

WILSON INDUCTED INTO HIGH OFFICE

Inauguration of Twenty-Seventh President is Witnessed by Great Crowds.

MARSHALL SWORN IN FIRST

Simple Ceremony in Senate Chamber Followed by More Impressive Affair on East Portico of the Capitol.

By GEORGE CLINTON.
Washington, March 4.—In the presence of a vast throng of his fellow citizens, Woodrow Wilson today stood in front of the east portico of the capitol and took the oath of president of the United States. Thomas R. Marshall already had been sworn in as vice-president, and with the completion of the ceremony the ship of state was manned by the Democratic party, which had been ashore for sixteen years.

As the new chief executive of the nation stood with bared head, Edward Douglas White, chief justice of the Supreme court, held before him the Bible always used in the ceremony. Mr. Wilson placed his hands upon the book and in a voice strong though somewhat affected by emotion, swore to support the Constitution and the laws of the country and to perform the duties of his high office to the best of his ability.

Thomas Riley Marshall swore fealty to the Constitution and to the people in the senate chamber, where for four years it will be his duty to preside over the deliberations of the members of the upper house of congress.

Severely Simple Ceremonies.
Both of the ceremonies proper were conducted in a severely simple but most impressive manner. The surroundings of the scene of the president's induction into office, however, were not so simple, for it was an outdoor event and the great gathering of military, naval and uniformed civil organizations gave much more than a touch of splendor to the scene.

In the senate chamber, where the oath was taken by the man now vice-president of the United States, there were gathered about 2,000 people, all that the upper chamber can contain without the risk of danger because of the rush and press of the multitude. It is probable that nowhere else in the United States at any time there has gathered an equal number of men and women whose names are so widely known. The gathering in the senate chamber and later on the east portico of the capitol was composed largely of those prominent for their services in America, and in part of foreigners who have secured places for their names in the current history of the world's doings.

The arrangements of the ceremonies for the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas Riley Marshall were made by the joint committee on arrangements of congress.

President Woodrow Wilson.

section of this committee was ruled by a majority of Republicans, but there is Democratic testimony to the fact that the Republican senators were willing to outdo their Democratic brethren in the work of making orderly and impressive the inaugural ceremonies in honor of two chieftains of the opposition.

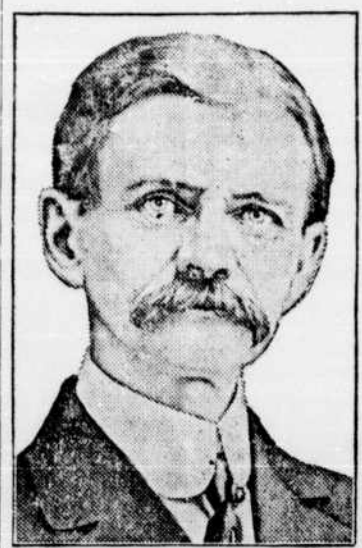

Ride to the Capitol.
President Taft and President-elect Wilson rode together from the White House to the capitol, accompanied by the members of the congressional committee of arrangements. The vice-president-elect also rode from the White House to the capitol and in the carriage with him were the senate's pressmen, one senator, senator Bacon of Georgia, and three members of the congressional committee of arrangements.

The vice-president-elect took the oath just before noon in accordance with custom and prior to its taking by the president-elect. Every arrangement for the senate chamber proceedings had been made so that they moved forward easily and with a certain ponderous grace.

The admission to the senate chamber to witness the oath-taking of the vice-president was by ticket, and it is needless to say every seat was occupied. On the floor of the chamber were many former members of the senate who, because of the fact that they once held membership in that body, were given the privilege of the floor. Afton hall was filled and all the minor officials of government and those privileged to witness the ceremonies were seated, William H. Taft and Woodrow Wilson, preceded by the sergeant-at-arms and the committee of arrangements, entered the senate chamber. They were followed immediately by Vice-President-elect Thomas R. Marshall, leading upon the arm of the president pro tempore of the senate who, after the seating of the incoming vice-president, took his place as presiding officer of the senate and of the day's proceedings.

The president and the president-elect sat in the first row of seats directly in front and almost under the desk of the presiding officer. In the same row, but to their left, were the vice-president-elect and two former vice-presidents of the United States, Levi P. Morton of New York and Adlai A. Stevenson of Illinois. When the distinguished company entered the chamber the senate was still under its old organization. The oath of office was immediately administered to Vice-President-elect Marshall, who thereupon became Vice-President Marshall. The prayer of the day was given by the chaplain of the senate, Rev. Uly. ss. G. H. Pierce, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church, of which President Taft has been a member. After the prayer the vice-president administered the oath of office to the president-elect, and thereafter with the senate of the United States passed for the first time in its history into the control of the Democrats.

Procession to the Platform.
Immediately after the senate ceremony a procession was formed to reach the platform of the east portico of the capitol, where Woodrow Wilson was to take the oath. The procession included the president and the president-elect, members of the Supreme court, both houses of congress, all of the foreign ambassadors, all of the heads of the executive department, many governors of states and territories, Admiral Dewey of the navy and several high officers of the sea service, the chief of staff of the army and many distinguished persons from civil life. They were followed by the members of the press and by those persons who had succeeded in securing seats in the senate galleries to witness the day's proceedings.

When President Taft and the president-elect emerged from the capitol to the portico they saw in front of them reaching the capitol into the park to the east, an immense concourse of citizens. In the narrow line formed by the onlookers and the platform on which Mr. Wilson was to take the oath, were drawn up the cadets of the two greatest governments of the world, France and America, and flanking them were bands of regulars and of national guardsmen. The whole scene was charged with color and with life.

