Patton to Visit Far North
NEW YORK, June 26.—James A. Patton, who is credited with having operated a successful corner in cotton some years ago and later displayed his genius as a speculator by pulling down several million in Chicago wheat pit, sailed for Europe today to begin a summer vacation trip that will be confined to the regions of the far north not usually visited by tourists. Norway, Svalbard, Iceland and Greenland will be included in the itinerary. Mr. Patton is accompanied on the trip by his son, "Jack Patton," and Dr. Abram W. Harris, president of Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill.

Advertising

Is the connecting link between the merchant and customer—it is the merchant's salesman.

Goods snugly resting on a shelf are very much like a miser's gold—all right, but in need of circulating...

A Secret has better chance to travel than the goods of a merchant who will not talk about them all the time. The up-to-date merchant looks to advertising like the announcer to his megaphone. Advertising enlarges the circle of merchant's business, the megaphone strengthens the volume of the voice. Both multiply the chances of a hearing. In grand father's time advertising was not thought of. But in grandfather's time competition was slight. Today it is so keen that a merchant must look out else the edge of competition may separate him from his business.

Be sure to tell the people what you have, why you have it, and what they can have it for. This is vital to your business. Also when telling the people use a medium that will reach them with your message of intelligence.

The Daily Reflector will do it for you!

SPECIAL LETTER FROM THE NATIONS CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, June 25.—There is a vast difference in appearance between the newspaper man of these days and the "old boy" of the halcyon times when the chief occupation of statesmen was whipping the editor. Today the men of the Capital, even the veterans are universally smooth-shaven. Occasionally there is a moustache—but not often. The result is that all men look young.

With this factor in mind, imagine the feelings of the young reporter, who, having met the latter-day type of correspondent, strolls casually into the press gallery for the first time and views the pictures of former newspaper stars that line the walls. In front of him, behind him, and staring steadily from behind telephone booths and sofas are rows upon rows of whiskers. Not casual moustaches or imperials; not even ordinary sideburns, but whiskers and pronounced. In fact, nine out of ten of the "old boys" one sees in etching, painting or photograph, are the proud possessors of whiskers that are worn only nowadays by Mormon church officials. Beginning high behind the ears, the whiskers gradually work their way down over the face until they reach the chin and there is enough material for a mattress.

Offhand, most prominent newspaper men recalls as well blessed in the lawsuit line are Joseph Pulitzer and Charles A. Dana. But these men were "mere pickers" in front of whiskers. For instance there is one man whom Col. Charles Mann, Superintendent of the gallery refers to lovingly as "old Mathias." His picture looks as if his entire life had been spent in cutting the beard which flows in all its rangy down past the second of his coat. It stops there only because the photograph ends.

Then there is John C. New, father of New of Indiana, who has a prominent figure in the recent Chicago convention. John C. had a side view taken of himself. This is unfortunate. After seeing half of his whiskers one longs for full measurement and specifications. One wishes the same picture could speak that did subject might explain what he did with them when heading up Capitol Hill on a windy day.

No star of long ago, however, has anything on Elliot F. Shepard unless it be James E. Scripps. Elliot was on the landscape effect, his whiskers being thoroughly and evenly distributed below the eyes. But Scripps is a victor when it comes to an actual longitudinal measurement. His whiskers don't get well started until they reach the chin. Then they drop, drop, drop, like the weeping willow. The last seen of them is as they slide past the vest apparently headed for his knees.

Then there is the Joneses, two of them. There is C. H. and John Henry and not a man in the world would dare attempt to say which had the better beard. John Henry shone because most of his beard stood on end. His whiskers even in the pictures have a distinctly frightened appearance.

A new correspondent wandered through the gallery the other day. "Did they have extra sessions in those days?" he asked.

"Of course," replied the friend. "Why ask that?"

"I was wondering," said the new man reflectively, "what they did with those whiskers when the temperature began to flirt with the 100 mark."

