THE WORLD'S MELTING POT

AMERICA AND IMMIGRATION PROBLEM

WHERE WE SHOULD DRAW THE LINE

President Charles S. Barrett of the National Farmers' Union Calls Upon the Officers and Members of the Organization to Assist in Solving the Problem of Undesirable Immigration to This Country.

President Charles S. Barrett of the National Farmers Union has addressed himself to the problem of immigration in his latest open letter to the officers and members of the organization as follows:

To the Officers and Members of the Farmers' Union:

Our country has just been called the "melting pot of the world." We receive into our borders the best and the worst elements of every nation under the sun, and from the resultant flux we are pouring into the molds of character and custom the citizenship that is to determine the destiny of our people—whether we shall attain the development foreshadowed by our gifts and inheritances or fall short of that development.

I am not one of those insular Americans who would erect Chinese walls 'round this country, and keep our shores hermetically sealed against foreigners of every class and grade.

Many of the most consecrated patriots in our history, many of the men of great heart who have come to the rescue of the nation in the time of stress and trial, many who have risen to eminence in the fields of commerce and industry and agriculture and art and statesmanship and literature—first saw the light of day in the foreign lands.

I realize also that this country of unending diversity of climate and resources and habits of thought and conviction, has a wonderful power of assimilation.

Power Has Limitations.

But I realize, first of all, that that power has its limitations and that they are now being strained and taxed and threatened to accommodate some of the rankest human products of European and Asiatic institutions such as may enter our body politic to fester and spread corruption, to infect our people with destructive and anarchistic tendencies, to undermine our political sanity and to reach a slimy trail of decay and disruption over the entire fabric of our ideals and our aspirations.

We are told that we need men to aid us develop America. But if we need men at all we need those only who approach our own economic standards, who can stand the test of moral and mental cleanliness, of physical soundness and freedom from seeds of violence and disintegration that are making poverty, vice and crime an enlarging spectacle throughout the old world.

We have our own problems of lawlessness, vice, unemployment, professional innocence. Let us, the organized farmers of America exhaust our influence to the end that these problems be not complicated by a horde of sickly importations dribbling inward from Ellis Island and other ports of entry.

I will be asked where we would draw the line—and the line should we draw. The answer is easy.

I object to the class if immigrants that are responsible for an increase in one year of 25 per cent. of the criminal arraignments of New York City. If the influence of New York City and its people were confined to its own limits, I would raise no objection. Neither of them are thus confined.

I object to that class of immigrants that, in many American States, comprise from 15 to 34 per cent. of the inmates of institutions—jails, asylums for the insane, hospitals, poor houses—maintained at the public expense.

I object to that class of immigrants that make the so-called cultured city of Boston one of the most misgoverned municipalities in America, the venality of floating voters necessitating a call from the city to the legislature of the State for aid in cleaning the Augean stables.

I object to that class of immigrants who come here solely to make a "stake" and who then return with to their mother country.

I object to that class of immigrants who, at the first signal of panic drain our banks of savings and other deposits, and sail away home in the steerage, as they came.

I object to that class of immigrants who cause the police authorities of several large American cities to declare themselves powerless against organized blackmail, bloodshed, and pillage.

I object to that class of immigrants with neither knowledge of, respect for, or allegiance to our laws, our traditions and our institutions, who bring with them an inherited hatred for courts and justice which they will visit upon our own well-being.

I object to that class of immigrants who are willing to transplant here to the hurt of the American farmers and workmen, the proper standards of living and wages of which the returned European traveler tells us sickening tales.

Behalf of Farmers.

On behalf of the American farmer I insist that congress and the national government raise a protective tariff wall against human beings with ruin in their train, as well as a tariff wall against the necessities and luxuries of life.

On behalf of the American farmer I argue also that the time to consider this problem is now, not later, when our sane American strains shall have been so weakened as to multiply our difficulties by a staggering numeral.

Every member of our organization can hasten consideration of this issue by bringing these facts forcibly before his congressman and senator.

CRIPPEN PAYS DEATH PENALTY

GOES TO THE GALLOWS COOL AND CALM

HANGS AT 9 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING

Only Prison Officials and Priests Witness Execution—Makes no Statement, but One Newspaper Publishes Alleged Confession Which Officials Discredit.

By Cable to The Reflector

London, Nov. 23.—Dr. H. H. Crippen was hanged at 9 o'clock this morning. He was cool and calm to the last, his nerve never leaving him. He dressed with care, being allowed to wear his own clothes, and ate a light breakfast. Only prison officials and priests were allowed at the hanging, though there was a big crowd of curious outside the prison walls. The condemned man went to death without making any statement so prison officials say, but one paper is publishing an alleged confession said to have been made by Crippen to a friend. This alleged confession is discredited by officials.

Visitor Addresses Students.

At the opening exercises of the Training school this morning, Superintendent A. C. Willison, of Maryland, spoke to the students. He gave a brief account of the public school law of his state, and gave in detail the "merit system" in the selection and pay of teachers, as it is operated in Alleghany county of which he is the superintendent. No man is probably had more to do with perfecting the school law of his state than Mr. Willison, and his county leads in the state for educational progress. It is a pleasure to have a gentleman so imbued with the spirit of educational uplift among us. He was a business man entering the school work and has carried business methods into the latter.

EDUCATIONAL GATHERING

ANNUAL MEETING IN RALEIGH
DEC. 1ST, 2ND, AND 3RD

PRIMARY TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

Large Attendance Expected—Many Strong Speakers of National Reputation to Discuss Important Subjects—Co-operation of Superintendants Asked.

The Primary Teachers' Association will hold its sixth annual meeting in Raleigh, December 1st, 2nd, and 3rd. As so many strong speakers have been secured it is hoped that the attendance will be the largest that this association has yet had.

Miss Naomi Norsworthy, Ph. G., Columbia University, has been secured to make two, and probably three addresses. Dr. Norsworthy is professor of Psychology in Teachers College Columbia University. Her research work in psychology and child study have made her a recognized authority in this department. She is also a woman of delightful personality and a magnetic teacher.

Miss Laura McAllester, a graduate of the Boston School of Gymnastics, will speak on play—a factor in the school-room. Miss McAllester was formerly connected with the city schools of Rochester, New York, as physical director. She is now physical director of the State Normal and Industrial College.

Prominent primary teachers of the State will also give talks.

Drs. Rankin and Tucker, of Raleigh, have consented to give talks on subjects relating to the health of school children. These gentlemen are too well known throughout the State to need any introduction.

The primary teachers of Raleigh are making every effort to entertain the teachers royally.

Any one who expects to attend is asked to notify Miss Mary Arrington, Person street, Raleigh, N. C., a week in advance. Superintendants recognizing the benefit their teachers received have often given a holiday during the days that they are absent. Any superintendent is gladly welcomed at the meetings.

The total amount ginned shows a per centage of last three crops 80.5 for 1909, 73.3 for 1908 and 60.1 for 1907.

Marriage Licenses.

Register of Deeds Moore has issued the following licenses since last report:

Is of the Morally Stunted.
An interesting visitor to Lexington last week was Mr. Phillip Sowers, eighty-seven years old and as spry as a cricket. He owns 4,400 acres of good land lying in Davidson and Rowan counties and he was in the city on business connected with his Davidson county estate. He is enjoying the best of health, sleeps well and eats better. His digestion is as good as it was when he was thirty. His eye-sight is better than that of many men of forty and he does not have to wear glasses. He chews tobacco and has been chewing the weed since the day whereof memory of the contrary and he takes a drink of whiskey or corn "likker" whenever he feels like it. SMART COLOR COMBINATIONS.
Dark Costumes Must Be Relieved by Vivid Electric Blues.

The absolute need of relieving black with some other color has had two very interesting effects on the color scheme of the year. In the first place, it has put to rout the old monotone idea that held sway for so many seasons, and has brought into prominence the combination of two and three colors in a single dress.

