Where The Cotton Farmer Loses Mr. Charles J. Brand, of the Cotton Marketing division of the National Department of Agriculture, insists that we have entirely to many cotton gins. If there were fewer gins, and these kept going all the time in season, ginning would be done more cheaply.

We certainly have an undue proportion of cotton buyers. A man from Memphis, Tenn., said to us the other day: "It seems to me that about every other man I know in Memphis is a cotton buyer--and they are getting rich." This was an exaggeration, of course and so intended, but it suggests a serious condition. In the end, it is the farmer, of course, who has to support all these middlemen, and it would be well for Farmers Unions everywhere to take up the plant first of warehousing their cotton and then of selling direct to the mills or exporters in 100 and 5000 bale lots.

Another incident mentioned by Mr. Brand is significant. He recently found his staple cotton selling in Penfield, Ga., for two cents a pound, or $10 a bale less than it was bringing in Hartsville, S. C., where Mr. Coker takes pains to see to it that farmers get fair values for their staple lint.

Mr. Brand also points out that farmers lose heavily by not insisting on proper grading of their cotton early in the season. A few weeks ago he asked one buyer how he found the grades of cotton. The buyer's reply was that he had been grading the cotton so far, but taking it all as "middling"; that a little later, however, he would begin grading rapidly. The explanation was that the cotton had been above mere middling in grade up to that time.

It is a right under the cotton midsling prices; the later cotton would be more staled and on it the buyer could often force prices below middling--Progressive Farmer.

How Editors Get Rich. After a great deal of worry and study we have at last figured out how so many country editors get rich. Here is the secret of their success. There is a child born in the neighborhood. The attending physician gets $10. The editor gives the local-lunged youngster a treat send-off and gets $90. If christened and the minister gets $5, and the editor gets $90. It grows and marries. The editor publishes another long winded flowery article and tells a dozen different lies about "the beautiful and accomplished bride." The minister gets $10 and a piece of cake. The editor gets $900 and a request to carry the groom's subscription account another year. In the course of time she dies. The doctor gets from $5 to $100 and the minister gets from $5 to $100. The editor publishes a notice of death and an obituary two columns long, lodge resolution, a lot of poetry and a card of thanks and gets $900. No wonder so many country editors get rich---Ex.

Pressing Clubs Cause Many Fires Insurance Commissioner Young, commenting on a fire that originated in a pressing club at Aidan, said that he was satisfied from the number of fires occurring in pressing clubs that it would be the part or wisdom for municipal authorities to restrict these establishments to territory outside the fire districts. The use of gasoline which is often handled by careless workers makes pressing clubs unusually dangerous. Mr. Young thinks that the clubs could be located outside the fire districts and that the tailoring establishments could be operated in the business districts of the communities. By such an agreement much loss of property might be averted. Several North Carolina cities have already passed restrictive ordinances.--Raleigh Times.

LABOR NOTES

It is expected that within a short time an international union of elevator instructors and starters will be formed. Local organizations are being formed in many large cities and membership is increasing.

A $600,000 office building will be erected in the downtown district of St. Louis by the Order of Railway Telegraphers to take the place of their present inadequate quarters. The plans for the building have already been approved.

Joseph C. Colgan, of Chicago, who went to Roanoke, Va., to conduct a strike for the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railroad Employees, has started a daily newspaper and named it the "Square Deal." Reports from Cincinnati state that the car men have organized a union in Covington and also all intercity lines entering Cincinnati. Including the latter city, the union now has 3,000 members in that locality.

A law has been passed recently in New Zealand which makes it fine possible for any person that works more than 8 hours a week. The law was first applied to women and girls working hotels, but now it includes everybody. Each city and town in the island chooses a day for itself that they to the working classes a half-holiday. It may be Saturday or any other day in the week.

A new trade union has been formed in London, Eng., recently. It is named the Home-Makers' Trade Union and its aims are given as follows: To assist wage earners in their endeavor to obtain better wages and conditions; to insist on a right union proper proportion of men's wages to be paid to the wife for the support of the home; to improve in every way the status and condition of women.

An exhaustive inquiry into the condition of labor for women in country districts is to be undertaken by a special commission in connection with the German Society for the Promotion of Working Women's Interests. The work will naturally occupy a considerable time, as the whole area of Germany is to be covered, and the investigation is to include domestic and industrial conditions as well as industrial and agricultural.

