promised, by having the rural and city carriers assemble the small consignments of the individual shippers and utilize the fast freight service on trunk lines, with passenger trains on the branch roads to hurry the stuff to destination, at the regular fast freight rates. The post office will recoup itself by securing carload rates for the assembled shipments, while the small shippers get their advantage over the present conditions by having their collect and delivery system for practically nothing.

PITT COUNTY BOY TO THE FRONT

PROVES HIMSELF A REAL HERO.

Goes Out in a Capsized Boat and Saves Six People.

The letter published below should have appeared in our Ayden correspondence Tuesday, but through an oversight the correspondent failed to get it in with his other copy, so it is published here:

Fort Hancock N. J., June 9, 1911.
Mr. R. W. Smith, Correspondent,
The Eastern Reflector,

Dear Sir:

Having sent an article to your valued paper a few months ago concerning Lance Corporal Lester Jones, of the Coast Artillery Corps, of Fort Wadesworth, I now take the pleasure to call your attention to another exploit equally heroic.

Since I wrote you before, the company of which he is a member, has changed station to Fort Hancock, N. J. Here again this brave son of North Carolina distinguished himself. While taking a walk one evening by the beach he saw out in the bay a boat in apparent distress. While he was getting a boat ready in which to go out in, the boat turned over. With all possible speed he put out to the capsized craft and got there just in time to save the lives of six helpless people. This, I think, ought to be brought to the attention of his friends and relatives at home. Like all real heroes, he himself, would never say anything about the matter. I being a son of North Carolina, things of this sort make my heart swell with pride. Hoping to see this in an early issue of your valued paper, I remain, a constant reader,

MICHAEL J. MEEZY,
Bread Sergeant, Co. "B" Artillery.

EXCAVATION CAVES IN.

Buried Ferd Barnhill And Gives Him Close Call.

Tuesday afternoon while workmen were excavating for the sewer on Sutton lane, there was a cave-in that came near resulting seriously. At a point where the ditch was about ten feet deep, Ferd Barnhill, colored, foreman of the street hands was at work at the bottom of it, when within a moments warning the ditch caved in and he was completely buried under a huge pile of dirt. Other hands happened to be near and they quickly dug Ferd out of his grave. Fortunately he received no injury, except slight bruises, but it gave him a close call.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 13.—Governor Cruce received a letter Monday from the secretary of state of North Carolina, asking his assistance in securing the release from the Federal prison at Lavenworth, Kan., of W. J. Nichols, a former member of the North Carolina legislature. Nichols was convicted of violating the postal laws, under the name of C. L. Jackson, in connection with the operation of the Little Crater Crude Burner Company. Nichols sold county rights for the sale of a new patent crude oil burner, maintaining headquarters at El Reno. Through the efforts of Postmaster E. E. Brown, of Oklahoma City, the Federal authorities were induced to start prosecutions for using the mails to defraud. Nichols handled thousands of dollars as a result of his scheme, but was convicted and sentenced to serve two years. A short time ago Nichols wrote the governor, accusing the Federal officials of the western district of Oklahoma and Postmaster McCoy, of Guthrie having conspired to railroad him to jail.—Charlotte Observer.

RECEIVER APPOINTED FOR BANK OF TARBORO

BANK HOPELESSLY WRECKED.

Mr. Ed. Pennington in Charge and Investigation Proceeds.

Late Monday afternoon Judge Ward who is still at the hospital gradually convalescing, or rather growing much stronger, so that he does not feel that dizziness when in an upright position, upon the recommendation of Chairman McNeil, of the Corporation Commission appointed Ed. Pennington, cashier of the Farmers Banking and Trust Co., receiver of the Bank of Tarboro, pending a suit instituted to wind up the affairs of that institution.

The order making the appointment required a bond of $30,000 and that he should enter upon his duties as soon as qualified. This was done. By noon the bond was given and Mr. Pennington took charge.

But the examiners are still at work and hope to complete their labors tomorrow.

The condition of the bank cannot yet be approximated. There are so many overdrafts and checks paid but never charged to accounts that no one can tell till there has been a more close inspection of all the books and, probably many suits.

What the checks paid meant when not credited is yet to be ascertained. They may have been drawn with the knowledge that they had or should have had a balance to their credit. Or they may have been some of the many good natured accommodations of the cashier out of the trust fund in his charge.

Receiver Pennington probably will have an expert accountant to go over every account of the bank, and then barring results of litigation the condition will be known.

Not much news has developed or come to the surface since last issue unless it be evidence of greater recklessness and the efforts to rob, or defraud any and every one that had money in the bank or could be induced to put their funds therein.

Examiner Doughton does little talking for publication and what one ob-

READY FOR CORONATION.

Final Decorations And Finishing Touches Put on Today.

By Cable to The Reflector.
London, June 21.—Final orders were issued today to 45,000 troops which will participate in the coronation. King George received all foreign envoys and ministers at Buckingham Palace last night. The last decorations were put up today and all finishing touches made for the coronation.

Taft on The Go.

By Wire to The Reflector.
New York, June 21.—President Taft leaves New York this morning for New Haven, after spending the night with Henry W. Taft.

tains is by inference. He promptly told the Southerner man that the bank books, he called them padded, showed deposits of $104,000, loans $145,000, yet on his report to the corporation commission it is alleged that the deposits are apparently $200,000.

These with $60,000 borrowed from banks make liabilities that padded books showing $145,000 loans with questionable security in less or more cases cannot overcome. But let it not be inferred that these figures disclose all liabilities or assets. They are given to show that as far as possible the depositors' money was appreciated, and these padded books show that at least $100,000 of deposits went into the maelstrom of reckless speculation.

To the stockholders Mr. Doughton has promised to make a report tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Unless there was something sensational street talk would not be interesting. Most every thing has been voiced out except the safety deposit box he had in the bank. The key is to be brought here tomorrow and then more ill than even sensations, if not more ill than ever resulted from the opening of Pandora's box are predicted.—Tarboro Southerner, June 20th.

TODAY'S EVENTS IN NATIONAL CAPITOL

ANOTHER MESSAGE FROM TAIT.

Mrs. Lea Improving — Havemeyer Says Gobble Small Concerns

By Wire to The Reflector.

Washington, June 21.—President Taft sent a special message to congress urging an amendment to the pure food law, making the penalty severer for misbranding drugs.

Senator Root spoke in favor of his amendment to the reciprocity bill. Horace Havemeyer continued his testimony before the committee investigating the Sugar Trust. He declared that it was better for the small business concerns to be gobbled up by the trusts than that they should fail.

Mrs. Lea, wife of Senator Lea, of Tennessee, to save whose life the senator had a quart of his blood infused into her body, is much better today with great hope of her ultimate recovery. The senator is also recovering from the loss of his blood.

HE MAKES A DIGRESSION

Takes a Trip to the City to Buy Him a Shirt

BUT GETS IN THE WRONG STORE

Falls In With Boot Black And Gets Two Big Shoes Shined in The Old-Fashioned Way—Bishop Watson Wanted Some Quinine But Did Not Get It.

Hanrahan, N. C., June 17, 1911.

I must digress just here sufficient to tell the operator how much I am trying to make this copy legible and intelligible to myself or any one else. I have stuck my pencil in my mouth almost for every letter until my salivary glands have refused to secrete. So now I am using a glass of water to dip the pencil in. [And the improvement is great.—Opr].

It reminds me of a time when I first grew up. I went to Goldsboro. It was not near so large then as now, though I thought it was a large city. So I tried to put on city airs. I walked erect, took short, quick steps, carried my eyes in front, would not turn my head to look at any thing, but I did want to see the beautiful windows, Oh, so much. So I decided to muster up an excuse to go into one of the stores. I was going to stay over in the city at my aunt's that night, and take my best girl to an entertainment, provided she would consent to go. I decided to buy a shirt, and that would be an excuse to get in a store and see some of the pretty things. The next door I came to I turned at a right angle and into the store I went, my eyes still looking ahead. I know not where I would have gone or what I would have butted against had I not met a very genteel man, who said, "Good morning, sir. Is there something that I can show you?" "Yes, sir," said I, "I want to look at a nice Sunday shirt." I saw that he smiled a little, for I was watching him. Then said he, "Beg your pardon, but you will have to go a gent's furnishing store to get the desired article. This is a fancy grocery store. I will take pleasure in showing you a store that you can get what you want."

