Ragsdale, the association adjourned.

NOTES FROM THE UNIVERSITY

Football Defeats—Club and Society Organizations.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 15.—Now in the race of the defeat that have come in every game this season the Carolina varsity has reached the point where it must fall back upon its fighting nerve. The last remaining asset of the team, which by its record has almost justifiably lost the confidence of the student body, is the traditional Carolina spirit, the spirit which in the year 1906 followed a 35 to 6 defeat by V. P. I. and a 4 to 0 slaughter by the navy "came back" against their Thanksgiving foe for a 17 to 0 victory. Today the only thing remembered about the 1906 season is the victory over Virginia.

An important movement among the people of Chapel Hill culminated in the organization of the Community Club. The membership of the club is made up of the ladies of the town with men as honorary members. The purpose of the organization is the improvement of the town school, the sanitation of the streets and all other objects of a worthy public nature. Speeches were made by Dr. E. A. Abernethy and several members of the University faculty. Professor E.

K. Graham presided at the meeting. The Historical Society held its first meeting of the year in the alumni building Monday night. It was decided that the society should not have any officers this year and should be as informal as possible. The suggestion was favorably received that cigars should be provided and that meetings should be nothing more than roundtable discussions. The next meeting will take place the first Monday in December and the subject for discussion will be "Lessons to be Learned From the Present Elections."

At the regular Tuesday night meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. R. T. Webb offered his resignation as treasurer of the association and the nominating committee presented the name of Mr. George Graham. The nomination will lie on the table for a week and then the election will be held.

At this meeting Dr. W. DeB. McNider addressed the association. "The Functions of a Physician," he told of the duty to the individual as a healer, the duty to the community as an educator and preventor of disease and his duty as a scientist, was the speaker said, finds his best laboratory in his every day practice.

APPETITE GONE.

Indigestion is The Cause of It—Coward & Wooten Has The Cure.

People go on suffering from little stomach troubles for years and imagine they have a serious disease.

They over eat or over drink and force on the stomach a lot of extra work.

But they never think that the stomach needs extra help to do extra work.

If these people would take two M-I-O-N-A stomach tablets with or after meals stomach misery would go five minutes and they would be a great big help to the stomach in its strain of overwork.

M-I-O-N-A is guaranteed by Coward & Wooten to cure indigestion or any stomach disease or money back.

M-I-O-N-A for belching gas.

M-I-O-N-A for distress after eating.

M-I-O-N-A for sour breath.

Freeman Vines, Tom Vines, Cleveland Vines, Charlie Vines, D. C. Blount, affray; Blount not guilty, others all guilty; judgment suspended on payment of costs.

The report of the grand jury, for the term was as follows:

We have inquired into the conduct of the people, and all that we know of have been presented, and have acted upon all bills that have come before our body that we could get witnesses.

We have visited the convict camp and find the prisoners well cared for and everything in good condition.

We have visited the county home and find everything in good condition, except one building needs repairing on the roof, and a new stove pipe is needed in the cook room.

Now in regard to the superintendent of the home, we find all inmates well satisfied with the exception of the Campbells, who seem to be hard to satisfy.

Now in regard to the superintendent of health, we find all the inmates well satisfied except the blind man and Miss Polly May.

We have visited the offices of the register of deeds and clerk of the court and find the records well kept.

We have visited the sheriff's office and find the office well kept.

We have visited the jail and find it in as good condition as circumstances will allow and the prisoners well cared for.

We find Johnnie Jenkins and C. R. Jenkins are minors with an estate and with no guardian and no body who will act. We recommend the appointment of a receiver, J. J. ELKS, Foreman.

FOR PROTECTION OF OUR GAME BIRDS

DO WE KNOW THE VALUE OF GAME AND COMMON BIRDS

ARGUMENT FOR RESIDENT LICENSE

We Should Ask Ourselves the Question as Well as Discuss the Real Value of Insect-Eating Birds to Our Farmers, and The Income to Our State Derived From Our Game and Fish Resources.

Editor Reflector:

During the past ten years, there has been a splendid progress in nearly every state in the Union for game protection, showing the real value of our game, and the figures as shown here are verified by both the United States agricultural department at Washington and our department at Raleigh.

The grasshopper is said to cause an annual damage to the farms in the United States of ninety million dollars. It is shown one-third of the amount of grasshoppers hatched have been destroyed by the birds. The cinch bug is also very destructive to farm products. Out of the crop of sixteen quail, they were found to contain seven ounces of the cinch bug. Putting this at a very low estimate, the actual value of the quail to the farmers is hard to estimate.

During 1903, the Audubon society of North Carolina, was incorporated. No one who knows, can deny the fact of the great good done by the society which was in operation over the entire state until our past legislature, when fifty-four counties were withdrawn and are now under the protection of the commissioners of the respective counties. A very conservative estimate of the value of the game, insectivorous and so-called birds to our state annually is a million-and-half dollars. Thousands of acres of worthless land, as far as farming is concerned is bought up at a very high price for game preserves, as well as the taxes on thousands of acres of land have been paid for the hunting privileges. Guilford county alone has an income of $3,000 annually derived from the lease of her hunting property. Currituck county's annual income from the sale of game and taxes on marsh land amount to something over $750. As our legislature meets in the next three months, let us see that such laws are passed, looking forward to better game protection. Below we give an outline of what we think, as well as some of the best men of our state and those who are most interested, of what would be the best law for the protection and propagation of game:

1. That it furnishes the means of maintaining the work of game protection without any direct appropriation and any serious hardships.