In the second place, it would be quite impossible to unite black with any dull or lifeless shade of another color, so the vivid electric blues, emerald greens and carmine reds, have replaced the faded pastel tones, the dead-leaf colors and the ashes of violets and roses of last season.

The new colors are very beautiful and they are a welcome relief after the dull drabness of the ones that preceded them, but they present many pitfalls to the unwary. A woman has to know not only what colors are new, but also what color combinations are considered smart. She has to consider not merely what one color is becoming to her, but whether she can wear all the different shades that will appear in her new gown, and once those points are settled, she has to know how the colors are used, and where they are used.—The Delineator.

An Omnipresent God
"A Father to Forty" is the title of an article by Mabel Potter Daggett in the forthcoming Delineator. In it she tells how Dr. John H. Kellogg of Battle Creek, Mich., has adopted forty and more children and how he cared for and educated them.

Some time ago, she writes, the doctor gathered his children together on a Sabbath in spring. He points out the buds on the trees. "See," he said "they will be leaves tomorrow. Who is it makes the leaves?"
"Why, God does," answered the children promptly.
"But where? Does he make them from the inside and stick them on?"
"Oh, no," said the children. "He makes them through the sap inside the tree."
"Ah," said the doctor, "then God must be inside the tree."
"Why, yes," agreed the children.
Then their father laid his hand on Jack's bright head. "What makes hair grow?"
"Why, God," said the children.
"But how? Does he stick it on from the outside?"
"Oh, no, he makes it grow from the inside of Jack's head."
"Then God is within Jack. Is it not so?"
The children looked in wonderment as they never looked at Jack before. "Yes," they assented—"God must be within Jack."
"And God is within all of us, and God is everywhere," concluded the doctor.

The Moon Eclipse.
The total eclipse of the moon came on Wednesday evening according to the schedule, and was an interesting spectacle. The full moon rose glorious, and about 6 o'clock the shadow of the earth began going over it. This continued until about 7 o'clock when the eclipse was total, only the pale red disc of the moon could be seen. The shadow all passed off in another hour and the moon shone out again as glorious as ever.

Something of a Farmer.
Mr. Fisher Helms, an old soldier who went through the whole war and carries five wounds, lives in Buford township, and this year made with his own hands three bales of cotton and nine two-horse loads of corn. He is 69 years old and the mule he works is 14. According to the way the pension sharks are robbing the people of the country to the so-called non-combat soldiers, many of whom never fired a gun, the amount of fighting that old confederates like Mr. Helms did would be worth about $250,000.—Monroe Journal.

GREAT MEETING HAS CLOSED

PROVED A BLESSING TO MANY SOULS

THE FINAL SERVICE TUESDAY NIGHT

In Number the Meeting Shows Many Professions—Churches Brought Closer in Christian Unity—Dr. Black Thanks All for What They Had Done and Wishes Earnest Closing Appeal to Christians.

The meeting which Dr. William Black, State evangelist of the Presbyterian church, has been holding here for ten days in Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, came to a close Tuesday night. Just before the final sermon was preached, Rev. J. H. Shore, pastor of the church as chairman of the executive committee, having in charge the arrangements for the meeting, expressed appreciation to all the members of the various committees, for their earnest co-operation. He also spoke of the spirit of unity that had prevailed among the different churches of the town and the great blessing that had come from the meeting.

Before beginning this meeting Dr. Black said one result he wanted to see come from this meeting was the organization of an active young men's prayer league; and with this end in view he had, after a brief consultation with a few others, taken the liberty of presenting the names of the first officers of such a league, and appointing the first meeting in the Presbyterian church next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, subsequent meetings to rotate in the various churches as desired by the leaders. He then read the list as follows:

C. W. Wilson, president.

F. M. Wooten, vice-president.

Charles James treasurer.

C. W. Harvey secretary.

H. E. Austin, choir leader.

T. J. Jarvis, H. D. Bateman, E. B. Ficklen and D. J. Whichard, devotional committee to select texts and appoint leaders a week ahead.

G. E. Harris, H. B. Smith and J. G. Latham, leaders for the first meeting.

W. A. Bowen, W. E. Hooker, W. Ragsdale and F. R. Stretch ushers.

Subject for November 27th, "Forward" text Exodus 15:15. He said he hoped this work would be taken up earnestly and great good to the churches and the community result from it.

Dr. Black then read a portion of the 19th chapter of Luke and took for a text the 10th verse: "For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." It was a sweet, tender sermon showing the great love of Christ for sinners and how in various ways He seeks them. Time and again there were many tear-moistened eyes in the congregation, for it was a sermon that went to their heart.

After concluding the sermon and the invitation for any to make profession, Dr. Black spoke with feeling of his stay here during the meeting. It was the third meeting he has held in Greenville, and he could not help having great love for this people. He earnestly thanked every one for the many kindness shown to himself and the two singers with him, Messrs. Burr and McCoy.

He then made an earnest appeal to church members to stand by their pastors and uphold them in their work, then urged those who had made profession during the meeting to unite with the church of their choice as early as possible, for only by taking this step will their Christian lives and characters develop.

One other thing he said he hoped would result from this meeting was more family altars in the homes, for the religion of the church is no stronger than the religion in the home. He then asked all in the congregation who would promise to hold family prayers in their homes to stand up and quite a number responded. That manifestation, he said, was worth his coming here to hold the meeting, even if nothing else had resulted.

The Presbyterian church being at present without a pastor, Dr. Black held a service there Tuesday afternoon and received five persons in membership. The other churches will open their doors to receive members next Sunday morning.

Dr. Black left this morning for his home in Charlotte and from there will go to Roanoke, Va., to begin a meeting next Sunday. The prayers of a host of Greenville people go with him.

ANOTHER LARGE YIELD.

Pitt County Farmers Are Good Corn Growers.

Mr. E. F. Williams, of Falkland township, who is one of those engaged in the farm demonstration work in this county, writes that he gathered his test acre of corn on the 17th. The corn was measured carefully and the yield of the acre found to be 110 and 41-56 bushels or a little more than 22 barrels.

Mr. Williams says that his rows were 5 feet wide and the corn hills 15 inches apart. He used on the acre one sack of kainit, one sack of acid phosphate, one sack of 3-3-5 guano, two sacks of 8-2-3 guano and 250 pounds of nitrate, and the total cost of fertilizers being $13.85. In addition to the 22 barrels of corn worth at market price $116, he gathered from this same acre 5 bushels of peas worth $10 and 1,000 pounds of fodder worth $10. The peas and corn are worth $6.15 more than the fertilizers used which added to the value of the corn makes his profit $116.15 on one acre not counting the cost of cultivation. It can be safely said that he raised this corn at a cost of less than 10 cents per bushel.

This is another striking example of what Pitt county corn raisers can do when they farm right.

many kindness shown to himself and the two singers with him, Messrs. Burr and McCoy.

He then made an earnest appeal to church members to stand by their pastors and uphold them in their work, then urged those who had made profession during the meeting to unite with the church of their choice as early as possible, for only by taking this step will their Christian lives and characters develop.

One other thing he said he hoped would result from this meeting was more family altars in the homes, for the religion of the church is no stronger than the religion in the home. He then asked all in the congregation who would promise to hold family prayers in their homes to stand up and quite a number responded. That manifestation, he said, was worth his coming here to hold the meeting, even if nothing else had resulted.

The Presbyterian church being at present without a pastor, Dr. Black held a service there Tuesday afternoon and received five persons in membership. The other churches will open their doors to receive members next Sunday morning.

Dr. Black left this morning for his home in Charlotte and from there will go to Roanoke, Va., to begin a meeting next Sunday. The prayers of a host of Greenville people go with him.

ANOTHER LARGE YIELD.

Pitt County Farmers Are Good Corn Growers.