FARED WELL. The North Carolina delegation in the House fared well in committee assignments. Three chairmanships go to the delegation. Representative Pou will be chairman of the Committee on Claims. Goodwin will be the chairman of the committee on Reform in the Civil Service, and Doughton the chairman of the Committee on Agriculture in the Department of Agriculture. Other assignments include: Faison, merchant marine and fisheries, census, and expenditures of the Navy Department; alcoholic liquor traffic and expenditures in the War and grounds, Indian affairs, and expenditures in the Department of Labor; Page, appropriations; Pou, rules and expenditures in the Department of Commerce; Small, rivers and harbors; Stedman, foreign affairs; Webb, and Doughton, good roads. Kitchin, Page, Webb, Stedman and Small, being on some of the biggest and most powerful committees could not under a recent ruling of the caucus, be placed upon any other committee assignments.--Raleigh Times.

RESIGNATION OF EFFICIENT MAN

Mr. Roy C. Flanagan Closes Nine Years Service

AS GREENVILLE POSTMASTER

Monday a change of postmasters in Greenville became effective, Mr. David J. Whitehead, Appointed Under Wilson Administration, A Man Of Long Business Experience

Monday a change of postmasters in Greenville became effective, Mr. David J. Whitehead taking charge as successor to Mr. R. C. Flanagan who resigned a little more than two months ago.

Of the retiring postmaster, Mr. Flanagan, it can be truthfully said that Greenville has not in all her history had an official in this position who has been more efficient, more courteous and more obliging than he. In these things he stood at the front, his record with the postoffice department of the government and the acceptability of his service to the patrons of the office, never leaving the slightest room for criticism. He did not stop at the bounds of duty, but went far beyond to be obliging to every one. He has been postmaster some over nine years, being first appointed by President Roosevelt in March, 1904, and receiving two subsequent re-appointments. His last appointment would not have expired until 1916, but the opportunity coming to him to engage in and assume the management of a large real estate business, led him to send in his resignation as postmaster.

During the incumbency of Mr. Flanagan as postmaster the business of the postoffice has grown wonderfully. From receipts of a little above $5,000 for the year ending with March, 1904, the increase was to nearly 14,000 for the year ending with March, 1913. The handling of mails, of course, increased correspondingly with the receipts and through this growth in volume of business he kept the work of the office moving with utmost accuracy and precision.

While the incoming postmaster has no hope of surpassing Mr. Flanagan's efficient record, he will take it as a standard and do his best to reach as near to it as possible. He comes to the postmaster's office with a long business experience and a knowledge of the people that will prove helpful in conducting the affairs of the office.

FRIDAY, JUNE 13, 1913 GREENVILLE MAKES BEST SHOWING

Not long since The Reflector put out the challenge, "that for a town of 5,000 population, Greenville is the best building and loan town in the state". By way of explanation we said further, The Home Building and Loan Association has been in existence seven years, has already matured two series, one of them in 325 weeks, has over 3,600 shares in force, and that there were 1,200 shares in the fifteenth series just started.

By way of a call on this challenge Mr. R. E. Cochran, secretary of the Mechanics' Perpetual Building and Loan Association of Charlotte, sends us the last statement of that association. That association is thirty years old and has issued thirty series. Looking over the last twelve series we find that the smallest number of shares in either of them is 1,588 and the largest 3,576. That is a fine showing, but according to our challenge does not meet. That association is more than four times as old as Greenville's and Charlotte is more than six times as large as Greenville, while the largest series of the Charlotte association is not quite three times as large as Greenville's.

The commissioners of Craven county have increased the road tax from fifteen to twenty cents. That road tax is five cents higher than will be required in Greenville township to carry $50,000 bonds. Here a levy of fifteen cents will pay the interest on the bonds, create a sinking fund to pay off the bonds at maturity and leave enough to keep up the roads after they are built. Yet there are some people who say they had rather not have good roads if they have to come with a bond issue. Guess they had rather pay twenty cents tax like the Craven county people do, and do a little piece of road work when they can, than to pay fifteen cents for a bond issue that will build roads all over the township and let them have the use of them.

