

THE TRAINING SCHOOL

the presentation of diplomas to the graduating class, composed of the following: Margaret Sheppard Blow, Ida Lydia Bullock, Essie Ellington, Vada Elizabeth Highsmith, Nellie Pender, Lillie Roberta Tucker, Grace McGuire Bishop, Pattie Simmons Dowell, Mary Louise Fleming, Eallie Faison Pierce, Mattie Ruffin, Mary Edna Woodburn, Jennie Crichton Williams.

The speech in presentation of the diplomas and Bibles to the class was made by ex-Governor T. J. Jarvis. He said he did not want to minimize the work of any other school. It was not his privilege to attend the University, yet he loved it as well as any citizen of the state. He loved Wake Forest, Trinity, Davidson, Meredith, the Normal, the Agricultural and Mechanical, and every other school for what they were doing for the people. But this school here comes nearer being the people's school than any other in the state. At least 75 per cent of our population are rural. The child of the man in the country has as much right to good teachers as the city child. Fully 75 per cent of the children are dependent upon the public schools. The country schools have been the weak spot in our educational system. This school is to strengthen these country schools by sending them well prepared teachers.

Governor Jarvis said six times he had stood upon the rostrum of the University to deliver diplomas to students going out of that institution. Some who had received these diplomas have become governors, some judges, some teachers, some superintendents. "The best superintendent of schools that North Carolina ever had (pointing to Supt. Joyner) received his diploma at my hands." But no class before which he had ever stood gave him more pride than this first class going out from this school.

The roll of the class was called, Miss Pattie Dowell being mentioned first as she was the first student to register at the opening of the school, and their diplomas and Bibles were handed to them by State Superintendent Joyner, followed with his congratulations and a charge couched in most beautiful words to put forth their best efforts as they go out in the service of their state.

Miss Dowell, for the graduates, stated that the class of 1911, in keeping with the motto, "To Serve," wished to leave some concrete testimonial of appreciation of what had been done for them, by contributing $112.50 to the school to be used as a student's fund. This was greeted with great applause, and President Wright said it came as a surprise to all except the class themselves.

President Wright gave some statistics concerning the school. He said the man entitled to the credit more than any other for paving the way to establishing this school, was County Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale. The work he had done in advance showed the need for it. True his efforts could not have amounted to much but for the help of others, and one other especially mentioned was ex-Governor Jarvis. As a testimonial to them the literary societies of the school had prepared resolutions which met the approval of the faculty, and which he had been asked to read. The resolutions were as follows:

Resolutions.

The following joint resolution was adopted by the Lanier Literary Society and the Edgar Allen Poe Literary Society of the East Carolina Teachers' Training school, Saturday evening, May 20th, 1911, and approved by the faculty May 22, 1911:

As a testimonial of the deep debt of gratitude we owe to, and the sincere love and appreciation we have for Mr. W. H. Ragsdale, in whose brain the East Carolina Teachers' Training school first had its inception, and whose enthusiastic efforts, untiring zeal and rare professional spirit created the desire in the minds and the hearts of others, and as a testimonial of the debt of gratitude and sincere love and appreciation we have for Governor Jarvis whose mind at once caught the significance and worth of such an institution to the people and children of the "Old North State," which he loves so dearly, whose rare gifts or organization and leadership made it possible to bring this school to this splendid reality.

Be It Resolved, That the Lanier Literary Society and the Edgar Allen Poe Literary Society think and believe that the feeling of love and appreciation which the school has for its founders, Mr. W. H. Ragsdale and Governor T. J. Jarvis, should find expression in some fitting concrete form that would have a permanent place upon the walls of our school to serve as a constant reminder of the debt of gratitude we owe these men to be a constant inspiration to all to be of service to his fellow man;

Be It Resolved, That no more fitting testimonial could we have than portraits of these men in oil, painted by a good portrait artist.

Be It Resolved, That the Lanier Literary Society in conjunction with the Edgar Allen Poe Literary Society put forth every effort to carry out the provisions of these resolutions;

Be It Resolved, That the ways and means for carrying out the provisions of these resolutions be left to a committee consisting of two members from the Lanier Literary Society, two members from the Edgar Allen Poe Literary Society and two members from the faculty.

Be It Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the permanent records of the Lanier and Edgar Allen Poe Literary Societies.

Electric Adding Machine.

The National Bank has installed a new adding machine that is a wonderful piece of mechanism. It differs from the old adding machine in which it was necessary to pull a lever to print the figures, in that this new one is run by an electric motor. All the operator has to do is to press the keys and the machine does the rest.

Steel Trust Next in Order of Government Prosecution

DEPT. OF JUSTICE SAYS NO LET UP

Defendant Officials of Tobacco Trust To Be Prosecuted—Wickersham Is Before House Committee Investigating His Department—Received $26,000 From Sugar Trust.

By Wire to The Reflector.

Washington, May 31.—The department of justice announced today that there will be no let up in the trust prosecutions. It is believed that the steel trust is the next to be attacked. Judge Knapp and Commissioner Neil, mediators in the Erdman act, are endeavoring to have a final conference today to settle the threatened Southern strike.

The Supreme court's mandate in the Standard Oil case will probably be issued today.

Senator Pomerene will tomorrow introduce a resolution in the senate calling Wickersham in contempt of prosecution of tobacco trust defendants if he does not, resolutions will be introduced in the house and senate directing Wickersham to begin criminal prosecution at once.

Attorney General Wickersham, who is before the house committee investigating his department, admitted today that before he became attorney general he acted as adviser to the steel trust, and was a member of the law firm of Strong & Calwallader, of New York, of which entry President Taft mentioned. Taft obtained a big fee for advising the sugar trust. Wickersham got $26,000 for his share in the same case.

The Dean of Worcester, England, and Ambassador Brice conferred with President Taft today over the plan to hold a congress of United States churches and ask all nations to help further international peace. Major General Murray succeeds Damage by Boll Weevil.

After all the people have been reading about the boll weevil, few of them have any actual idea of the extent of the damage that pest has done in the cotton belt. For one thing, it has caused a practical abandonment, temporarily at least, of cotton growing in Louisiana. The New Orleans Picayune says the vast extent of the injury wrought by the voracious little insect is easily appreciated when one recalls the fact that prior to the advent of the weevil in Louisiana this state produced in some years as much as a million bales of cotton and crops in the neighborhood of 800,000 bales were frequent. During the past few years the crop of the state has hardly averaged 250,000 bales.—Charlotte Chronicle.

DURHAM CITIZENS AP- PREHENSIVE OVER DECISION

MAY HURT CITY'S BUSINESS.

Officials There Optimistic And Want To Be Put Right.

Durham, N. C., May 30.—The first announcement of the decision in the American Tobacco Company case yesterday caused considerable consternation. Everybody was afraid that it meant great trouble for Durham. The men most closely connected with the company did not take such a disquieting view of it. They declared that if they had been violating the law they wanted to quit it and that if the company is an illegal corporation it wants to be a legal one.

Many merchants had fears and before the reception of this morning's papers, there was considerable suspense. Everybody in Durham appears to think that all things will work out well in the end, and that there will be no loss of money or property to anybody in this city, which is now growing so well.

LEGISLATURE SHOULD DO MORE

Mr. Josephus Daniels Says Good Things About The School And About Greenville And Pitt County—People Are Alive To Progress And Good Things Generally.

Mr. Josephus Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, who delivered the literary address at the recent commencement of East Carolina Teachers' Training School, had much to say in his paper about the school, and the progress of Greenville and Pitt county. We give below an extract from his article:

The great need of North Carolina today is trained teachers. Our educational revival halts just here. Patriotic men and women everywhere are teaching children for the love of it, because the compensation in most rural districts is so small as to give hardly the bread without any butter. The good teachers are trying to make bricks without straw. They recognize their lack of training, and rejoice that this school here has established a one-year course for practical teachers, which is going to be one of the most popular things it has ever done, and one of the most useful as well. These practical teachers will go back to their schools much better equipped for their task, but the crying need is for teachers who are making a profession of teaching, who have been trained in some college like this for teaching, and this is the great work that is being done here. It is no credit to the state, and, indeed, it is a shame, that the appropriation for this college is not adequate to enable the authorities to take all the persons who desire to secure its training. I feel sure that when the people know the great work that is being done here, public sentiment will demand such appropriations as will enable President Wright and Governor Jarvis and the trustees to advertise that the institution is to be enlarged and will be big enough to hold every young woman in Eastern North Carolina who wishes the best training for teaching.

Greenville is proud of the Training School. It has always been a good business town, but did not grow rapidly for years, because it lacked the spirit of co-operation among its progressive people. The organized purpose to secure the East Carolina Teachers' Training School showed the business men what could be accomplished by working together. That organized effort, crowned with success, was Greenville's awakening, and since that day it has gone forward by leaps and bounds. It grows day and night, and seems to work overtime. No town in the state has grown more in the past ten years, and much building is now going on. The new court house, being erected, is to be one of the most commanding and beautiful structures in the state. The cost of the lot, court house and jail will approximate $100,000. Just opposite the beautiful new court house the Federal government has pur-

SHE CARRIES A PISTOL.

A Brave Hickory Girl Puts Two Toughs to Flight.

The Democrat says Miss Lelia Bobbitt, night operator at the Hickory telephone exchange, was called home at 2 o'clock in the morning on account of her mother's illness. Calling a lineman to take her place at the switchboard, she started home alone. En route two men passing in a buggy followed her, drove in front of her and asked what she was doing out at that time of night. "None of your business," was the prompt and proper answer. Then one of the men started to get out of the buggy. Fortunately Miss Bobbitt carried a pistol with her for protection, and she didn't do a thing but put the weapon in that fellow's face and tell him if he moved another step she'd blow his brains out. He got back in the buggy and she kept them covered until they drove on.

Glory to the Hickory girl and may her tribe be increased! She deserves a Carnegie medal.—Statesville Landmark.

FROG CATCHING CONTEST.

Legs Now Ripe And The Sport Is On.