Mr. E. F. Williams, of Falkland township, who is one of those engaged in the farm demonstration work in this county, writes that he gathered his test acre of corn on the 17th. The corn was measured carefully and the yield of the acre found to be 110 and 41-56 bushels or a little more than 22 barrels.

Mr. Williams says that his rows were 5 feet wide and the corn hills 15 inches apart. He used on the acre one sack of kainit, one sack of acid phosphate, one sack of 3-3-5 guano, two sacks of 8-2-3 guano and 250 pounds of nitrate, and the total cost of fertilizers being $13.85. In addition to the 22 barrels of corn worth at market price $116, he gathered from this same acre 5 bushels of peas worth $10 and 1,000 pounds of fodder worth $10. The peas and corn are worth $6.15 more than the fertilizers used which added to the value of the corn makes his profit $116.15 on one acre not counting the cost of cultivation. It can be safely said that he raised this corn at a cost of less than 10 cents per bushel.

This is another striking example of what Pitt county corn raisers can do when they farm right.

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES.

President Wright Returns—Dr. Black and Singers Visit School.

President R. H. Wright has returned from a visit to several State normal schools in Virginia and Pennsylvania. He visited some of the oldest normals in the South, his trip embracing Farmville and Harrisonburg, Va., Millersville and West Chester, Pa. Before going on this trip Mr. Wright attended the inauguration of President Few at Trinity College in Durham.

The Training school was delighted to have Dr. Black, Gov. Jarvis and Messrs. Burr and McCoy with them at the chapel exercise Thursday morning. Dr. Black made an apt and interesting talk after which he and Messrs. Burr and McCoy sang.

New Year's Resolutions.

As New Year resolutions will soon be in order, pardon us for perhaps a little premature suggestion. Among other good resolves which you will doubtless make for the coming year, determine to save something from your year's earnings, even if it isn't anything more than your empty pay envelopes. They would at least be a reminder at the end of the year of the amount of money you had received during the year, and might be a stimulus to cause you to do some real saving the next year.

This is a serious matter, not because we are wont to offer our advice to a long-suffering and patient public, but because it is a sacred duty of every man to consider the future in the present.

Do you want higher authority than ours for advice? Then we refer you to our friend King Solomon, whose wisdom we have never heard dispute.—(See Proverbs 6:6-11)

It is none of our business whether you save anything or not yet we are going to keep on reminding you of this important matter from now until the new year is ushered in, and then some, if we think that we can wake you up.

The dog that hides his bone for future knowing is showing better and more sensible judgment than the person who thoughtlessly spends all that earn.

Think it over!—New Bern Sun.

WHAT WOMEN ARE READING.

In the Last Forty Years One Magazine Has Made Important Discoveries.

Charles Hanson Towne's review of "Noted Contributors to The Delineator" in the anniversary issue of the magazine, proves in what a wide field of thought the modern woman roams. The list of writers who have made The Delineator successful for forty years, includes men and women that have held foremost places in the last half century.

In the seventies the literary pages of the famous fashion magazine contained special articles on kindergartens, employments for girls, and similar subjects; but following the widening interests of women the Delineator in later years has touched all lines of progress. Up to 1905, a magazine outside of its practical fashion end, had been one of entertainment. It had always been intended that it should be so, but its publishers and directors began to have visions of greater usefulness—a magazine, no less, which should be as practical and as forceful and inspiring on its literary as on its fashion side. In fact a literary leadership in great practical usefulness for the home, the state and nation was conceived and a cautious careful effort to appropriate this ideal begun.

Among the earliest things undertaken under the new theory was a general discussion of marriage and divorce which was looming large at this time. The most noted authorities were approached, and in a series of papers distinguished for their sanity and wisdom, different phases of the problem were presented by Cardinal Gibbons, Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch, Francis L. Potter, LL. D., Bishop William Croswell Doane, P. of Charles A. Ellwood and Ida Husted Harper.

The publication of this series of papers on this big and timely topic demonstrated conclusively that there was room in the field of intellectual and social endeavor for a magazine like the Delineator. Other topics were undertaken and with the growth of this real interest on the part of our readers, the magazine finally felt justified in seizing a very large and vital topic—namely, "The Delineator Child-Rescue Campaign."

In the spring of 1908 the Delineator began the publication of a series of articles entitled "What is the Matter with the Public Schools?"

It was the shifting of public interest temporarily from the schools to the churches that brought about the next discussion and in preparing the data for the latter topic "What's the Matter with Churches?" some of the greatest religious thought of our time was introduced into the pages of the magazine.

SON OF PITT COUNTY IN TEXAS

DR. DAVID R. WALLACE CELEBRATES 85TH BIRTHDAY

HAS BEEN AWAY FIFTY-SEVEN YEARS

Venerable Pitt Countian Passes Three Score Years and Ten—Like Others of Our Dispersed Sons, He Rises to Prominence in His Adopted State.

It gives The Reflector pleasure to print the following extract from the Waco, Texas, Tribune, about a former Pitt countian:

"The Tribune is glad to join with his friends and neighbors in tendering congratulations to Dr. David R. Wallace, venerable and honored citizen of Waco. For on Thursday, November 10, Dr. Wallace completed eighty-five years of life and has entered on his eighty-sixth year. The anniversary found him in what may be called good physical health, his advanced years considered, and as bright and robust as to mentality as in any year of his life—and there are few men in Texas who rank with Dr. Wallace in intellectual attainments, in learning and in the full, rich experience and judgment of a busy and useful life. He spent the day quietly at his home on Austin avenue, with his estimable wife and other members of his family and from many friends here and elsewhere he received congratulations and affectionate esteem. Dr. Wallace, a North Carolinian by birth, has resided sixty years in Texas and a half century of that time in Waco. May he be with us as long as life is pleasant to him."

There are now very few people living in this section who remember Dr. Wallace, as he left Pitt county in 1853. We have heard some of the older people speak of him many times, and we know those of his companions yet living will join in extending congratulations upon his long and useful career. His robust ego is more remarkable from the fact that he left Pitt county on account of lung trouble, as we were advised by one of his old pupils and admirers, Mr. R. H. Rountree, of New York. Dr. Wallace taught school in Greenville before the war.

FUNERAL OF MR. T. W. SKINNER.

Body Laid at Rest Today in Cherry Hill Cemetery.

Owing to some members of the family who were on the way to Greenville being unable to reach here until this morning, the funeral of Mr. T. W. Skinner, who died Friday night, was deferred to 11 o'clock today. The service was conducted at the grave in Cherry Hill Cemetery by Rev. J. H. Shore. The pall bearers were Messrs. H. L. Coward, E. B. Ficklen, T. A. Person, C. E. Bradley, J. L. Wooten, T. M. Meade, W. P. Edwards and M. H. Tribby.

Mr. James W. Skinner, sr., of Danville Va., father of the deceased, arrived Saturday evening, and six brothers and one sister came Sunday evening and this morning. They were Mr. James W. Skinner, jr., of St. Louis; Mr. S. R. Skinner, of Lexington, Ky.; Mr. C. R. Skinner, of Roxboro, N. C.; Messrs P. C., R. R. and E. G. Skinner and Miss Gertrude Lee Skinner, of Danville. The aged mother was so prostrated at the death of her son that she could not come from Danville to the funeral. Those relatives who came found among our people many sympathetic hearts in their sorrow.

COTTON CONTRACTS VALID.

Case Decided That Carries Much Interest.

A case was tried in the term of Superior court just closed that is of especial interest to growers and buyers of cotton, as it establishes the validity of contracts to sell cotton for future delivery. The custom prevails more or less in the cotton belt for farmers to make contracts in the spring to sell their cotton in the fall at a specified price. It is remembered that last year much cotton was sold in this way, and the price advancing several cents between the time of making the contract and the time of delivery. There were many farmers who refused to make delivery of the cotton as contracted. In some instances suits were entered against the sellers for the difference in the price of the cotton at the time of making the contract and the time it should have been delivered. It was one of these cases that was tried, entitled H. A. Gray vs. Verner Carson, and the verdict of the jury was in favor of the plaintiff, judgment being rendered against the defendant for the difference in the price of the cotton.