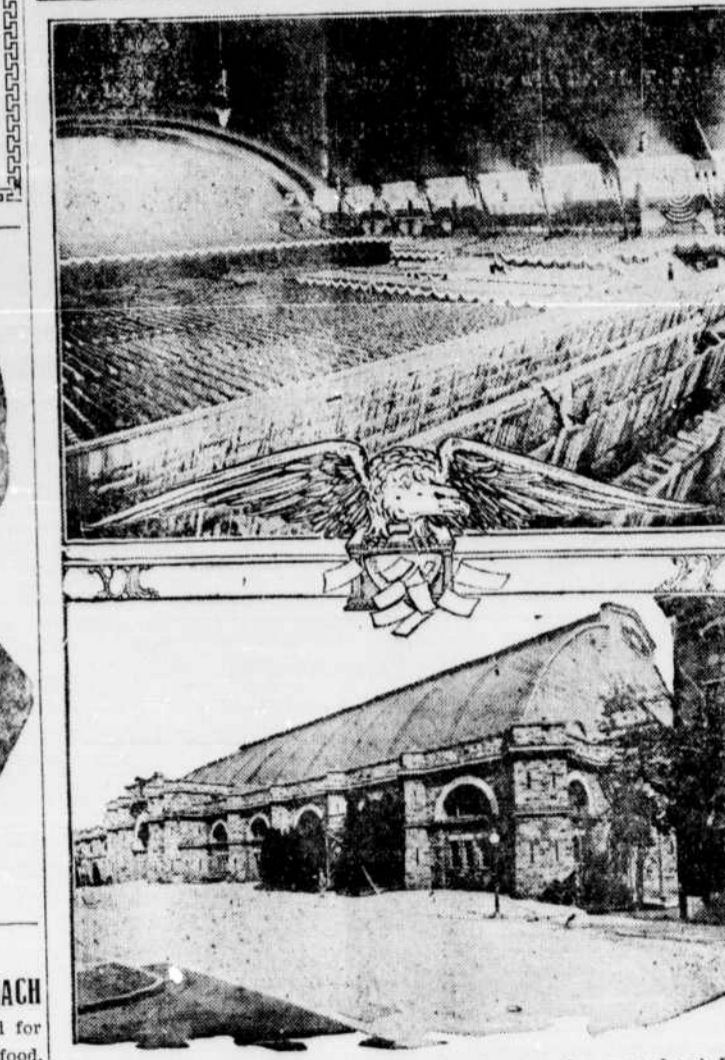

Always there is the same comment when the new man wanders in. "Aren't all these middle-aged men with smooth-shaven faces, while on the walls are yards and yards of wild untrammelled beards?"

Two men desiring the honorable mention in the hall of the bewhiskered immortals are W. W. Armstrong and William Henry Smith.

Superintendent Mann always points them out to strangers with the explanatory remark that they had strong faces. Now he knows that nobody can guess. About all of the faces the average person can discern is a point of the nose and two eyes. The rest is hair.

Amid this luxury of beard there stand out two startlingly smooth shaven faces. One is W. W. Grady of Georgia, author of the famous "reconciliation" speech. The other is William Randolph Hearst. Both of these faces as they gaze from their corken frames, are sad. The smooth shaven twain seem always to be wailing they could climb off the wall of bewhiskered heroes and join in the latter day workers who are burying hither and thither in front of them.

Where Democrats Will Choose Their Presidential Candidate

ANYTHING that the Democratic national convention may do at Baltimore will run tame after the proceedings at Chicago. Nevertheless the eyes of the nation will be upon the deliberations in the Fifth regiment armory in the Monumental City during the week beginning June 25. The convention hall of which the photographs show the exterior and interior is one of the largest in the country. Its huge drill hall measures 230 by 400 feet, and its normal seating capacity of 10,000 has been increased so that 15,000 people may be accommodated while the convention is in session. To house the delegates and other visitors Baltimore has hotels which can accommodate upward of 6,000 persons, not to mention the 10,000 or more private houses which will receive convention guests.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Every train coming into San Francisco today swelled the number of arrivals of delegates to the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and from present indications the prediction that the attendance will establish a new high record will be more than fulfilled. Many of those arriving today came as members of delegations from State Federations, while in some cases the clubs of a single city had chartered special trains for the transportation of their representatives. The elaborate programme of entertainment is to be ushered in tonight with a grand concert in the auditorium. Tomorrow afternoon there is to be a reception in the ball-room of the palace hotel, at which the delegates and clubwomen will have an opportunity to meet the officers and directors of the general federation. The first of the regular business sessions will be held Wednesday morning.