This is the time, from bog and swamp, marlhole and river bank, a splendid bass floats musically, and frogs' legs are in season. The wily epicure has evolved many schemes for apprehending this delicacy, but it remained for Mr. J. C. Tyson, city clerk, to introduce a method that, for him at least, is quite a success, as it insures frogs' legs and perch on the same trip with one equipment. Mr. Tyson takes hook and line and bait for robbers, thus at the outset disarming the frog of suspicion, which, sitting upon the river bank, thinks he is watching a man catch fish. And so he is for awhile, but with one eye on the frog, and gradually approaching, the fisherman proceeds until within the length of his pole. The next move is to pretend to be bating the hook, but the bait is removed, and with a deft movement of the wrist the back-action for a cast is apparent until the naked hook reaches a spot directly under the chin of the frog, when a reverse movement drives the point through the lower lip, and the astonished and justly bewildered frog is lifted into the boat. It's very simple, really, and there is no patent on the process.

VERDICT AGAINST TOWN.

Mr. J. H. Averett Awarded Damages.

In the case of J. H. Averett vs. the town of Greenville, the jury awarded damages to Mr. Averett amounting to $141.66. The case is the result of injury sustained by Mr. Averett on account of some building material occupying the street.

Many men owe the gaudier of their lives to their tremendous difficulties.

chased a most desirable and spacious lot and will shortly build a handsome post office building on it. A large office building and many other structures are now going up. The streets have been paved, the people are alive to progress, and the future holds big things in store for this solid and progressive town.

COULD NOT TELL HIS OWN.

Father of Twins Unable To Distinguish Them.

An amusing incident occurred at the Farmers' Union picnic at Centre Bluff Thursday. Mr. John Warren, who is the proud father of fine twin boys, was there, and the twins, some four years old, were taken along in the care of their mother. In the afternoon one of the twins wandered off from his mother and disappeared in the crowd. Mrs. Warren called her husband and told him to go find the boy, calling the missing one by name. Mr. Warren started on the search but went only a few steps before he returned leading a boy by the hand. His wife laughed and said "You have the wrong one. I know where that one was, but it is the other one I want you to find." Well, I thought this was the other one," answered the father. And as several friends around joined in the laugh he added "I just can't tell those boys apart."

Winterville, N. C., May 27.—Mr. Joe Kittrell, after spending a few days with his parents here, returned to Norfolk this morning.

Mrs. J. D. Cox, Mrs. B. T. Cox, Miss Esther Johnson, Miss Huldah Cox, and Mr. Gordon Johnson are attending the Greensboro Normal and Winston-Salem commencements.

Mr. M. B. Bryan has returned to Raleigh.

Winterville was well represented at the Training school Monday night and Tuesday. It is not necessary to state that they enjoyed every part of the exercises.

Miss Jeannette Cox has come in from Greensboro, where she has been in school at the State Normal.

Miss Jessie E. Garrett, of Aoshkie, and Miss Ella Pierce, of Coleraine, after spending several days in our village and attending the Winterville High School commencement, left Wednesday morning for their respective homes. PITT COUNTY BOY TAKES HIGHEST HONORS

LEADS HIS CLASS AT A. & M.

Mr. J. P. Quinerly, Jr., Graduates With Distinction.

Mr. J. P. Quinerly, chairman of the board of county commissioners, returned today from Raleigh, where he attended the commencement of the Agricultural and Mechanical College. His son, Mr. J. P. Quinerly, Jr., was a member of the graduating class, and won the distinction of receiving the highest honors of the class of which he was valedictorian, and he also won the class oratorical medal. For four consecutive years young Mr. Quinerly led his class and scored the highest record. He has been selected for a responsible position in connection with a government experiment farm at Annapolis, and will go direct there from Raleigh.

Pitt county is proud of this young man, and expects to hear much of his record in coming years.

A STORY OF THE HORRORS OF WAR

ONE OF THE SCENES OF LONG AGO

As Told By Our Hanrahan Correspondent.

Hanrahan, N. C., May 31, 1911. Sic transmit too soon the joys of life—

Sic venit too soon life's sorrows and strife.

It is not my purpose to portray, if I could, the horrors of war, for those things are passed, nor, to vilify the North. I love the North and rejoice that she saved the union, and am glad that she freed the slaves. Nor is it my purpose to try to defend our beloved South (and she needs no defense at any hands) for her brave sons fought for what they then deemed was just and right. What I shall say of the war is to show the time and what caused one among many heroes to be so poor.

On the next morning after our visit to that neat but humble home, my mother and father (he was too old to go to the war) were sitting around our fireside and my mother was telling him what Mrs. Meadows had told her yesterday about Capt. Buchanan's company (my brother, Isaac, belonged to his company) who were then garrisoned at Fort Fisher. She said that Mrs. Meadows had told her that Eugene's (for that is what she lovingly called him) sick furlough would be out in four days and that he was trying to get up as much wood as he could for her and the children to have during the winter. My father had sent Sam and a colored man over there that morning with wagons to haul the wood for him. While papa and mother were talking, Sam came running one of the wagon horses at full speed. Mother seeing him coming went out. As he stopped the horse, Sam's eyes were bucked with horrors depicted on his face. "Missus, missus," he muttered, "a great big oak tree that Mr. Meadows was cutting caught on another tree, and it flung it on him and squashed the life out of him. And Missus Meadows sote me fur to tell you and Mars. Sam to go there just so quick as youn's can."

Mother said "go help Ligie hook Jim Crack to the buggy just as quick as you can, while I get some sheets and towels." Soon as the horse was hooked, papa and mother started and I cried, so they let me go, too. About one and a half miles drive brought us to the scene, that but yesterday was one of joy and contentment, but now changed to one of untold grief and horror.

Mother hastened to the bed on which Mrs. Meadows prostrate lay, and did all in her power to comfort her, by telling her that there was a loving Father who rules on high, who has promised to be a Father to the fatherless and a friend to the widow. But, said the grief-stricken and devoted woman, God does not promise to fill a husband's place and He can only show His fatherhood to the children through the instrumentality of a true and fatherly man. Mother could not answer these arguments, for there were no homes then in our state for orphan children. So mother could only weep with her who wept, and do what she could to comfort and care for the fatherless children. Father, after driving to the woods and viewing the mangled body which was garded by one of the negroes that he had sent to help him, drove back to the farm and gathered up three of the negro men, went back and with their help cared for and prepared the body for burial. There were no white men in that community. They were all off to the war.

Next day father and one other old white man, and four colored men that my father carried from the farm, buried in a rude pine coffin fastened by wrought nails hammered out in the shop on the farm.

After a few days, without the aid of a doctor, or medical aid of any kind, except that which sometimes is the very best kind, because it is the simplest and most commonplace, my mother gave her teas from herbs that she always had growing in her garden and daily carried her as nourishing food as these times of war would afford. Mrs. Meadows was to some extent recovered from her terrible shock and began anew to struggle for the maintenance of those two sweet children, as she had done for three long years, (for indeed, those were long years), since her true and kind husband had been in the war.

After Mrs. Meadows had recovered sufficiently to resume her work, every few days my mother would go over there. I always begged to go with her, and most times I went. They would talk of the war and especially of the boys at Fort Fisher, for there was where most of the boys from that part of Wayne were garrisoned. So the winter wore away and nature that had been slumbering, as do many people as to vital questions, awoke to spring. (To be Continued).

In Other Worlds.

The suggestion, often made before, and repeated by Prof. T. J. J. See in his lecture that other worlds might be inhabited by other varieties of beings than those found on earth—what is there improbable about it?

Why should man, the product of evolution, tracing his ancestry back through reptiles and fishes, to the atoms of space, dependent on the sun for the energy that keeps his bodily mechanism working, assume himself to be the fine flower of the universe?

"What a monstrous spectacle," exclaimed Stevenson, "is this man; the disease of the agglutinated dust, lifting alternate feet or lying drugged with slumber; killing, feeding, growing, bringing forth small copies of himself; grown upon with hair like grass, fitted with eye that move and glitter in his face; a thing to set children screaming!"

Mere smouldering fires of consciousness that only here and there, a few times in a century, really burst forth into flame, why should we suppose that we are the best that the universe can do?—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Gen. J. S. Carr Candidate For U. S. Senator—Piedmont Trades Exposition, Fair And Horse Show at Winston-Salem—Road to Top of Mt. Mitchell.

Mr. J. A. Robinson received a large and unexpected addition to his chimes fund Monday afternoon. The contribution was made by Colonel Bennehan Cameron, who contributed one of the bells for the chimes. This gift is equivalent to one-tenth of the whole amount that Mr. Robinson hopes to raise and is equal to about $400 in cash, though the bell contributed by Colonel Bennehan Cameron originally cost about $700. Mr. Robinson is planning not to have the bell placed at the church until enough funds are raised to purchase the remaining nine bells that will complete the chimes. The fund now amounts to $1,916 in cash and with the value of the bell added amounts to $2,316. This is more than half of the entire amount and Mr. Robinson hopes to raise the remainder in a short time.—Durham Sun.

Southern Pines, May 30.—The fruit men of Moore county have had a season of unusual discouragement. Frost after frost came to whittle down the peach crop, the drought put its withering finger on much of that which survived, and to finish the disaster came the storm of Saturday night, which seems to have pretty well cleaned the trees of anything that remained. The early peaches were most ready for shipment when the storm struck the orchards. In most places the rain is about complete. It is the worst succession of cumulative disaster the peach men of Moore county have ever experienced.

Mr. R. O. Alexander, the Black Mountain developer, is determined to have a road from Black Mountain to the top of Mt. Mitchell. At his own expense he has placed a corps of surveyors at work. It is believed that it will require two months to complete the survey of the road. Yesterday's Chronicle carried the story of a road being constructed from Graphiteville, a short distance east of Swannanoa tunnel, to Mt. Mitchell. It seems that this famous mountain, so long practically inaccessible, is at last to be made of easy success. It will be a popular resort.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The premium lists for the Piedmont Trades Exposition, Fair and Horse Show, have been placed in the hands of the Barber Printery and they will be printed and circulated within a short time. Many handsome premiums are offered in order to strengthen the various exhibits. A large building will be erected this summer to accommodate the tobacco exhibit, which will be made a feature of the fair this year, and a large restaurant will be erected for parties in the city who will conduct it.—Winston-Salem Sentinel.