The world may owe you a living all right, but you have got to work it out

Every day a business man fails to advertise means business lost that he might have had.

We cannot see that Kentucky should feel any honor over sending an ex-convict to congress.

If Mexico don't behave Uncle Sam will step over and make him quiet down.

With the colonel is it a "calm after a storm" or will a storm come after the calm?

The colonel is crawling out of his after election shell, but has not yet done any talking.

Don't expect much praise and you will not be disappointed if you fail to get it.

Are there any oysters at Oyster Bay, or have they all given way to the clam?

They will spend a pile over football on Thanksgiving day. But it has to go somehow.

After a long delay in the courts the Standard Oil Company got out of it.

To some of us the trouble is going to be the wherewith to do Christmas shopping either early or late.

The News and Observer has exhausted its supply of poke berry and resumed normal appearance again

The outcome at Raleigh shows that it is dangerous to go even as a spectator to an aviation or auto race.

Every time we see any mention about union depots in other towns, it reminds us of something that Greenville has not but ought to have.

The Mexicans are offering to volunteer to fight Uncle Sam. They just not have heard what he did for Spain.

The next legislature ought to elect W. C. Woid, of Mecklenburg, as speaker. And we believe it will do it.

Commence counting over your blessings and see how many you have cause to be thankful for on Thursday.

There is enough swamp lands in Pitt county that if properly drained and cultivated would raise sufficient corn to feed the State.

Loafers are street signs that any town could afford to get along without. They point the way to indolence and backwardness.

That drainage convention to be held in Wilmington next week ought to be of interest to many people of Eastern North Carolina.

Greenville is a town of opportunities, yet opportunities that are not taken advantage of avail nothing. So many things could be done here that are not done.

Santa Claus is waking up and rubbing his eyes in readiness to read the papers to see where to buy his Christmas things. The wise advertiser ought to take the hint.

Count Leo Tolstol, the noted Russian novelist and reformer, died Sunday morning at the advanced age of 82 years. A great man has gone in his passing away.

The Charlotte News may have to do some explaining for using the words "burned yesterday" in heading on item about a funeral that had taken place

If every county able to have good roads would go ahead and build them, you would soon see very different highways from those now traveled over in many counties.

In Washington a few nights ago the home of Mr. R. D. Walls was robbed of $136 which he kept in a trunk. If the money had been deposited in the bank it would be there now.

Ex-Congressman W. A. B. Branch died Friday night at his home in Beaufort county. He was 63 years of age, and was the representative of this district in congress for four years.

Some one has suggested that the name of Oyster Bay be changed to blue point.—Charlotte News. Would not clam reserve be better.

Uncle Sam goes on doing his share of holding down the census by blowing up something and killing a bunch of his soldiers now and then.

It has been suggested that the colonel come to North Carolina for a tiger hunt. He could find some of the blind kind.

If you see some flying machines going over don't mistake them for a flock of wild geese, even though the temptation be strong to put the aviators in that class.

The Farmers Union has a large membership in Pitt county, and if they will take up the discussion of the farmers making an exhibit of their products it would awaken much interest in that direction.

Twenty years is the record the Greensboro Record has made. They are all to the good, too, the years have been filled with useful work by a useful paper. The Record has the right to be proud of its record.

Andrew Carnegie celebrates his 75th birthday by giving away $3,500,000 to schools. Most of us do not expect to have that much to give away, even should we live to be 75.

"Kiss and Make Up," admonishes a contemporary. Most girls have to make-up to be kissed.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Handle that subject carefully, boy, or you will be giving yourself away.

The Reflector is working for the upbuilding of its town, county and section. Every subscriber who pays his subscription promptly helps to carry on this work. But the man who borrows his neighbor's paper is no help to anybody.

The promoters of an aviation meet in Baltimore lost $40,000 on the venture. We hope the Charlotte News and Raleigh News and Observer did not meet with that kind of luck on their respective aerial stunts.

If you just must kick, go get you a football and try on that. But if you are thinking about kicking your town, hire yourself out for a football and get the kicking you deserve. There is just no use for the town kicker, and he is absolutely no good at all.

If the farmers of Pitt county are to make an exhibit of products of this year's crops, it is time there was some activity in that direction. Even if this time should be only one a small scale, it would be a stimulus to a larger next year.

A man cannot always tell who are his real friends and enemies. The supposed friend of today may be your secret enemy tomorrow. And one thought to be an enemy may have softened his heart toward you and become a friend without you knowing it.

It will be unusual for Greenville if the business houses, in keeping with their usual custom, do not close up on Thanksgiving day. We believe it will be so next Thursday and make the announcement to that effect now, so that if any body wants to correct it there may be an opportunity.

Ten carloads of Pennsylvanians, headed by Governor Stewart, of that State, came to Salisbury Wednesday and unveiled a memorial to the union soldiers of Pennsylvania who died in the prison at Salisbury and were buried in the national cemetery there. Governor Kitchin and Senator Oveman took part in welcoming the visitors. These occasions show that sectional lines are being wiped out, and that in reality we are becoming a reunited people.

Notwithstanding a large number of arrests were recently made, there are some people around Greenville who seem to think they can go right on violating the law against selling liquor. But they had just as well take cognizance of the fact that they are going to be caught sooner or later, for the officers and the law abiding citizens of the town have determined that these violations shall be stopped.

The Reflector wants to see the people living eastward from Greenville get interested in good roads building like those westward from town. There is a good road from Greenville to Farmville, and work is now in progress on the road to Falkland. Next we would like to see good roads to Grimesland and to Black Jack. They are good sections, but have about the sandiest roads in the county between them and Greenville.

A great deal is being said about the boys who win prizes in the Corn Clubs and in other work; but it must be remembered that the boy who does not win a prize has not failed if he has made an earnest effort. Such a boy may get more real good out of a hard struggle against circumstances than some fortunate boy who beats him all to pieces in the results he obtains. To make a good corn crop is a great thing; to make a determined effort to improve one's condition is greater.—Raleigh, (N. C.) Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

If a man has a big heart, the size of his head is not so important.

ALL TOWNS HAVE EASY MARKS.

And here comes The Charlotte Chronicle telling of the folks of the "Queen City" being duped by a faker and a woman at that. The woman in question set up a fortune telling apartment and found victims easy. She got diamond rings and other articles on "approval," and all of a sudden disappeared with $400 worth that were not paid for. The Reflector has been disposed to twit the folks of the larger towns like Charlotte and Greensboro for being such "easy marks," but the thing has come so close home that we have got to quit guying them. Why? Because even staid old Greenville has been caught napping. It has leaked out that several business men here were taken in by a slick 'duck who walked off with some of their good money. The fellow was soliciting advertisements to go on a big school calendar. He got the orders, and was also sharp enough to collect the money in advance. It was not until the time passed for the promised calendar to come and they failed to show up, that the victims found out they had been fleeced. Best to let alone people you know nothing about.

Where Are Your Cotton Seed?

Where are your cotton seed? What are you doing with them this fall? As long as the price is forty-five to fifty cents per bushel at the ginnettes, it pays to sell them there and not move them at all. Every time they are handled there is some waste, and if kept they lose some of their weight. No farmer can afford to bury seed for manure when they sell at the prices they have brought this fall. They may bring higher prices the coming winter, but we are not looking for much higher prices. If cotton seed are heaped together in large quantities early in the season they are liable to get hot and damage unless moved about so as to air them. There is little danger from this source at this time of year unless we have wet weather and get the cotton wet before it is ginned. Some farmers have the habit of hauling their seed into piles in the fields. Not so much of this is done as formerly. Most of them have learned better. They have learned that a large pile of seed will damage enough when exposed to the weather to more than pay for a shelter to build over them. If you have made this mistake this fall then the next step to take is to either build a shelter over the seed or haul them to a barn or shelter. Cotton seed are too valuable now to let them get damaged. Be sure to protect them even if it does cost something to do it.—Smithfield Herald.