2. That license is paid only by those who derive benefit from game protection and not imposed on those who have no interest and do not care to avail themselves of the privilege of hunting.

3. It furnishes a system of registration of all persons hunting and thereby makes the enforcement of game laws more effective.

4. Some of the Southern states' experiences have shown that even a nominal fee of $2.00 is sufficient to keep out of the fields many a shiftless and irresponsible hunter through whose operation much game is destroyed.

5. It may be the means of obtaining value statistics as to the amount of game killed, if the holders of the license are required to report the number of birds shot.

The value of birds to the farmer as destroyer of insects noxious weed and injurious rodents is too large a subject to be surmised in a single paragraph.

You will find these subjects discussed in a number of the bulletins issued by the United States department of agriculture, namely, circulars No. 73-74 and 54 as well as one by Sylvester D. Judd, treating on birds as weed destroyers.

The value of game is well exemplified by the condition in Guilford Currituck and several other counties of the state where worthless lands as far as farming is concerned are bought up at a big price for game preserves, as well as, in a number of instances, where the tax is paid on land for the hunting privilege.

Some of the reasons that the commission plan of game law enforcement is likely to meet with more favor than enforcement through the Audubon society or any other private corporation is because it removes objections and apparently turning over to a private corporation duties which properly belong to the state, and place this branch on footing of other branches of the state government.

Very respectfully,
MILFORD W. JAYNES,
Tarboro, N. C.

Five Great Governors.

The Democrats have elected five governors in Northern States who rank as men of the highest type. They all bring to the public service records of solid outside politics.

That five men like John A. Dix, of New York, Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, Judge Baldwin, of Connecticut, Eugene Foss, of Massachusetts, and Judson Harmon, of Ohio, by popular vote should be placed in the front rank of their party augurs well for the future. It signifies a strong and united Democracy, a strong opposition represented by a party guided by character and principle, with clear aims and definite duties to perform.

If Woodrow Wilson alone had been taken from private life and within a few weeks lifted to a pre-eminent position in the affairs of the country it would have been a national event. The campaign Dr. Wilson made in New Jersey was a revelation of powers so striking as to attract universal attention. It proves again how great are the latent resources of this country in men.

Not only to the States which they have been chosen to govern is the election of such men a distinct gain but to the nation at large it means general raising of the tone both in politics and public service. The influence that these Democratic governors will exercise as local leaders of their party will affect national standards through the example that they set within their separate fields.

MORE THAN 100 BARRELS CORN

RAISED ONE ON ACRE BY MR. C. T. WATSON

HE EXPLAINS HOW IT WAS DONE

His Method of Cultivation and Quantity of Fertilizer Used—Raised Corn at Actual Cost of 15 Cents Per Bushel and Net Profit Was $87.50 on One Acre.

Pitt county has some corn growers, and Mr. C. T. Watson is one of them. He lives 4 miles from here on Falkland road and entered the demonstration movement this year setting apart one acre of corn for this purpose. He says he started out with the idea of making 30 barrels on that acre, and believes he would have done so but for it getting badly drowned in the rainy season. As it was he made a record to be proud of, and one that is worth noting. He gathered the acre of corn last week, measured it carefully and found that he had nearly 21 barrels—to be exact there were 102 13-14 bushels.

Mr. Watson came in Saturday and told The Reflector about his demonstration acre; when asked for the methods of cultivation that we might print it and thus give other farmers the benefit of his experience, he told us the following:

The ground was first broken to a depth of 7 inches with a one-horse plow and 100 bushels of stable manure was broadcast on the broke land. This was cut in with a harrow just before planting. When ready to plant the rows were run 5 feet apart and 6 inches deep with a turn plow. The corn was planted 12 inches apart one to the hill.

At the first plowing the corn was barred off 5 inches deep and one sack of kainit and two sacks of acid phosphate sowed in the furrows by the corn. The middles were split with a turn plow, six furrows to the middle. The second plowing was with a 5-tooth cultivator, three furrows to the row. The third plowing it was sided with a cotton plow to a depth of 1 1-2 inches. Then two sacks of cotton seed meal and one sack of 8-3 guano were used. At the last plowing, which was also with a cotton plow, five furrows to the row and 1 1-2 inches deep, four sacks of cotton seed meal and 200 pounds of nitrate of soda were used.

Mr. Watson said fertilizers and cultivation of this acre cost $25, but as he got $10 worth of fodder from it the actual cost for the acre was reduced to $15. This was a little less than 15 cents a bushel, and at the market price of corn, $1 per bushel, his acre netted $87.50.

Mr. Watson also said that his entire corn crop this year was good, and while not doing harvesting yet he expects it to average 10 barrels per acre. This is a good example of what can be done at corn growing in Pitt county. It ought to inspire every farmer who reads this to put forth his best efforts and not be satisfied with less than 10 barrels per acre. With proper cultivation and favorable seasons this average can be reached.