So he went clear out on the street with me and pointed out a store on the next block. I thought to myself I have done it, he knows that I am a clod-hopper. But I determined still to hide it. (I have ever been rather persistent). I had only gone a short distance when I met a tall mulatto and he said, "Hallow, countryman, when do you expect to leave the city?" I didn't even look at him. I knew that if I should stop to lay down with a dog I would get up with fleas, and I didn't know which of us would lie down if I stopped to argue. So I began to think what is it about me that they all know that I am from the country. I began to cast about to find out. So I at last looked down at my feet, and my shoes were all covered in mud and dust (that was before Shinola was used or shoe polish of any kind, except Mason's blacking). Then I raised my head again and soon met a little colored boy. He said, "Mister, don't you want your shoes shined?" I nodded assent.

"Take dis here seat and put your foot on dis here box." Then he turned his head and brought a deep sigh and kinder whispered, "gosh, what a foot." Then he went to work vigorously cleaning off the mud and dust. Then he began to dip his brush in the blacking box and to spit, then he'd rub and spit. About the time he had begun on the second shoe he saw another colored boot black on the other side of Walnut street and he began to becon and call to him. He came running and when he got there he said, "Look here, Jim, can't you lend me a little spit? I done used up all I had on that tother shoe. Dis here man shore did come from the country where dey has big feet." When he had finished I said, "How much do I owe you?" "Well, boss, I ingenly has 5 cents, but being as how I had to call dis fellow I think I ought to have a dime."

I gave it to him and moved on a few doors further and in I went. Here I met an 18-year-old girl, one of those gigling kind. "Is there something for you?" with a quirl to her superior lip, "Where is the gentleman clerk?" I said. Then she laughed right in my face, and said, "Men don't clerk here." Then I looked and saw all kinds of fancy hats with feathers and ribbon on them. So I eased out and made for my aunt's.

Since then I saw Bishop Watson, of blessed memory, go into a drug store and wanted quinine, but he gave it the correct pronunciation as if spelled "kenine" and the clerk told the bishop he did not have it. Rather than embarrass the clerk in the least, the bishop said "I am sorry." He spoke a few other kind words and walked out. He saw the quinine on the shelves but would suffer rather than wound in the least the feeling of a man.

This is a magnificent offer and will furnish some progressive boy a fine trip to Washington.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the torturers of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of serious kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that these ills can be cured. Read what a Greenville citizen says:

Mrs. Fannie Moore, 214 Pitt St. Greenville, N. C., says: "I feel very grateful for the relief I have received from Doan's Kidney Pills which I obtained from John L. Wooten Drug Co. ### FINE MULBERRIES.

Mr. Long Has Thirty-One Trees of The Everbearing Variety.

Mr. G. W. Long, of the Trading Ford neighborhood, and one of the foremost farmers in Rowan, this morning presented The Post with some very fine mulberries. They are of the everbearing variety and are exceedingly sweet and of excellent flavor. A part of them are white and a part black.

Mr. Long states that he had fifty of the trees but some of them died. He now has thirty-one and all are bearing abundantly. The trees are eighteen years old. He has thirty-one head of hogs running in the lot and they live and grow fat on the mulberries. He also has a lot of chickens which are now living on the berries. The trees begin bearing the last of May and continue bearing until the last of August. Mr. Long is enthusiastic over the success of his trees and says he does not see why the farmers do not grow mulberries.—Salisbury Post.

SOUTH NOT THE WORST.

Child Labor Conditions Deplorable in Northern States.

The child labor problem is not sectional. The attempt to prove that the South is the worst sinner in that direction has done this section as much injustice as it has wronged the Southern people. The evil is here, as elsewhere, and needs to be eradicated, but the same is true of other sections. In an address at the National Child Labor Convention in Boston Dr. A. J. McKelway brought this important matter to public attention, saying:

"Prior to the last census the number of women and children employed in industries outside of agriculture in Southern States was comparatively insignificant. Following the Civil War there was a rapid development of the public school system in that section, which gave the means of employment for thousands of educated and cultured women of the South who has been left in direst poverty. The women teachers of the South formed a teaching force superior in all that makes the teacher's life successful and her influence enduring to that of any other section.

"The census of 1900 shows that in Pennsylvania alone there were employed in other occupations than agriculture 101,218 children under 16 years of age—more than those of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Mississippi combined—and there were 10,000 more children under 16 years of age employed in Pittsburg alone than in all of the cotton factories of all the Southern States combined. Even today fewer women over 16 years of age are employed in the Southern cotton mills than in the New England mills.

"While the standard of legislation for the protection of women and children is confessedly lower in the Southern States than in the North, the need for such protection has been correspondingly less up to the present time. Manifestly the great work of child labor reform is yet to be done in the Southern States—the bringing up of the standard of legislation to 14 years for day work and 16 for night work, the shortening of the hours for women and children, the application of the law to industries not now within its scope, and the enforcement of the law by a sufficient number of inspection officials, together with the adoption of an adequate certificate system furnishing proof of the ages of the children employed. We also need more compulsory school attendance laws in the South as well as the juvenile court system and juvenile reformatories."—New and Observer.

NEWS THAT IS OF INTEREST TO TAR HEELS

GATHERED FROM EXCHANGES.

And Briefly Told for The Reflector's Busy Readers.

Raleigh.—In connection with the extending of numerous congratulations to Assistant Clerk of the Supreme Court Joseph L. Seawell on there being born to him a fine pair of twins, it developed that out in St. Matthew's township, Wake county, where Mr. Seawell lives on a good farm, driving to and from the supreme court offices each day, there have been born since March, this year, five sets of twins. Mr. Seawell insists that there is no indication as yet of any movement on the part of any of the St. Matthew's families to break up and move to other sections.

Lumberton.—A touchingly sad accident occurred at the National Cotton Mills, two miles west of town, when the Wilmington-bound passenger train killed the 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Brisson. No one saw the accident but the little fellow was found lying near the track a few minutes after the train had passed with one leg broken and the back of his head crushed in. The engineer did not see the boy, on account, it is presumed, of the fact that the weeds are very thick near the track at the point where he evidently attempted to cross.

New Bern.—This morning at ten o'clock the eighth annual convention of the North Carolina Building and Loan Association convened in this city with about thirty delegates present from all over the state. Upon the arrival of the delegates on the eastbound train they were met at the union station by the local members of the organization, and were escorted in automobiles to the Gaston Hotel where they partook of a light luncheon and hastened to the court house, where the business of the convention was to be transacted.

Ellenboro.—The 16-year-old daughter of Bud Dobbins, a well-known farmer, who lives near Cliffside Junction, was struck and instantly killed by lightning during a heavy rain and electric storm which passed over this section this afternoon. The mule hitched to the wagon in which Miss Dobbins was riding was also killed.

Clarkton.—Dr. Clark was badly litten by a dog Saturday and was also kicked by a mule the same day. However, with the aid of "the old countryman's" stick he is able to attend to his professional duties.

Over 2,000 Farmers.

In every section of the United States and Canada are being canvassed by over 2,000 traveling salesmen for Watkins' Remedies, Flavoring Extracts, Spices, Toilet Articles, etc. Just now there is a rare chance for a bright energetic young salesman to handle the business in Pitt county.—Address The J. R. Watkins Company, 113 South Gay Street, Baltimore, Maryland. Established 1868. Capital over $2,000,000. Plant contains 10 acres floor space.

"Mine does too. But she'd rather practice all day than help with the housework."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

CHIPS AND DUST FROM THE DIAMOND

GREENVILLE DEFEATS GRIFTON.

But It Was a Rather Poorly Played Game.

The base ball season of 1911 was opened in Grifton yesterday with Grifton and Greenville the opposing teams. The game was started early in order to allow Greenville to return home on the afternoon train.

Outside of the batting of Lutterloh and good fielding of both teams in spots the game was poorly played, Greenville winning by the score of 7 to 4. Neither side scored until the third inning when Greenville went to bat. Ragsdale struck out and James was out Brooks, H., to Webb. Con. Lanier hit safe to deep left and stole second. Forbes was hit on the elbow, putting two on bases. Lutterloh hit a terrific smash to centre field fence scoring Lanier and Forbes, and coming home on the throw which went wild to the grandstand. Jordan followed with a hard hit which went on a line against the church which is in left field. He immediately stole second but Smith went out Lancaster to Webb.