The Parcel Post.

A parcel post will not damage the city nor the large retailers of this city to any appreciable degree, but we are confident that it will damage the small merchants of the country towns and villages. This, notwithstanding the statement that the parcel post proposed is for the benefit and not for their injury. We have discussed the various plans proposed by the postmaster general and the congressmen, and we have failed to find one which stops up all the holes through which the large mail order houses might percolate. Some of them are better than others, but none of them is of benefit to the country merchant, save in a doubtful degree the best of the lot tending to make him an agent for the big stores of the centers of commerce.

The claim is made that these are "experimental" bills, and, after they have been tried out, the country will be able to decide whether or not it wants them and finds them beneficial. This is a dangerous proposition, although it sounds good and fair. Suppose one of these experiments should be tried and should prove disastrous. Would the supporters of the parcel post be willing to have a return to the old ways of doing things? Not by any manner of means.

Also, there is no test which can be devised which would give a fair test for such a system. The best, through scientific considerations and by actual practice, that 9 pounds of corn and 3 pounds of cottonseed meal will give better results than 14 pounds of corn, especially when the long forage is corn fodder or any of the grass hays. The extra trouble of feeding the cottonseed meal, which is probably the true reason for our failure to use it, would be well paid for in the increased value of the manure; and the saving which the horses and mules of the South would result in the cost of feeding with corn at 60 cents a bushel and cottonseed meal at $20 a ton may not be so great.

From the merchant's viewpoint, the parcel post will be a losing proposition; from the government's viewpoint, the present deficit will be increased greatly; from the viewpoint of the entire country we think and experience of others will make it clear that the same injury will follow.

When socialism has secured control, when the country has disowned its constitution and proclaimed a king; when the government owns the railroads and the people become subjects rather than free-born men, the parcel post will be a logical law for adoption in the United States.—Merchants Journal.

Should Feed More Cotton Seed Meal.

Corn is a good horse feed when used with certain other feeds that will supply the nutrient, protein, in which corn is deficient. To supply this deficiency we have the rich and cheapest feed known today, a corn yet through prejudice, habit, ignorance, or carelessness, we persistently refuse to use this Southern feeding stuff in the feeding of our horses and mules. We refer to cotton seed meal. Every horse and mule now receiving 14 pounds of corn a day should have that amount reduced at least 5 pounds, and 3 pounds of cottonseed meal, or probably what is better, cottonseed cake, substituted. It is established beyond doubt, both through scientific considerations and by actual practice, that 9 pounds of corn and 3 pounds of cottonseed meal will give better results than 14 pounds of corn, especially when the long forage is corn fodder or any of the grass hays. The extra trouble of feeding the cottonseed meal, which is probably the true reason for our failure to use it, would be well paid for in the increased value of the manure; and the saving which the horses and mules of the South would result in the cost of feeding with corn at 60 cents a bushel and cottonseed meal at $20 a ton may not be so great.

Gave Life for His Money.

While attempting to secure a sum of money which he had in a trunk in the second story of his home which was destroyed by fire at an early hour yesterday morning, Will Brock, colored, was overcome by smoke and as no one knew he was in the building his body was fearfully burned before the blaze was extinguished. From the few particulars that could be learned in regard to the tragedy it seems that Brock was the first person to discover the fire and at once gave the alarm. After he had done this he secured a bucket and began to throw water on the roof. Upon the arrival of the firemen he evidently remembered that he had forgotten to get his money and it is supposed rushed back into the building to secure it. This was the last seen of him until his charred body was found after the blaze had been extinguished. The trunk which contained the money was found standing on one end and was but slightly damaged.—New Bern Journal.

"Remember, my son" says R. T. J. Burdette, "you have to work. Whether you handle a pick or pen, a wheelbarrow or set of books, digging ditches or editing a paper, ringing an auction bell or writing funny things, you must work. If you look around you, you will see the men who are most able to live the rest of their lives without work are the men who work the hardest. Don't be afraid of killing yourself with overwork. It is beyond your power to do that, on the sunny side of thirty. They die sometimes, but it is because they quit work at 6 p. m., and don't get home till 2 a. m. It is the interval that kills, my son. The work gives you an appetite for your meals, it lends solidity to your slumbers; it gives you a perfect and grateful appreciation of a holiday.

"There are young men who do not work, but the work is not proud of them. It does not even know their names; it simply speaks of them as 'old so-and-so's boys.' No body likes them. The great, busy world does not know that they are there. So find out what you want to be and do, and take off your coat and do it. The busier you are the less harm you will be apt to get into, the sweeter will be your sleep, the brighter and happier your holidays, and the better satisfied will all the world be with you."

Take Care of the Child's Health.

The child with decayed teeth, even with unclean teeth, is open to infection of lungs, tonsils, stomach, ears, nose. Every time food is taken and at every act of swallowing, the food must pass over these germ infected bodies into the stomach, carrying disease and decay with it. Mouth breathers with teeth in this condition cannot get one breath of air that is not contaminated air, every breath becomes poisoned in passing over those germ and decay-laden teeth. Bad teeth are frequently the cause of defective eyesight, headache, dyspepsia and ear troubles.

All decay of human teeth starts from the outside. A perfectly clean tooth will not decay unless particles of food remain between the teeth long enough to decompose. Decay, therefore, always means uncleanness. The child's teeth should be cleaned at least twice daily, and no family investment will pay better than the price of regular, prompt dental care. If the cost of headachecaraches, sore throats, dyspepsia and a number of other ills directly traceable to bad teeth could be measured against the cost of tooth brushes, bicarbonate of soda, pulverized chalk or tooth powder and early dental attention, upon which side would the balance lie?—F. L. Stevens, in Raleigh Progressive Farmer and

THANKSGIVING.

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving day. The day is not selected because on that, more than any other, men should be grateful to God for His many blessings, but it is in keeping with the long established custom of the nation to set apart one day in this year to publicly recognize God as our Sovereign Ruler and to make acknowledgment to Him for His preservation of our nation, His blessings upon the people in giving us peace and prosperity. Is there one among all the people of this great land who has not cause to be thankful to God on this day for His mercies? Not one. Even the poorest and the humblest has something to be grateful for. Then give God the praise that is due Him. And remember that your gratitude can be no more fittingly expressed than in contributing something to those less fortunate than yourself. Especially make glad the hearts of the orphans by a generous donation to them. As God has prospered you, so give unto these.

CHRYSANTHEMUM WEDDING

THE BEST-FORBES MARRIAGE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

TWO HAPPY HEARTS ARE UNITED

Ceremony Performed Amid a Scene of Beauty—Reception Follows at the Home of Mrs. C. J. Forbes, Mother of the Bride—Couple Depart for a Wedding Tour of Northern Cities.

Wednesday evening Jarvis Memorial Methodist church was the scene of a marriage to which Greenville has pleasantly looked forward for several weeks, when that popular young couple, Mr. William L. Best and Miss Mabel Glenn Forbes, took upon themselves the vows that made them one for life, the ceremony being performed by the pastor, Rev. J. H. Shore.

The appropriate green and white decorations in the church made a beautiful setting for such a scene. As the family and out of town guests were being escorted to their seats, Miss Clive Gaston played an organ prelude which was followed with "Because" charmingly sung by Mrs. W. L. Hall.

At 8:15, as Miss Gaston rendered the wedding march, the bridal party filed in to their respective positions about the altar.