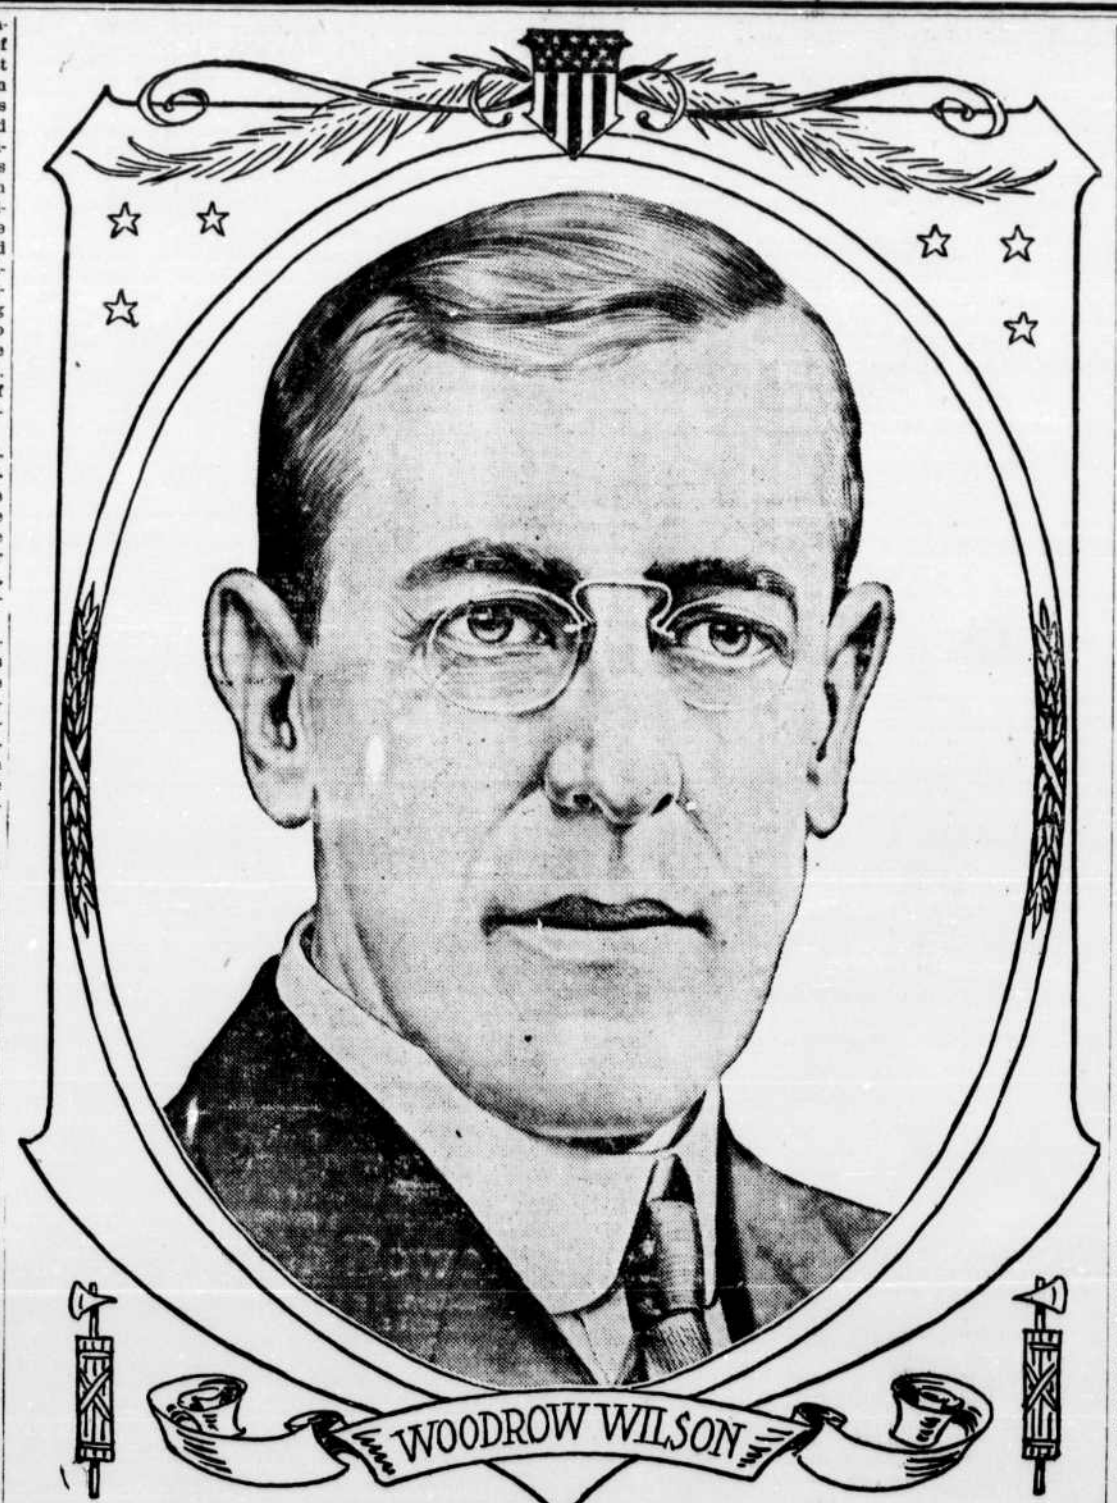

On reaching the platform the president and president-elect took the seats reserved for them, seats which were flanked by many rows of benches rising tier for tier for the accommodation of the friends and families of the officers of the government and of the press.

Oath Administered to Wilson.
The instant that Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson came within sight of the crowd there was a great outburst of applause, and the military bands struck quickly into "The Star Spangled Banner." Only a few bars of the music were played and then soldiers and civilians became silent to witness respectfully the oath taking and to listen to the address which followed.

The chief justice of the Supreme court delivered the oath to the president-elect, who, uttering the words, "I will," became president of the United States. As soon as this ceremony was completed Woodrow Wilson delivered his inaugural address, his first speech to his fellow countrymen in the capacity of their chief executive.

On the conclusion of the speech the bands played once more, and William Howard Taft, low ex-president of the United States, and the president pro tempore Bacon of the United States senate was surrounded by the members of the Black Horse troop of the Cavalry Military academy of Annapolis. This is the first time in the history of inaugural ceremonies that a guard of honor has escorted a vice-president to the scene of his oath taking.

Dodson's Liver Tonic at Night Will Straighten You Out by Morning. Calomel May Knock You Out of a Day's Work.

If you are a calomel user next time you are tempted to buy it ask your druggist if he can absolutely guarantee the drug not to harm you. He won't do it because he CAN'T do it.

But here is a perfect substitute for calomel which does not drug and does not take the life out of you. It is Dodson's Liver Tonic. Basnight's Pharmacy will refund your money without question if you are not thoroughly satisfied.

Go to Basnight's Pharmacy whom you are acquainted with and find out about the great number of people who are taking this remarkable remedy and feeling better, keener, healthier and better able to enjoy life than they ever were when taking calomel.

Why? Because calomel is a poison, one that may stay in the system, and while seeming to benefit you temporarily, may do harm in the end. If you haven't felt these ill effects so far, it is because you are fortunate enough to have a strong constitution. Don't take the risk any longer. Get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic (sic) and not how easily and naturally it corrects all bilious conditions, how it clears away that sick headache and coated tongue, how it sets your right without ache or gripe. GREAT PARADE IN HONOR OF WILSON Federal and State Troops, Men From Navy, Veterans and Civilians March.

GEN. WOOD IS GRAND MARSHAL

Indians, Hunt Clubs and College Students Are in Line—Enthusiastic Spectators Continuously Cheer the Inaugural Procession.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington, March 4.—The "Jeffersonian simplicity" which Woodrow Wilson requested should be observed in every detail of his inauguration as president did not apply to the inaugural parade, for it was as elaborate as such an affair usually is. The people wanted it so, and they showed their appreciation of the spectacle by turning out by the hundred thousand and cheering wildly as the marchers passed with bands playing loudly and flags waving bravely.

The newly inaugurated president reviewed the procession and smiled his approval as he returned the salutes of the commanding officers, for all the glittering show had been arranged in his honor. Pennsylvania avenue, from the capitol to the White House, was full of color, music and movement.

People Enjoy the Sight.
The inhibition of the inaugural ball and of the planned public reception at the capitol had no effect as a bar to the attendance at this ceremony of engaging spectators. Masses were here to see, and other masses were here to cheer while the procession was passing. There was a greater demonstration while the procession was passing than there was four years ago. Victory had come to a party which had known nothing like victory for a good many years. The joy of success found expression in steady and abundantly noisy acclaim.

President Taft and President-elect Wilson were escorted down the avenue by the National Guard troop of cavalry of Essex county, New Jersey. The carriage in which rode Vice-President-elect Marshall and President pro tempore Bacon of the United States senate was surrounded by the members of the Black Horse troop of the Cavalry Military academy of Annapolis. This is the first time in the history of inaugural ceremonies that a guard of honor has escorted a vice-president to the scene of his oath taking.

Formation of Parade.
The military and the civil parade, a huge affair which stretched its length for miles along the Washington streets, formed on the avenue radiating from the capitol. After President Wilson had become President-elect Woodrow Wilson and Vice-President-elect Marshall had become Vice-President-elect Marshall, they went straightway from the capitol to the White House and thence shortly to the reviewing stand in the park at the mansion's front.