Why don't the choirs of the churches sing more of the songs that the people understand and enjoy something that touches the chords of the heart, a soul-lifter so to speak? There are songs that make you feel better; make you feel like you would be good to all the world. There are others that do not have this effect in fact they have the opposite. From a scientific point some songs are right, but we always did like to hear a tune—not scientific noise.—Greeks

If there are those who think the Republican party in this state will give up and quit, they would do well to undeceive themselves. There will be a new alignment and a recognition of the forces for the presidential year and the fight will be even more vigorous than it was in the recent campaign. It is not probable, either, that the party will have the handicap it labored under this year. The old scores have been evened up, blood stains will be washed and the next campaign will see the Republican united and out for business. The probabilities are, too, that the Democrats will be fortified by too much confidence. The licking of the Republicans in this state will only clean them good and put them in a more troublesome mood for the next fight.

The presence of typhoid fever, a absolutely preventable disease, is reproach to any community. It is the more so because only by the community, principally through safeguarding of the water and milk supplies, can any but the most fantastically cautious individual be protected. Characteristically careless, we in this country permit our typhoid rate to range several times higher than Europe's. In the South, even on the farms, where the victim has usually his own or his family's gross neglect of common sanitation to blame, it makes a brave show. If American towns are to have the infection almost always more or less present with them—and this is one of the most virulent infections known—the

PRE-NUPTIAL SHOWER.

In Honor of Miss Glenn Forbes, Bride Elect.

Miss Alice Blow entertained the Young Ladies Club, in a very elaborate style on Tuesday afternoon in honor of Miss Glenn Forbes, the bride elect.

The house was beautifully decorated with pot plants, smilax and flowers. The club members were enjoying themselves socially when the hostess announced the arrival of the bride and groom, and in walked little Haywood Hall, Jr., dressed as cupid, pulling a wagon, artistically decorated with hearts and cupids, and loaded with everything necessary for the most important department of the house, the kitchen.

She, then, in behalf of the members, with the following toasts presented them to the guest of honor: "We present these to the bride elect,

Our dear friend so kind and true. Modest though these tokens seem, We wish to express our love for you.

May your life be long, and useful, too.

May your joys be many—your sorrows few, Is the wish of your friends, Both old and new."

The vice-president, Mrs. Outlaw, then presented her with a cook book containing an original recipe and toast, expressing to her the best wishes of the club members, that she would soon become an accomplished artist in their department, to which Miss Forbes responded in her usual graceful manner.

Delightful refreshments were then served which were a fitting close to an afternoon so happily spent.

Among those present were Misses Glenn Forbes, Alice Blow, Helen Forbes, Vernessa Smith, Mattie Moore, King, Mary Smith, Margaret Blow, Mesdames E. B. Ferguson, R. C. White, Will Lipscomb, Ned Laughinghouse, N. W. Outlaw.

Visitors—Misses Ettie Adyette, Elizabeth City and Cammie McNeal of Lumberton.

High Prices.

Twenty years ago there was a general complaint against low prices, now times have changed and with high prices the complaint is just as vigorous and persistent against these. Surely the Southern farmer has cause for complaint if he regulates his affairs to suit present conditions. The increased price of cotton does him no good if he continues to buy his meat and other supplies from the northwest at corresponding increases. Conditions were never better for the Southern farmer who raises his own supplies at home. Raising home supplies gives a double advantage; it saves sending cash received for cotton to the west for high priced supplies, and the more supplies raised at home the less cotton can be produced. The two working together mean high prices for cotton and less for supplies. Then, too, the home raised produce is the best.—Charlotte Observer.

Cutting Up the Farm.

Through the Wadesboro Messenger and Intelligencer, Judge K. T. Bennett is advocating small farms "To do our best with large farms," he says "we should cut most of them into one-fourth, one-fourth one-half and less. 'Tis not in our ken to tell it, but such cutting up produces a natural desire to improve and adorn these fractions. The profit by cropping, the shadow of the owner should fall upon the land whenever the sunshine admits his shadow. We can't make money by leaving the farm to a hireling, an alter ego in the master's stead." A more truthful deliverance than that was never made.—Charlotte Chronicle.

A Few Pertinent Figures.

The season when bad roads are at their worst is approaching and the readers some recent figures presented on the subject by the Richmond Times-Dispatch very timely. "The cost of hauling farm products in the United States," says The Times-Dispatch, "averages about 23 cents a mile, while in Europe where the roads are uniformly good the cost is only 8 cents a mile. If the cost in the United States was only 8 cents a mile the saving would be about $250,000,000 a year. To transport wheat from New York to Liverpool costs 3.8 cents a bushel. It costs the farmer 5.4 cents a bushel to haul the same wheat from the farm to the market, the average haul being a little less than ten miles. It is estimated that the agricultural products of the United States during the last eleven years have been worth $70,000,000,000. The cost of moving this produce from the farms to the markets over bad roads above what the cost of transportation would have been over good roads would build approximately a million miles of good roads."

These figures, striking as they are, do not tell the whole story. They take no account of the immense increase in the comfort of traveling, the saving of draught animals or the wear and tear of vehicles obviated by properly constructed highways. The good roads movement, like many similar ones, requires an immense amount of hard work to keep it going, but judging from the return on the investment made apparent by these figures it would appear rather more than worth while.—Charlotte Observer.