Food for Babies.
Until a baby is a year old it should live almost entirely upon good, pure milk. It also requires a moderate amount of water every day. The only addition to the diet should be a teaspoonful of orange juice once a day, after it is six months old. The habit practised by some mothers, of taking the baby to the table during the regular meal time and giving it a taste of the various articles of food is reprehensible.

After the baby is a year old a little prune juice or pulp of a baked apple may be given once a day. Gradually other articles of food may be added, but these must be such as are easily digested. Meat broths, soft boiled eggs, cereal and baked potatoes moistened with milk should be the chief thing given. At first these should be given only at the noonday meal, but gradually they may be added to meals. Oat meal is a good winter food for children. It should not be given in summer, as it is too heating.

The child should be urged to drink plenty of water between meals, but never should be given ice water. No drugs should ever be given except on the advice of a physician. Especially should mothers shun soothing syrups as they would poison, for these have caused the death of numerous babies.

Typhoid and the Titanic.
Last April over fifteen hundred people perished on the Titanic. The news of this, the greatest ocean catastrophe of the age, shocked the world. The worst feature of it all was that it might easily have been avoided had the captain of the ill-fated vessel heeded the warning of danger ahead, or if sufficient lifeboats had been provided. After the catastrophe the United States Congress rushed a special investigating committee to New York, which met the rescuing ship with her load of survivors and conducted an investigation immediately. This committee fully investigated the cause of the disaster and made a voluminous report, including recommendations regarding the equipment of sea going vessels, their lines of travel and many other things. It has been recommended that certain international legislation be made regulating ocean traffic.

Now, all of this is very good and much to the point, but last year over fifteen hundred North Carolinians died of typhoid fever and twenty thousand others suffered from this disease. The greater part of this awful loss might have been averted in our cities if our city authorities had heeded the many timely warnings of health officers and sanitarians and provided an unquestionably pure public water supply and if they had passed and enforced ordinances against flies and filth. Likewise, much of it could have been averted in the country if the people there had been equally careful in regard to their water and milk and flies. But did they do it? Vital statistics reports of the various towns in the state show where they did and where they did not. No vital statistics, however, are available for the rural districts of North Carolina. Did Congress appoint an investigating committee to determine the cause of this fearful loss of life and make recommendations? Will the coming legislature make an investigation of the matter? Did your own local county officials or city council ever consider the matter? Very few have. Why? Are our own cities and brethren of so much less value or importance than the passengers on the Titanic. No. The reason is simply this: The Titanic disaster was spectacular and unusual. The continued loss from typhoid is neither unusual nor spectacular. We have become accustomed to it. We do not think that such things had to be, that they were unpreventable, but now we know that they are preventable. It will be only a matter of a few years until the public will learn that for every case of death from typhoid some one is responsible. It may be your city officials for not providing pure water and pure milk and for not suppressing flies. It may be your doctor for not properly reporting to the health officer or for not giving proper instructions for the care of a case of the disease. You yourself may be guilty for gross neglect. Whoever it may be, rest assured that some one is responsible and the sooner we begin to impress this fact upon those in authority the less typhoid we will have.

New York's Move That Nomination Be By Acclamation Rejected and Final Ballot Sees State After State Join New Jersey Governor's Banner—Two States Remain True to Speaker

William Jennings Bryan Centre of Attraction As Fight UNDERWOOD'S WITHDRAWAL SIGN FOR WILSON BREAK

BALTIMORE, July 3.—Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, was yesterday nominated for the presidency by the Democratic National Convention. The nomination was made after Clark had released his supporters and New York as a climax, had moved to suspend the balloting and make the nomination by acclamation.

There was objection to this plan. As the final roll call came on state after state fell into line for the New Jersey executive, piling upon overwhelming majority.

The result was reached with tumultuous demonstrations by delegates and spectators.

Bryan was a center of interest as Wilson's nomination became certain. He said he wanted most of all the nomination of a progressive.

Upon motion of Senator Stone the nomination of Governor Wilson was made unanimous at 3:33 p. m.

After the nomination of Wilson the next order of business was nominations for vice president. Prominent among those named were Governor Marshall of Indiana; Governor Burke of North Dakota; Representative Henry of Texas and Senator Kern of Indiana.

Congressman Fitzgerald of New York moved that roll call be dispensed with and nomination of Wilson be made by acclamation.

The convention rose on mass as the New York spokesman moved Wilson's nomination by acclamation.

A frenzy of cheers swept the floors and galleries.