The parade, with Gen. Leonard Wood, United States army, as its grand marshal, started from the capitol grounds to move along the avenue to the White House, where it was to pass in review. The trumpet sound of "forward march" at the instant the signal was flashed from the White House that in fifteen minutes the newly elected president and commander-in-chief of the armies and navies of the United States would be ready to review his troops.

It was thought that the parade might lack some of the picturesque features which particularly appealed to the people on former occasions. There were Indians and rough riders here, but when they went out of office they were succeeded by William H. Taft. The parade, however, in honor of Mr. Wilson seemed to be picturesque enough in its costume to appeal to the multitudes. They continually made noise enough.

The procession was in divisions, with General Wood as the grand marshal of the whole affair and having a place at its head. The display, in the words invariably used on like occasions, was "impressive and brilliant."

Wotherspoon Leads Regulars.
The regulars of the country's two armed services naturally had the right of way. Maj. Gen. W. W. Wotherspoon, United States army, was in command of the first division, and which marched the soldiers and sailors and marines from half a dozen battalions rolled along smartly in the wake of their landmass brethren.

The National Guard division followed the division of regulars. It was commanded by Brig. Gen. Albert L. Mills, United States army, who wore the medal of honor given him for conspicuous personal gallantry at the battle of San Juan hill. General Mills is the chief of the militia division of the United States war department.

The entire National Guard of New Jersey was in line, and Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia, Maine and North Carolina were represented by bodies of militia soldiers. Cadets from many of the military and state military schools of the country and a pace in the division.

The third division of the parade was composed of Grand Army of the Republic veterans, members of the Union Veteran league and of the Spanish war organizations. Gen. James E. Stuart of Chicago, a veteran of both the Civil and the Spanish wars, was in command.

Thousands of Civilians.
Robert N. Harper, chief marshal of the civic corps, headed the fourth division. Under his charge were political organizations from all parts of the country, among them being Tammany, representing the city of New York, and Democratic clubs from Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities.

They put the American Indians into the civilian division. The fact that they were in war paint and feathers helped out in picturesque and did nothing to disturb the peace. Members of the United Hunt Clubs of America rode in this division. Their pink coats and their high hats apparently were not thought to jar "Jeffersonian simplicity" from its seat. Pink coats were worn on the hunting field in Jefferson's day and in Jefferson's state.

There President-elect Marshall and Princeton students in the civic section of the parade. Many of them wore orange and black sweaters and they were somewhat noisy though perfectly proper. Students from seventeen other colleges and universities were among the marchers.

Cheering is Continuous.
All along Pennsylvania avenue, from the capitol to a point four blocks beyond the White House, the spectators were massed in lines ten deep. The cheering was constant and Woodrow Wilson cannot complain that the ceremonies attending his induction into office were not accompanied by apparently heartfelt acclaim of the people over whom he is to rule for at least four years.

Every window in every building on Pennsylvania avenue which is not occupied for office purposes was used weeks ago for a good round sum of money. Every room overlooking the marching parade was taken by as many spectators as could find a vantage point from which to peer through the window panes. The roofs of the buildings were crowded with persons willing to stand for hours in a March day to see the wonders of the inaugural parade, and many of them particularly of the military and naval contingents and to say that after many years waiting they had seen a Democratic president inaugurated.

Norfolk Boy Electrocutted By His wire Kite-String

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 2.—Sidney Bright, 15 years of age, was electrocuted shortly after midday yesterday while flying a kite which he had attached picture wire instead of a cord. The kite dipped and the wire string came in contact with a high voltage electric wire skirting the right of way. The boy was tragically burned.

The dead boy was a son of W. G. Bright, who died in Thomasville, Ga., February 22, and made his home with his sister, Mrs. Italy Avant, in Western Branch road, Cottage Place. He was flying his kite in an open field near his home at the time of the accident. He had substituted picture wire for his cotton wind string because of the high wind.

James Tuttle, a foreman employed at the Lay and Wilson butter dairy factory, was the first to reach the boy, and took in the situation at a glance. The lad's clothing was on fire and he gasped only once after "Tuttle reached him. After hanging suspended over the service wire for a few minutes the picture wire burned in two and released the body of the little victim.

Dr. Abbott, the county coroner, viewed the body and gave permission for its removal to the undertaking establishment of J. E. Snellings, in Green street.

The service wire which the kite string came in contact with ran from a transformer station on the Belt Line Railway. A sign displayed on the station read "Danger, 11,000 volts."

Says Developments To Be Met As They May Arise in Extra Session

Plan Determined for Congress by President Wilson

WILL CONVENE ABOUT APRIL 8

Philippine Independence, Alaskan Questions and Other Subjects To Be Taken Up During Extra Session

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Wilson has decided upon a policy of meeting legislative developments as they arise rather than planning a program for the extraordinary session of congress. This, it was learned from White House callers today, will be the president's answer to those who are arguing that currency legislation, Philippine independence, Alaskan questions and other subjects be taken up during the session of the new congress.

The president was advised by Representative Oscar Underwood, the Democratic majority leader, as to the status of the tariff bills being prepared by the ways and means committee. He learned that the committee was making rapid progress but that it might not be ready on April 1, the date originally fixed for the opening of the new congress.

Mr. Underwood thought at least a week more should be given to preparation and as it was on Mr. Underwood's advice that Mr. Wilson fixed upon April 1, there is no doubt that he will name a later date when issuing his proclamation.

Representative Underwood has been of the belief that tariff reform alone should be attempted at the coming session. As he left the White House, Representative Jones of Virginia, who is championing the cause of Philippine independence, met him and sought to impress upon him the necessity of some action on that question during the extra session.

Mr. Jones secured an appointment with the president for Friday when he will further urge Philippine legislation.

The net result of pressure for action on subjects other than tariff had been the adoption of a policy of meeting the legislative situation as it unfolds in new congress. The president will send first a message pointing out the necessity of tariff reform and will follow this with a series of messages upon specific things which he believes congress may be able to act upon without unnecessary delay.

Some people will argue that religion and business do not mix, but there are plenty of examples to the contrary. Those who attended the service in the Baptist church Wednesday night, and heard the talk by Mr. J. S. Mundy of Newark, N. J., saw the break came last Christmas Eve when a big man physically, a big man in the business world and a large hearted Christian. He takes religion with him in his business, and also puts it with the religion of his business.

Mr. Mundy is well equipped. Mr. Mundy is that night the missionary met Connell and Clark and another couple to decide finally whether she would go with Mr. Connell.

WIFE DESERTS HUSBAND FOR SOCIETY THIEF

MET BURGLAR IN JAIL

(Husband Knew Nothing Of The Relations Between Mrs. Clarkson and Conn Until He Found A Letter)

CHICAGO, Ill., March 12.—Rev. Nestor K. Clarkson, a missionary of this city, who was deserted by his wife for Owen P. Conn the confessed "society" burglar under arrest at San Francisco, today threw considerable light on the woman.

She is said to have deserted five children to go with the man who now declares that he robbed to provide her with luxuries.

Clarkson says that his first knowledge of the relations between Conn and Mrs. Clarkson came when he intercepted a letter written to her by Conn, who was then in prison at Waupun, Wis., for a robbery at Milwaukee.

It was a love letter, though moderate in tone, for the necessity of which moderation the writer expressed regret. Reference was made to the "deceitfulness" of some other woman, and "Mabel" (Mrs. Clarkson) was thanked for a pair of slippers which had been sent to him at the prison.