Grifton got in the run column in their half of the third. J. Bland fled out to Forbes. Hellen was given a base on balls and Lancaster hit to deep center for a base, putting two on bases. Wadsworth looped one over first base for a hit and the bases were filled. Webb drove a hot one to Smith, who let it go by, Hellen scoring. Worthington sacrificed, Lancaster scoring. Brooks, L., fouled out to Riddick.

Greenville made two more runs in the fourth, making the count 5 to 2. Riddick was given a base on balls, stole second and third. Darden fled out to Hellen in center. Ragsdale was given a base on balls, putting two on. James fled out to Brooks, L., in left field, Riddick scoring and Darden taking third on the throw. Lanier drove a hot one to pitcher who failed to make good on the pick up and Darden scored. Lanier stole second but Forbes made it three by being called out on strikes.

Grifton also scored in their half of the fourth inning. Bland, W., struck out. Brooks, H., hit safe to right field, Darden making a brilliant stop and holding the runner on first. Bland, J., got his base on balls. Hellen struck out. Brooks, H., stole second and third and scored on a wild heave to second to catch J. Bland. Bland was thrown at home.

Grifton again scored in the seventh. Bland, J., fled out to James. Hellen was out Lutterloh to Jordan. Lancaster again hit safe to center and Wadsworth was safe on a hot drive to Smith at third. Webb hit safe, scoring Hellen, but Wadsworth was caught off of third.

Neither side scored in the eighth, but Greenville cinched the game in the ninth, after two had been put out. Lanier was hit and stole second. Forbes hit safe through third and Lipscomb, who ran for Forbes, stole second. Lutterloh again made good by driving the ball to deep centre, scoring Lanier and Lipscomb. Jordan was called out at first.

The tabulated score will be published later as the official scorer is with the team in Aurora.

Ayden Defeats Kinston.

The other two games of the league, Ayden and Kinston, played Tuesday at Ayden, the score 6 to 1 in favor of Ayden.

Warm On The Bat.

Greenville one more to the good. You can feel safe when the green uniform is up.

Just mark it down that Grifton can play ball, too. The whole bunch are four good teams.

Why not get the bats and the leans in shape for another game?

Greenville Colored Team Loses.

A colored ball team from New Bern played a game with the colored team here Tuesday afternoon. The score was 2 to 1 in favor of New Bern.

What "Clean Milk" Means.

What is clean milk? Milk that is produced by healthy cows and handled by clean manner. No cow that has any apparent disease should be allowed to produce milk for dairy purposes. This cow should be as well bedded and kept as clean as the best horse or mule on the farm. The curry-comb and brush should be used frequently, so as to keep her body clean. Clean milk cannot be obtained if the cow's udder and flanks are covered with manure and dirt and the milker simply cleans the teats before milking. The entire udder should be washed and dried and the flanks moistened if clean milk is to be obtained and good butter made.

The milker should milk with dry hands and not dip the fingers in the milk, as is too often done, to moisten them. It is just as easy to milk with dry hands and very much cleaner. The last milk given is several times as rich as the first and the milker, for this reason, should milk all the milk out of the udder. If the calf is allowed to stay with its mother, and not taken away at birth and fed by hand, it should be allowed to take the first milk and suck from all the teats. The practice of letting the calf have one-quarter, or of leaving milk in the udder for it, is not the best.

When the cow has been milked the milk should be taken at once to the house and strained. If allowed to stand around the stable, it will take up the odors and thus injure the flavor of the butter. The usual wire-gauge strainer found in the common milk buckets will not do to depend upon to clean the milk. It should be strained through at least three thicknesses of cheese cloth.—J. M. Burgess, in Progressive Farmer.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Applying Rule of Reason.

Senator Pomerene, in his speech in thesenate, took the plain view of the Sherman anti-trust law. The rule of reason permits no other view.

The Sherman law is a criminal statute. It deals with personal guilt as a fact. It provides for the criminal prosecution of individuals and prescribes penalties for the punishment upon conviction.

If the Standard Oil and the Tobacco Trusts were guilty of violating the law, of necessity the really responsible men behind the trusts should be brought to the bar of justice. The law does not state that an offending corporation shall be held to be guilty and the persons acting through it shall enjoy immunity. That a certain of industry shall organize and direct his business in defiance of the law, commit unlawful acts without restraint for a long term of years, select his agents, control their policy continue to enjoy the profits derived from criminal methods and still go unprosecuted and unpunished because the business is done under the name of a corporation declared to be illegal by the United States Supreme court, is a manifest absurdity. It affronts reason and common sense.—New York World.

"SILVER LINING TO THE CLOUD."

THERE IS HOPE FOR FARMERS.
Mr. Darden's Letters Are Always Read With Interest.

Ayden, N. C., June 15.—Some days since, about May sixteenth, I wrote about the low water in our wells, and our friend, H. Kinsaul, remonstrated with me for writing such a doleful letter. Said he, "The merchants won't let we farmers have much trade." or words to that effect. The dry spell continues with no noticeable indications for breaking. The prospect for a tobacco crop is most gloomy, yet with good seasons from now those who have any could make a fair crop, as the fertility is still there. But when there is no stand, as is generally the case, it can not be made. Peas can't come up except on very mellow, deep soil or loam land. Corn is poor, but it, too, can make a good ear if it were to rain enough from now on, as the strength of the land has not been exhausted in making a large stalk. Cotton is capital where the stand is good. Oats, especially spring sown, are real light but ought to be well saved with this open weather.

All this I am writing is no news to an old clod hopper, but it might be worth reading, for there is hope expressed in it as to corn and tobacco—that's the "silver lining to the cloud." (gloom).

Now, Mr. Editor, I don't reckon many of the towns people know you have a correspondent in the person of myself, but some of your country readers seem to know it, as several have spoken to me about it. I hope no one will conclude I am forcing these articles on them, for it was with reluctance I agreed to write now and then for your paper. Say, did you know I have a kind of intelligent sort of tobacco? The other day some of it was holding the Progressive Farmer, some the "Old Reliable," some the Standard-Laconic, some the Christian Advocate, some the Kinston Free Press, some the Literary Digest, and some the Eastern Reflector up to its face, but I don't say it was reading, but only shielding the sun. See?

WASHINGTON MAN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

SLASHES THROAT WITH RAZOR

Momentarily Crazed By Grief Over Death of Fiancee.

Special to The Reflector.

Washington, N. C., June 19.—This town was engulfed in intense excitement and sorrow, about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when it was learned that Mr. Charlie Ricks, aged 23 years and son of Sheriff George E. Ricks, was found in his room at his home on East Second street, with a 4-inch gash in his throat that had been self-inflicted with a razor. Physicians were summoned and every thing possible done to save the life of the young man. He passed a fairly comfortable night, and today hopes are held out that he will recover.

It is supposed that the attempt of young Ricks to take his life was due to being momentarily crazed with grief over the death of a young lady to whom it is reported that he was engaged and would have married next fall. This young lady, Miss Zada Watson, was on Friday night operated on for appendicitis at Fowle Memorial Hospital. Not satisfied with the results of the first operation, the surgeons operated again Saturday night. The young lady died at 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, our Grand Master has called from labor to rest our beloved brother, J. K. McGowan, therefore, be it resolved:

1st. That we take this means of expressing our sorrow in the loss of one of our true and loyal brothers, one who has always been "true and faithful among us," and that our county and state has lost a most excellent citizen.

2nd. That our knowledge of his exemplary and blameless life makes us mourn his loss, yet we bow in humble submission to the will of our Supreme Grand Master who doeth all things well.

3rd. That we extend to his bereaved family our sincere sympathy and point them to the Great Master above who always hears the cries of widows and orphans.

4th. That a page of our records be set apart and a copy of these resolutions be inscribed thereon, and a copy be sent to the family of our brother, and a copy sent to the Orphans Friend for publication, also the Eastern Reflector.

Proof Of The Pudding.

We saw a man beg a match to light his pipe. After striking it and getting the desired "light" he handed the stub back to the donor, saying, "Give that to the next fellow who asks you for a match. Tell him I tried it and can vouch for it being a good one."

GREAT PROGRESS IN THE CAMPAIGN

AGAINST HOOKWORM DISEASE.

Twenty-One Thousand Cases Already Treated.