TOPIC FOR DISCUSSION IN NOVEMBER

THIS MONTH IS THE TIME TO BEGIN THE WORK

DEEP FALL BREAKING OF THE LAND

Progressive Farmers Who Plow Deep Show Best Results—Importance of Properly Distributed Supply of Moisture—Air Must Get Down to the Roots—Extreme Weather Conditions can be Largely Overcome.

For a considerable number of years Southern farmers have been trying to produce large, profitable crops of corn on shallow soils. The records of corn growing show that they have failed. During this same period a few of the more progressive farmers have been breaking their lands six to eight inches, and even ten inches deep, and have produced from thirty to sixty bushels per acre at a small cost. For forty years the average depth of breaking land in North Carolina has been about four inches with an average yield of less than fifteen bushels of corn per acre. Last year the men engaged in the farmers' demonstration work broke three thousand acres from six to ten inches deep and harvested a little over forty bushels per acre. The cost was about twenty-five cents per bushel.

Can we not learn a valuable lesson from the experience of these farmers? Let us study briefly, some of the advantages of a deep soil. One of the most important problems connected with corn growing is a properly distributed supply of moisture. We cannot have this on shallow soils. The shallow soil is soon filled with water during rainfall. If the rains continue several days, the soil stays saturated with water. This keeps the air. (Two things cannot occupy the same space at the same time.) Corn will not grow unless air gets down to its roots. Therefore the corn fails during wet spells of weather. The excess of rain fall usually does much washing under such conditions. When the rains cease, the small amount of water held in a shallow soil is soon exhausted by evaporation and by being used by the corn, so that the corn now suffers for lack of moisture. With a deep soil these conditions do not exist. When rain comes, it sinks down into the lower parts of the deep soil, letting the air into the upper portions so that the corn continues its growth. When dry weather prevails the deep soil, by having caught previous rains is able to supply moisture enough to keep the corn green and growing.

In this section we nearly always have a wet spell or a dry spell of weather during the period of corn growing. One usually follows the other. The effects of both extremes can be largely overcome by plowing a deep seed bed. Then, too, it stands to reason that there is more place for a deep soil than in a shallow one.

Some exceptions to these statements should be noted. A soil that is filled with water during a considerable portion of the year is not benefited by deep plowing. If such soils were well drained, then deep breaking would be good for them. Many marshes and other wet spots would produce big crops if they were drained and deepened by plowing. Loose, sandy lands, with open porous subsoil without any clay in them or under them are not much benefited by deep breaking. If much humus is to be turned under on them, then deep plowing gives much better results.

The time of deepening the soil is important. Many farmers wait till spring to deepen their soils and often make poor crops because the subsoil was too wet to be plowed after the winter rains had fallen. The proper time to do deep breaking is during the fall and early winter, provided, the soil and subsoil are dry enough. This permits several weeks' weathering to take place before spring planting begins. On lands that have never had the atmosphere down into it, it is not a fit place to plant seed. This also allows the soil to be pulverized by the freezes.

Both the air and the freezes are very valuable in making plant food available for the use of crops. In doing deep breaking at any time, it is not advisable to turn very much of the raw subsoil out on top. Those who expect to make big crops next year should begin now to deepen the soil. If properly done, under average conditions, no further deep breaking will be necessary in the spring. Then is the time to do a lot of discarding and harrowing in order to make a nice well pulverized seed bed.

Good Ways to Invest Money.

I believe that money spent by any bright, earnest farm boy for a textbook on agriculture, or for any good book that will teach him things he needs to know, is money invested just as truly as if he had put it into live stock or machinery or fertilizers; and in many cases it will bring him far bigger returns than will almost any other investment.

Certainly money and time put into schooling—at the rural public school, at the high school or at the college—are money and time well spent. I believe it should be the ambition of every boy to go to college. Every boy will get to go, of course, but the nearer he comes to going the better. If he only prepares himself to enter a good college, he has done much. And if a boy starts out early with the determination to go, he can pretty nearly do it. Boys have worked and saved their money for years for that one purpose, and when they finally succeeded in completing the course, have found themselves able to earn two or three times as much as they could before. No money is better spent, even from a purely business standpoint than that spent in an education.

Indeed, getting an education—and by "education" I mean not merely the knowledge gathered from your school books, but the preparation for your life work and for right living—should be a boy's main object in life. According to whether or not he prepares in his youth to do the work that men have to do is he likely to succeed or fail when he becomes a man. Therefore, count the money—as well as the time and thought—you put into the training of your mind or the development of your body, as an investment on which you will realize in after life. Anything that will make you more efficient in your work or give you higher ideals of life, is well worth paying for—is, in fact, something you can not afford to fail to invest in.—M., in Raleigh Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

Many a Greenville. Household Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Greenville readers: David R. Willis, East Main Street, Washington, N. C., says: "I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills as they have given me entire satisfaction. I suffered from disordered kidneys, the secretion from these organs being too frequent in passage, especially at night. I also had dull pains through my back, accompanied by sharp twinges in my loins. Doan's Kidney Pills were highly recommended, and I at last secured a box. They relieved the backache, disposed of the pains in my loins and regulated the passages of the kidney secretions. Whenever I feel that my kidneys are disordered, I at once use Doan's Kidney Pills and they give me immediate relief."