An excerpt from the letter, which evidently was a reply to one from Mrs. Clarkson, reads: "I recall a message that I received while in the Milwaukee jail from some one who said they would stick to me through thick and thin when all others would desert me. This has been a beacon of hope to me at times of discouragement and much of my hope is centered in this promise."

Clarkson wrote to Conn at Waupun and asked him to leave Mrs. Clarkson alone. Conn replied that he had intentions were honorable.

Clarkson married twelve years ago. His bride was 18 years of age. She met Conn while acting as a jail night-stand and her devotion to him developed from her attempts to reform him, according to the husband.

In due time Conn was released from prison and returned to Chicago. He professed religion and frequently visited at the Clarkson home. His interest in the housewife and hers in him, however, became so apparent that even the children noticed it and told their father that they were afraid that he would "try to marry mamma."

That night the missionary met Connell and Clark and another couple to decide finally whether she would go with Mr. Conn.

Regular Session of The General Assembly of 1913 Is Now History

Both Branches of Legislature Adjourn On 64th Day

TO AWAIT EXTRA SESSION

Gavel of President Daughtridge and Speaker Connor, Full Simultaneously, Hiss First To Finish

RALEIGH, March 12.—The regular session of the general assembly of 1913 passed into history yesterday afternoon at a quarter after four o'clock when the gavel of President E. L. Daughtridge of the Senate and Speaker George W. Connor of the House, respectively, fell simultaneously. The two branches of the legislature were formally adjourned at 4:15 p. m.

So ended the sixty-fourth day of the session, the members present having remained out only four days without pay.

The legislature adjourned with the understanding that it will be called by the governor in extra-ordinary session within twelve months. The prevailing opinion among the members of the legislature points to next January as preferable for the extra session.

In addition to the early morning sessions of both houses, held just after midnight for final reading of the revenue bill, the Senate and House held two sessions each yesterday. The Senate was busy much of the day discussing of numerous bills. So did Mr. Mintz and Mr. Justice and Mr. Page. Mr. Wooten opposed such a long and gallant defense, urged to mark time and wait for the Senate to finish its work and get ready to adjourn. No bills of any public interest were taken up by the House.

Hundreds of bills were ratified. Dozens were passed, defeated or tabled by the Senate.

Representative Kellum, of New Hanover, moved to recall from the table the bill to give the commissioner of labor and printing more supervision of the state's printing, and that the amount to be spent by each of the departments for this object. He made the motion on condition that the members present deemed it not in violation of the agreement made at the early morning session. Several members favored the measure, but some objected and Mr. Kellum withdrew his motion. And the bill was left dead, although Representative Ray, of Macon, stated that Commissioner Shipman had declared that if the bill passed and did not save the state $100,000 a year in the matter of printing he would resign his office.

Most of the members of the general assembly left the city yesterday and last night. Only fifty members of the House answered the final roll call at 10 o'clock yesterday.

SENATE, Last Day's Session
President Daughtridge reconvened the Senate at 10 o'clock, prayer being said by Rev. H. M. North, pastor of Anderson street Methodist church.

Shukri, who has held out for many months against the hundreds of soldiers of the Bulgarians and Servians, is said to have informed the Porte in a private message that the Bulgarian troops today captured Hettanaria, one of the key forts and took 8,000 prisoners. The Turks resisted stubbornly.

On motion of Senator McLean, the House adjourned at 11 o'clock.

HOUSE, Final Day
Having recessed since 1:15 a. m., the House was reconvened by Speaker Connor at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Kellum moved to reconsider the vote by which the house at the early morning session passed the bill to regulate the state printing. New York Is Badly In Need of Efficient Police

NEW YORK, March 2.—The principle of New York City, is primarily one of administration, according to the preliminary report of the administrative committee, appointed to investigate police conditions, which was made public today. The present situation, the committee believes, demands "sustained administrative efficiency." The report will be submitted to the board of aldermen tomorrow, and if approved copies will be sent to the governor, lieutenant governor and members of the state assembly and senate at Albany.

The committee also has a plan to place the police and fire departments under the same administrative control. The report also recommends that the question of opening liquor stores and saloons on Sunday be left to the local legislative authorities. Much space is given to the administrative side of the police department.

INTERVIEW OF BETTY

By ANITA CAVENAUGH.

"Just why," queried Billy as mosey by as his 175 pound would permit, "are you hitting me? Here is your ring. I bought it today." He tossed the jeweled circle on the table before the collector of rare curios.

"Oh, Billy, what a beauty! May I try it on for a minute?"

"For as long as you like. No other woman ever wore a ring of mine." There was bitterness in his young heart.

"I wish you could put it on, Billy, just as if nothing had happened."

He saw the tears glittering on her lashes and suddenly caught her hands in his own.

"What is it, Betty dear? What's gone wrong since last night? Be honest with me, girl!"

Betty glanced about her apprehensively. "Somebody will hear."

"I took great care to bring you a ring to you."

"For heaven's sake, Betty, why this nonsense? Let the air fall. Have you discovered that you don't care for me, after all?"

"No, Billy. I love you better than anything else in this world."

"That settles it," said Billy, slipping the circle of big diamonds on her finger. "Neither man nor devil can take you away from me now."

Betty looked down at the auburn head bent over her hand. "Don't, Billy," she cried sharply. "Don't make me cry. If you do, I never can give you up and father's curse."

"So—your father objects."

"Only on principle, Billy."

She took the ring from his finger and handed it to him solemnly.

"I say that I am keeping you from getting a good business start, that you have no head for figures."

"In other words, he thinks I'm no man, just a plain boob."

"No, he believes that you are clever, but he says you never take anything seriously, that you are only in love with me temporarily. You won't love me after you get me," sighed Betty.

Betty looked at her, and his pulse throbbled as he caught her and held her close to him. "I am going to take a thing or two," he said. Hearing footsteps, he released her.

A man parted himself, swaying like a reed in the doorway.

"I beg pardon," he said thickly. "Didn't mean to disturb you and the lady. I—I was just looking about."

As he spoke, Billy covered him with the little pistol he had taken from the table drawer.

"Up with your hands! Quick about it!"

The stranger's expression changed perceptibly.

"I've had a little too much. That's all. Don't make a row. I'll go now."

"Not with the property of my mother's guests in your pockets. Your dress is soiled and so is my mother's. Betty, please touch that bell by the window."

When the servant had answered the bell, Betty proceeded to search him.

"There's the father's watch," screamed Betty. "The one grandfather gave him! And another horsetoe of diamonds! What a hold thief!"

The police made a quiet entrance to take their prisoner, Billy and Betty. "But if you are taking the hardware out of the house of your apartment," chorused the friends, "you'll get a call-down from the janitor."

"I am going to my mother's," admitted Anne. "I got the only thing for you to do is to hold."

So now, she and her husband are hunting a location that will be a proper setting for the new medieval in design to be worn under French gargoyles, Spanish locks, German latches, Florentine nail heads and Dutch hinges. They are to be a deep, dark ravine, and embattled crags, and some melancholy trees such as arbutus and chestnut, and a church with chimneys.

"Smith says the Smiths are to interfere with this artistic harmony, they would like a well-ordered stone road, a good trolley and a town with a good show of buildings."

And while they are hunting this location an architect is having brainstorms trying to design a house that will be harmoniously French, German, Florentine and Dutch, all at one and the same time.

COLLECTION OF CURIOS

By BARBARA BOYD.

They had just returned from Europe, and like all returning tourists, they had a lot of what their friends privately called junk, but which they enthusiastically referred to as a "rare collection of curios."

"Aren't these the quaintest things?" said Anne, exhibiting some brass books picked up in Holland.