Raleigh, N. C., June 20.—The North Carolina campaign against hookworm disease is making steady progress. The number of cases of the disease reported as treated by physicians has grown during the past twelve months from 3,250 to 21,000; the number of doctors treating the disease from 183 to 597; and the number of people microscopically examined for it in the State Laboratory of Hygiene from 500 to 23,312. Seven thousand two hundred and sixty-six of the latter number were found to have hookworm infection, and 2543 showed others of the eight intestinal parasites. Though some of these were found quite frequently the hookworm infections were found three times as frequently as all the other combined. Thirty-one per cent. of the 23,312 examined showed hookworm infection. Of the other examined, 1,000 were state troops, 1,000 were orphans, 1,000 children in the state schools for the blind, deaf and dumb, and the reformatory. Nearly 1,000 insanes have been examined. The other 19,000 are largely made up of public school children taken at random.

Needed Buttons.

Three doctors were operating on a man for appendicitis. After the operation was completed one of the doctors missed a small sponge. The patient was reopened, the sponge found within and the man was sewed up again. Immediately the second doctor missed a pair of scissors. "Gentleman," said the victim, as they were about to open him a gain, "for Heaven's sake, if you're going to keep this up, put buttons on me."—Success Magazine.

The Peanut Calamity.

Truly, disasters rarely come singly. The reverberations of the Standard Oil decision have scarcely passed away before the news comes that more than 200,000 bushels of peanuts, almost half of the entire visible supply in this country, have been destroyed by a fire in the five story factory of the largest peanut handlers on earth.

Less than 3 per cent of last year's crop remains in the hands of the producers and there is going to be a great scarcity of peanuts. Circuses, ball parks and picnics will be seriously affected by this disaster. The price of peanuts will probably go so high that it will be no uncommon thing to hear baseball fans, whipped into excitement by a home run, loudly exclaiming: "A peanut, a peanut, my kingdom for a peanut!"

No statesman, animal or flower has ever held the regard of the public as has the peanut. Humble in appearance, small in size, but always on the job, the peanut has long been the symbol of politics and the mascot of the circus and the ball game. Stern patriots, dignified and proud, have been known to fall below the well-directed peanut, landing on the point of the nose. Many a girl at a picnic has been wooed and won by an inexpensive bag of peanuts. Like roses before kings, the crisp shells of the peanut have been strewn into street cars, over which many men and women mighty in their spheres, have slid to safety in the open air.—Washington Post.

We have on sale at our factory the celebrated Columbia, Rambler, Crescent and Fay Bicycles, for ladies and Gentlemen, boys and girls. These bicycles are known the world over for their easy running and durability. We guarantee them. If you are thinking of buying, come to see us.

SUMMER TERM TRAINING SCHOOL

It Has An Unusually Strong Faculty--
Large Number in Attendance

SPLENDID WORK FOR TEACHERS

Observation Class For Principals and Superintendents Gives Practical Demonstration In Organization, Administration and Supervision Of Schools--Special Lectures By Prominent Educators.

The summer term at East Carolina Teachers' Training School, which began June 6th and will continue for eight weeks, has an unusually strong faculty, the regular teachers being reinforced by some of the most prominent educators of the country.

All of the subjects taught in the public schools of the state are being taught in this summer term, and in addition to these are courses in Latin, Pedagogy, Chemistry, School Management and Household Economics. The state adopted texts are used.

A special course in Administration and Supervision for school principals county and city superintendents is being conducted by Dr. Geo. D. Strayer, of Columbia University, which is almost invaluable to those having the superintendency of teachers. In connection with this is observation of a group of children taught by Miss Margaret Blow, one of the graduates of the school. Dr. Strayer takes his class of principals and superintendents into this department and practically demonstrates the organization, administration and supervision of a school. By this means the principals and superintendents get valuable ideas for instructing the teachers under them in organizing and directing their schools.

A series of lectures on topics of especial interest to teachers will also be given by distinguished educators. Already Dr. J. T. Gibbs and Dr. Strayer have given most helpful lectures, and will be followed by others during the term.

The attendance at the summer term has already reached 247—the largest number of students that have been here at any one time before—and others are registering almost daily. All the dormitories of the school are full and homes in the town available to boarders are filled.

President R. H. Wright and the strong faculty united with him, are in this school doing a work for the teachers of Eastern North Carolina the value of which cannot be measured in dollars and cents. It will tell for years to come in the betterment of the public schools through more efficient teachers, and thus the greater educational uplift of all the people.

On Friday, 30th inst., the anniversary of the breaking of ground for the erection of buildings for the school will be celebrated with appropriate exercises. Governor W. W. Kitchin and other prominent men will be here to speak on that occasion.

Many a great business man has been wrecked by domestic unhappiness.

"HOME, SWEET HOME."

How Song Was Written By American Exile in Paris.

One of the features of alumni day at Union College was the dedication of the John Howard Payne memorial gate.

Miss Alma Gluck, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, sang the song with which Pany's fame is associated "Home, Sweet Home," so that the great crowd of people that filled the chapel were moved to tears.

Dr. George Alexander, of New York, presided and paid a tribute to the author of the famous song. Prof. George Pierce Baker, of Harvard University, delivered the address, and Thatcher T. P. Luquer, a grand-nephew of John Howard Pany, told how the words of "Home, Sweet Home" came to be written.

Pany was living in Paris at the time. Mr. Luquer said, and was acting as dramatic agent for Covent Garden Theatre. He was comfortably established in an apartment on the Palais Royale. Not many months before his fortune had been at low ebb, following a disastrous attempt at the atrical management in London, but he had extricated himself from his financial difficulties. He was preparing two plays and as so-called opera for production at Covent Garden, and it happened that the theme of the opera was the longing for home of an unhappy exiled girl.

A song was needed for the heroine, Clari, to sing at her entrance to the first act, and to fill this requirement Payne wrote the verses which were to make him famous. He wrote undoubtedly under the stress of strong emotion and the words expressed his own heartfelt desire, for it was ten years since he had left his family and friends and during that time he had suffered many severe trials.

About a month later he forwarded the opera to Henry R. Bishop, the musical director of Covent Garden, suggesting an air for "Home, Sweet Home," which Bishop so admirably adapted that words and melody are inseparably associated.

"Clari" was produced on the 8th of May, 1823, and "Home, Sweet Home" as sung by the charming Ann Maria Tre was received with enthusiasm, its popularity increasing from day to day. Soon it had become one of the loved folksongs of the English speaking world.—Dispatch, to New York Sun.

The Fly Crusade.

There is no joke about the importance of the fly crusade, although it has been the inspiration of much light newspaper verse and innumerable paragraphs in lighter vein. This is demonstrated by the experience of Washington City, where a decided falling off in the fly population has been observed this year, although the weather has been very warm and conditions generally have been favorable for its increase.

The District of Columbia health officer has directed public attention to the fact, and congratulates the people upon their comparative immunity from the fly plague. The result is credited directly to the active anti-fly campaign carried on last season. Stringent regulations aimed at the fly were adopted. They called for the destruction of its means of subsistence, for cleanliness in stables, and the screening of food, besides the killing off the pests in large numbers. In addition to all these things,

THE WOOL GROWER.

Should Taxpayers Support An Industry That Has Not Helped Itself.

It should be possible to approach the case of the wool grower dispassionately. His friends protest that he will become extinct if he is not protected by a high duty on wool. The home-consumer, and not the foreign grower, pays this tax, including products of other commodities worth keeping alive at such a price.

Let it be premised that this case has been largely made on false pretense. He is classed as a farmer, and he most emphatically is nothing of the kind. He is less a farmer in fact than the squatter of Australia with his 60,000 sheep. He does not farm in any sense of the word. He pastures sheep over a large area; allows for a certain percentage of deaths from cold and misadventure; the wages and board of a few lonely headers; the periodical cost of shearing cross-bred wool or his stringy mutton, according to which market looks best.

There are 57,000,000 sheep in this country, and in the British Islands, which could be comfortably tucked away in the state of Montana, there were 32,000,000 sheep in 1910. These were either for the butcher or for their wool. The British grower takes a great deal of trouble with his sheep and gets results. Our grower takes no trouble at all, and expects congress to protect him from foreign competition. But without this handicap, the sheep on the South Downs of England, and even in Scotland, can graze in the open practically every day of the year, if they are given the proper attention in the matter of folding where necessary, extra feed in winter and special care in the lambing season. Montana is a poor imitation of such a condition as that and as such States become enclosed our happy-go-lucky sheep-growers will be without pasture. Can any protection we can afford stay the irresistible advance of the wire-fence?