REFLECTOR PRIZE CONTEST.

Time to Enter if You Are Going to Get in The Race.

If you are going to enter the contest to secure one of the prizes offered by The Reflector, you should lose no time in letting this fact be known and getting to work. In the large advertisement on third page is a coupon which should be cut out and sent in. You can nominate yourself or some one else just as you please, but the one nominated should get to work to secure votes. The vote getting will be easy, and the ones who get the most will win the prizes. Don't wait if you are to be one of them. Look over the list of prizes and see if you don't think they are worth working for.

Start Holiday Advertising.

Along about this season of the year the call goes out for early Christmas shopping. If the merchants would make an early start in Christmas advertising, and impress early buying, it would get the purchasers out earlier and thus save much of the final rush that comes to both. Let The Reflector begin right away telling the people what you will have for the holidays. This is the way to reach them and acquaint them with your goods and bargains, as well as convincing them of the advantage of early buying.

Here are a few of the morning after dopes that the Greensboro News consoled itself with:

Missed the pumpkin pie trust a mile!

Nearly three months till groundhog day—cheer up!

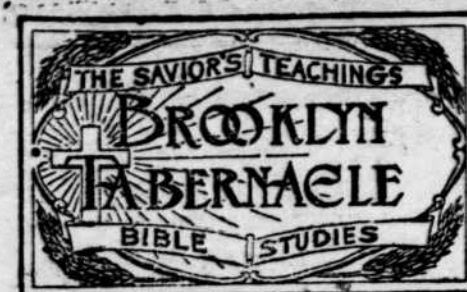

But, then, somebody must be disappointed every time.

Good time to put the icing on your Thanksgiving cake.

Hereafter, never hatch your chickens before you count 'em.

If you feel like taking to the woods most any old road will take you there.

A lot of fellows will now have to shake themselves loose and find something else to lean upon.

THE DARK GETHSEMANE HOUR

Matthew 26:36-40—November 20
"The Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners"—v. 40.

AFTER the Master and his disciples, as Jews, had celebrated the Passover Supper and after he had subsequently instituted the Memorial of his death with the bread and the cup, and after Judas had gone out to betray him, Jesus and the remaining eleven left the upper room in Jerusalem, crossed the city to the gate and thence crossed the Valley Kedron and ascended the sloping side of Mt. Olivet toward the Garden of Gethsemane. The word Gethsemane signifies oil-press. Tradition has it that this Garden belonged to the family of which the Apostles John and James were members, and that for this reason the Lord and his disciples were privileged to feel themselves at home there. St. Mark, the writer of one of the Gospels, but not one of the Apostles, is credited with having been a member of the same family. One of the accounts of the arrest of the Master tells that amongst those who followed after him was a young man wrapped with a sheet and who fled naked when some members of the band attempted to lay hold of him. That young man, tradition says, years afterwards was known as St. Mark.

The Journey to Gethsemane

This was the most memorable night of the Master's experience. He knew perfectly the meaning of every feature of the Passover. He knew that he was the Lamb of God, antitypically, whose death was to be accomplished on the following day by crucifixion. Yet his thoughts were for his dear disciples. He must give them final words of encouragement and instruction. And so he did. Three chapters of St. John's Gospel record the incidents of the intervening time between the leaving of the upper room and the arriving at Gethsemane, the place of the oil-press. "And Judas also, who betrayed him, knew the place, for Jesus oftentimes resorted thither with his disciples" (John viii. 2). In St. John xiv the Master told his disciples about the place he would go to prepare for them, but that he would send the Spirit of Truth to be their Comforter and it would show them things to come. In the fifteenth chapter he gave them the parable of the Vine and the Branches and assured them that no longer should they be servants, but friends. "For all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you." In the sixteenth chapter he explained to them that persecutions must be expected, if they would share his sufferings and be prepared to share his glory.

A little while and they would not see him; then again a little while and they would see him. The entire period of his absence, from the Divine standpoint, as compared to eternity, would be but a little while. Then, by virtue of the resurrection "change," they would see him, because made like him. "In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." "These things I have given unto you that in me ye might have peace." In the 17th chapter is recorded his wonderful prayer to the Father on behalf of his followers—not for the Apostles only, but for all those also who would believe on him through their word.

In the Garden of Gethsemane Thus discoursing they reached the Garden, or olive-yard, where the press for extracting the oil from the olives was located. Somewhere near the entrance eight of the disciples were bidden to remain watching while Jesus with the specially beloved Peter, James and John, went a little further. And then, realizing the impossibility of even his dearest friends appreciating his sorrowful condition, he went still further alone to speak to the Father. The disciples, perplexed, astounded, by the things that he had heard from his lips, did not comprehend the true situation. They evidently thought that there must still be something parabolic in his utterances. They would indeed watch with him, but they were weary and sank into slumber. The spirit was willing, but the flesh was weak.

If some have queried why the Master preferred to be alone in prayer so frequently, the answer is, "I have trodden the wine-press alone; and of the people there was none with me" (Isaiah lxiii. 3).