"The second have brought a whole hardware shop of them. If I hadn't stepped her," laughed her husband.

"But just imagine how stunning they'll look on the mantel to hang hats on, or—on—in the bathroom for towels."

"I don't believe the fat owner will let you put up hooks," objected a friend.

"Goodness! I never thought of that," replied Anne. She put the hooks away thoughtfully. Then she divined into another box.

"Did you ever see anything so horridly charming as these?" she rapturously exclaimed, producing several specimens of leather garters. "They are so useful and so fascinating."

"What are you going to do with these?" asked a friend.

"Well, of course, they aren't intended for much for houses. That is, I don't think so. Are they?" she asked her husband.

"Oh, I don't know. They'll look all-fired queer, no matter where you put them."

"Tom really hasn't much taste for quaint things," explained Anne. "But I thought they would look delightful up and down the hall. They'll be in the house, like they do at the tops of churches; or maybe—sort of sitting up alongside the water spout."

"But these aren't any garters to a flat," objected the practical friend.

"Nor water spouts, either," chimed in another.

"I never thought of that," replied Anne still more thoughtfully. "But I just couldn't resist getting them."

"If you had a chicken house," said a cynical friend, "you might set them up there. They'd be a real weight on the job of keeping thieves away."

Anne ignored such irrelevancy, and very carefully brought out a huge box which she opened and tenderly drew forth therefrom one by one some door hinges, knockers, latches, locks and bolts, nail heads and a bunch of enormous keys.

"Aren't they just dear?" she said, looking at them with kindly eyes.

"But what in the world will you do with a lot of scrap iron like that?" objected the practical friend.

"Fix up the doors and make them look old-timey. Just imagine how distinguished a door will look with a latch like that," said Anne.

WOMEN IN MASS-MEETING

Protest Against Disturbance of Suffrage Parade in Washington Monday

MAJ. SYLVESTER CRITICISED

Other Police Officers Called "Brutal Leaders."—London Suffragettes Almost Mobbled.—Police Bay Holding Back Crowds.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Several hundred men and women gathered here this afternoon in a mass meeting to protest against the disturbance of the suffrage parade on Pennsylvania avenue last Monday and the conduct of the police along the line of march. Major Sylvester, superintendent of police, and his force were criticised for "mismanagement and incompetency," and those who interfered with the procession were called "brutal leaders."

The speakers were Senators Clapp, of Minnesota; Shafter and Thomas, of Colorado and Works of California; Louis D. Brandeis, "Corporal" James Tanner and Charles Edward Russell. The greater part of the day's speech making was devoted to arguments in favor of suffrage for women, and the references to last Monday's trouble were largely incidental. Senator Clapp assured the audience that woman suffrage throughout the country was a matter of but a few years. "Last Monday's spectacle," he said, "was a disgrace to this country, and it is a shame that it is a shame that pure womanhood cannot march along the streets of the capital of a free nation without insult. The fact that brutal, depraved manhood could come to insult American women is evidence of the straits to which the will political system in this country has come in its fight against progress. I believe last Monday's episode will bring the country to realization that you cannot league yourself with wrong against progress and escape the responsibility for the acts of the substantial supporters of wrong."

Senator Thomas told the audience that the disorder of Monday marked a new point of progress in the suffrage campaign. "The movement," he said, "has passed through the stages of ridicule and argument, and is now reaching the point where its opponents resort to physical coercion. From this point it is but a short distance to victory, and the incident of last Monday will soon be forgotten in the blaze of glory that will attend the final extension of suffrage to women in every state in the nation."

London Suffragettes Almost Mobbled

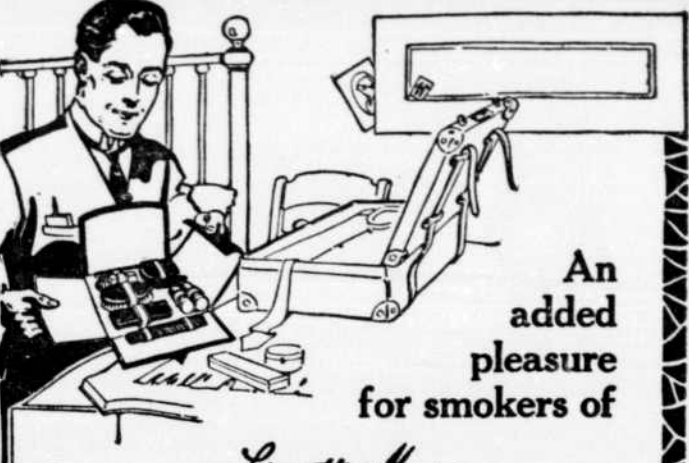

LONDON, March 9.—The suffragists held meetings again today in Hyde Park and on Wimbledon common. They would have met the fate of last Sunday's meetings at the same place, if it had not been for the intervention of police to escort them to safety, but that today the authorities took precautions and had large bodies of mounted and foot policemen in attendance.

Even at that wild scene ensued. Five thousand persons assembled in the park and swarmed about the speaker's platform, and by a deafening din prevented any word of "General" Mrs. Pankhurst's speech from being heard. The pressure of the surging crowds to storm the platform at length became so great that reinforcements were hastily summoned. Mrs. Pankhurst and her colleagues were rescued from their perilous position with some difficulty.

At Wimbledon similar scenes were enacted. Scarcely a word uttered by the speakers was audible, and they, too, had to be protected. Another meeting at Hammersmith was still more disorderly. Miss Brackenbury announced her intention to speak for an hour. This she succeeded in doing by the help of a large force of police to control the crowds but her discourse was inaudible. The din of some songs and the shouts and laughter of the disturbers could be heard half a mile distant. Eggs were thrown at the speakers and the meeting finally broke up in the greatest confusion. Many suggestions were to duck the speakers in a pond.

Big "Safety First" Rally

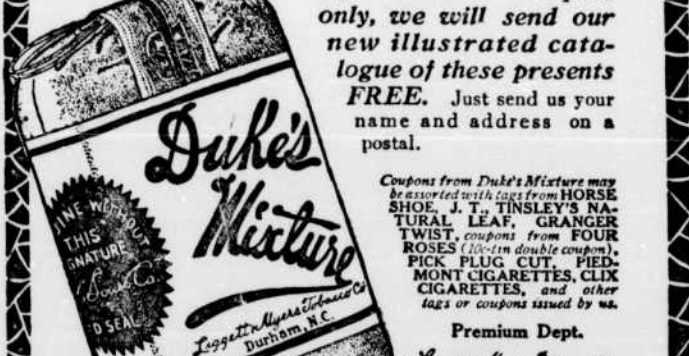

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 10.—Operating employees representing all of the railroads entering Pittsburgh took part today in a big "safety first" rally. Senator Stephen B. Elkins, U. S. Senator, general superintendent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, presided at the meeting and competent speakers explained to the railroad men the necessity for care and caution in their methods of work, for their own safety as well as that of the passengers riding on their roads.

Duke's Mixture

Here is a smoke with the real, genuine tobacco taste—that beats all artificial tastes. Every grain of it is pure, clean tobacco. Tucked into a pipe, or rolled into a cigarette, it makes a delightful smoke.

If you have not smoked Duke's Mixture, made by Liggett & Myers at Durham, N. C., try it now. In addition to one and a half ounces of fine Virginia and North Carolina leaf, with each 5c pack of Duke's Mixture you now get a book of cigarette papers free and A Free Present Coupon.