We have it from good authority that Gen. J. S. Carr will be a candidate for United States senator. This complicates the situation more. The soldiers will vote for him and he will be the only business man in the race. Aside from these two influences he is very popular with all classes of voters.—High Point Enterprise.

High Point, May 30.—One of the most distressing accidents the town has ever known occurred Saturday evening in the basement of the Columbia Furniture factory, when little Marshall Setzer, the 13-year-old son of Mr. Marshall Setzer, was killed by becoming entangled in the belt of the large grinding stone.

A rather unusual occurrence happened yesterday morning at the Southern railway Summit avenue crossing when Conductor J. M. Small, of Spencer, in charge of train No. 44, stopped his train long enough to put off H. M. Clemens, of Durham, and also as a matter of incident administered a sound thrashing to Mr. Clemens for causing such an unceremonious act on the part of the gallant and lordly conductor.—Greensboro News.

The farmer is no longer deprived of the benefits of city life. DECISION ON TOBACCO TRUST

Handed Down by United State Supreme Court

RUST REMANDED TO LOWER COURT

Given Six Months to Create a Condition in Harmony With The Sherman Anti-Trust Law—Justice Harlan Dissents From Justice.

At six o'clock Monday afternoon, after the paper for that day had been printed and mailed, The Reflector received the following special in regard to the decision of the United States Supreme court relative to the suit of the government against the American Tobacco Company and its accessories:

Washington, May 29.—The Supreme court today ordered the tobacco trust to be remanded to the United States Circuit court, southern district of New York, for dissolution within six months, unless it conforms with the Sherman anti-trust law.

In further explanation of this decision, the following is taken from the morning papers:

The American Tobacco Company and its accessories and subordinate corporations and companies, including the English corporation, today were held by the Supreme court of the United States to be co-operators in a combination illegal under the Sherman anti-trust act. The court sent the case back to the lower court with directions to hear further the parties, so as to ascertain whether a new condition cannot be created in harmony with the law. Justice Harlan, in part with the court's opinion, and dissented in part.

The tobacco trust decision is characterized by Attorney-General Wickersham as a most comprehensive and sweeping victory for the government.

The trust is held to be a combination in restraint of trade—a monopoly in violation of law.

The decision affects 65 American corporations, 2 English corporations, and 29 individual defendants. An opportunity is given the trust to disintegrate and recreate a condition of transaction of business not repugnant to law.

If, at the end of six months, the corporations fail to bring themselves within the law, a receivership and dissolution by court decree will follow.

The trust is held to have been guilty of intimidation and clearly to have shown a purpose to stifle competition.

Chief Justice White announced the decision, which was practically unanimous, although Justice Harlan dissented on several points.

As in the Standard Oil cases Justice Harlan resented the application of the "rule of reason" to the Sherman anti-trust law.

The court having held the defendant corporations guilty of conscious wrong-doing, Justice Harlan "is not at all anxious" to perpetuate any new combination growing out of them.

Trust Will Conform to Decision. New York, May 30.—The tobacco trust will conform to the Supreme court decision. The officials meet

ANOTHER COTTON PICKER.

This One Invented By A Railroad Engineer.

They continue to invent cotton pickers, but so far none have been found sufficiently satisfactory to be adopted for common use. The news is sent out from Winston that Col. Oliver H. P. Cornell, chief engineer of the Winston-Salem south-bound railroad, is the inventor of a cotton picker which he and his associates are certain will do efficient labor and time-saving work, to the most practical ends. So confident are Colonel Cornell and associates of the value of the machine that a company has been organized for the manufacture of the cotton picker, with headquarters at Southmont, a village on the southbound railway, in Davidson county.—Salisbury Post.

Age of Earth is 400,000,000 Years.

Four hundred million years was given as the age of the earth today in a lecture by Prof. Thomas Chamberlin, head of the department of geology at the University of Chicago. His statement which placed the date formation of the planet at a time 400,000,000 years previous to that computed by physicists, is based on a new computation involving a study of radioactivity.

"The rate of the dissociation of uranium rock containing radium," said the professor, "shows us conclusively that the earth is at least 400,000,000 years old. This estimate is scientifically more accurate than that of physicists."—Chicago Dispatch.

HANRAHAN CORRESPONDENT'S VISIT TO GREENVILLE

MEETS WITH HIS NOBLE KINDRED

Training School Commencement Was Entrancing To Him.

Hanrahan, N. C., May 26.—We feel sure that the printer who has to decipher copy scribbled with a dull pencil often prays (if he does not get too badly worried to pray) that the one who scratches it would think a volume, write a page, and of that page publish but a single line.

Well, if we had to publish but one line of what we saw and heard at our Training school last Tuesday, it would be this: As we saw it, it was nigh to sublime. If we can comprehend the meaning of that word, we suppose it is something almost heavenly beautiful. And when we beheld that spacious rostrum crowned with young ladies from all parts of our state, and heard the sweet melody from their well trained voices, we thought of the vision on which Isaiah beheld before his lips were made clean. It was more rapturous and beautiful than this. We cannot wonder that he cried out "I am a man of unclean lips," especially if he had ever unthoughtfully used a profane or smutty word, and if what he saw was grander and more beautiful than was that scene as we beheld it, we are not surprised that the Seraphim with two of their wings did cover their face.

What made this scene so rapturous and beautiful? Because those young ladies who are to go out from there to train our children had been trained by unsurpassed, devoted Christian teachers. So much was this manifested that the chicana of God's love pervaded the whole rostrum.

The manner in which the orator of the day was dressed should teach us this lesson, and, to our mind, an important one, that is that people can dress comfortably and still be great, for surely greatness does not consist of pomp or show.

After we dined and rested an hour or two, we strolled down one of your most beautiful streets until we came to a corner lot, and back some distance from the street stood a lovely though unpretentious concrete house. In the front yard surrounded by no wall, only a hedge of evergreens, were lovely roses and beautiful flowers and in the midst of this charming scenery stood an uncrowned queen, a lady 70 years young gathering roses. Her face wore a pleasant smile, her form was symmetrical and erect, her tresses that were once raven black were frosted with the storms of many winters. As we beheld her, possessed of so much love and beauty, we could but turn in and in the front yard embrace, yes, and kiss her. Then we went in the porch and talked of by-gone days and of kith and kin. Her life has been an inspiration to me since the time I was a boy and visited her when she, as a widow, with three little boys and one little girl, living on a farm in an adjoining county. There we saw how she planned, labored and prayed for the development of her children, that they might become useful men, and a woman useful and good, such as God desires all girls should be, and such prayers as she sends up are ever answered. So today two of her boys are among your city's most prominent men. The other is a prominent hotel man in one of our Southern states, and the girl is all that a fond mother could hope for an only girl to be.

My mother was that woman's aunt, and the older I grow the more I love my royal kin.

Hanrahan, N. C., May 29.—While ago I took a stroll and wandered into a lovely forest (which are becoming so scarce that they are charming to me) and becoming weary, I sat down on the brow of a hill to rest and refresh myself beholding the beauties of nature in her beautiful form. I was not looking down for a sprig that might mark the place of some one dead, but was looking up, thinking of life and not of death, and behold, I found that I was under the canopy of an acca tree, the emblem of life and immortality. So I sat there and listened to the songs of the birds, feasting my eyes on the flowers and stately trees; and while thus enraptured, I must have dozed a little and dreamed that I heard a voice from the cleft of an adjacent rock. It was not an uncouth and harsh voice exclaiming that I am more guilty than you all, but it was a still, small voice whispering, and said, Why sit here musing? Get up and do something for your fellow man, for each and every man is your brother, and the world is growing better. And you have your part to do, however humble that part may be, only strive to do it well. Then me thought, can the world be growing better? and I contrasted a few scenes that come under my own observation.

Scene first.—When I was a wee tot "down on the farm," my dear mother, of blessed memory, and I one day went to a home. It was a hut built of logs and daubed with clay. The chimney which extended nearly across one end of the cabin was made of split logs notched up until it reached the funnel. The funnel was built of small sticks, rived out and they were piled up in a four-cornered square and then the whole thing was covered in clay. Every thing about the premises was neat and clean, the pine table was as clean as the marble counter of a soft dunk store, the home-made corded bedstead was polished until the post frame, on top of which immaculate curtains hung, even glistened, the floor made of 12-inch boards was whiter than many bread trays of even these days, the homespun, and it was homespun, and home-woven sheets and pillow cases were as clean as soap and water and brawny muscle could make them, and as smooth as a Chinese laundered shirt. On either side of the house with one end sticking behind the boards that were nailed over the cracks, were rows of cotton brooches towering one above the other, and these were spun by that woman's own hands. The seed were picked from the cotton that made the brooches by the fingers of two little children, one a boy and the other a sweet girl, that sat at her mother's knees, around that huge fire on that winter day, and listened to my mother and their mother; for children even now love to hear what mother and the company have to say. The man of the house was in the forest which surrounded the house, cutting wood to replenish this huge fire place.

As the afternoon was growing toward nightfall, the father emerged from the forest into the path that led from the forest to the main road, the eager, watchful eyes of the two children spied him, and they forgot what their mother and mine were

INTERESTING TALK BY MEDICAL MISSIONARY

ONE WHO HAS BEEN AND KNOWS

Dr. J. G. Meadows Spoke in the Baptist Church on China.

Dr. J. G. Meadows, medical missionary to China, who is back on a visit to his native land and spending a few days of this week in Greenville with his brother, Prof. L. R. Meadows, spoke in the Baptist church Wednesday night. While his talk was a long one, his great subject fully justified it, and he was listened to with great interest by all present. It was by far the best missionary talk our people have ever heard.

Dr. Meadows is a native of Louisiana, and has been a medical missionary in China for seven years. He is head physician of a hospital in Woo Chow, and while not a regular preacher but only a layman, he has that gift of fluent speech that enables him to preach to as well as practice his profession among the people he is called to serve. He says the physician has really better opportunities of reaching the heathen in missionary work than does the preacher, for while healing their bodies they can be told of the love of Jesus and how He will heal their souls.