His disciples and followers loved him dearly. Still he was alone, because he alone had been begotten of the holy Spirit. His followers could not feel so blessed nor be spirit-begotten until after his sacrifice had been finished nor until he would appear in the presence of God for them to apply his merit imputedly to them, to permit them to join with him sacrificially in the sufferings of this present time, that they might share with him also in the glories to follow.

St. Peter, referring to the foregoing experience of our Lord, declares that he offered up strong crying and tears unto him that was able to save him from death and was heard in respect to that which he feared. Why did he fear? Do not all humanity face death, and some with bravado? Ah, there is a vast difference between the Master's standpoint and ours as respects death. We were born dying. We never knew perfect life. We have always known that there is no escape from death. It

WHO IN THE DAYS OF HIS FLESH OFFERED UP ST. ONG CRYING AND TEARS UNTO HIM THAT WAS ABLE TO SAVE HIM OUT OF DEATH.

COULD YE NOT WATCH WITH ME ONE HOUR? WATCH AND PRAY, LEST YE ENTER INTO TEMPTATION.

ences on the spirit plane before coming into the world were all in association with life, perfection of life. "In him was life"—uncontaminated, because he was holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners; his life came not from Adam.

He knew that in his perfection he had a right to life, if he would live in perfect accordance with the Divine requirements. But he knew also that by special Covenant with God, "a Covenant by sacrifice," he had agreed to the surrender of all his earthly rights and to allow his life to be taken from him. The Father had promised him a great reward of glory, honor and immortality through resurrection from the dead, but this was dependent upon his absolute obedience in every particular—in word, in thought, in deed. The question was, Had he been absolutely loyal to God in every particular? If not death would mean to him an eternal extinction of being, not only the loss of heavenly glory promised as a reward, but the loss of everything. Can we wonder that he did not understand? The hour seemed so dark, and he said, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful." He knew that death was necessary. But here, now, looming up before him on the morrow was a shameful execution as a blasphemer, as a criminal, as a violator of Divine law. Could it be possible that in anything, even slightly, he had taken to himself the honor due to the Father? Could it be possible that in any degree he had held back, even in his mind, from full obedience to the Father's will? Did this crucifixion as a criminal possibly mean the loss of Divine favor? Was it necessary that he should die thus? Might not this cup of ignominy pass? So he prayed in a great agony. And although the older Greek manuscripts do not contain the statement that he sweat great drops of blood, medical science tells us that such an experience would not have been at all impossible in a nervous, strained, mental agony. But we note the beautiful simplicity of the statement with which his prayer concluded—"Nevertheless, my Father, not my will, but thy will, be done."

How childlike and beautiful the faith and trust, even amidst strenuous agitation! St. Paul says that he was heard in the thing which he feared. How? God's answer came by angelic hands. An angel appeared and ministered to him—ministered to his necessities. "Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister to those who shall be heirs of salvation?" (Hebrews i. 14). We are not informed in what words this heavenly ministry was expressed to the Master in his lowliness and sorrow, but we do know that it must have been with full assurance of the Heavenly Father's favor and sympathy and love. He was heard in respect to the things which he feared. He received the assurance that he was well-pleasing to the Father; that he had been faithful to his Covenant; and that he would have the resurrection promised.

"Behold the Lamb of God"
From that moment onward the Master was the calmest of all who had any association with the great events of that night and the following day. Officers, servants, Sanhedrin, priests, Herod and his men of war, Pilate and his soldiers, and the shouting rabble—all were excited, all were distressed. Jesus only was calm. This was because he had the Father's assurance that all was well between them. As this blessed assurance gave the Master courage, so his followers since have found that, "if God be for us, who can be against us?" If we have the peace of God ruling in our hearts, it is beyond all human comprehension.

Judas the Ungrateful Apostate

The world is full of sadly disappointing characters. In many things we all fail. Selfishness, meanness, perversity, pride, etc., mark the human family most woefully. But withal can anyone find anything more reprensible than the Ingrate who would betray his best friend?

The world is of one opinion respecting such characters as that of Judas. And although he is a noted example he is by no means an exception; there are many. Some of them live today. But whoever can see the meanness of such a disposition with a reasonably good focus will surely be saved from manifesting such a character, however mean might be his disposition. The man who could sell his Master for thirty pieces of silver is justly in contempt with all humanity. Nor was it merely the thirty pieces that influenced the Ingrate. Rather it was pride. He had thought to be associated with the Master in an earthly throne. He had set his faith upon this expectation. Now that same Master explained more fully that the throne was not yet in sight; that it belongs to an age to follow this, and was to be given only to those who should prove themselves loyal and faithful unto death. In the mind of Judas the matter took not the wisest and best way. Holding the Great Teacher in contempt, the deceived one probably intended that the delivery should be merely a temporary one—a lesson to the Master not to talk that way, not to carry matters too far—an incentive to him, compelling him to exert his power for the resistance of those who sought his life and thus, in exalting himself, make good to his disciples the share in the Kingdom which he had promised or, failing of this, to wreck the entire project. Alas, the love of money, the love of power puff up and make delicious some who become intoxicated with ambition. How necessary that all the Lord's followers remember the message, "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted and he that exalteth himself shall be abased!" Humble yourselves, therefore, under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time" (1 Peter v. 6).