Vermont in some parts and notably in the Green Mountains, breeds in fair quantities sheep for the table not inferior to Welsh mutton, if not equal to the South Down of kindered varieties. Such sheep, however, are more expensive to raise here than in England or the sheep-growing parts of the continent of Europe, for the reason that they must spend some months in the winter under cover, and must be fed in the absence of pasture. This is a great handicap, and is shared to some extent by Kentucky, although the prospects for the Alleghenies are better than farther north. Certainly better and more profitable varieties can be bred there by taking considerably more pains than the western sheepgrower cares to exert.

Here is the question for the taxpayer. Does he care to put his hand in his pocket all the time to support an industry which has done nothing for itself, and one which is manifestly dwindling, in spite of three-quarters of a century of protection?—Wall Street Journal.

There was a general cleaning up of the city this spring. If these precautions are continued there is no reason why a few years should not see Washington comparatively free of flies and of the menace to health which their presence proclaims.—Greensboro News.

A BIG DAY AT TRAINING SCHOOL

FRIDAY, JUNE THE THIRTIETH.

Celebration of Anniversary of Breaking Ground For Buildings.

Having heard something of a proposed celebration at the Teachers' Training School, a Reflector reporter called on Governor Jarvis for information:

"Yes," said the governor, "we are planning to have a big day out at the school on Friday, June 30th, 1911. The ground for the buildings was first broken on July 2, 1908, and the growth of the school has been so phenomenal we propose to celebrate the third anniversary of that event. Six beautiful buildings have been erected and equipped and two full sessions and two summer terms have been taught in them with a very large enrollment.

"The present summer session will be at its best. The board of trustees meet on the 29th and will be in session on the 30th. We are hoping to have the State Board of Education present also.

"Governor Kitchin has already agreed to deliver an address on that occasion. Dr. Geo. D. Strayer, of Teachers' College, of Columbia University, has also agreed to speak. We are confidently expecting other distinguished speakers to be with us. We hope and expect to see a great crowd of people present in addition to the three hundred teachers attending the summer term. We want the town and county people to take a day off and join us in this celebration. It will do them good and the school also."

Happenings of Interest In That Neighborhood.

Winterville, N. C., June 20.—Mr. Marshal Hardee and Hugh Cox, of Grifton, spent Saturday night and Sunday near here.

Miss Josephine Nelson, of Greenville, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Joe Wilson, this week.

Messrs. Stanley Garris, John Geary and Calvin Venters went to a picnic Saturday at Creeping swamp.

Mr. Willis Wilson went to Ayden Saturday.

We had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Stocks laugh again Sunday, a laugh that is a sure cure for the blues.

Some of the boys from Cox's Mill were in our neighborhood Sunday. We asked them what they were coming down here for, and they said to travel on our good roads. We have another name for it.

The wedding bells will soon be ringing near Venters Cross Roads. We had a nice little rain Sunday night.

A Charming Woman

Is one who is lovely in face, form, mind and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate stomach, liver and kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely com-

BANK OF TARBORO HAD TO CLOSE

SHORTAGE WILL REACH $100,000.

Is The Report of State Examiner Doughton.

Tarboro, N. C., June 15.—State Examiner Doughton reported today after a cursory examination, that the shortage of Cashier Hart, who suicided yesterday, and Assistant Cashier Hussey, who is in jail in default of bond, will certainly reach $100,000 and may run considerably in excess of this sum. The bank is practically wrecked and the depositors will be losers to a considerable amount. The true conditions will not be known until Saturday.

The funeral of the self slain cashier occurred today and was conducted by the Elks.

Developments show that Hart premeditated suicide. He told his wife some time ago that men whom he had accommodated by permitting them to overdraw their accounts were leaving him to bear the brunt. She urged him to take her property and square himself with the bank, but this he refused to do, saying he would take his medicine when caught. The letter to his wife which was found on the body was typewritten at the bank at least a day prior to the suicide.

Hussey is in jail, unable to furnish the required bail.

STILL GOING HIGHER.

There is always room at the top, and the new court house tower is going on up looking for the room. Sheriff Dudley says he got fifteen feet "higher up" in the world Thursday than he did the day before, but he threatened us with a cell in the jail if we told what he was looking to see.

Local Rainfall.

Mr. R. M. Hearne, local weather observer, reports that the fall of rain here for 24 hours up to 8 o'clock, Monday morning, was .41 of an inch, and for the 24 hours up to 8 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning, 1.92 inches.

MAKE THE FAIR A SOCIAL DAY

MR. MOYE'S WISE SUGGESTION.

Let Town And Country People Come Together Socially.

Farmville, N. C., June 20, 1911.

Editor Reflector: Would it not be a good idea to secure the Liberty warehouse from my friend, Mr. Seth Hooker, in which the visitors to the fair might take lunch? It would be real nice for the town people to take a whole day off and bring their lunch with them. It would be so sociable, and the country people might enjoy the social visit of the township and each might be benefited.

If some such move as this is not started, I fear most of the town people will wait until after dinner, which comes about one o'clock to visit the fair and the time will be so limited that they really cannot get any benefit from the exhibition. It to me appears the right thing. The merchants might agree to close their stores from eleven o'clock to two and give their clerks an opportunity to visit this, the first real agricultural fair ever held in Pitt county. We wish to have such a nice display of agricultural and horticultural products that will furnish a topic for conversation for our people for the next twelve months.

Mr. Darden seems anxious for the patrons of your paper to understand that he is writing at your earnest solicitation, and I want them to know that I am a self-appointed special advertising representative of the fair, and the trips for the boys of the corn club to Washington, D. C. Miss Henrietta Moye will give a lawn party at Fredonia Farm Wednesday evening, June 21, for the purpose of raising the money to pay the expenses of the boy from Farmville township.

Moses Moye, one of the corn club boys, made a failure in getting a stand, so he planted again on the 15th of June. He is not wholly discouraged and yet expects to make seventy-five bushels of corn from his acre.

We had a nice, gentle rain yesterday, about a one-half inch, and it makes the three acres of corn of Joel and Clifford Moye look the finest of any that I ever saw. Cotton in this vicinity is fine. Tobacco poor. Corn where well manured and well prepared is excellent.

A. J. MOYE.

BELL FOR COURT HOUSE.

It Will Be Large And Of The Best Make.

On Thursday the county commissioners and building committee placed on order through Mr. C. E. Rountree for a large bell to be placed in the tower of the new court house. This bell will weigh a little more than a thousand pounds and be of the very best make and tone. Moulded on the bell will be "Pitt County Court House, 1910-11," together with the names of the county commissioners and the building committee, and also the name of Mr. Rountree the contractor for the bell.

Properly hung and under favorable conditions the bell can be heard for a distance of five miles.

The man who buys his friends pays too much for them.

Milk Not Necessary In The Case.

The story in the Durham Sun about the fire started by lightning, which could not be extinguished with water but was extinguished with milk, is a good story illustrating the old-time idea among the colored people and not a few white, even if the incident has no foundation in fact. Statesville a few years ago lightning struck a tree and set it on fire. The citizen on whose premises the tree was located asked his colored man to pour water on the flames to put out the fire. The colored man declined on the ground that the effort would be wasted unless milk was poured on the flames. Thereupon the citizen proceeded to act for himself and when the fire was put out with water the colored man was almost dumb with amazement to see the cherished belief of his life effectually dissipated.—Statesville Landmark.

Miss Lucy Davis, of Beaufort, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. R. L. Humber, assisted the choir of the Baptist church Sunday. At night she sang a solo, "Hold Thou My Hand," that was very beautiful. #### Writing of the Great.

Sheridan's writing was a scandal to his school and puzzled the town. He once wrote a pass to Drury Lane, and the doorkeeper stopped its bearer and immediately pronounced it a forgery, because he could decipher it. The atrocious writing of celebrities recalls the claim once made on behalf of Baron Bramwell that he wrote three hands—one which he alone could read, another which his clerk could read and he could not, and a third which nobody could read and the last-named was his usual style. The writing master of the elder Dumas attributed the defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo to a badly scrawled message to Grouchy which was wrongly interpreted. The Duke of Wellington wrote an equally bad fist. Lord Palmerston was such a stickler for legibility of script that he would send a dispatch half-way around the world to have it clearly rewritten.—Boston Transcript.

