"Dis is my man," she said, with a bridal simper. "Ben, this is the lady who told me how to get up my wed din' dress."

My wife greeted both very nicely, but I refused and lay with my eyes closed. Presently I heard Fannie say to Hannah, very low—the bridegroom having separated himself from his bride for a fleeting moment:

"But Hannah, I thought his name was Hiram and that he was tall and wouldn't have come so far."

He turned his eyes upon hers and they so spoke in anticipation of his words that she instinctively felt what he was about to say and a slow flush crept up over her cheeks and her eyes dropped from his. He noticed it, and it gave him an inexplicable thrill of strength to say:

"I was wondering whether you loved me, Marjory, dear; I was wondering whether I could come back here again next year and be happy with you