First came the ushers, Messrs. A. J. Moore, J. Y. Monk, F. J. Forbes, S. T. White, Walter Wilson and Carey Warren.

Following these were the bride's maids, Misses Nancy Coward, Sophia Sadler, Lillian Burch and Jeb. Whitefield. These were each attired in white satin with crystal trimmings and carried large bouquets of pink chrysanthemums.

Then came the dames of honor, Mesdames M. H. Quinerly and F. J. Forbes, each carrying a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums. Mrs. Quinerly wore white chiffon trimmed with applique and ermine, and Mrs. Forbes white chiffon over silk.

The maid of honor, Miss Helen Forbes, sister of the bride, came next. Her dress was pink crepe media with gold and pink Persian trimming.

The two little flower girls were Mesdames Clara Louise Moye and Rosa Hadley, dressed in lace over pink.

Then came up the opposite aisles the couple whose hearts were to be united, the bride with her brother, Mr. C. S. Forbes, and the groom with his best man, Mr. W. E. Hooker. The bride's costume was of ivory satin trimmed with Duchess lace and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley.

Reception at Mrs. Forbes' Immediately after the ceremony a public reception was held at the home of Mrs. C. J. Forbes, mother of the bride.

The guests were met at the front door by Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Moye and Mr. and Mrs. George Hadley.

In the receiving line with the bride and groom in the parlor were the entire bridal party and Mrs. C. J. Forbes, and Mrs. Dan Quinerly and Mrs. Kiebler Denmark of Kinston and Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Forbes and Mr.

and Mrs. F. J. Forbes received at the library door. Here were seen the wedding presents, which were very numerous and beautiful.

At the dining room they were received by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Boyd and fees were served by Misses Mattie Moye King, Alice Blow, Vernessa and Mary Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Moye served punch in the rear hall.

The out of town guests here at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. George Hadley and Miss Job Whitefield, of LaGrange, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Chapman and Mr. Hinton Best, of Grifton; Mrs. Dan Quinerly and Mrs. Kiebler Denmark of Kinston; Miss Sophia Sadler, of Baltimore; Mr. J. Y. Monk, of Farmville; Mr. D. C. Chapman, of Washington; and Mr. Paul Webb, of Ayden.

The bride is a most popular young lady and a favorite with a great circle of friends. Mr. Best is a prominent jeweler and held in high esteem. They left on the midnight Norfolk Southern train for New York and other northern cities.

One Home for Both.

The Observer cordially sympathizes with the proposal that need and infirm women of the Confederacy be cared for at a State home. But we are not so sure that to provide a separate home is the best way. In Mississippi there is one establishment for both men and women. Thus husband and wife are not kept apart, and expenses of administration are economized. Why not simply admit women to the existing soldiers' home at Raleigh, providing such additional buildings, accommodations and funds as may appear necessary? This would be primarily the legislature's concern, but it would not preclude gifts from individuals, either to maintenance or to foundation at the start. We think that all Southern States should provide a home for their Confederate women and that Mississippi's plan has decisive advantages over any other formulated thus far. Charlotte Observer.

MAYOR HAS THREE CASES.

Two Sent to Roads and one Held for Selling Liquor.

In his court this morning Mayor F. M. Wooten sent E. R. Patillo, colored, to the roads for thirty days for disorderly conduct and cursing.

George Hagan was also given thirty days for firing a pistol on the street, and was bound over to Superior court for carrying concealed weapon.

Nelson Hopkins was held for Superior court for selling liquor. He was caught making the sale Saturday night by Policemen Clark and McGowan, and they have conclusive evidence against him. In default of bond Hopkins was committed to prison.

The Old Beliefs.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson has just rendered a questionable service to humanity through his refutation of the once popular belief that cats will kill babies by "sucking their breaths." Any man of 40 or over, or any woman for that matter, if she will admit the age, who was blest with pious parents and the companionship of the hired help on the farm, must certainly remember how, when a child, he or she listened with terror to tales of this sort, and how afterward the normally quiescent eyes of poor tabby seemed to shine with a strange ferocity.

But cats don't suck breaths. Neither we suppose, do toads cause warts, if you handle them. Anyhow, if they did, one had only to rub the wart with a piece of fat meat, and then bury the piece in a secluded place. This always caused the warts to go away, as every boy knows. Perhaps, too, the cow wouldn't give bloody milk if you killed a toad? And what if the cow lost her cud? Are these doctors going to say that it isn't in order to make her a new cud or salt mackerel or herring? Maybe the bluebirds don't go down to the lower regions in winter, and maybe if one only dared to drink sow's milk, we wouldn't be able to see the wind and that its color isn't red, if one chose to find out? And, to return to cows, that no better way of locating them than to catch a big granddaddy-long legs, lay him down on a fence rail, and repeat several times, "Granddaddy-long-legs, which way has my cow gone?" Doesn't he always crimp himself up at first and then slowly and reluctantly put forth one of his long feelers, and wave it in the proper direction? Ask any boy that ever tried this unfalling method.

These are a few of the old-time beliefs that must stand or fall with the cat story. If one goes, all go. And how few these are that have taken root in the childish minds of this country may be realized by reading the long list of similar superstitions still held in veneration in rural England as preserved in S. Barlett-Gould's "Red Spider."

The doctors are great inoculators. They have robbed us of the fundamentals of our young faith. Next thing they will be saying that whiskey it not good for snake bite. Surely the march of progress is a terrible thing!—Washington Post.

Mrs. J. W. Wallace, 1130 Albermarle St., Tarboro N. C. says: "Doan's Kidney Pills benefited me greatly and I am therefore pleased to recommend them. I suffered constantly from dull, nugging backache and increasing pains across my loins. I was restless at night and arose in the morning tired and languid. I had but little strength or energy and could hardly attend to my housework. If I stopped or attempted to lift sharp, darting pains caught me in my back. My kidneys were weak and caused me much annoyance. I finally read about Doan's Kidney Pills and procuring a box, I began their use. They removed my backache and corrected the trouble with the kidney secretions. I now feel better in every way."

A Two-Party Country Still.

If the presidential election had been held last Tuesday week, and if the voters had voted as they did, the Democratic candidate would have received 267 electoral votes, or 27 more than are necessary to elect. The electoral vote of four states, aggregating eighteen, would have been divided, with the Democrats probably receiving the major part. We freely concede that the Democratic party might not have done quite so well with a presidency at stake; it has usually been strongest in the so-called off years. At the same time, Democratic majorities in big pivotal States like New York and Ohio were so decisive and the popular desire to counter upon the Republican administration was so manifest that Democratic success would have remained probable.

Republican spokesmen are now seeking consolation in the professional belief that this year's defeat will unite their own party and give the Democrats an appreciated opportunity to break each other's heads. Be this as it may, the continued existence of two fairly well-matched parties is evident enough. The Democratic party's ability to take punishment and survive has been more impressively demonstrated since 1892 than ever before.—Charlotte Observer.

Home. Room should be provided for these women at the home and husband and wife should be taken care of together. These old people should not be separated now. The home certainly can't be much of a home to a man who has to leave the companionship of a lifetime behind in order to enter doors. The legislature should receive this and make provision for these old soldier and his wife, as is done in Mississippi and maybe other states." But coming to the main proposition, The Times says: "After that is done the work will not have been completed. There will still remain many more. And after all the veterans and their wives are gone there will still be many noble women who will find it impossible to provide for themselves in old age. A home to these women for all time would be a proper memorial to these other women who rendered their share of service in the great conflict between the States."

Good Times.

Good times are coming for travelers who have the money. Sleeping car berths are most uncomfortable. When a man gets even a lower section he is put to it to get in or out. Between Boston and New York, apartment cars have been put on. They contain no berths, but have stoves, chairs, drop tables and toilet annexes, with washstand, mirror and dresses. The night traveler can sleep in a bed-room. It is believed that this plan will be followed as rapidly as practicable on all large lines throughout the country. If it shall be done, night travel will be tremendously increased, much friction and complaint avoided, and much comfort secured for the traveling public.—Greensboro News.