A Busy Man.

It is hard to find a more busy man than Dr. D. L. James. A visit to his dental office at almost any hour of the day shows his operating chairs occupied with patients and others in the reception room waiting their turn. Dr. James is also putting in many extra hours on laboratory work trying to catch up with orders to give him time to attend the State Dental Convention which meets in Morehead City next week. He is to respond to the address of welcome to the association by the mayor of Morehead City.

MUST BE CHANGED.

How a Business Man Would Run the Government.

Now, what could and would a business man with power to conduct the government do? He would put the army and navy on an efficient and economical footing; he would allow only such appropriations for rivers and harbors as are necessary under some systematic plan; the public building grab would have to cease; all manner of expenditures for the mere gratification of the people and for the purpose of re-electing men to congress would no longer be tolerated.

He would take the post office out of politics, make it a business institution, utilize the organization to carry the mails at a profit and make the institution not only self-sustaining but a money making branch of the government. Government officials would not be allowed to spend their vacations traveling at home and abroad at the public expense. "Junkets" of federal and congressional officers would be stopped. Useless commissions, courts, boards and other, devices creating places for shelled statesmen would be abolished. Neither sentimental nor political consideration would have a place in a government if a business man conducted it.

Such a business man is a dream, but business methods dealing with the problem need not be. We can not place our fiscal affairs in the hands of one man with absolute power, but we could apply business methods to the government. Instead of trying to economize by spending a few hundred thousand dollars endeavoring to find where a few clerks and messengers can be spared, efforts should be directed at the real extravagance found in the appropriation bills. Thus the imaginary business man must be the people themselves. Public sentiment must be changed.—Arthur Wallace Dunn, in World's Work.

SUBSTITUTE FOR OPIUM.

A Deadly Indian Weed That is Cheap and Can Easily Be Smuggled.

The Indian weed is being largely imported into Indo-China at the present moment, says our informant, who holds a high position in the military world. He has given us a sprig or two of the hemp plant, which obviously lends itself to the use of the smugglers. With first hand knowledge of this subject he declared that this weed more pernicious than opium or alcohol, will in the near future take the place of opium in the far East.

It is of small bulk this deadly weed, is cheap in comparison with its elder brother, opium, and can be smuggled easily. The opium conviction does not, so far as we know, take account of the danger which threatens from the importation of this drug.

The French authorities in Indo-China absolutely prohibit the hemp plant, but nevertheless, it is being taken into the country in ever increasing quantities. It can be used as a drink, can be smoked or chewed; the physical and mental effects are deadly.

We have not been able to ascertain as yet whether this noxious drug has made its appearance in Hong Kong, but we take this opportunity of calling the attention of the authorities to the danger of its doing so. It is a danger that should exercise the thoughts of the legislative council.

This noxious weed is smoked much by the lowest class of natives in South Africa, where it is known under the name of dahgha and causes many crimes, the Bushmen and Hottentots running amuck when saturated with its hellish effects.—The Honkong Telegraph.

"Uncle Tommie" Tells of His Trip, of Things in Scotland Neck.

Scotland Neck, N. C., June 21, 1911.
Editor Reflector:

I reckon you and your readers think I have absconded, but I am here again. I have been sick for a few weeks and did not feel like writing, though very anxious to write up my trip which I took in May. I am well now and will try to amuse you all just a little and will give you a slight sketch of my trip. If it is old, perhaps some of it may be of interest to at least some of your readers.

I left home at Scotland Neck on the evening of the 9th of May and went to Greenville and spent the night there with Mr. J. W. Little so as to be present on the 10th of May to attend the re-union of the Bryan Grimes Camp of Confederate veterans I enjoyed being with my old comrades as well as I ever did, with the exception that there were so many missing that will never meet us in a re-union again on earth. I want to say, though the day was warm and dusty, we had a good time.

We formed at the court house and marched to the Star warehouse, where we listened to one of the best speeches that we have ever heard by a young man at a re-union. The young man was Mr. Albion Dunn, of Greenville, formerly of Scotland Neck. After Mr. Dunn concluded there were so many strong and loud calls for Jarvis that he couldn't resist, and got up and led us along through a few battles and some marches, and we could march right along with him all the way through. It seemed like old times.

My capcity in the upper story is not capable of paying the good ladies of Greenville the tribute that is justly due them, for they rendered all the beautiful singing that was necessary and they had prepared one of the most delicious and bountiful dinners that we ever had the pleasure of partaking of. And what do you think, just before we were going to start to dinner our commander, Maj. H. Harding, got up and announced that the ladies demanded pay for the dinner, and what do you reckon the pay demanded was? It was the old Rebel yell, and when the commander gave the command, attention, comrades! battalion forward, double-quick charge! we paid the bill of fare by giving them three yells of the old-fashion war times—Rebel yell, we gave it very cheerfully and I guess satisfactorily.

Now, for the Liberty warehouse, where the dinner was prepared. But there is no use telling you any more about it, for you may be sure we did it justice, so far as the inner man would permit.

Then we had a good time with the old brothers until nearly 5 o'clock, when we boarded the Norfolk Southern train for Arthur, where we spent a week in my old neighborhood with relatives and friends.

I enjoyed my stay there fine, and was very reluctant to leave, but I had other places to visit.

After spending a week about my old home I went to Farmville and spent one day there very unexpectedly, though as I was there I spent a portion of the time in The Enterprise office very pleasantly with the editor and Miss Donie Abrams, and I spent a short time with Mr. McGee in his place of business. But I had no idea that he and Miss Abrams were so near married, if I had I might have enjoyed being with them more than I did.

I left Farmville in the evening for Wilson and spent a week and a half there, and was sick all the time I was there, but in bed only little of the time. I enjoyed myself well as could be expected. They were all very kind to me.

I left Wilson and reached home at Scotland Neck on the 27th of May, and found my gardens needing work. I worked them out the first week after getting home, but they have suffered considerably for lack of rain. We had a very slight shower on the 12th and a very good rain last Sunday evening which is about all we've had since I came home. Corn and cotton, notwithstanding the dry weather, are doing well in this section. We had another shower yesterday (Monday) evening and the indications are that we will have more this evening.

When I reached home from my trip I learned that I had missed lots by being away for they had held a two weeks' meeting at the Baptist church and they had a great down-pour of a glorious pentecostal shower on the community. There were 29 added to the church. Mr. W. L. Ball, of Richmond, did the preaching and was said to be a fine preacher. Mr. O. L. Powers, the pastor, assisted in the meeting, of course.

The contract for the Scotland Neck graded school building has been awarded to Mr. J. J. Stroud, of Everetts, at a little more than $17,000. The work on it seems to be progressing very rapidly.

The contract for the plumbing and heating has been let to the Harris Plumbing Company, of Washington, at about $3,000. The work is expected to be completed by October.

Confidence.

Money is abundant, great crops are expected, labor and capital are getting along fairly well together, the railroads are fast adjusting themselves to the demands of business, and so confidence in the future is pretty strong. The remainder of the year promises to be busy and prosperous. Investments seem generally secure, and will continue so, if investors do not become too careless and greedy, which is always the condition precedent to hard times.

If people live simply, quietly and generously, which does not mean extravagant, there will be no hard times. It is hoped that will be their habit during these days of moderation and plenty, and that speculation, which is the cause of all financial ills will be choked down wherever it shows its head. But for honest business, for quid pro quo business, the signs of the times are hopeful.—Ohio State Journal.

So Can A Hog.

People are proverbially imprudent. A man who ought to know better said this morning that he had been very ill from eating a few onions and strawberries. Pinned down he said he had a few cucumbers mixed with the mess. A man once told Dr. Gregory he ate cucumbers three times a day when he could get them.

"So does a hog," replied the physician. However, some men and more women can eat all kinds of trash and never get sick.—Greensboro Record.

BACK IN HIS OLD SCHOOL DAYS

PLAY WAS BETTER THAN STUDY.

With a Teacher Who Did Not Know The Multiplication Table.

Hanrahan, N. C., June 21, 1911.