OBSTRUCTING THE LAW.

Are We at the Mercy of the Lawless Element?

Editor Reflector:

The writer has information to the effect that at least one of the white defendants charged with selling liquor, has been actively trying to get men to go up into the court room and try to get on the jury and prevent a verdict of guilty against him. The existence of such condition is an obstruction to the administration of justice and a method to deceive and embarrass the officers, and should be prevented by the law abiding citizens of the community, for such attempted obstruction of justice tends to breed lawlessness.

Also the writer has been informed that an ancient and honorable fraternal spirit has been appealed to as a protection.

It is confidently believed that innocent persons cannot, under our laws, be convicted of crime, and that officers should not be imposed on and justice obstructed by any means whatsoever. F. M. WOOTEN.

This is a letter that calls for action on the part of the law abiding citizens of the community. They should give their support to the action of the local authorities in recently arresting and binding over to court persons charged with selling liquor, and they should see that the law is not obstructed in the manner noted above. Every person arraigned should have a fair trial. If any are innocent they should be acquitted, and if any are guilty, they should be punished. But it is not conducive to a proper administration of justice for those charged with violation of the law to undertake to exert influence upon those likely to be jurors.

TOBACCO SALES FOR THE MONTH OF OCTOBER.

Greenville Leads All Other Markets in Price.

The figures were delayed this time but Secretary C. W. Harvey, of the Tobacco Board of Trade, furnishes us the following report of the Greenville market:

Sales for the month of October 1,889,603 pounds at an average price of $12.18 per hundred. The total sales for the season up to October 31st were 5,631,747 pounds. This is a decrease of 996,623 pounds from last year, when the market sold 6,628,370 pounds up to October 31st, but this decrease is partially explained in the market opening this year two weeks later than last year.

The Reflector has been keeping tab on some of the neighboring markets and finds from the Times that the average of the Wilson market for October was $11.99 per hundred, and from The Free Press that the average of the Kinston market was $10.75 per hundred. These figures show that Greenville paid 19 cents per hundred pounds more than Wilson and $1.43 per hundred more than Kinston. This difference means much to the farmers, and it bears out our oft repeated claim that Greenville is the best market in the State.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Accounts Allowed--Supt. of Roads Resigns--Jurors for Dec. Court.

The board of county commissioners met in regular monthly session on the 7th with all the members present.

Orders were drawn on the treasurer aggregating as follows: For paupers $230.50; county home $192.42; superintendent of health $25; court house $1,863.56; jail $154.40; bridges and ferries $373.67; conveying prisoners and insane $31.95; constables $5.30; jurors $18.90; printing and stationery $17.64; small-pox $11.94; coroner $19.80; register $13.70; commissioners $49.15; county stock law $57.39; county roads $269.06; Bethel roads $2.70; Carolina roads $2.70; Contentnea roads $32.75; Chicod roads $106.84; Greenville roads $364.36; Swift Creek roads $6; Pactolus roads $51.10.

Joseph McLawhorn, superintendent of roads, tendered his resignation to take effect January 1st. The resignation was accepted, and W. A. Forbes, assistant superintendent was appointed to succeed him.

Some petitions for correction of errors in taxes were granted and the errors corrected.

The members of the fire companies of Greenville, as recommended by the chief of the fire department, were exempted from poll tax for 1910.

The following were added to the pauper list to receive the amount stated per month: Sallie Briley $2.50; Harriet Taylor $1.50; Mary Grimes $1.75. Alvania Avery was admitted to the county home.

The following jurors were drawn for the civil term of court beginning December 12th: J. S. Smith, Job. Moore, James Tripp, J. T. Thomas, C. D. Tunstall, Allen Crawford, S. C. Lewis, W. A. Stokes, W. C. Moore, W. C. James, L. C. Arthur, Isaac Kilpatrick, J. L. Cox, R. W. Brown, W. J. Sermons, W. H. Galloway, C. P. Smith, Jarvis Mills.

Should Pay Their Debts.

More and more we are convinced that what this country most needs is a religion or training that will make a man pay his debts. Shouting does not settle account with God or man. Often we want to bounce a fellow right out of church because he went fishing on Sunday, but never say a word to the pious scamp who never pays his debts, and such people are doing the church more harm than any lot of Sunday deserters for there are more of them in the church. Reader are we getting close to you? Then lay down this paper and go and pay up and you can read at ease. And don't you stop paying because the "statute of limitation" excuses the open account which you made for bread and meat. You must pay it in cash or God will make you pay it in fire and brimstone. God knows no such excuse for paying as "homestead exemption." When you raise that excuse to keep from paying your debts you can stop singing, "When I can read my title clear to mansions in the skies." You've got none up there.--Louisburg Times.

THE WORLD'S MELTING POT

AMERICA AND IMMIGRATION PROBLEM

WHERE WE SHOULD DRAW THE LINE

President Charles S. Barrett of the National Farmers' Union Calls Upon the Officers and Members of the Organization to Assist in Solving the Problem of Undesirable Immigration to This Country.