We want to hammer it under your hat again that on Saturday, at noon, a meeting will be held in the court house to organize a Greenville Township Good Roads Association to work for the election on the question of issuing not exceeding $50,000 bonds to build good roads in the township. It is the duty of every man in the township who favors good roads to attend that meeting.

The biggest thing before North Carolina just now is the freight rate problem. It is hard to understand why the railroads do not prefer to gain the good will of the public rather than show a disposition to arouse antagonism and resentment. They are charging unjust and discriminatory rates in North Carolina and should see the wisdom of acceding to that motion for a correction of this wrong.

There are people complaining of rents they have to pay for houses, who could stop it very easily by leasing the building and loan association help them own a home. There are plenty of instances where the amount paid for rent would keep the building's loan payments, and in a few years it would be paid for.

The large meeting held in the court house, Saturday, to organize a Greenville Township Good Roads Association, shows that the people are interested in the coming election on the question of issuing bonds to build good roads in the township. While the attendance was gratifyingly large, it would have been much larger had the meeting been held at a later hour in the day after farmers go in town. As it was beginning the organization with fifty-five members was a fine start. Others have since been calling on the secretary to have their names enrolled. Every voter in the township, regardless of political affiliation, is eligible to membership in the good roads association.

This is the last reminder we can give you that a meeting will be held in the court house at noon tomorrow to organize a Greenville Township Good Roads Association. Every one who signed the petition asking for the bond election, as well as all others who favor good roads, should attend this meeting and join in the work for carrying the election in favor of bonds. If we get good roads we must work for them.

The Reflector has been taking note of the situation and if it is a judge of the outlook the people of the affected district are not going to vote in next Tuesday's election to change the stock law to its old bounds. They realize the folly of such a change and the cost and trouble it would cause. Many who formerly opposed it, now realize that stock law is best for them.

Every person in Pitt county who wants to help honor the heroes of the Confederacy in building a monument on the court house square, should get his contribution to the monument fund and hand it over to the committee. Pitt county has long neglected this duty and the time is now here to make amends therefor. The monument committees are at work and they want your help.

Former Postmaster General Hitchcock comes back at Postmaster General Burleson for the statement made by the latter that the postal department was not self-sustaining under the former administration, and says "the statement is as inaccurate as it is gratuitous". A show down of figures ought to disclose which one is correct.

A very handsome magazine called Shy-Land, edited by Miss Mae Lucille Smith, is published at Hendersonville. It is illustrated with many pretty scenes in western North Carolina and its articles are very interesting.

Mr. J. W. Sherrill, editor of the Concord Tribune and secretary of the North Carolina Press Association, has been elected a trustee of Trinity College. Wherever you put Sherrill he is all right.

One of Bud Fisher's recent "Mutt and Jeff" pictures had considerable local flavor and caused much amusement. He did not know "Bud" was so familiar with Greenville names.

Attorney General McReynolds comes to the conclusion that neither the Standard Oil Company nor the American Tobacco Company have really dissolved.

The leaders in the tariff revision believe in looking out for the interest of the people who eat, and have decided to put meats and flour on the free list.

The endowment of Trinity College now aggregates $1,410,000, the largest endowment of any Southern college.

Greenville is full of people here to attend the Training School commencement. And a cordial welcome is extended to each and every one.

Former President Taft made a visit back to the White House to see how it looks with President Wilson at the head of the table.

And even June is giving us weather that makes fires comfortable.

The State Board of Agriculture, in recently deciding to continue appropriations to state and county fairs, added the proviso that fairs to be entitled to the appropriation must eliminate all gambling and indecent shows. This is right. We never could see why fairs should not be conducted without the so-called side attractions that rob and fleece the people who attend. In the two years just past Pitt county held two fairs, at neither of which no shows of any kind, nor any gambling schemes were allowed. And there were no sales concessions, and even no horse racing. Yet with the absence of all these things, which some think are necessary to make a fair, the Pitt county fairs were a great success. What was accomplished here can be done anywhere when the management goes at it right that is with a fair and nothing else but a fair.

The entire state mourns the death of Dr. T. B. Kiniburgh, which occurred Wednesday at his home in Wilmington. He was 58 years of age, the dean of North Carolina journalism and a most gifted writer. Because of advanced years he retired some time ago from active work, but at intervals since the people have had the pleasure of reading his brilliant productions.