These coupons are good for hundreds of valuable presents. There are shaving sets, jewelry, cut glass, baseballs, tennis rackets, talking machines, furniture, cameras, and dozens of other articles suitable for every member of the family—each of them well worth saving the coupons for.

Couldn't Walk!

"I used to be troubled with a weakness peculiar to women," writes Mrs. Anna Jones, of Kenny, Ill. "For nearly a year, I could not walk, without holding my sides. I tried several different doctors, but I grew worse. Finally, our druggist advised Cardui for my complaint. I was so thin, my weight was 115. Now, I weigh 163, and I am never sick. I ride horseback as good as ever. I am in fine health at 52 years."

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

We have thousands of such letters, and more are arriving daily. Such earnest testimony from those who have tried it, surely proves the great value of this vegetable, tonic medicine, for women.

MORE UNITY NEEDED

Greenville has some good business men and in some respects is an exceptionally good town. At the same time, in some other respects, it is woefully deficient. The principal drawback is a want of co-operation and failure to take united action on every opportunity for improvement that comes along. There is too much of the spirit of the individual looking out for himself and letting common interests take care of itself as best it can. There have been several instances in late years when the business men did practically get together for a given purpose, and good results was the outcome. This goes to show what can be accomplished when they stand together and work together, and emphasize the need of continuous co-operation. There never was a time when united effort was needed more than right now. The town has a commercial and social club of more than a hundred members, and if these people would come together as they should, when asked to do so on any matter, they could accomplish anything desired for the betterment of the town and enlargement of its business. Get together and work together should be the motto to every man and above all there should be more of the spirit of patronizing and encouraging home enterprises. The money sent out of Greenville that could be spent just advantageously here would go a long way toward enlarging business at home if it was kept here.

The liquor makers and sellers die. They fought the advent of prohibition as long as they could, and now they are fighting the operations of the Webb law by going to the courts. They ought to see by this time that the liquor business is doomed and that the day is fast approaching when it will be swept out entirely. The money they are wasting in trying to back the law, had better be used in establishing some other kind of business.

The man who is thinking about making an investment in or around Greenville, is certainly not adding anything to his bank account by waiting. It is not going to get any cheaper, but values will constantly grow higher. We know a piece of property that fifteen years ago was offered for fifteen hundred dollars, and we doubt if it could now be bought for as many thousands. That is just one illustration.

Days like last Saturday show their effect on business when there is something to bring large crowds to town. Several business men were heard to remark of the good day they had. And this reminds us that Greenville ought to be constantly on the alert to attract people and the proper effort would bring large numbers here frequently.

From the appearance of plant beds and the way land preparation is going on, the tobacco crop this year is going to be something to remember. With seven sales warehouses Greenville will be able to handle even on a bumper crop, but saying this now is not a guarantee against a low price if the crop is too large.

When the suffragette hikers put themselves on exhibition in Washington City, it was no more than might have been expected that the inauguration crowd would get all the fun possible out of it. The crowds went there to see the sights, and that was a part of the show.

North Carolina's bill for horses on which the governor's staff rode at the presidential inauguration, was $230.

And reports intimate that the horses were not very much for looks at that. Washington certainly gets an all-round rake off when inaugurations come along.

One of the finest concerts imaginable is when you hear the hammer, the saw, and the trowel all ringing together in the construction, while the workmen are singing or whistling between the rings.

The town of Washington, in which he first saw the light, has sent an invitation to Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels to be the guest of the town at a luncheon. If Joe knows the right thing he will accept.

You might pause to be thankful for some things the legislature did not do. If every bill introduced had not passed there is no telling what condition the state would soon have been in.

The Salisbury Industrial Club secured in one year sixteen enterprises for that city, representing an investment of over four hundred thousand dollars. Pretty good idea of what co-operation will do for a town.

On the standard of James J. Hill's statement that "soil and climate are the two best assets that the human race will ever find," Pitt county stands up at the front in wealth.

The Reflector believes that Pitt county can produce truck crops as successfully as some other sections of the state, and that it would pay the farmers not to give all their attention to cotton and tobacco.

In four years since the first one came in the state, nearly six thousand automobiles have been thought in North Carolina, representing an investment around $6,000,000.

The Proctor Hotel, four stories high, is Greenville's first approach to a sky scraper. But first a while, and you will see the rubbers cranking their necks still higher.

The legislative appropriations bill caught the knife on all sides. East Carolina Teachers Training School is put down for merely a crumb in proportion to its needs.

Some people are actually so envious of the success of others that they will pour cold water on an enterprise even after they have to admit it has merit.

The business man who does not advertise, and sends his job printing away to be done has no right to hint that the town paper ought to urge people to trade at home.

North Carolina is rapidly coming to her own. In the present administration she takes high rank and no state attracted more attention at the inauguration.

If the legislature passes the bill restricting the sale of deadly weapons, it should also make ample provision for the law to be enforced.

Patronizing a home enterprise is not an act of charity, but self advancement, for in so doing you help make more business for yourself.

Legislatures meet too often. If the money they cost could be put to other uses the state would be less cramped.

Following the idea of no pay no work, its a safe guess that there will be but a few days more of the present legislature.

The figures are given at $72,000 as the cost of the inauguration of President Wilson. But what it cost the people who attended would multiply that figure several times over.

One trouble with North Carolina is that the need for funds is greater than the supply obtainable. It will take a more equal tax assessment to bring the latter up.

There is but a little more of the legislature, then Raleigh will have to take care of herself for a while.

When you hear a fellow knocking, if you talk about going forward, Greenville has but yet only made a start to the man you will see the town make pretty soon.

When one man says boost and another says don't boost, do not stop to listen to either, but go right on boosting.

Beginning the 15th the Atlantic Coast Line will install individual drinking cups on all of its passenger trains.

Just a little bit, town politics is coming up on the service. The election will be the first Monday in June.

From the way it has started, the outlook for the Wilson administration will be without precedent.

You can stir the ire of some men quicker by saying a word against their dogs than in any other way.

Champ Clark will be continued as speaker of congress under the new administration. He is a good one.

Those who patronize them are responsible for their part in the existence of blind tigers.

If anybody thinks the legislature just adjourned was worth the price, let him hold up his hands.

KEEPING UP TRUCK LAND
Those who are contemplating embarking in the work of growing garden truck for the northern markets should understand that the maintenance and increase of the humus or organic decay in the soil is of even more importance to the southern trucker than to the general farmer.

Depending on heavy applications of fertilizers and unable to get stable manure, the southern trucker must grow and bury the legumes to take the place of the organic matter that manure would supply. Constant use of heavy applications of fertilizers and working the land in truck continuously will result in acidity of the soil and poor crops, and the introduction of fungus diseases. A rotation of crops and the use of legumes for organic matter are essentials that the truck farmer cannot ignore.

Follow the early truck with peas and clover, and you can, by this means, use commercial fertilizers heavily and with more profit, and do not be tempted to grow another salad crop immediately after the early truck. Then, on land where there is a winter truck growing always have a cover crop of clover, or if too late for the clover use rye, and never leave the truck land bare in winter.

Go to Basnight's Pharmacy for your Safe, Reliable Remedy and Get Your Money Back if It Fails

There are very few remedies that gain the confidence of druggists as Dodson's Liver Tonic does. Basnight's Pharmacy sells it and backs up the sale of every bottle with the money back guarantee that the price will be refunded if it fails to give complete satisfaction.

Dodson's Liver Tonic costs 50 cents a bottle. It is the safest and best remedy for torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, etc., that has ever been sold in this city. It takes the place of dangerous calomel and does not lay you up as a dose of calomel often does. A bottle in the house is as good as fifty cents in the bank. If you or your family need a liver tonic you have the medicine ready. If it fails you get your money back.