President Charles S. Barrett of the National Farmers Union has addressed himself to the problem of immigration in his latest open letter to the officers and members of the organization as follows:

To the Officers and Members of the Farmers' Union:

Our country has just been called the "melting pot of the world." We receive into our borders the best and the worst elements of every nation under the sun, and from the resultant flux we are pouring into the molds of character and custom the citizenship that is to determine the destiny of our people—whether we shall attain the development foreshadowed by our gifts and inheritances or fall short of that development.

I am not one of those insular Americans who would erect Chinese walls 'round this country, and keep our shores hermetically sealed against foreigners of every class and grade.

Many of the most consecrated patriots in our history, many of the men of great heart who have come to the rescue of the nation in the time of stress and trial, many who have risen to eminence in the fields of commerce and industry and agriculture and art and statesmanship and literature—first saw the light of day in the foreign lands.

I realize also that this country of unending diversity of climate and resources and habits of thought and conviction, has a wonderful power of assimilation.

Powers Has Limitations.

But I realize, first of all, that that power has its limitations and that they are now being strained and taxed and threatened to accommodate some of the rankest human products of European and Asiatic institutions such as may enter our body politic to fester and spread corruption, to infect our people with destructive and anarchistic tendencies, to undermine our political sanity and to reach a slimy trail of decay and disruption over the entire fabric of our ideals and our aspirations.

We are told that we need men to aid us develop America. But if we need men at all we need those only who approach our own economic standards, who can stand the test of moral and mental cleanliness, of physical soundness and freedom from seeds of violence and disintegration that are making poverty, vice and crime an enlarging spectacle throughout the old world.

We have our own problems of lawlessness, vice, unemployment, professional incompetence. Let us, the organized farmers of America exhaust our influence to the end that these problems be not complicated by a horde of sickly importations dribbling inward from Ellis Island and other ports of entry.

I will be asked where we would draw the line—and the line should we draw. The answer is easy.

I object to the class of immigrants that are responsible for an increase in one year of 25 per cent. of the criminal arraignments of New York City. If the influence of New York City and its people were confined to its own limits, I would raise no objection. Neither of them are thus confined.

I object to that class of immigrants that, in many American States, comprise from 15 to 34 per cent. of the inmates of institutions—jails, asylums for the insane, hospitals, poor houses—maintained at the public expense.

I object to that class of immigrants that make the so-called cultured city of Boston one of the most misgoverned municipalities in America, the venality of floating voters necessitating a call from the city to the legislature of the State for aid in cleaning the Augean stables.

I object to that class of immigrants who come here solely to make a "stake" and who then return with a "stake" to their mother country.

I object to that class of immigrants who, at the first signal of panic drain our banks of savings and other deposits, and sail away home in the steerage, as they came.

I object to that class of immigrants who cause the police authorities of several large American cities to declare themselves powerless against organized blackmail, bloodshed, and pillage.

I object to that class of immigrants with neither knowledge of, respect for, or allegiance to our laws, our traditions and our institutions, who bring with them an inherited hatred for courts and justice which they will visit upon our own well-being.

I object to that class of immigrants who are willing to transplant her to the hurt of the American farmers and workmen, the proper standards of living and wages of which the returned European traveler tells us sickening tales.

Behalf of Farmers.

On behalf of the American farmer I insist that congress and the national government raise a protective tariff wall against human beings with ruin in their train, as well as a tariff wall against the necessities and luxuries of life.

On behalf of the American farmer I argue also that the time to consider this problem is now, not later, when our sane American strains shall have been so weakened as to multiply our difficulties by a staggering numeral.

Every member of our organization can hasten consideration of this issue by bringing these facts forcibly before his congressman and senator.

CHARLES S. BARRETT

OUR LIFE.

Our life is like the life of a tree—again and again stripped of every sign of life that it has put forth and yet which still has gathered all those apparent failures into the success of one long, continuous growth.—Phillips Brooks.

CRIPPEN PAYS DEATH PENALTY

GOES TO THE GALLOWS COOL AND CALM

HANGS AT 9 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING

Only Prison Officials and Priests Witness Execution—Makes no Statement, but One Newspaper Publishes Alleged Confession Which Officials Discredit.

By Cable to The Reflector
London, Nov. 23.—Dr. H. H. Crippen was hanged at 9 o'clock this morning. He was cool and calm to the last, his nerve never leaving him. He dressed with care, being allowed to wear his own clothes, and ate a light breakfast. Only prison officials and priests were allowed at the hanging, though there was a big crowd of curious outside the prison walls. The condemned man went to death without making any statement so prison officials say, but one paper is publishing an alleged confession said to have been made by Crippen to a friend. This alleged confession is discredited by officials.

Visitor Addresses Students.

At the opening exercises of the Training school this morning, Superintendent A. C. Willison, of Maryland, spoke to the students. He gave a brief account of the public school law of his state, and gave in detail the "merit system" in the selection and pay of teachers, as it is operated in Alleghany county of which he is the superintendent. No man is probably had more to do with perfecting the school law of his state than Mr. Willison, and his country leads in the state for educational progress. It is a pleasure to have a gentleman so imbued with the spirit of educational uplift among us. He was a business man entering the school work and has carried business methods into the latter.