Business men of Greenville can well afford to leave their places for an hour tomorrow to attend the meeting in the court house to organize a Greenville Township Good Roads Association. The roads will be as much a benefit to them as to anybody, and it is their duty to help get them.

It is a far fetched idea that tries to make any relation between the proposed bond issue for good roads in Greenville township and the stock law question in other sections of the county.

At Oriental a whole cargo of liquor was captured by the Sheriff of Pamlico and confiscated. That is where the search and seizure law played a good hand.

Something else that is growing almost as fast as crops, is sentiment in favor of the bond issue to build good roads in Greenville township.

Today closes the commencement of East Carolina Teachers Training School. After a week's intermission the summer term will begin.

The fellows who thought they would train Governor Craig for the senatorial race have discovered their mistake.

If Greenville had a large cotton factory, business men would not complain of duller Saturdays in the summer months.

Now get to work in earnest to carry the election for bonds for good roads in Greenville township.

President Wilson has appointed Maj. E. H. Hale, of Fayetteville, to be minister to Costa Rica.

Winterville Items.

Williams-McGlohan
WINTERVILLE, June 4.—At the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Williams near here, their daughter, Corinne, was yesterday married to Mr. David Williams of Whitakers. The parlor was tastefully decorated in green and white, a profusion of ferns, potted plants and flowers being in evidence.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, charmingly rendered by Miss Lucy Belle Langston, Miss Eva Langston and Miss Anna McGlohan, sister of the bride, entered the parlor where a large number of relatives and friends were gathered. Next came the groom with Mr. G. H. Edwards of Whitakers, followed closely by the bride, upon the arm of her brother, Mr. Doremus McGlohan of Kinston. When she reached the side of the groom who awaited her at the altar, they were made man and wife by Rev. C. K. Howard of Kinston.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left in the groom's handsome automobile for Greenville, where they took the train for New York, Niagara and other points north and west. They are followed by the hearty congratulations and good wishes of a host of friends.

See Harrington, Barber and Co., for your light plow shoes in mens and boys.

WINTERVILLE, June 10.—We are glad to hear that Mrs. Polly Nobles is improving after having been very ill for some time. We trust that Aunt Polly may soon be out with her friends again.

Dr. and Mrs. T. B. Cox left Saturday morning for the St. Vincent Hospital at Norfolk, where they carried their daughter, Miss Venetia, for an operation for appendicitis. Dr. Cox's return, however, shows that the operation was performed Sunday morning, and that Miss Venetia is getting along well. We hope to soon have her back with us again.

Tobacco, cotton, lime, thermometers and lanterns at A. W. Ange & Co.

See Harrington, Barber and Company for your moving machines and rakes, they will save you money on them.

Good Road Column

THE EFFECT OF GOOD ROADS SOCIALLY AND FINANCIALLY

We are entering upon an age of progress and development. The nation is grasping new ideas and adopting new policies that look to the broadening of our national life physically, mentally and financially. To keep abreast of the times and go hand in hand with her sister states, North Carolina must utilize her resources and exert every energy. Sure if her lagging behind will not block the wheels of progress, but we must realize that to keep our enterprising young men in this state we must offer them inducements that can be obtained elsewhere.

As it is with the nation and the state so it is with the county and the town. The grand old county of Pitt cannot afford to sit serenely still and be contented while the other counties of the state are striving in every way to more perfectly develop their resources. We cannot expect the county to be attracted to our midst unless we can offer them at least a part of what other localities are giving.

There is nothing that adds so much to the attractiveness of a community as good roads. M. L. Kesler, general manager of the Thomasville Orphanage, The Odd Fellows' Orphan Home in one of the best buildings in North Carolina, but never until this year has there been a high school conducted under its own roof; and never until last year was there even a school of any sort, except the weekly Sunday school on Sunday afternoons.

Training School Closes Successful Year With Exercises of To-Day

Commencement Address Delivered This Morning by Hon. Henry Page of Aberdeen.

PRESENTATION OF DIPLOMAS
Many Interesting Features Mark the Closing Days of the Fourth Annual Commencement of the East Carolina Teachers Training School.