When he roared out "that means books," we all went running hurley-burly without much decency or order. On entering the inner walls of that dingy den, the first thing that I beheld was not a man approaching me with a smile, and an extended hand of brotherly love, but seated in one corner on a country made split bottom chair was that same sour old fellow that had just left the door. Standing beside him were two long, keen hickories, "Be seated!" he growled out. Attention: then he called a string of rules that were I to give here you would not allow me any more space in three weeks, and I could not think hard if you never did again. But just one or two: You must not wiggle about on your seats. You must not take your eyes off your books, and many others as nonsensical as were these two. (Solomon's dog didn't bite him very deep, and mine didn't bite him at all. He killed mine before the dog reached him) The rules finished, he took a piece of paper and pencil and went to each one and asked their names. Then he would mark something on that paper, I didn't see the marks, but he could not write any better than I can now, and he couldn't improve on my spelling. He spelled Raleigh thus: roleiagh, and other words as bad. When he got to me he snarled out "What is your name?" I said "You know my name, for I told it to you that day when you killed my dog." I was named for a fighting man down here in South Carolina, and it is a good thing that I was not as large as he that day. He looked as though he could go through me and shook his fist. The big boys had put me up to tell him that. They said they would see me out, said he was a coward, any way.

When he had finished with the names, he settled down on his chair again and said, "Now get to studying your books, the last one of you." Sister and I opened our blue book over to the back side where that old man had that little boy bayed up the apple tree, and I watched that old fellow and decided that he was real cruel any way, though Mr. Webster tried to put all the blame on that poor little hungry waif. I never did like the looks of that old fellow's face, and I never did believe that he spoke very kindly to that boy from the first. Then I turned over to where that old farmer and lawyer were arguing about their beast, and there was unregenerated human nature. That about finished the pictures, so I had to look on my book and there was nothing else in it of interest to me. I looked on and listened as he called the others up to say their lessons. At last he called to my brother to come up and say the multiplication table. He began at the first line and when he got to 4 times 8 and my brother said 32, he reached around, got one of those hickories, and began to administer a dose. "Now, sir," said he, "remember that 4 times 8 is 56." I knew better than that.

The hours grew dreary and my eyes were weary, and my seat seemed sharper, but after a seeming age "big playtime" came. He gave us an hour to eat and frolic in. Well, we played just as children do now, except we used a ball made from the ravelings of home knit stockings with a piece of brick in it. We had never heard of a leather covered rubber ball, we called the game four-hand cat; we didn't have any walled parks to play in nor diamonds or dollars to bet on the game, nor did the parents leave every thing and come to see us play. But we enjoyed it all the same.

Buy Screen Doors and Windows.

It is surprising how many well-to-do farmers will deny themselves the ordinary comforts of life when they are in easy reach. One of the things to mention is the protection afforded by screen doors and windows. They cost but little. Doors are from $1.00 each to $1.75, and windows forty and fifty cents each. They keep out flies and mosquitoes and add to the comfort of the home day and night. If the whole house cannot be screened they could be put in the windows of the dining and sleeping rooms. The price is a small matter and the comfort and sanitary protection is worth considering.—Smithfield Herald.

The world goes wrong for the man who goes the same way.

Pe-ru-na the Remedy.

Dr. J. W. FULLER, Scientific Optician, 208 North Main St., Los Angeles, Cal., writes:

"I was troubled with catarrh of the head for many years. It affected my sense of smell, hearing and sight.

"I spent lots of money with doctors and the use of local applications to relieve me, but to no purpose until my attention was called to the wonderful effects of Peruna.

"I must say that I met with most surprising and satisfactory results. Peruna took hold of the complaint and drove it entirely out of my system.

"Although well along toward the allotted span of man's life, I am as pleased as a child over the results, and feel like a young man again."

SOME SKETCHES OF THE LONG AGO

SCHOOL LIFE IN EARLY DAYS.

How The Children Back There Started An Education.

Hanrahan, N. C., June 15, 1911. Two and one-half miles from Seven Springs in a southerly direction and one mile from a home built by an eccentric old man, with his dwelling house in Wayne county, his kitchen in Duplin and stables in Lenoir, and each within less than a stone's throw of the other. On something of an oasis on that sand belt stood on old cabin, a fac simile of the one that Mrs. Meadows lived in, save that it was not so neatly daubed nor lined with boards, the floor much rougher and had much larger cracks; the light that was transmitted was through a space extending one-third or more of the width of the house (if house you could call it), and made by cutting out one-half each of the upper and lower logs. The shutter to this was a long, rough plank, made to slide on wooden cleats. On the same side of the cabin was three 2-inch holes bored in the logs to slant slightly downward, in these holes were driven rough wooden pins, on these were laid a rough 14-inch plank, which was constructed to write on (you will pardon to some extent my scribbling, won't you now, Mr. Opr., as the twig was bent). For seats were the out side slabs sawed from 2-ft. logs with two holes bored in either end of these, kinder slunch-wise in these holes and on the bark side were driven wooden pegs 2 1-2 ft. long. This made the sharp edge of the slab so it would cut real well. You would have thought the edge had been filed if you had to sit there from 7 a. m. to 6:30 p. m., with bare feet and legs 2 feet from the floor.

Well, that is the kind of seats that we children had to sit on. This hut was situated, as I have said, on an oasis in that desert and surrounded by old field pines with their pointed needles ever whispering their song of love to the gentle breezes and dropping an occasional straw to carpet the earth beneath. It was there that I spent my first day at what they called school. It was on a lovely day. I think about the middle of May, the flowers were blooming everywhere, their sweet fragrance filled the air, the birds were singing their songs of love. There was not a cloud to be seen above, save the smoke of battle not yet cleared away from that encounter of the boys who wore gray, or anything they could get to wear, with Foster's army at White Hall. But Foster's men had gone on to Goldsboro and it was Monday, 5 a. m., and papa said to my brother, 4 years my senior, and my sister, 2 years my senior, and me, then near 6 years old, "You children get your books." These consisted of McGuffie's second reader, Stoddard's mental arithmetic for my brother and Webster's blue back one each for sister and me. Said he, "You children go by Mrs. Meadows and get her two children and go to school. One of you can loan them your blue back and you two can study together. You must start at once, for it is 3 1-2 miles that way to the school house, and you must be there by 6:30." We never stopped to question why when he told us to do a thing. So armed with our dinner basket and books as aforesaid, we started off in a trot,

THE SEASON AT WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH

MUCH FISHING AND DANCING.

Big Excursion Coming From Atlanta Next Week.

Wrightsville Beach, N. C., June 19.—The Virginia Life Insurance Company is holding its annual outing at Wrightsville Beach, where they are registered at the Seashore Hotel. A delightful feature of this occasion was a large fishing party which was tendered them by the superintendent, Mr. B. T. Hopkins, on Friday morning when they went out in the "Virgie May" at 6:30 a. m., in charge of Captain Wells. The fishing was unusually good and added to the zest of the occasion. The catch of black fish was especially good, and the sportsmen spent a most interesting morning. About seventeen gentlemen composed the party.

Another fishing party which was greatly enjoyed took place Friday, when Messrs. J. F. Walker, Jas. Divine and Capt. Sadler went out to the Five Mile Rocks, in one of the staunch launches afforded at Wrightsville Beach. About an hour and a half was spent outside, in which time 45 blue fish, 8 trout, 12 mackerel, and many other fish were landed.

Dancing continues to be the chief delight of the young folks at the beach, and each evening many couples flock to Lumina, to enjoy the pleasures afforded them. Many hundreds come down from the city and practically all of the young folks at Wrightsville Beach to participate in the souvenir dances given by the Tidewater Power Company.

Friends of the beach are interested to learn that Miss Julie Owens, of Wilmington, will be among the guests entertained by Miss Laura Lee Cooney, in Atlanta, on the 22nd, at Piedmont Driving Club, during the Phi Mu National Convention. Her friends are glad to learn that she will return in a few weeks.

The excursion from Atlanta, which will occur on the 28th, is being anticipated with much pleasure by hundreds who will take advantage of the cheap rates to visit the beach, and every preparation is being made for the convenience and comfort of the visitors.

5 or 6 doses "666" will cure any cases of Chills and Fever. Price, 25c. 5 20-3m 820 for we had to trot to get there in time.

Mrs. Meadows' reached, her children were soon ready. So off we went again through a winding path that led to the piney old field in the midst of which stood the school house. The reached with our tongues out and panting for breath, we flung ourselves down on that carpet of straw and watched the children, boys and girls, from the three counties come in. Soon a lean and lank, sour-looking old fellow armed with a pine knot cane came to the door from within and with this he hammered on a knot that was in a plank in the door. He hammered and hammered 'till he could hammer there no more, because the knot fell out and went through a crack in the floor. Then he roared out "That means books; the last one of you come in and make haste about it."