In his talk he first told of the woeful lack of faith and want of real missionary spirit in this country, and the failure to heed the command of God to carry the gospel into all the world. He had been chided by some for going into the foreign field and was asked why he did not stay in his own land to practice his profession, but he could not resist the call to serve God in serving humanity and counted it the greatest joy and honor that could come to him to do the work in which he is engaged. Of course it takes personal sacrifice to do this but the joy far outweighs the price. Serving humanity and leading souls to Christ is laying up treasures in heaven, and that is what he is doing. God had promised to take care of him and go with him, and he is willing to trust Him.

Dr. Meadows also talked of conditions in China and the erroneous idea people here have of the people there. We cannot judge them by the "cooley" class who come to America. China, he said, has statesmen as great as are found in any nation of the world. The charge that they are non-progressive is wrong, they are endowed with progressive ideas and patriotism is strong with them. They are an industrious people, and the agriculturist takes higher rank than the merchant and tradesman. They have financiers equal of those found anywhere. The idea that they are an uncivilized people is a grossly mistaken one. Their civilization dates centuries prior to the civilization of America, for it has only been four hundred years since our ancestors were barbarians and some of them cannibals. It was the gospel of Christ that changed our condition in America, and the gospel is the great need in China. It was 104 years ago that missionary work first started there and it has made wonderful progress. China today is in a plastic state and the people are hungry for the gospel. As they learn and receive it, they often ask with surprise why it was not carried to them sooner. The opportunity to Christianize those people is great, and the wonder is that America does not send more missionaries to the work.

Dr. Meadows also stated a few instances of his personal work in the hospital and in preaching that were exceedingly interesting. In one city he mentioned seventeen temples for idol worship had been converted into school houses. He is enthused with his great work, and it is a privilege to hear him tell of it.

To Try Business Manager.

Some of the towns in the state are making a move toward the Staunton, Va., plan of municipal government—a plan which has proved most satisfactory and which is certainly a business one—and that is to employ a business manager to look after all the business of the town. Employ a competent man, pay him a good salary and require him to take the town's affairs and manage them with a view to securing best results for the money expended, just as practical business men engage the affairs of a corporation or any other business. The idea is to give the business manager absolute control to hire and discharge help. The mayor and aldermen act as the president and board of directors of a corporation and the business manager makes reports to them.

The towns of Monroe and Thomasville propose to try this plan, at least in modified form. The greatest difficulty in putting it into effect, as The Landmark sees it, will be to secure a competent man for the job. He will have to be an all-round man; will have to know how to have street work done, how to manage water and light plants, etc.; but certainly a man should be found, even at the salary the ordinary town can afford to pay, to have all this work done as well, if not better, than it is usually done under the slipshod methods necessarily in vogue in the average town under the usual municipal style of management.—Statesville Landmark.

NASAL CATARRH.

Mrs. E. Karberg Says It Is Easy to Get Rid Of.

"A bad case of catarrh was cured for me by the use of HYOMEI. The trouble affected my head, nose and eyes, and was very annoying and disagreeable, and the cure, from the use of HYOMEI, was very gratifying. HYOMEI has from me a strong recommend and endorsement."—Mrs. E. Karberg, 213 Kingsley St., Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 16, 1908.

HYOMEI (pronounce High-ome) cures catarrh, because it gets where the germs are, and destroys them. It is made of Australian eucalyptus, mixed with other healing antiseptics. When breathed over the irritated membrane, it gives relief in two minutes.

Use regularly for a few weeks it will build up and heal the germ infested membrane and drive out catarrh. If you own a small Hyomei pocket inhaler, you can get a bottle of Hyomei at drug stores everywhere, or at White's Drug Store, for only 50 cents. If you do not own a HYOMEI inhaler, ask for a complete outfit, the price is $1. It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, coughs, colds, croup or sore throat, or money back.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.

As illustrating the remarkable progress of the South during the last few years, the Manufacturers Record of Baltimore points to "the change which has taken place in the newspapers of the leading towns and cities of that section in that period," and makes a suggestion which should be worth a great deal to any community where it is practical "Southern papers are every day becoming more and more in themselves advertisements of their communities," says the Record, and adds:

The outside man not familiar with the South who picks up a daily paper from any one of its leading cities, will get an impression about Southern business life and activity that will necessarily have a lasting effect. It might, indeed, be a good policy for every business man in the South, after he has read his local paper, to mail it to some friend elsewhere. The influence for good could hardly be estimated. It is quite certain that every paper sent from any part of the South to Northern or Western not be read without creating a new not be said without creating a new impression about business activity in the South. If every banking house, for instance, would make it a rule to have the daily papers which it receives mailed after they have been read to its correspondents in other sections, taking by turns the names on its list, it would find the small postage returned a thousandfold through a closer acquaintanceship and in enlarged business with its outside banking friends. The same is true as to every other line of business in the South. No man is doing business in that section without having acquaintances or correspondents elsewhere. Let everyone make it a rule to send some outside friend every copy of his daily paper which now goes to the wastebasket after it has been read. In the aggregate millions of copies of Southern papers would in this way annually reach people in other sections. The cost is small; the value to the South would be great.

A STITCH IN TIME.

In his annual address before the National Fire Association, in New York, President W. H. Merrill stated that "More than 20,000 lives and two billion dollars' worth of property have been sacrificed to fire in the United States during the past fifteen years." Leaving out of consideration this appalling loss of human lives, home owners and business men may well reflect upon the causes of such disaster. However variable the circumstances attending the origin of fires, in the majority of cases, doubtless, the primary cause is simply inexcusable carelessness; and as to fire control the most significant condition is that of unpreparedness. This is the case in the country and in many towns. Sensible caution and precaution are the twin remedies for this situation; avoiding the necessity of contending with flames, but being equipped for the necessity. For home use chemical fire extinguishers may be had at no great cost. Hose sufficient to reach any part of the house from the water pipe should be handy, and means for getting on the roof quickly should be provided. Safety lies in attending to the small blaze. A match may be smothered under a thimble.

But in spite of these measures, fire will occasionally get beyond control; and a partial remedy has been provided. Under ordinary conditions fire insurance is too cheap to be neglected, considering what it means in time of need. "Too late to lock the stable after the horse has been stolen."

WORK OF NORFOLK SOUTHERN.

While in Greenville Friday, Mr. W. W. Croxton, general passenger agent of the Norfolk Southern railroad, told The Reflector of a special work his road is now undertaking to induce settlers to come to Eastern North Carolina. Data is being collected for a booklet to be distributed through the North and West. This booklet is to tell the advantages of this favored section, not only of the farms but of the towns as well. The kinds of soil, variety of crops grown, climatic conditions, varied industries, opportunities for manufacturing, educational and social advantages are all to be taken before prospective home seekers. Every town touched by the Norfolk Southern and every county through which the road passes, should co-operate with the railroad company in this movement to advertise Eastern North Carolina. In addition to this work of advertising through the North and West, the Norfolk Southern has engaged Dr. Moenich, a professor of Atlantic Christian College at Wilson, who is to spend his summer vacation in Europe, to make a six week's canvas in Germany with a view of interesting German immigrants to come to Eastern North Carolina. The road is certainly to be commended for its efforts to advance this section.

THE FARMERS' WISE MOVE.

A noteworthy change in Southern agricultural conditions is apparent in the statement by Grossvenor Dawe, managing director of the Southern Commercial Congress, that, owing to diversification of crops and the influence of the boys' corn growing contest clubs, shipments of Western corn into the South have fallen off in one year eleven per cent. Whether blameless or not, the farmers of the South have thrown away millions of dollars in swapping cotton for Western meat, hay and grain. The profit on cotton has not been sufficient to offset the difference between the price of these supplies and the cost at which they could have been produced here at home. Whether the one-crop practice is being abandoned in tardy recognition of this fact or as a result of more favorable conditions is not so material. By diversification, intensive methods, modern implements, and a greater appreciation of his resources, the farmer of the South is coming into his own. Home grown supplies mean not only financial independence to the Southern farmer, for no where else can he get the quality in these articles that our own soil and climate yields.

MAYOR OF LEAST IMPORTANCE.

While Greenville should have a good mayor, and a good one will be nominated out of the three to be voted for in the primary Monday, yet the question of who shall be mayor of the town is not near so important as who shall compose the board of aldermen. For these places the very best men to be had should be selected—men of known business capacity who can manage important affairs. Greenville has long since passed the stage of growth and development when anybody who can be picked up, or anyone who may aspire to the position, will do for an alderman. The voters of the town should think of this when they go about selecting the men to govern the town. The aldermen are the ones who do this, the mayor having no voice either in making the laws or in expending the town's money. Give the town good aldermen and let the town take no backward step.

SELECT GOOD ALDERMEN.

In another week Greenville will nominate candidates for aldermen to be elected the first Monday in June, and candidates are being talked. There are no more important positions in connection with the town's affairs than the aldermen, and the people cannot be too careful whom they select for these. Just picking up anybody because he happens to want to be an alderman is not wise. There is too much at stake. Good men who have ability are needed to conduct the affairs of the town, and no man who has little or no interest in the town should be selected. It is not a time to be "grinding axes" or trying to engineer certain schemes. Good government with good men in office should be the first consideration of every voter.

TO THE POINT.

Since noting, in another paragraph, the suggestion of the Manufacturers Record relative to a wider circulation of the advertising the South receives through its newspapers, in consequence of the business activity and prosperity they reflect, the Wilmington Star comes to hand with an illustration of the kind in this editorial remark:

"Everybody can tell that Greensboro is a good town when they see its three excellent daily newspapers. They are mirrors of a thrifty community and we see Greensboro in them every time we look into any of them. Nothing but a good town of the size of Greensboro would send out just such newspapers as its afternoon paper, The Record, and its two morning papers, The News and The Telegram."

The Presbyterian General Assembly's committee on temperance reported $2,256,324,447 as being the amount spent by the people of the United States for liquor in 1910. If the reader is clever at figures, and, by reason of unusually fortunate circumstances, not aware of the nature of liquor, and its effects, nor of the incidentals of its manufacture, sale and consumption, beyond the properties and appurtenances of a popular beverage, he could doubtless arrive at a very creditable demonstration of prosperity in the United States in 1910.