Leadership made it possible to bring this school to this splendid reality. Be it resolved, That the Lanier Literary Society and the Edgar Allan Poe Literary Society think and believe that the feeling of love and appreciation which the school has for its founders, Mr. W. H. Raggsdale and Gov. Thos. J. Jarvis, should find expression in some fitting concrete form that would have a permanent place upon the walls of our school to serve as a constant reminder of the debt of gratitude we owe these men and be a constant inspiration to all to be of service to his fellow man.

Be it resolved, That no more fitting testimonial could we have than the portraits of these men done in oil, painted by a good portrait artist. Be it resolved, That the Lanier Literary Society in conjunction with the Edgar Allan Poe Literary Society put forth every effort to carry out the provisions of these resolutions. Be it resolved, That the ways and means of carrying out the provisions be left to a committee consisting of members from the Lanier Literary Society, two members from the Edgar Allan Poe Literary Society, and two members from the faculty.

Be it resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the permanent record of our state as made that we are sometimes guilty of being egotistic in our praise of her. But with all our pride it seems to be human nature to neglect true greatness at our door while we wonder to places far remote in search of it. "A prophet is not without his honor in his own country," is just as true today as it was when uttered by the Divine Master almost two thousand years ago. Too often it is the case that we scatter roses in profusion over the graves of departed loved ones while the living travel life's higher and nobler way never a flower to cheer them when they are in need. We believe that we have as great men in our own city of Greenville as exist in the state of North Carolina and it is our delight to do them honor while we may.

Some time ago the gift literary records of the Lanier and Edgar Allan Poe Literary Societies. Signed: MARY WOODBURN, LILLIE BUNTING, RUTH MOORE, H. E. AUSTIN, Committee on resolutions from the Lanier Literary Society. PATTIE DOWELL, EDNA CAMPBELL, BLANCHE LANCASTER, LEON R. MEADOWS.

American Birds of Beauty

NO. 6. SNOWY HERON

Copyright 1915, by The Associated Newspaper School, Inc.

In former years a journey to Florida meant, among other things, a sight of thousands of snowy herons. A trip down any of the rivers on one of the little stern-wheelers was sure to reveal hundreds; but he is fortunate indeed who sees half a dozen of these immaculate birds in a whole season.

snowy herons are struggling against extinction at the hands of the plume hunters. Often they are shot from nests that frequently contain four or five young who die a lingering death by starvation.

These dainty birds of the South fall without the pile of protective cloration. Against the dark green of man groves or cypress their snow-white forms stand out like canoes. ## BISHOP DENNY DELIVERS THE BACCALAUREATE SERMON AT TRAINING SCHOOL SUNDAY

Auditorium of Institution is Crowded to Its Capacity Notwithstanding the Inclemency of the Weather. His Theme:

Despite lowering clouds, a large congregation gathered at East Carolina Teachers Training School Sunday morning to hear the commencement sermon by Bishop Collins Denny.

The sermon was one of great power, full of graphic scenes, rich imagery, profound truths and deep spirituality.

His theme was Paul, the Ambassador of God; his text: "I am debtor both to the Greek and barbarian, the wise and unwise." He announced that it was his purpose to enforce, rather than to interpret, the text. He said when a business man took an inventory he found out his assets and liabilities. Paul did not mention an asset, everything was liability. He renewed the early life of Paul, stressing especially the two points that he was a man equipped for ministry and a believer, one who carried his belief into action. Only a few men in the history of the world have been real thinkers, believers. Paul's equipment was the best to be had. "That man does not honor God who goes to war with a bad weapon." In applying this to the present day the bishop said: "The time for the dispensation of ignorance has passed; for good." The voice of God spoke tenderly unto Paul and called him to be a minister, an ambassador, and a witness. "God often lays his hand on a man in the forces of the enemy." Bishop Denny defined the term "minister" as one who spends his resources for the benefit of others. He represented the minus sign rather than the plus.

For three years after his call Paul was in Arabia readjusting his theology. "Every man has some theology." Job is a man who spends his resources who could not get his theology and experience together and the whole book of Job is a string for adjustment. Paul came back from Arabia with a theology that has served the world from then until now.