Where Under-Drainage is Needed

Practically all level lands would be improved by under-drainage, and much of the rolling lands would be benefited almost as much by under-drainage that would help to carry off water, thereby reducing the quality which now goes off over the surface. Moderate rainfalls may be absorbed by a soil well filled with humus, and if it be tiled or under-drained, it will take in, and properly dispose of a much greater quantity, but both these are needed, as also is probably every additional aid obtainable, to take care of the torrential and continuous rains which we sometimes have. The handling of the water which falls on our soils is a much more important problem than Southern farmers have yet realized. Too much of these heavy rainfalls now goes off over the surface, carrying with it the finest and best soil particles; while still further destruction to soil fertility results from too great quantities remaining in the surface soil for long periods.

The foregoing observations point unmistakably to one conclusion and that is, that the under-drainage of the larger part of our soils is a necessity to the highest soil fertility. Surface drainage is merely a makeshift, and is in any case an evil, which must under ideal conditions be reduced to a minimum. In most cases it is better than none, and being cheaper, is sometimes the only sort of drainage possible and, therefore, a necessity, but the best results will never be obtained on practically all our lands until they are tile drained. Our excessive rainfall at certain seasons makes this under-drainage doubly important with us, and causes it to be needed on a much larger proportion of our lands than where the rainfall does not exceed 35 inches, annually. There is another reason why tile drainage must increase, and that is the necessity of doing away with short rows and the obstructions offered to the use of larger implements by open and hillside ditches.—Raleigh Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

ARRANGED AS A BLASPHEMER

Matthew 26:57-68—November 27
"Who when he was reviled, reviled not again." 1 Peter 2:23.

It cannot do better at the opening of this study than quote the words of Mr. Chandler. He said: "Many remarkable trials have characterized the judicial history of mankind. The trial of Socrates, before the dcastracy of Athens, charged with corrupting the Athenian youth, with blaspheming the Olympic gods and seeking to destroy the constitution of the Athenian Republic, is still a sublime and thrilling chapter in the history of a wonderful people. "The trial of Alfred Dreyfus is still fresh in the memories of men. The French Republic is still rent by contending factions. His friends say that Dreyfus was a Prometheus who was chained to an ocean-girt rock while the vulture of exile preyed upon his heart. His enemies still assert that he was a Judas who betrayed, not God nor Christ, but France and the Fatherland. But these trials, one and all, were tame and commonplace compared with the trial and crucifixion of the Galilean peasant, Jesus of Nazareth."

In Defense of the Jews

It is not for us to say that the Jews were wholly excusable in their course of injuries toward Jesus in causing his crucifixion by the Romans. On the other hand, it is proper for us to consider everything that could be thought of calculated to mitigate the severity of our judgment regarding the injustices there practised. And it is proper also that we should consider what, from their standpoint, would seem to be extenuating circumstances. This is everywhere recognized as just treatment. The attorney, defending a criminal who has plead guilty to the charges against him, is considered to do only his duty by his criminal client when he presents whatever in the circumstances of the case would tend to prove that the culprit had cause, or thought that he had a reason for his misdemeanor.

Viewing the Jewish people of nearly nineteen centuries ago from this standpoint we get a more reasonable view of the situation than is otherwise possible. We hearken first to St. Peter's words respecting the transaction. He said, "I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers." Had they known, they would not have killed the Prince of life (Acts iii, 15-17).

The Jews did not for one moment suppose that the great Messiah, foretold to be their Prophet, Priest and King—like unto Moses, but greater; like unto David and Solomon, but greater; like unto Melchisedek, but greater—would appear as "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." Although those very words were written of him by the Prophet, they were hidden from their eyes of understanding by the glorious things related of him in other prophecies. They saw not, understandingly, the sufferings. To this day they interpret the sufferings of their nation as being those which will ultimately inure to their advantage. The prophetic descriptions are not concentrated, nor collected, but scattered, "here a little and there a little," so written that they could not be understood at the time; nor were they understood even by the Lord's disciples until after his resurrection from the dead, when he explained them, and, subsequently, by the holy Spirit, in the throne of earth freely forgive those who caused his crucifixion.

Politics and Selfishness as Religion
The Jews are not so different from other people now, nor were they then. History indicates that some of their highest offices were held by irreligious chief-priests, at the first advent of our Lord, was a Sadducee, who wholly disbelieved in the promises of God to Israel, including a disbelief in the resurrection of the dead. Similarly today there are high-priests, both amongst Jews and Christians, who disbelieve, and yet hold high positions. Amongst Christians there are D. D.'s who are unbelievers and many of the most notable rabbis amongst the Jews also declare themselves thorough unbelievers. We are not claiming that such unbelieving Christians and Jewish ministers would lightly espouse and support an unjust procedure against an innocent man. We do not know about this. It has yet to be tested, perhaps. We do know, however, that when faith in a Divine Revelation and in a Divine supervision of human affairs is lost the natural effect is that the losers of the faith become more and more policy-men and consider policy the extreme of human wisdom, particularly in the guidance of affairs of Church and State.

ings of the "Body of Christ" began—the sufferings of "the Church, which is his Body"—filling up the measure of the afflictions of Christ, which are beheld (Colossians i, 24). As soon as the "Church, the Body of Christ," shall have finished the bearing of the cross, after him, following in his steps to the end of the journey, then the Kingdom glories will be ushered in. Israel's blindness will be turned away and the blessing of the Lord will begin to fill the whole earth.

The Jews, who caused the crucifixion of Jesus, certainly did so in much the same spirit which led St. Paul—then Saul of Tarsus—to cause the stoning of St. Stephen. As Saul was forgiven, so Israel is to be forgiven; as the Scriptures declare, "The Lord will pour upon them the spirit of prayer and supplication," and then they will see, with the eyes of their understanding, "him whom they pierced and they will all mourn for him" (Zechariah xii, 10), and their mourning will be turned into joy; for, as Joseph forgave his brethren, so will this great antitypical Joseph, of of St. Peter that, after having smitten off the ear of the High Priest's servant (though the wound was healed by Jesus), he followed his Master into the Court of that high-priest to see what would be done. The arraignment was at night, although it was contrary to Jewish Law to try a prisoner at night for any serious offense. But there was an excuse. This was a special case; haste was necessary, because whatever would be done must be done quickly; the very next day the unbelieving officials perceived that Jesus had great influence with the common people. They believed him to be a brilliant but harmless fraud. He had committed no crime, but he was a disturber of the peace, and they felt fully justified in taking his life. The Feast of Passover was at hand and would last a week and it would be contrary to their Law that any execution should take place during that week. Besides, they feared the amount of influence which Jesus might exercise during the week, when there would be from one to two millions of people in and around Jerusalem from all over Palestine. They had already determined that their action must be short, sharp and decisive. This was decided before the arrest was made. They were ready and waiting at that midnight hour to carry out their murderous designs, for the good of their nation, as they thought.

The examination was merely a preliminary one to get together such evidence as at the morning Tribunal could be rushed through rapidly at a prearranged session.