Some of the papers are commenting on the fact that Senator Simmons and ex-Governor Aycock are still friends, and both of them candidates for the senate. Nothing strange about their remaining friends. It is exactly what they ought to do.

Major L'Enfant was nearly a hundred years getting the honor due him. Some people never get it at all, neither while they are living nor after they are dead.

EVERY LITTLE BIT HELPS.

"Clean-up" day and clean-up week are becoming deservedly popular. Obviously there is no reason why the "spring cleaning" idea of our housekeepers should not have been extended, in the course of evolution, so as to include the premises. That this has been the tendency is evidenced by the early practice of occasionally brushing off that part of the home lot lying between the residence and the street. From doing this once or twice a year, and observing good results, our ancestors gradually shortened the intervals between until within recent years the front yard is kept scrupulously neat, clean and sweet.

Accumulations of disease-breeding filth characteristic of back premises, with debris unsightly, to say the least, force occasional disposition. If the consequences of this untidiness and neglect were to be attended to as infrequently as the cause now sought to be removed—as, for instance by the doctor seeing but once a year a patient who is chronically ill, we should be justly indignant, shouldn't we? But "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." If the effects of unsanitary conditions demand urgent and persistent treatment, why not, at much less expense, inconvenience and risk, make sanitation a condition instead of a circumstance of annual seasons?

How would it do to turn the domestic premises hind-part-before, leaving the clean, inviting lawn in the rear for a time, while the back yard basks in the sweet sunshine of spring days, smiled upon by admiring eyes? Oh, oh!! oh!!! Really, now, don't you think you might be able to get to that back lot with shovel and tongs, pitchfork and broom a little bit oftener than semi-annually?

OBJECT LESSON ON ROADS.

A most striking contrast between a good road and a bad road is now shown in the road from Greenville to Falkland, and every one who traveled over this road going to the Farmers' Union picnic at Centre Bluff, Thursday, had a real object lesson. The editor of The Reflector was in a party taken out by Mr. H. A. White in his automobile, and the trip gave abundant opportunity to observe the condition of the roads. The first three miles of the road, from Greenville to Mr. O. L. Joyner's farm, where the sand-clay work has been done, is as fine a section of road as could be wished for. It is as hard and smooth as a paved street, and to ride over such a road is a delight. From the end of the sand-clay work on as far as we went, the road is almost a disgrace to an enlightened people. A succession of sand beds, ruts and holes, the road is so heavy and rough as to make travel over it difficult and uncomfortable. Such a road is a severe strain on any vehicle or team that goes over it. To travel these two sections of road and note the contrast ought to be sufficient to make any right thinking person an advocate of good roads.

In knocking about the country you have occasionally run across a piece of art worked out by the wayside, of such common materials as soil, grass, trees, and flowers. Order and harmony made appeal to every point of view, and every nook and corner sent forth a fragrance. The birds were fuller of happiness there. You will recall, for instance, a portion of East Orange, New Jersey, or perhaps of Bull street, Savannah. You lingered and passed on, wondering what unanimity of purpose and effort could have resulted so perfectly. If this memory of a distant oasis should inspire such a beauty spot in every city, town and village, it were not in vain.

In noting the retirement of the last of the "floating indebtedness" of Reidsville, Webster's Weekly passes to the officials and the city this complimentary note:

"Two years hence Mayor Womack and his associates will be able to turn over to their successors one of the prettiest and cleanest towns in North Carolina, in the matter of streets, sewerage, electric lights, water supply, etc., and with order and efficiency in every department. With this work accomplished, they will feel content to retire to the ranks."

Such, indeed, is food for contentment. Efficiency and faithfulness in any line of duty is self consolatory, and when exercised in the service of one's community, whether upon a large or small scale, for remuneration or not, affords a compensation peculiarly satisfying.

"Universal Peace" was the subject of the last Sunday school lesson taught throughout the United States. From the general application of such a lesson there ought to be good results. Universal peace should prevail, with a disarming of all the nations of the world. Think of the immense millions in money, as well as countless lives, that would be saved under such conditions. The United States alone spends enough for warfare—in battleships, equipment, and maintaining a navy and standing army—to carry on every other department of the government. And it is money that could be saved if there was universal peace.

A contemporary heads a dispatch, "De la Barra gets busy." Apropos of which, it seems worth noting that an older man than De la Barra got busy a few days ago—getting out of that country. But the real point to which we would direct our contemporary's attention is, that if any considerable number of those Mexicans who for some time past have been idling away a lot of valuable time revolving take a notion to follow De la Barra's example, there is likely to be something doing south of the United States.

The $310,000 in bonds to be issued by the state for the erection of an administration building at a cost of $250,000, and a school for the feeble minded at a cost of $60,000, have been awarded to C. C. McDonald, of Raleigh and A. B. Leach & Company, of New York, for $310,124. These gentlemen were the highest bidders. The bonds will run forty years and bear 4 per cent interest.

"President Taft is right in his contention that rich malefactors shall be made to feel the hand of the law, but the fight Banker Morse's wife put up for him won our sympathy. A man with a wife like he has, ought never to have done any thing penitentiary-able," says the Charlotte Observer. He oughtn't, indeed; but if every man deported circumspcctly in proportion to his wife's deserts there wouldn't be any rich malefactors.

A constituent is against Clark because he can do better with the job he is on than with the one he is after. It is possible that this consideration will be overlooked by some unless something happens before election to show what a senator is going to do with the job and what the job is going to do with the senator.

The Reflector never minds being quoted, but it is at least entitled to the courtesy of being quoted correctly. This paper does not have to "seem to think" in getting its opinions before its readers, but thinks what it says and says what it thinks.

We are willing to concede that the trusts are not altogether as bad as they would like to be. Still, it is not improbable that they would show some improvement, through the operation of a method for putting such things in jail.

Here is a suggestion, gratis, that is worth some dough if you know how to work it: organize a company to sell good roads on the instalment plan, with a guarantee to give satisfaction or refund the money.

We are reasonably assured that there is to be no unseemly scramble. It is not to be inferred, however, that either one of the Big Four is going to let the other fellow take it away from him, if he sees him first.

Five aces in one deck, according to a news item, was the cause of three deaths and a fatal wound. Which is only another evidence of the fact that it is possible to have too much of a good thing.

It being a year and a half since the senatorial primary, the people are not likely to do as much worrying over it in the meantime as the candidates are.

If the anti-good roads people have captured a sample from a community that was willing to give it up they ought to put it on exhibition.

There is only one good reason for encouraging automobile accidents—the last one generally instills enough caution to prevent several others.

There are three candidates for mayor to be voted for in the primary Monday. They all expect to be nominated, but only one will get it.

The best thing for the farmer is, that if he undertakes to keep up with all the advice he can get for nothing, he'll not have time to follow it.

They are pushing Stimson fast. The latest is that he is being groomed for running mate with Taft on the next Republican presidential ticket.

Much interest centers around the United States Supreme court's decision in the suit against the tobacco trust that is expected to be handed down today.

The Wilmington Dispatch jumps clear over the present bunch of candidates and says "Well, we are for Senator Overman time after next anyhow." Same here.

Just now apples are selling in Greenville at 5 to 8 cents apiece. Looks like apple culture would be a good thing for the attention of the farmers.

It is sometimes harder to collect money than it is to make it. In other words, it is earned over twice before it is received.

Sift it down to the man who knows most of what he is talking about and you will find one who doesn't talk.

Talking good roads is one thing and building them is another. What Pitt county needs to do is get busy with the building.

Some of them are "cussing" about the dog tax law. All the same they better "give in" their dogs when they list taxes.

It is now up to the skimmed milk condensers to get acquainted with Dr. Wiley and the Agricultural Department.

Wonder if ex-President Diaz will make himself as noisy as ex-President Roosevelt.

DEPUTY SHERIFF IS SHOT AT DUNN

Was After a Fleeing Blind Tiger, Who Made His Escape

$350 REWARD FOR BLIND TIGER

John Aiken Shoots and Dangerously Wounds Deputy Sheriff Thadde Jernigan—He Escapes to the Woods The Military Is Called Out—Reports Are That Jernigan Will Not Live.

Dunn, N. C., May 25.—Dunn is aroused over the shooting of Deputy Sheriff Thadde Jernigan, who is not expected to live, by John Aiken, a white man, when Jernigan went with six others to arrest Aiken, who is charged with running a blind tiger. Aiken escaped to the woods after shooting Jernigan, and has not been found. Posses are searching for him, and the Dunn military company has been called out by the sheriff to assist in the search. There is excitement throughout Harnett county wherever the news has been heard.

The county of Harnett has offered a reward of $100 for the capture of Aiken, the town of Dunn has offered another $100 and the citizens of Dunn have raised $150 and added to the fund. This makes $350 that is offered for Aiken's capture.

This afternoon, having a warrant for Aiken's arrest on the charge of the illegal sale of whiskey, Deputy Sheriff Jernigan, with six others in the party, went to Aiken's house about a hundred yards outside the corporate limits. The party went in at the front door and Aiken fled by a back window. The party started after him, and while running, Aiken turned and shot back with an automatic pistol. The bullet struck Jernigan just below the heart, and he fell. Aiken got away in the woods.

Jernigan was at once brought into town and given medical attention. Late tonight the doctors say he has very little chance to live.

Sheriff Lanier was informed of the shooting. He was at Lillington, and after talking with state officials in Raleigh, had Capt. V. C. Parker to order out the Dunn military company to aid in the search.

When Aiken's house was entered, another white man was found in it. His name is John Coach and he was arrested. He is now in the lock-up. During the afternoon Aiken had sent his wife to her father's, and only he and Coach were in the house.

Aiken weighs about 165 pounds, is about 5 feet 8 to 10 inches tall, is clean shaven and has dark hair. The authorities will pay the reward named for his capture.—News and Observer.

Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sir:

The Secret of Real Efficiency.