The bishop sketched in a vivid scene after scene in the life of Paul as he went from place to place fulfilling his mission as an ambassador. Wherever he went it was that he might bring peace where warfare had reigned. "On the deck of the vessel stood a little Jew" in comparison with whom the giants of all ages seem dwarfed. Caesar, Napoleon, Alexander, stand out as conquerors by blood and war. Yet when Paul met an evil he acted. The place of honor to him was not a place of ease. Paul and Silas were some of affliction. The figure of the flail, the "tribulum" of the Romans, from which the word "tribulation" is derived was used for illustration. The bishop paid tribute to the women who aided Paul. "Give me the women of today and I'll have the world tomorrow."

As a climax to Paul's career, the bishop made the scene in Rome glow with life, majesty and greatness. He pictured Paul, done with his mission as ambassador to men, triumphant over self and the world ready for his reception in Heaven.

At the close he returned again to the flail that windows the wheat from the chaff. He interpreted the term "agriculture" as something you have worked for and expect returns from. In his admonition to the class he urged the young women to be ambassadors wherever there was a burden to be lifted, a song to be sung or a touch of light needed to brighten a

THE RECITAL ON SATURDAY EVENING

The music recital at the Training school on Saturday evening opened the commencement exercises of E. C. T. S. A large audience showed genuine appreciation by their attention and applause.

The program reflected great credit upon the students and teachers, Miss Lida Hill, teacher of piano and Miss Mully, teacher of voice.

The playing was marked by clearness of touch, purity of tone and good technique. The singing was particularly clear and beautiful.

The program was as follows:

At ten o'clock this morning after the school had filed into the auditorium, the thirty young ladies in the Senior class marched in through the side door to the tune of "Dixie" and took their places on the stage.

Miss Mary Lucy Dupree gave a cordial welcome that expressed the spirit of the class of 1913.

Miss Ethel Perry, as class historian, was a happy choice as she could speak with authority on all details concerning the class and the school as she was one of the first to arrive when the doors of the school were first opened. She recalled the days of old lamp, the many inconveniences of those first days and drew a contrast between then and now.

The audience enjoyed the review of the four years of trial and triumph of the class of '13.

Number three was an instrumental solo by the class musician, Miss Mamie Ruth Tunstall.

In behalf of the class Miss Mary Emma Clark presented to Pres. Wright, in trust for the school, a loan fund of $300 to help three students. Certain stipulations went with the gift.

Pres. Wright, in accepting the gift, expressed the deepest gratitude both because of the purpose of the loan and because of the fine spirit it indicates. He commented on the fact that they began the year with thirty and closed with thirty, not a one lost during the year. If the people of the state could realize what the sending out of such a number of trained teachers meant there would be no trouble in getting the money needed. We shall have to train mothers and fathers as well as girls and boys. He said that he felt assured that the members of the class of 1913 would meet with success. He expressed to them the good will of all connected with the institution and urged them to return often.

Next on program was a bright, sparkling song: "When You're Pretty and the World is Fair," by the class.

Miss Alice Medlin then read an essay on "The Heritage of Southern Women."

Miss Ruth Moore presented the class prophecy in an original, unique way. She used the number "13," planned for the morning on the night of Friday, June 13, 1913, of a casket containing the ideals of the class, to be opened at a class meeting 13 years hence. Then the "real" she imagined in contrast. The audience greatly enjoyed the witty quotations, employing each girl striking characteristic and the prophecy attending it.

Miss Inez Pittman and Hattie Taylor sang a duet: "Sometime," from the "Fidelity." The class president, Miss Lettie Pearl Fleming, gave back to Miss Estelle Greene, for the class of 1912, a staff that was committed to them to keep hidden from the Junior class. Miss Green in turn left it to the president of the class of '14 for safe keeping.

The class song: "Esse Quam Videri," was sung next.

"The Last Will and Testament," by Miss Hattie Weeks caused much amusement.

Miss Will Greene Day, in her "Farewell Address," happily wore in many little local touches that added spice. The exercises closed with the singing of "Alma Mater."

Alumni Meeting and Banquet
A business meeting of the Alumnae Association of E. C. T. S. was held this afternoon. This evening at 8 o'clock the annual alumnae banquet will be given in the dining hall of the school.

Announcement
Commencement exercises will begin at ten o'clock Tuesday morning. The address will be delivered by Hon. Henry A. Page, of Aberdeen, one of North Carolina's foremost citizens. At the close of the address the graduating class will be awarded their diplomas. There will be another interesting feature after this.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY PRESIDENT WRIGHT.