He Was Charged With Blasphemy
They had difficulty in finding a charge. For what had Jesus ever done except acts of kindness and the uttering of words of wisdom and correction and hope? Blasphemy was a serious charge under the Jewish code. They would charge him with that as being the easiest to prove. He had said, when near the Temple, "Destroy this Temple, and I will rear it up in three days." "But he spake of the temple of his Body." Some of those who heard him understood him to speak of the literal temple. This they charged was blasphemy, because it took years to build the temple, and for Jesus to rebuild it in three days would mean a claim on his part of Divine power. But the charge did not seem sufficiently strong, even for those who had premeditated his murder. They wanted something to give a color of justice, at least, to their findings. So the chief-priest thought to get Jesus to commit himself in their presence and said, I adjure thee by the Living God to tell us whether thou be the Christ, the Son of God. Jesus replied that this was true and that they would yet see him in heavenly glory and power at the right hand of Divine favor. "This, the High Priest declared, was sufficient proof of blasphemy. "Behold, now ye have heard his blasphemy. What reply ye?" And the council answered that he was worthy of death. The rabble in the Court, hearing the commotion, felt at liberty to abuse this prisoner, as they had done others. They showed their contempt of him by spitting upon him. They derided him by smiting him and saying, Prophecy, tell who smote thee. "He was reviled, yet reviled not again."

MR. THEO. SKINNER DEAD.

Prominent Young Business Man Dies Suddenly.

The announcement this morning of the death of Mr. Theo. W. Skinner came as a shock and filled many hearts with sadness. While about his duties on the tobacco sales, Friday morning, Mr. Skinner was taken with a fainting spell caused by an attack of acute indigestion, and fell to the floor. He was carried to his home on College street and medical attention given, and he was thought to be getting along well through the day until about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when he grew worse and continued to sink until the end came about 11 o'clock.

Mr. Skinner was 33 years of age, and came to Greenville from Dillonville about ten years ago to engage in the tobacco business here as a buyer and became prominent on the market, quickly winning his way into the confidence and esteem of those with whom he came in contact. At the time of his death he was in the employment of the Hughes-Meade Company.

In May, 1904, he married Miss Emily Higgs and the wife and three small children, all boys, survive him. These have the heartfelt sympathy of all in their sorrow.

If relatives who are expected arrive this evening, the funeral service will be held at the grave in Cherry Hill cemetery at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the body leaving the residence at 1.40.

Wilmington Aviator.

This is awful. Here was Charlotte trying to fly by means of an imported air ship last week and failed, when yesterday Raleigh did fly some by the same means when just the other day Wilmington had a "fly" in a machine invented and made in Wilmington and the man who flew was a Wilmington man. What is more, the machine flew at the very first trial and sailed away finely. This is a fearful slam on Charlotte and the other cosmopolitan cities of the State. Wilmington is waking up. It would be just like her to put makers of other machines out of business. We do hope her machine will not turn to and get wrecked and kill the aviator for Wilmington, like Greensboro has no population to spare.—Greensboro Record.

Fatten the Fowls Now.

Poultry should be fattened quickly to be tender and juicy. If the fowls are kept in good condition during the summer and early fall, ten days or two weeks of liberal feeding should put them in excellent condition for marketing. After they have commenced to fatten give them all they can eat four times a day. Turkeys ought not to be confined for any length of time. If fed liberally while they have a free run they can be put in condition for marketing within ten days. There is the time of year when the flock should be culled closely. The understrapped fowls will bring better prices now than ever, and if kept throughout the winter will only be an expense and a detriment to the rest of the flock.—Uncle Jo, in Raleigh Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

The school of experience has no vacation.

THE DAIRY COW.

Good To Have One Around The House.

The dairy cow does more than bring financial success to the dairy farmer. She makes him a better citizen than he would otherwise be. Her influence upon home conditions is a most pleasing contribution to those factors which are responsible for the changed conditions which prevail in the farm homes of today. Thousands of these homes are now characterized by comfort and happiness where formerly they were blighted by drudgery and unhappiness.

Better financial conditions have contributed to this change, and the dairy cow has been in no small measure responsible. She has contributed in still another way. The dairy cow teaches kindness. Her owner soon learns that only by treating her kindly can he secure the highest possible returns from her, and she responds quickly to kind words and proper care. Her disposition is one that the human family might well emulate. She is patient and long suffering, acquiescing mutely in the arrangements made by her owner for carrying on the dairy business, striving at all times to repay him for every effort made for her care and comfort.

The members of the family, as they come in contact with her and her kindly disposition, are influenced for good. As they appreciate financial benefit to come from caring for her well they take a deeper interest in her. In doing so they unconsciously cultivate those qualities which make them better citizens.

The dairy cow—the prototype of man's best friend—is wielding a greater influence than she is generally credited with. She has always been found in the front ranks in the march of civilization and no agricultural country can long prosper without her. She is a potent factor in the upbuilding of such a country, financially, and socially, and a wise people will appreciate her and encourage the industry of which she is the foundation.

Our readers have doubtless noticed the advertising of the Cortright Metal Roofing Co., 50 N. 23rd St. Philadelphia, Pa., which has been appearing in The Reflector for some months past and we hope those who have had reason to be interested in roofing material have profited thereby. The Cortright Company is by far the largest maker of metal shingles in the world, and their product is well and favorably known over the entire United States. They are always glad to give prompt attention to inquiries and to either send samples or quote prices to those likely to be in need of roofing, or refer them to a nearby local agent.

The guessing contest at Frank Wilson's store closed Friday at 12 o'clock. There were 6894 nails in the keg. Messrs. A. C. Holloman, of Greenville, and H. C. Tyson, of Farmville, were the lucky ones, they having guessed 7000 each, making a guess which will have to be drawn off by them.

County Corn Shows.

South Carolina is giving us something new in the way of "county corn shows," and they are not only intensely interesting at home, but are giving the State world-wide publicity. That is all on account of the fact that the boys of South Carolina "Boys' Corn Clubs" have beaten the world on the number of bushels of corn raised per acre. At Manning, S. C., Thursday the biggest and most successful corn show so far this fall in any county, occupied the attention of a large crowd. The exhibit was so marvelous and the exercises were so interesting it was late in the evening before the affair came to a close.

About 80 of the 140 corn club boys in Clarendon county made exhibits and all of them evinced deep interest in the progress of the great work in which they are engaged. The greatest yield of corn on one acre in Clarendon was 163 bushels, while there were five boys whose yields were more than 100 bushels per acre. There were 96 exhibits, including one by Miss Hannah Plowden, a 15-year-old girl, who won the third prize in the contest for having raised 120 bushels on one acre. Furman Broadwater, a boy, got first prize for 163 bushels. The second greatest yield was by Jake Williams, whose crop amounted to 139 bushels. The first prize was $25, the second $10 and the third $5. The $5 went to the girl corn raiser but everybody will be satisfied that she should have gotten a dollar a bushel for her 120 bushels. The 140 members of the Boys' Corn Club averaged a production of 62 bushels per acre, or 8,680 bushels on their 140 acres.

These corn contests in North and South Carolina demonstrate that cotton, tobacco and peanuts are not the only big money crops that can be raised in this unrivalled part of the country. Let us have some Boys' Hay Clubs for next year.—Wilmington Star.

Good Thing to Know.

If you own a Hvomel hard rubber inhaler Coward & Wooten wants you to know that they will sell you a bottle of HYOMEI for only 50 cents.

Remember this, all who suffer with catarrh—a bottle of HYOMEI (pronounce it High-ome) is put up in a separate package and sold for 60 cents, to accommodate the vast army of people who already own a Hvomel inhaler.

Coward & Wooten will sell it to you at that price and give you the opportunity to begin at once to rid yourself of vile catarrh and snuffling, hawking and spitting that go with it.

Many people through years of neglect have let catarrh get a strong hold upon them. Some of these people unreasonably think that one bottle of HYOMEI ought to cure them.

No matter how chronic your catarrh troubles, HYOMEI is guaranteed by Coward & Wooten to cure them if you give it half a chance. Just breathe it that's all, and its deastring, soothing, antiseptic properties will make you feel better in a day.

If you own an inhaler get a 50-cent bottle of HYOMEI at Coward & Wootens today. If you do not own a Hvomel inhaler, ask for a $1 outfit, which includes inhaler.

Poverty may be borne with fortitude by some people but never by the woman whose face is her fortune.