Many fairly successful men are constantly pointing to the man higher up and draw comparisons which, while fair to him, are equally as favorable to themselves. They admit that Mr. so-and-so is a good fellow, the right man in the right place, and all that. But they analyze him point by point and draw the parallel between him and themselves and when they get through they cannot honestly see any difference between the two columns at all. Then they wonder why it is that Mr. and so-and-so is above them. They get well up on the ladder, they reach the very rung next to the top one, and there they stick. Somehow they cannot make the last step. Sometimes they halfway make it but they invariably fall back. The ascent up to this point has been comparatively easy to their splendid abilities and accomplishments. Naturally they cannot understand why it is that they cannot get to the top rung. Most likely they never will. For the line that differentiates them from the man at the top is drawn so fine that they cannot see it at all. This is the real reason of which the vast majority remain in ignorance for life.

Ambition, hope, energy, ability, education, character—these are all good, but they alone will not enable you to reach the summit.

Genius has been defined as the infinite capacity for taking pains, and the truth about these men is that they cannot magnify their brain-visions to that power whereby they could see the line of demarcation clearly and with unblurred judgment. They go to a race and see a horse win by a nose but they do not realize that a distance of one foot may mean the loss or gain of a fortune, that a difference of one ten-thousandth or one one hundredth of one per cent. represents exactly the difference between one horse and another as far as results go.

Again they wonder why Dan Patch won and the other horses lost.

Examine the fellow on the top rung. Did he not gain that eminent place because he trained himself unremittently in a Spartan school of his own making?

The winning horse has a scientific trainer to develop every point, no matter how minute, that may have ever the remotest bearing on the result. The winning man must train and develop himself. There is no one who can do it so well for him. The failure to attain the top rung is because of the lack of appreciation of the fine points of the game or an utter ignorance of them. Or if there is an appreciation of them the man may not be willing to make the necessary sacrifices to gain and maintain that extra one hundredth of one per cent that counts so tremendously in the final reckoning.

Measure and develop your ability scientifically, exactly, correctly, and with the utmost precision. Study the fine points of the game; they count in the final inning.

It is not so much the determination to win of itself that does so; it is the earnest desire to be perfect, or nearly so, in your chosen field, amounting to a passion, of you wish to call it so, that really wins and accomplish that which is truly worth while. Work for the real work's sake is what puts your genius on the top rung of the ladder. And nine times out of ten he is totally oblivious of the ladder under him—he is only looking at the stars in the infinite space above him, seeking earnestly for new worlds to conquer. What to such a man is the small tumult that rages 'round the lowest rungs? Nothing.

Tennyson said that our echoes roll from soul to soul and go on forever. So it is. To do work that is work and be of service to our fellow men, and through them to ourselves, we must realize that the smallest details count. It is this marvelous devotion to singleness of purpose that made Langley give us the bolometer which registers temperature correctly to one millionth of one degree, that made Brashear construct a mirror level to one millionth of an inch in thirty-six inches, that made Edison, Bell, and a score of others achieve wonders for the benefit of the world, that resulted in scales so delicate that if you balance a slip of paper on them, then write your name in pencil on the slip, it would register the difference in weight!

Develop, expand, reach out. Do not be content with the outward seeming success. Train yourself mentally, physically, spiritually to occupy the top rung of the ladder—and to be worthy of it. There is but one to train you; and there is no one who will do it so well as yourself. Learn now to know the difference, to see clearly the line that separates the man on the top rung and the thousand just one step lower down.

Success is not mere love of success alone, it is love of an ideal.

Strive toward that goal and do not let you selfish self say you nay.—The Merchants Journal.

Many Holidays for Miners.

One of the queerest phases of hard coal mining, in northeastern Pennsylvania, is the celebration of dozens of different holidays by foreign-born mine workers. Sometimes one of these celebrations, unannounced, and not expected by the mine management, draws away enough workers to stop completely the operation of the mine.

The difficulty comes from the varying nationality of the men. At one colliery there may be workers from twenty countries; often a visitor sees regulations, posted at the head of the shaft, printed in a dozen or more languages. Each nationality or religious sect has its "holy days" and "feast days" and other occasions for celebration. The colony of Hungarians cannot understand why, just because they happen to be in America, they should forsake the practice of their native land.

The worst part about it is that, in many cases, they do not notify foreman in advance; they seem to take it for granted that everybody knows that they are not going to work on certain days. To keep the many foreign holidays in his head a foreman would have to be a sort of human almanac.

It has proved impossible to bring about uniformity in regard to the observance of holidays. The attempt to do so is much like it would be to try to get all the foreign-born mine workers to speak the same language. The mine workers' organizations, as well as the operators, have tried in vain to find a remedy for the situation.

Asia's Most Important Lesson.

No, the prosperity of every man of every interest, of every industry depends upon the prosperity of the average man with whom that individual or industry has to do. You prosper today, you live in greater comfort, simply because men in other ages have encouraged knowledge, education, and as a result of knowledge, have better tools and machinery for men to labor with. That is our debt to the past; to the future we owe the duty of encouraging knowledge in constantly increasing degree.

Pity—may God pity!—the man who fancies he owes nothing to the schools, who pays his tax for education grudgingly as if it were a charity,—as if he had only himself to thank for the property on which the government levies a pitiable mill or so for the advancement and diffusion of knowledge among mankind. Pity him if he have not considered he small enough of soul to repudiate the debt he owes the race. But for what education has brought us from all its past, but for what it has wrought through the invention of better tools and the better management (through increased knowledge) of all the powers with which men labor, our close-fisted, short-sighted tax-payer would himself be living in a shelter of brush, shooting game with a bow and arrow, cultivating corn with a crooked stick.

Most of what he has he owes to his racial heritage; it is only because other men prosper that he prospers. And yet owing so much to the past, he would do nothing for the future; owing so much to the progress the race has made, he would do nothing to insure a continuance of that progress.—Clarence Poe, in Progressive Farmer.

talking about, and with swift unshod feet (though it was cold) they ran to meet him. I followed and when they came to this horny handed son of toil, he stooped and kissed and caressed them, and spoke very gently to me. He gathered his two tots, one underneath each arm, and told me to crawl on his strong back, which I did, and thus he conveyed us to the cabin. At the door he deposited us and greeted his wife with a loving smile, a spoke pleasantly to my mother. Then he made ready for his second and last meal for that day. The meal consisted of Indian corn-bread baked in an oven on the hearth, sweet potatoes roasted in the ashes, home-made bacon and winter collards boiled in a pot hung on a crane. They had no biscuits in those days, except on Sunday and when company came, and mother had told the good woman that we could not stay for the meal, but I had already eaten some of those delicious potatoes and wanted some of those collards, when mother said we must go. So we left them to enjoy that wholesome meal, sweetened with the sauce of love, mixed with the cream of contentment. (To be continued.)

Immigrants and the Church.

Senator Dillingham, of Vermont, gave the Northern Presbyterian Assembly convened at Atlantic City, some very plain talk the other day on the subject of the church's attitude towards the immigrants who are pouring into this country. After denying that these newcomers are, as a class, unlearned, vicious or idle, and calling pointed attention to the fact that they are much more apt to send their children to school and keep them there than many native-born Americans, the senator continued: "The trouble is that these people when they come here live a life of isolation. They have come to us in such numbers as to be regarded as nothing more than so many elements of production. I think we ought to open our churches to them and let them sit down with us. It seems to me that we should give them such a welcome as to make them truly feel that they are one of us."

HISTORIC WASHINGTON HOME

General's Headquarters at Rocky Hill N. J., A Colonial Museum.

In the little village of Rocky Hill, N. J., some four miles beyond Princeton, stands the old Berrien farmhouse, in which George Washington spent the autumn of 1783. The active operations of the revolution were over then, so his days at Rocky Hill were passed in writing the farewell address to the army, in sitting to Peale and William Dunlap for his portrait, and in receiving the distinguished statesmen who sought him here and talked over the country's future. From here he rode frequently to Old Nassau Hall at Princeton, where congress was then sitting, and it was here in this very house that he received news of the signing of the definitive treaty of Paris, which recognized American independence and gave to the United States all the territory from the Alleghenies to the Mississippi. It may, therefore, not be claiming too much to say that the Rocky Hill headquarters witnessed the most triumphant day of Washington's life. And those who love to visit places hallowed by such associations may now, thanks to some patriotic women of the neighborhood, add this last revolutionary residence of Washington to the number.

It is a plain white frame building, claiming nothing more in the way of beauty than those good proportions that make all old farmhouses admirable. At the time in question it was the property of Mrs. Margaret Berrien, widow of a prominent New Jersey judge; and, as she wished to dispose of it, Congress having invited Washington to be present at its session, hired it for him pending its sale, and he and his retinue moved into it on August 24, 1783.

As a museum of colonial furnishings Rocky Hill is far more representative than either the Morristown or the Newburgh headquarters. Down to the minute household appliances, everything of the period is there, and, what is more, every piece is fully authenticated, having been donated by some revolutionary family of the neighborhood. The tables, chairs, clocks, cabinets, and the built-in mantel-pieces and china cupboards all have that artistic, vital quality that machine-made moldings and ornaments long ago drove from the field. The lover of stout old mahogany and of delicate old china, of rosy copper and dull pewter could not find a richer collection to study in all the country.—New York Press.

MR. WOOTEN THE NOMINEE
Though Lacking Three Votes of Having a Majority

MR. JAMES WITHDRAWS FROM RACE

The Primary Brought Out Almost the Full Registered Vote—Second Primary Avoided by Withdrawal of Next Highest Candidate—Election Will Be Held June Fifth.

After a warmly contested campaign for the nomination for mayor of Greenville, which had been conducted in the most friendly spirit and without any strife or bitterness, a primary was held Monday. All day long the three candidates and their friends worked hard and the result of their efforts is shown in the very large vote. There was a total of 388 votes cast, which was only about 30 short of the full registered vote of the town. Of the votes cast the three candidates received the following:

F. M. Wooten	192
J. B. James	137
W. F. Evans	59

Necessary to a choice..... 195

From this it will be seen that Mr. Wooten, the present mayor, fell short only three votes of enough to secure a nomination over the combined number received by both of his competitors. Under the rules governing primaries, that only the two receiving the highest vote can remain in the race in case a second primary is held, Monday's vote eliminated Mr. Evans and left Mr. Wooten and Mr. James to finish the contest.