The delegates stood on their chairs waving hats and flags.

Senator Stone, speaking for Clark released all Clark delegates.

Stone said the delegates were perfectly free to vote for whom they pleased. But the Missouri delegation regardless of what others might do would vote for Clark on all ballots.

Major Fitzgerald, of Boston, took the platform to withdraw Foss.

Senator Bankhead, manager of the platform and spoke amid breathless silence, withdrawing the candidacy of the Alabama congressman.

He said Underwood had entered the contest hoping to be the nominee. But his chief desire was to eradicate every prestige of sectional feeling. That had now been demonstrated by the liberal support given the Alabama candidate. He would not be a party to the defeat of any candidate.

"But I think time has come to recognize that he cannot be nominated in this convention, nor can he be used to defeat any other candidate," Bankhead proceeded.

"Vice president" quired a delegate from the floor.

"No," houted back Bankhead. "He will not turn from the important duties he is performing to take such an office as vice president."

Underwood would remain where he was, doing his great constructive work. Bankhead went on, and he expressed the hope no one would further urge the Alabama candidate for vice president.

"Mr. Underwood directs me to withdraw his name from this convention," said Bankhead, amid impressive silence, adding a tribute of thanks from Underwood for the sincere and loyal support given him. He added that all his friends were now released to vote for whom they pleased.

The belt slipped off and Tillery jumped through the hole in the floor to straighten the belt, but landed in the hog machine which was still revolving at a rapid rate. His right leg was cut off by this machine, between the knee and ankle. Mr. Tillery was taken to the Washington hospital immediately.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN has a political secretary in whom he reposes the largest confidence. It is his wife. It has been her custom in all of his campaigns to travel with him, acting as his amanuensis and legal aid. For Mrs. Bryan, the daughter and wife of a lawyer, is herself a member of the legal profession. It was a matter of course, then, that she should have accompanied her husband to Baltimore as well as to Chicago, where he reported the Republican convention. Mrs. Bryan's longest journey with her husband was the world tour which they made in 1906. She is fond of travel, but the place she likes best in the world is the farmhouse at Normal, four miles from Lincoln, Neb., which has been the home of the family since 1901.

BIG DIRIGIBLE A TOTAL WRECK

Yanniman and Crew of Three Are Killed

EXPLOSION CAUSES FATAL FALL

Wives of Men on Air Craft Witness The Tragedy That Makes Them Widows. The Four Bodies Fell into the Atlantic

ATLANTIC CITY, July 2.—While 3,000 spectators stood too startled to utter a single sound, the big dirigible balloon Akron was shattered by the explosion of the gas bag and blown to atoms at 6:33 this morning, a half mile off shore, over Absecon Inlet. Melvin Yanniman, who had built the airship with the idea of flying across the Atlantic Ocean, Captain Yanniman, his younger brother, Fred Almos, Walter Guest and George Brilliant, his crew, were instantly killed. The dirigible was sailing at a height of 1,000 feet and had been in the air since 5:15 o'clock when the accident occurred. She was a quarter of a mile south of Brigantine Beach, which is across the inlet from this city.

The huge envelope, containing thousands of cubic feet of gas, was rent by the terrific force of the explosion, probably caused by expansion from the sun's rays. It burst near the middle. A mass of flames hid the ship from view. For a space of probably ten seconds the half million dollar dirigible was invisible while in the air about the spot where she had been hovering to be all flames.

INDIANA GOV. FOR 2ND PLACE

But Three Ballots Taken For A Vice-President

MARSHALL DEFEATS BURKE

Strongest Opponent to Gov. Marshall Was Gov. John E. Burke of South Dakota, Who, However, Was Defeated After 3 Ballots

BALTIMORE, June 3.—For president—Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey.

This was the ticket completed by the Democratic national convention at 1:56 a. m. today.

The nomination of Governor Marshall for vice president, came somewhat as a surprise for when the night's balloting for vice president had it seemed that the Bryan-Wilson contingent in the convention had definitely settled upon Governor John E. Burke, of North Dakota.

There was not much of a fight, however, and when the two ballots disclosed Marshall easily in the lead, Governor Burke's name was withdrawn and Marshall was proclaimed the nominee by acclamation. A minute later the convention had adjourned, in the die. The delegate, worn and weary, made their way out of the big convention hall singing and happy to be tarred for home.