D. M. Clark's Statewide Road Bill Now a Law

(From News and Observer)
From the beginning of the session of this General Assembly the two Representative Clark and Senator Evans have been at cross purposes. At least Senator Evans has been able, by invoking constitutional courts, to block every progressive movement that the county of Pitt tried to make through its members of the house. All over the state countless counties have had passed special acts to enable townships or road districts composed of parts of several townships to issue good roads bonds upon approval of the voters. And Clark had been especially petitioned by his constituents to get two such bills through for Greenville and Farmville townships, two of the most wide-awake and progressive townships in the county or in all the eastern section. The bills went through the House all right, and all that the astute and virgile young senator from Pitt could do was not sufficient to prevent favorable reports from committees and overwhelming majorities in the House. But coming over to the Senate, although the committee reports were forced by the logic of the case and the merit of the measure to report them practically unanimous, despite the opposition of the young senator, yet in the Senate, when the deeply and able Pitt standpaper appeared almost with tears, and always with a eloquent kind of courage, he was not to be turned down by his colleagues, to the credit of his "red-headed little misrepresentative in the House," the Senate never failed him. And thus it was the Pitt county people who wanted good roads were the ones who wanted the bills to be passed at least two years longer. And so it was, by the sturdy if not stubborn spirit of the senator, in blocking the wheels of progress in his county to prevent credit to its representative, this representative, grown desperate at not scratching that little red head out of the court house, and at every rolling place in the township where said election shall take place and kept in four issues of some newspaper published in the county, if the board of county commissioners so order, and the returns thereof shall be made to the board of county commissioners and returns recorded and result declared by said board as they may determine. If a majority of the qualified voters vote "For Road Bonds," then the board of county commissioners shall issue coupon bonds to the amount of one thousand dollars each. They shall be signed by the chairman of the board of county commissioners and attested by the official seal and signature of the register of deeds of said county. And the chairman of the board of county commissioners under the direction of said board shall sell the bonds so issued at not less than par value and for as much above par value as possible; Provided, that said bonds shall be issued and sold only as the funds are needed in the township for the purpose indicated herein. Provided, further, that elections may be ordered and held upon petitions under the provisions of this act not oftener than every twelve months, in any township under the full amount of bonds authorized by this act shall have been issued for such township.

Sec. 2. That the county commissioners or other county authorities who are legally authorized and empowered to lay out, establish, alter, repair, grading, constructing and improving in any way the public roads in various townships of the state, and for purchasing machinery, tools, etc., necessary for such improvement, the board of county commissioners of any county are authorized, empowered and directed to issue coupon bonds bearing interest at the rate not to exceed five per cent per annum, payable semi-annually at the office of the treasurer of the county for the purpose of providing for the payment of said bonds at maturity. Such taxes may be levied and collected annually and under the same laws and regulations as shall be enforced for levying and collecting other county taxes.

Sec. 3. That the county commissioners or other county authorities who are legally authorized and empowered to lay out, establish, alter, repair, grading, constructing and improving in any way the public roads in various townships of the state, and for purchasing machinery, tools, etc., necessary for such improvement, the board of county commissioners of any county are authorized, empowered and directed to issue coupon bonds bearing interest at the rate not to exceed five per cent per annum, payable semi-annually at the office of the treasurer of the county for the purpose of providing for the payment of said bonds at maturity. Such taxes may be levied and collected annually and under the same laws and regulations as shall be enforced for levying and collecting other county taxes.

Sec. 4. That the county commissioners of any county are authorized, empowered and directed to issue coupon bonds bearing interest at the rate not to exceed five per cent per annum, payable semi-annually at the office of the treasurer of the county for the purpose of providing for the payment of said bonds at maturity. Such taxes may be levied and collected annually and under the same laws and regulations as shall be enforced for levying and collecting other county taxes.

Sec. 5. The fund raised by taxation in excess of the amount required to pay interest, if any, shall be safely invested by the board of county commissioners; and the county commissioners are authorized to purchase any of said bonds to amount of such excess annually, and after ten years, they may purchase at a sum not exceeding their par value one-twentieth of the bonds issued for any township and, if no holder of said bonds shall offer to sell such amount, then the said county commissioners are authorized to designate such bonds as they may desire to purchase, and after the designation of each bond and the notice thereof given to a newspaper published in the county, if the holder of the bonds neglects or refuses to surrender the same and receive their par value with interest accrued thereon at the time of such notice, then the holders shall not be entitled to interest subsequently accruing; Provided, the said bonds designated shall express such conditions on their face.

Sec. 6. That the funds derived from the sale of any bonds hereinafter provided for and the taxes levied and collected under this act on account of any township shall be turned over to the county treasurer, and a separate account of each fund for the benefit of each township shall be kept separate from all other funds. But before any such funds shall be placed in his hands, the treasurer shall file with the board of county commissioners a true and correct statement of the amount of money in his hands at any time for road purposes and the payment of bonds and interest thereon on account of the several townships in the county, and the performance of such other duties as may devolve upon him as treasurer of said fund. The said bonds shall not be less than five thousand dollars, and shall be approved by the board of county commissioners and shall be recorded as kept as the bonds of county officers are required to be kept.

Sec. 7. The board of county commissioners may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded in any court of competent jurisdiction in this state touching the bonds issued on account of any township or any county, including bonds under this act, or any matter connected therewith, or touching the road funds of any such township derived under this act, or on any contract made by or with the said board for carrying out the purposes of this act, and judgments in favor of said board shall specify for the benefit of what township such judgment is rendered, and any judgment against said board shall specify what township is liable for the payment thereof, and the said judgment shall be paid out of the funds of such township, or by taxes derived from the same and polls in such township.

Sec. 8. All orders for payment of any kind of said bonds and for interest on said bonds shall be made by the county commissioners and shall specify thereon the purpose and amount for bonds and the amount for interest shall be on separate orders. The funds for other purposes shall be expended under the direction of the commissioners, or by the township supervisors, with the consent of such proposition, and paid upon the order of the commissioners, or in such manner and on such orders as the board of county commissioners may direct and such rules and regulations, and make such directions in this respect as they may see proper.

Sec. 9. That the funds derived from sale of bonds on account of any township shall be used for the purpose of laying out, establishing, altering, repairing, grading, constructing and improving in any way the public roads in various townships of the state, and for purchasing machinery, tools, etc., necessary for such improvement, and the board of county commissioners of any county are authorized, empowered and directed to issue coupon bonds bearing interest at the rate not to exceed five per cent per annum, payable semi-annually at the office of the treasurer of the county for the purpose of providing for the payment of said bonds at maturity. Large Congregation Hears Rev. C. M. Rock In Forceful Sermon

In response to the announcement made by Rev. C. M. Rock in Saturday's paper, a very large congregation was at Memorial Baptist church Sunday morning to hear him. Some might expect to hear something sensational following recent developments, but if any attended with that idea they had to change their minds. Mr. Rock delivered one of the best sermons in his two years' pastorate here. He used the story from the Old Testament of the young captain, Jehu, being appointed king of Israel and the overthrow of the wicked Jezebel that strikingly illustrated, making the comparison of wickedness in those days with evils existing at the present time that should be stopped.

In the course of his sermon Mr. Rock said that several times in his ministry of three years he had suffered because of preaching the Gospel and exposing sin as he felt God would have him and directed him to do, but that in Greenville the only personal violence had come to him on this account. Since the assault on him he had received threats and insults and anonymous letters had been written reflecting upon him, and while he believed these were an effort to check him in his warfare against blind tigers and gambling, they would not in the least deter him from doing his duty as he saw it.