Mr. James, having decided not to ask for another primary, the nomination goes to Mr. Wooten.

Official Returns and Announcement
To D. C. Moore, chairman of the Democratic Executive committee of the town of Greenville:

We, the undersigned pollholders at the primary held on this day, for the nomination of a candidate for mayor of the town of Greenville, N. C., to be voted for at the election to be held on the first Monday and 5th day of June, 1911, do certify that the following is the correct vote cast at said primary:

F. M. Wooten received 192 votes.
J. B. James received 137 votes.
W. F. Evans received 59 votes.
Given under our hands, this 29th 1911.

Now, therefore, I, D. C. Moore as chairman of the Democratic Executive committee of the town of Greenville, do hereby declare Mr. F. M. Wooten the regular Democratic nominee for mayor of the town of Greenville.

This the 30th day of May, 1911.
D. C. MOORE, Chairman.

ESCAPED FROM HOSPITAL.
William Brown, a Negro Shot by Officer Tindall Got Away.

William Brown, the negro who was shot several days ago, by Deputy Sheriff Louis Tindall while resisting arrest, made his escape Saturday night from the James Walker Memorial hospital. At last accounts he had not been recaptured. To judge from the negro's successful get away he must have been possessed of guilty conscience and felt that he would fare badly in court investigation of his illegal attempts to get away from Officer Tindall. The exact hour of Brown's departure from the Walker hospital is not known. It is stated that he succeeded in getting out of the ward by climbing over a transom. The police department was notified Saturday night that Brown had gotten away and officers have been on the lookout for the man since that time.

It will be remembered that Brown was arrested by Officer Tindall in the northern section of the city and that the negro made desperate efforts to strike the officer with handcuffs. The deputy was finally compelled to shoot the negro in self defense, the bullet lodging in Brown's side.—Wilmington Dispatch.

J. B. JAMES.

Card From Mr. Wooten.
My gratitude to the people of Greenville prompts me to publish this card of appreciation, hoping that every citizen may read it and know that I am grateful for the trust that has been committed to me by nominating me for your mayor. I shall endeavor to hold your confidence by my living and my works.

I am sorry that each candidate could not realize his worthy ambition, but such was not possible.
Sincerely,
FRANK M. WOOTEN.

TAKES DEFEAT GRACEFULLY.
And Thanks His Friends For All They Did For Him.

I desire to express my appreciation for the support given me by those who voted my ticket in Monday's primary, and while I met with defeat, I feel that they did for me all that they could. On account of being the last to announce my candidacy, a great many of my friends were pledged to the other candidates. It is also true that I had quite a goodly number of somebody else's friends who had promised to vote for me, but in passing through that awful conflict at the ballot box, with candidates to the left of them and candidates to the right of them, they fell—and somebody else got their votes. But they perished in a good cause, and I bear no ill will to their remains.

While I lost the nomination, I sincerely trust I lost no friends. Certain it is that no one has lost my friendship. I wish good health to the successful man.
W. F. EVANS.

HAS NO MORALS.
What Governor Woodrow Wilson In A Speech Says.

"The trouble with the corporation is that it is an invention. It is not a moral unit, as person is. A person has a definite, calculable character. His neighbors and associates, at any rate, know what kind of a man he is. They know the motives that govern him, and the influences that will control him. They know how he can be restrained by opinion and punished by law. But a corporation escapes these measures and restraints. It is not anybody in particular. Its very actions are often, if you look into them, just a series of moral compromises, made up of as much of the varied judgments of different people as can be put together in one determination or action. Therefore, the ancient complaint that a corporation has no body to be kicked or soul to be damned.

"Neither is the corporation a social unit. Those who hold its stock are generally scattered through a score of communities, and those who manage it are often, likewise, residents of different parts of the country, affected by different bodies of opinion, governed by different motives and environments. And so it is hard to bring to bear upon a corporation the judgment of any community, or of any state, even. It is a device for combining a very large variety of persons, and often a large variety of interests, over the space of many varied sections of the country."

ASHEVILLE BOYS SENT HOME.
Four Youths Who Had Started Out On Foot For The Lower Altitudes.

The police department yesterday afternoon disposed of its four youthful charges from Asheville, who had come into headquarters in the patrol some time earlier, by presenting three of them with a ticket good for one trip from Charlotte to Asheville, and by personally conducting them to a waiting Southern passenger train. The fourth went to remain here.

The wanderers, who had set out to roam for pleasure, but who were most carefully disappointed in the expectations, were Jack Reed, Ore Mitchell, Gus Ella and Clarence Lauter. The boys had been on the road, and in the heat of the day, some miles out of Asheville, they had journeyed their trip for the night in an inviting looking place on the road, when they were discovered by the farmer and put under arrest. The police department, informed of the case, immediately came to the city.

The boys were taken to the police station where they were held until their father was notified. The father, and Mitchell declared that they had relatives in Charlotte, and he was shortly turned over to them. The boys who were dispatched back to the Mountain City, were held in a cell at the station until their disposition had been determined upon.

One of many cases where Peruna has done what other remedies failed to do.

MR. C. A. LANDGRABE.

Mr. C. A. Landgrabe, Box 25, Coalburg, Ohio, writes: "I had been a slight sufferer for a number of years, but paid little or no attention to it, until the spring of this year, when my sufferings became very severe.

"I had pain in the head, back, spine, liver, chest, and various parts of my body, besides indigestion that caused me much trouble and anxiety. I often thought when I retired at night I would not live through it. I tried medical aid, but to no purpose.

"Not knowing what was my main trouble I wrote to Dr. Hartman, after reading of his treatment, for advice, telling him of my various ailments, and he notified me at once that I had systemic catarrh.

"After using the first bottle of Peruna I felt relief, so I continued to use it until I had taken four bottles, when I felt entirely cured. I recommend it to all others, believing that they will experience the relief that I did."

Per-na as a Tonic.
Mr. William F. Hawkins, 12 West St., Westerly, R. I., writes:
"I wish to give my testimony in favor of Peruna as a tonic. I have used the same for catarrh, and can recommend it to all who are troubled in that way."

THE BLIND TIGER GETS IN COURT

Strong Booze Cuts Some Mysterious Capers.

Saturday afternoon Police Clerk detected a suspicious aspect to the movements of a white man in the rear of the Raleigh Stables.

Investigation brought to view one of those half-pints that snugly fit the pocket and the disposition of a man so overcome by the heat that he must have spirituous support.

A Mr. Morris produced the bottle, saying that he requested John House, a young colored man living on Clark street to get him some liquor; that House said he didn't have any, so he laid a quarter in a hack and turned back. When he looked in the hack again the quarter was gone, but the half-pint was there. House, he said, had not gone off in the meantime, and nobody else was present, but, with his back turned, he did not see what had taken place.

Now, some of the stuff sent to Greenville in half-pint bottles and five gallon jugs has the reputation of being strong and "strengthful," but so far none of it has been seen jumping up in a hack without assistance. So John House was interviewed, and it was such a "heart-to-heart" little talk between him and the inquisitive Mr. Clark, that more half-pints just naturally slipped out of John's pockets and were there for an hour. The fact that the Judge's Fountain, where Clark and Morris were recognized, was an average at the Raleigh Stables, was a fact that was not mentioned.

"THE CALL TO THE BOY" DISCUSSED WITH INTEREST

MEN'S PRAYER LEAGUE SUNDAY.

The Subject For Next Sunday "Give Your Best."

There was not quite as good attendance at the meeting of the Men's Prayer League in the Baptist church, Sunday afternoon, as formerly, but enough were out to make it a good meeting. The subject for discussion was "The Call to the Boy," and two of the leaders, Messrs. Ben Taylor and Adrian Brown, made exceptionally good talks. It was emphasized that more calls come to the boy—in business and religious life—and that he looks to the men for example and guidance.

The meeting next Sunday afternoon will be held in the Methodist church. Subject, "Give Your Best." Text, Psalm 116:12. Leaders, Messrs. C. C. Pierce, E. A. Moye and J. C. Lanier, Jr.

THERE WAS A DIFFERENCE.

Ladies Left Their Hats Home At Evening Service.

Sunday morning Rev. C. M. Rock pastor of Memorial Baptist church, made a request of the ladies of the congregation that for the summer they would leave their hats at home when they come to the evening service. The request met with a very gratifying response, and on Sunday night there were very few hats in the church, but there was a corresponding amount of neck twisting to be seen. The ladies began to complain.

SOME ONE EXPLAIN!

Why Tax Listers to Know Why Tax Listing Was Changed.

Reflector: The May tax lister has put the last legislature change the time of tax listing from June back to May?

I do not see where the change can affect the people in any other vocation of life, but it effects the farmer in that he has more provisions in May than in June. His taxes are one-twelfth more then, saying that his provisions would last twelve months, which is the exception rather than the rule.

We would like to know what the motives were for changing the tax listing time. Was the change made in our behalf or whose?

We may be misled as to the effect of the change, but my object here is to learn. An article of explanation would be appreciated. M. H. S.

FARMERS' UNION GREAT PICNIC

There Were Fully Three Thousand People In Attendance

WAS A GREAT DAY AT CENTRE BLUFF

Crowd Enjoys Bountiful Dinner—Mr. T. B. Parker, President R. H. Wright and Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale, All Make Good Speeches—Most Successful Occasion.

Fully three thousand people were at the Farmers' Union picnic at Centre Bluff Thursday. Not only was every section of Pitt county represented, but people were there from all the neighboring counties. They began arriving early, they stayed late, and the day was enjoyed to the utmost.

It was a splendid location for a picnic. A high bluff overlooks the river at a picturesque spot, and extending back for acres is a green sward with numerous shade trees here and there, with woods forming the background.