SENTIMENT AGAINST "OPEN SUNDAY"

of Men's Prayer League Was Unanimous

SPEECHES ON THE SUBJECT

Best Sent to Board of Aldermen to Let Greenville Have "Open Sunday"—Proper Observance of God's Day The Safeguard of the Nation.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Men's Prayer League in the Christian church, Sunday afternoon, and much interest was shown in the discussion of the subject "Is The Open Sunday in Keeping with God's Law?"

The first speaker was Prof. H. E. ... He said there was not even a question against this subject, and argument at all could be reverentized against God's command. His purpose was shown that the Sabbath should be kept holy, and we should follow the commandment "Be separate and make of yourselves a chosen people. History records the downfall of nations that were disobedient to God's command. It has become more difficult to keep the Sabbath, because more temptations come. This is largely due to the type of people coming into this country and the foreign ideas that bring. We cannot afford to adopt customs they bring, for the effect would be to check the growth in power of our nation and bring it to decay. The worship of money is the enemy behind the clamor for an open day. It is the desire to gain a nickle that men are willing to do at their counters and sell cold cigars, etc., on Sunday. Can we permit this in Greenville? The Men's Prayer League, and representatives of the Baracas and the others have a duty to perform in preventing this. When he moved to Greenville a few years ago he was impressed with the general observance of the Sabbath, and he hoped to see it continued. Seven days of labor to the week means a loss of mental, moral health. We must afford to surrender the Sabbath.

J. W. Bryan was the next speaker and said when we take all material affect our life, whether these are public or private, and measure them by the standard of God's law, we take the right step for guidance. The Sabbath is an old institution appointed for the good of men. It is for our well being and gives us the opportunity of recuperation of the strength gained during a week of labor. Sabbath and the home are closed. A community is made up of individuals, and society is no better than the sum of its parts. We are no better off in our homes. Mr. Bryan referred to the conflict between Christ and the Pharisees over questions of Sabbath observance, and how Christ taught by example and teaching that things were permissible. He said some times get too straight over things that are done on Sabbath. Some things are for our benefit and convenience. While he recognized the nature of his calling takes him to his store on Sunday, he does not want to see all-day Sunday opening for business. Here he enumerated several things done on Sunday—keeping servants busy much of the day, housewives freezing ice cream and preparing big dinners, pleasure driving and automobiling, telephone and telegraphic messages, open passenger station and mails, and asked do we regard these people as greater sinners than the rest of us? He also emphasized one evil the aldermen permit and go so far as to regulate by ordinance the section of the town given over to it.

Here President Wilson, in calling the next leader, said that if some evils do exist, what is our duty about opening the door and permitting others.

Mayor F. M. Wooten was the next speaker, said he would answer that question briefly: Our duty is to keep the Fourth Commandment, which says do our labor in six days and rest the seventh. It is as much our duty to labor six days as it is to rest one day. God made this law. Those to whom it was first given might not have seen its necessity nor caught its full meaning. We of this day are more enlightened and see the necessity for and good of such a law. Nations have been punished and blotted out of existence for failure to keep God's law. He did not believe any of the commandments can be set aside—no person can violate either of them and be a true Christian. It is true there are some regrettable conditions in Greenville. Can we correct these? Yes. Can you or I as an individual correct them? No. It takes a unity of sentiment and action to do this.

After the talks by the leaders the meeting was opened to any who wished to add remarks. Ex-Governor T. J. Jarvis said that from childhood he had observed the Sabbath. While in the wayward days of youth he did many things that were sinful, he did not violate the Sabbath. There are certain acts that are overlooked on the Sabbath—such as are done through necessity, mercy or charity. Selling cold drinks and cigars on Sunday was for neither necessity, mercy or charity, but that the seller might put that many extra nickels in his pocket. He did not believe there was a druggist in Greenville who wanted to keep open on Sundays to carry on this business. If any do desire it, they have no more right to do so than has the grocers and dry goods dealers. There are certain things in the way of trains, mails, etc., over which we have no control (if I had the making of the law every wheel would stop at mid-night Saturday and not move until mid-night Sunday) but because there are some evils we cannot correct is no reason that we should open the doors and permit others that we can prevent.

Mr. G. E. Harris said we should go after one specific thing at the time and get it. If an expert fisherman has but three poles and gets a bite on all at the same time, he is going to let two alone until he is sure of landing one, and not lose all by trying to land all at the same time. That is what we want to do now—be specifically against the open Sunday in Greenville and see that we do the one thing now of not having that. Then we can take up other things, one at the time, and do them. While trains run on Sundays he does not ride on them and they would have to stop if nobody patronized them.

Mr. E. B. Ficklen, an alderman-elect, quoted James 4:17 and said he knew the law, and so far as he was concerned he was going to carry it out by being against the open Sunday.

Mr. C. W. Wilson spoke briefly in behalf of the children, urging that for their sakes and to give them a right example in Sabbath observance, Greenville should not have an open Sunday.

Then by unanimous vote without a dissenting voice, the Men's Prayer League adopted a motion that the president of the league convey to the board of aldermen of the town the request that they do not permit Greenville to have the open Sunday.

The league will meet next Sunday afternoon in the Baptist church Subject for that day "Known by Their Fruits." Text, Matthew 7:12-20. Leaders, Messrs. J. S. Norman, J. A. Bland and W. H. Ragsdale.

LECTURE AT TRAINING SCHOOL

By Dr. George E. Strayer of Columbia University

"TEACHING AS A PROFESSION"

The Necessity For Professional Preparation And What It Consists Of—Teacher Should Be Actuated By Ideals of Service—Best Summer School Term Ever Held In North Carolina.

A lecture on "Teaching as a Profession" was delivered on Monday evening at the Training school by Dr. Geo. D. Strayer, of Columbia University. In the discussion of this topic the speaker considered, first, the necessity of professional preparation. When teaching is contrasted with the other professions, one can not fail to remark the meagre preparation which has been required of those who were engaged in teaching. The establishment of the Teachers' Training School in Eastern North Carolina marks a great step in advance.

The preparation of the teacher consists in at least three types of work. There is first the academic preparation which we demand of all who are engaged in any of the learned professions. Second, work which may be characterized, academic professional training. In this part of the teachers preparation she comes to realize that subjects of study are to be considered as methods of intellectual growth and development for children. It is one thing to know a subject and another to realize just how this subject may be utilized in the normal and mental development of pupils. A third type of the preparation is found in the strictly professional training which should be required of teachers. In this work the meaning of education and of the school as a social institution, must be mastered by the teacher. There is a wide field of study which centers in the subject which we commonly call psychology. No one is fit to teach who is not well acquainted with the characteristics of child life and development. To know of the child's instinctive equipment, of the possible differences in ability and capacity; to be able to adapt instruction to the method of the mind's normal activity, is absolutely essential for success in teaching.

The speaker also insisted upon continued study and investigation as essentials in the professional life of the teacher. In this part of the address, attention was called to the fact that careful, scientific investigation is already being undertaken in education, and that teachers, even if they do not make original contribution should at least be conversant with the results that are achieved by those who devote themselves to investigation.

In closing the speaker suggested that all who were members of the profession should be actuated by ideals of service, both to individuals as such, and to the community as a whole. One of the best tests of the professional teacher is found in the joy and pride which she takes in her work. It is only those who find more joy in teaching than in anything else who truly belong to the teaching profession.

It is certain that no lecture delivered here has been so rich in thought, easy and forceful in presentation and so promising in effective results as this one. The city superintendents, county superintendents, principals of high schools, and in fact, all of the teachers here are indeed fortunate in that they have the privilege of coming in personal contact with such a distinguished educator and professional thinker and teacher as Dr. Strayer is. It is true that no summer school term has ever had in North Carolina as strong a teacher as Dr. Strayer. His work here means a new day in our education, and the Training school has done the state a lasting service in securing him. Such a course as he is giving here in school administration and supervision if given in this state for two months and compulsory attendance was required would mean an educational up-lift to the state that would not under ordinary circumstances come in ten years.

Much interest is felt here in the matter of having the schedule of Norfolk Southern trains changed so that connection can be made with the Atlantic Coast Line trains at Greenville. A petition is being circulated and will be sent to Norfolk Southern officials. Such a change would be a great convenience to all of the towns south of Greenville.