Liquor Dealers Make An Attack On Web-Kenyon Measure

RICHMOND, March 8.—Wholesale liquor dealers in Richmond and Petersburg today applied to Judge Waddell of the United States district court for a temporary injunction to restrain the Southern Express company from refusing to accept liquor for shipment to points in South Carolina. The proceeding is the first attack upon the constitutionality of the Web-Kenyon bill which passed both branches of Congress over President Taft's veto.

After argument Judge Waddell announced that he would render an opinion Monday.

On the ground that the S. C. dispensary act of 1896, when taken in conjunction with the Web-Kenyon act, threatens every employee with fine and imprisonment should the carrier undertake to forward liquor shipments to any point in that state, the Southern Express company in Richmond has since March 5 refused to accept further consignments.

The South Carolina act prohibits the sale of liquor not purchased from the state dispensary, while the Web-Kenyon act forbids the shipment of liquor to other states to be disposed of contrary to the law there provided.

Lad Accidentally Shoots Companion With Rifle Saturday

Saturday afternoon William Dupree and Heber Baker, about 14 or 15 years of age, were out in the woods where a number of boys have what they call a camp. These two boys were setting near together in the camp and William Dupree was holding across his shoulder a .22 caliber rifle which belonged to another boy. He did not know the rifle was loaded and while running his finger over the trigger the weapon was discharged and a robot cartridge struck Heber Baker in the face a little on the right of his nose. William and other boys brought Heber home and Dr. J. E. Nobles was called to him. The ball was not removed, but the wound was dressed and Heber is getting along nicely with no serious results apprehended.

This is the third time Heber has been shot in the face, the two former times being with air rifles.

Trying To Find Cause Of Dynamite Explosion In Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Md., March 9.—Although William J. Bombardt, assistant foreman of the Baltimore shipyard, employed in leading the dynamite ship Alum China, which blew up in the harbor here Friday, is under arrest charged with the act which caused the disaster, dynamite experts still incline to the theory that spontaneous combustion in the coal Northwestern Massachusetts Mutual State Mutual Connecticut Mutual Aetna National (Vermont) Union Central Life

Bombardt was arrested early this morning after coroner Russell of the eastern police district, had taken the statement of Morris Price, a stevedore, who said he saw Bombardt stick a bale hook into a box of dynamite and cause its explosion. The coroner says the statement of Price is supported by other stevedores who were in the immediate vicinity.

Bombardt denies the use of the bale hook, but admits that the box of dynamite exploded while he was handling it. His theory is that the dynamite, which had been frozen, had blistered and that friction caused by the blisters on two adjoining sticks produced the explosion.

Contrasting with these stories are the statements of others aboard the Alum China that they heard no explosion whatever before they saw smoke and flames pouring from the hold of the ship.

Attempts to reconcile the stories of Bombardt and Price with the views of possibilities held by the experts have been made. One is based on the idea that fire in the bunkers of the Alum China ignited the dynamite at the time the stevedores thought the explosion occurred.

The second theory is that the bale hook was thrust into a box of dynamite, but into a box of percussion caps. This would have produced perhaps a minor explosion.

The coroner's inquest will be held tomorrow night.

One more name, that of Andrew Morrison, a stevedore, has been added to the list of casualties. He died at a hospital late last night. One of the injured showed improvement today.

Memorial services were held in the late city churches today for the men who lost their lives in the tragedy.

This is My Birthday

Clifford Sifton
Clifford Sifton, who has long been a prominent figure in Canadian public life, was born in the county of Middlesex, Ontario, March 10, 1861. He graduated from Victoria University, Cobourg, Ont., in 1889 and two years later was admitted to the Manitoba bar. From 1892 until 1896 he remained in practice at Brandon. His active political career commenced with his election to the Manitoba assembly in 1898. In 1891 he was called into the Manitoba cabinet as attorney-general, in which office he established a high reputation for knowledge of the law and executive ability. After the general election of 1896, he accepted an appointment from Sir Wilfrid Laurier as Minister of the Interior in the Dominion cabinet. In 1903 he acted as British agent before the Alaska boundary arbitration tribunal. Later Mr. Sifton became chairman of the Commission on the Conservation of the Natural Resources of Canada.

MR. J. S. MOORING COMMITS SUICIDE

In a little while, still nothing unusual was thought of the absence of the young man.

It was shortly after this that what had really occurred was disclosed. Mr. Whitehurst went to the upper floor of the store for something and had scarcely reached the top of the stairs when he saw Mr. J. S. Mooring lying dead upon the floor. The body was flat on the back, the right hand still holding a pistol that was pointed at the head. There was one shot in the breast and another in the head, indicating that he had shot himself twice, the last time causing instant death.

No cause is assigned for taking his life, unless it was some business trouble, as he seemed surrounded with such conditions as to make life happy.

Mr. Mooring was in his 38th year, and leaves a wife and two small children, his wife being a daughter of Mr. John Mayo, of Bethel. He also is survived by his father, six sisters and one brother.

He was a member of the Knights of Pythias and was very active in the lodge. He was a young man held in high esteem by everybody. He came to Greenville to serve as deputy sheriff when his father was sheriff of the county, and afterward engaged in mercantile business, his father later becoming a partner in the business.

The funeral took place Friday afternoon.

Great sympathy is expressed for the father and especially for the wife and little children in the great sorrow that has come to them in this sad tragedy.

MR. J. S. MOORING COMMITS SUICIDE

In a little while, still nothing unusual was thought of the absence of the young man.

It was shortly after this that what had really occurred was disclosed. Mr. Whitehurst went to the upper floor of the store for something and had scarcely reached the top of the stairs when he saw Mr. J. S. Mooring lying dead upon the floor. The body was flat on the back, the right hand still holding a pistol that was pointed at the head. There was one shot in the breast and another in the head, indicating that he had shot himself twice, the last time causing instant death.

No cause is assigned for taking his life, unless it was some business trouble, as he seemed surrounded with such conditions as to make life happy.

Mr. Mooring was in his 38th year, and leaves a wife and two small children, his wife being a daughter of Mr. John Mayo, of Bethel. He also is survived by his father, six sisters and one brother.

He was a member of the Knights of Pythias and was very active in the lodge. He was a young man held in high esteem by everybody. He came to Greenville to serve as deputy sheriff when his father was sheriff of the county, and afterward engaged in mercantile business, his father later becoming a partner in the business.

The funeral took place Friday afternoon.

Great sympathy is expressed for the father and especially for the wife and little children in the great sorrow that has come to them in this sad tragedy.

Sacred Concert
The sacred concert Sunday night in Memorial Baptist church, by the Junior Philatella class of the Sunday school, proved most enjoyable to an immense congregation. Miss Nan Shields, of Scotland Neck, took prominent part in the concert as organ soloist. Her selections were originally rendered and proved her a master of the pipe organ. There were also excellent vocal solos by Misses Essie Whichard and Mavis Evans, and a charming violin solo by Miss Priscilla Clark, of Delaware, Ohio. The accompaniments to the solos were by Mrs. Lina Baker and Miss Hill. The entire program was delightful, and the offering for the class organ fund very liberal.

A Great New Serial Story.
"A Day of Days," one of the most thrilling stories of New York ever written, will begin in the Sunday Magazine and Story Section of the New York World March 16, to be printed in installments each week till complete. Kismet or Fate in modern style, is the keynote of this wonderful story. Be sure to get the Sunday World.—Adv.