The committees appointed by the Farmers' Union to arrange for the picnic certainly did their work well. They planned for big things and big things were carried out. A table hundreds of yards long was built in square form, and around this the great crowd gathered when dinner was announced. And such a dinner as was spread before them. It was both elegant and abundant, a plenty and to spare even though a multitude was fed. It was well prepared, splendidly served, and none turned away unsatisfied.

About three hours of the afternoon was devoted to speaking. In a grove on the bluff where refreshing breezes swept from the river, a platform had been erected, and around this as many of the crowd as could get in easy hearing distance gathered. Here Mr. T. L. Williams was master of ceremonies. He called on Mr. W. H. Moore, who, in brief but appropriate words, welcomed all to the picnic and pleasures of the day.

Senator R. R. Cotten fittingly introduced Mr. T. B. Parker, of the State Agricultural Department, who was the first speaker. Mr. Parker spoke on "Agricultural Uplift." He said this uplift should begin first in the home and extend to the fields. By comparison with conditions forty years ago, he pictured the great progress that had been made both in country homes and on the farms, and predicted much greater advancement for the future, things as yet not even dreamed of. He commended the Farmers' Union for the good work the organization is doing for the betterment of the farmers. Referring to the road over which he had traveled from Greenville to Centre Bluff, he put in some good words for improved roads.

Mr. J. L. Evans gave a brief outline of the growth of the Farmers' Union throughout the United States, and introduced President R. H. Wright, of the Training School, who was the next speaker. Mr. Wright, following Mr. Parker's reference, said the betterment of home life on the farm comes through education and culture. The home is made attractive and congenial by the farmer giving his children every possible advantage in improvement. The home without education and culture makes little progress.

Prof. H. B. Smith introduced County Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale, the last speaker. As two school districts in that section of the county are soon to hold special tax elections in order to have longer school terms, Mr. Ragsdale spoke mainly on that question. He pointed out the great advantage to the children of longer schools, and that there was no better way to get these than by local taxation. He was glad the people were being aroused to the importance of this.

The picnic was a marked success and the Farmers' Union have cause to feel proud of the day.

"BLACK JACK ITEMS"

Neighborhood Personal Mention—Crops Are Behind.

May 22, 1911. There were regular services here Saturday night and Sunday, by the pastor, Eld. W. Lupton. The attendance was very large Sunday.

There was also Sunday school at 3:30. We had quite a large attendance. We cordially invite the community at large to come out and help us carry on the good work at this place.

Messrs. C. O. Harper and J. A. Clark attended the commencement at Winterville last week. They report a very good time, considering the warm weather.

We are always glad to attend commencements and especially when it is a good one like the Winterville high school gave.

Mr. E. S. Arnold, also attended the commencement at Winterville Friday. Mr. G. C. Buck, who has just graduated at Wake Forest college with honors, returned home Saturday to spend some time with his parents here.

Miss Doisy Porter, of Salem, at tended church here Sunday.

Mrs. A. O. Clark and children, of Grimesland, is spending a few days with friends and relatives.

Miss Bertha Edwards has returned home from Winterville high school to spend the vacation.

Mrs. R. M. Williams is seriously ill at present. We hope she may recover soon.

Mrs. N. L. Clark seems to improve very slowly.

Farming is almost at a stand still in this section, corn is very small for the time of year. There seems to be somewhat a stand of it. Cotton is not coming up very fast. The stand is very poor. The prospects for a short crop is plainly seen. Tobacco is very small, with stand poor. Some of the farmers are not through setting out, owing to the dry weather and scarcity of plants.

MRS. FLORENCE HORNE DEAD.

Called Suddenly at Her Home Near Farmville.

Mrs. Florence Horne, widow of the late W. R. Horne, and niece of Mr. Elbert A. Moye, died suddenly at her home near Farmville today about noon. Mrs. Horne was about fifty years of age, and well known and beloved. The news of her death comes as a shock to a great number of friends in Greenville and throughout the county.

"I suffered five years, with awful pains, due to womanly troubles," writes Mrs. M. D. McPherson, from Chadbourn, N. C. "They grew worse, till I would often faint. I could not walk at all, and I had an awful hurting in my side; also a headache and a backache.

I gave up and thought I would die, but my husband urged me to try Cardui, so, I began, and the first bottle helped me. By the time the third bottle was used, I could do all my work. All the people around here said I would die, but Cardui relieved me."

What Is Mince-meat.

It is no harm to enquire—and we really admire Secretary Wilson's inattentive yearning for knowledge. He is constantly on the hunt for weird facts, and nothing can baffle him, no matter how obscure the trial may be. Moreover, he is absolutely fearless. Things that the average man would shrink from engaging at close quarters have no terrors for Uncle Sam's secretary of agriculture. He is as the true scientific spirit that hesitates at nothing. With such a man in action some startling discoveries are imminent.

The mysteries of mince-meat are now engaging Secretary Wilson's earnest attention. Experts of the department of agriculture, acting under his orders are engaged in tracing back each component part of a mince pie to its original source. A treatise on the subject, submitted to the government by a manufacturer of commercial mince-meat, is a modest little pamphlet that follows mince pie back to the fifteenth century, but here loses it, unfortunately, in the mists and cobwebs of antiquity. Secretary Wilson hopes, when the evidence is all in, to settle the question definitely, whether mince pie is suitable for food purposes, or whether it should be shunned by mankind. In the meantime he who has a piece of mince pie in his hand and hesitates, is lost.—Greensboro. News.

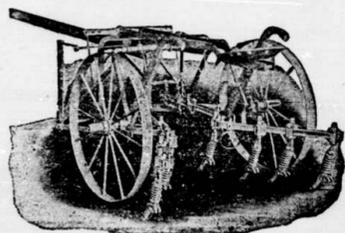

Many a man has made a good bluff by looking wise and keeping his face closed.

NEGRO GIRL STEALS DIAMOND RING

BELONGED TO MRS. J. S. TUNSTALL

Girl Arrested But Ring Has Not Been Recovered.

On Saturday Mrs. J. S. Tunstall missed a handsome diamond ring, valued at about $175, from a jewel case on the bureau in her room. Suspicion at once rested upon a colored girl, Caroline Wilks, who worked about the house and had been sent to the room the day before.

An officer was notified, and the girl, learning that she was suspected, left town. She was arrested Saturday night about four miles in the country and was brought to the lock-up. She confessed taking the ring, but could not, or at least did not, make a true statement of what had been done with it. Several different statements were made as to where she had hid the ring, but a search at these places failed to disclose it.

The girl is only about 14 years of age, and it is probable she turned the ring over to some older person who advised her to tell stories about it.

The negro swam across the river and was returing when he became exhausted and sank in deep water only a few feet from the shore. The body was recovered Sunday.

A son of Mr. T. J. Stancill, who tried to rescue the negro, also came near being drowned.

WASHINGTON DEFEATS GREENVILLE

"BUCK" DARDEN WAS ALL ALONE

Rest Of Greenville Bunch Had Off Day Yesterday.

The Greenville base ball team went down to Washington Tuesday to play a game with the team of that town. A heavy rain that proceeded the game caused it to be delayed until 5 o'clock to start, and then it had to be played on a very wet ground.

Darden, for Greenville, pitched a fine game with wet balls, allowing only four singles and one two-base hits, but had no support of the team. The boys know how to play ball, but this seemed to be an off day with them, and a succession of errors cost them the game. Lutterloh, as usual, lined out for a home run, but owing to the wet diamond, slipped and fell and only made three bases.

The batteries were, for Greenville, Darden and Riddick; Washington, Smith and Chadwick.

The score was as follows:
R. H. E.
Greenville 5 11 14
Washington 10 5 5
This is Greenville's first defeat this season.

DOESN'T LIKE WILSON'S PRINCIPLES

STILL OLD TIME DEMOCRAT.

Former Governor Against Initiative, Referendum and Recall.

Hon. Thos. J. Jarvis, of Greenville, is not in favor of Dr. Woodrow Wilson, especially the initiative, referendum and recall. "Truth is truth, and democracy is democracy," said the ex-governor, "and I am for the simon-pure article. I don't know anything about standpat or progressive democracy. I know about the old-time democracy."

It is related by one of Governor Jarvis' friends that during the convention at Chicago in 1906 the North Carolina delegation was the only one who did not cheer Mr. Bryan's free silver speech. Governor Jarvis remarked then, it has been said, that Mr. Bryan would never bring victory to the Democratic ticket.

He thinks well of Dr. Wilson, he said today, but he does not think anything of the things the New Jersey governor advocates. Incidentally Governor Jarvis believes that Hon. C. B. Aycock will be elected to the senate and that Hon. Locke Craig will be chosen governor. These are "two things that are fixed in the political calendar," he declared.

Governor Jarvis was looking unusually well and many of his Raleigh friends remarked the fact. He leaves this afternoon for Durham to attend Trinity commencement. Mrs. Jarvis will remain in Raleigh.—Raleigh Evening Times.

BIG EARTHQUAKE IN MEXICO CITY

SHOCK FELT IN NEW YORK.

Much Damage Was Done in Mexico City—Soldiers Killed.

By Wire to The Reflector. New York, June 7.—The heaviest earthquake shock in years registered on the seismograph of Fordham University this morning. The tremors lasted an hour. The distance from the United States was five thousand miles.

Mexico City, June 7.—The big earthquake today was in Mexico City. Two hundred soldiers, asleep in the barracks, were killed by falling walls. The city is in a panic.

Mexico City, June 7.—Great carter-nation and destruction was caused here today by an earthquake. Tremors were felt for two hours, and the entire city fairly rocked. Many buildings collapsed and scores of persons are buried under ruins. Storm and lightning added terror to the frightened population. Many sought safety by fleeing to the fields. Mob and soldiers throw away arms and fled from the city; thousands seek refuges in churches.

Mexico City, June 7.—President Madero arrives in the city today and receives great crowds of the citizens, despite the great earthquake confusion and calamity that the people are now suffering under.

Rioting, Brigandage, Murder, Pillage.

Mexico City, June 7.—The populace is eagerly awaiting the arrival of Madero. Meanwhile reports are coming from various parts of the republic that tell of rioting, brigandage, murders and pillage. There was much rioting last night in the suburbs of the capital.
