

Crew Rescued from Fuller Palmer Had Given Up All Hope

BALTIMORE, Jan. 18.—Rescued from their ice-coated sinking ship after they had given up all hope, the 12 members of the crew of the five-masted schooner Fuller Palmer this morning arrived in Baltimore aboard the Dominion line steamer Marina. The rescue was made by the Marina early Thursday morning 156 miles southeast of Cape Cod.

is to spend the week-end. Messrs. A. G. Cox, R. L. Abbott have been attending court this week. Mr. Wyatt Tucker went to Kingston yesterday afternoon.

See Cox and Son for your fancy cakes, candies and fruits. They also carry a nice line of other groceries. Mrs. R. T. Cox spent a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Kittrell at Ayden.

Four-Year-Old Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Baker Dies. Little Lillie, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Baker, was called to eternal life early this morning.

She had been suffering with pneumonia only five days, when the death angel came and took her home to Heaven.

She was always an attraction for the Greenville people as well as strangers from foreign towns, and was also known as "The Big Fat Babe" throughout the town.

She was four years, two months and twenty days old, weighing one hundred and twenty pounds.

All was done for her that kind parents and loving hands could do to save her, but nothing seemed to do any good.

She had many friends, all of whom join her parents in deepest sympathy. The remains will be taken to the Cherry Hill cemetery for burial tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

In Memory of General Lee. ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 18.—The one hundred and seventh anniversary of the death of General Robert E. Lee, the famous commander of the Confederate armies, was celebrated throughout the south today. In eight states—Arkansas, Florida, Virginia, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi—today is a legal holiday and is marked by a variety of business activities.

Commemorative exercises were held in all the public schools and at meetings of many patriotic and historical societies. In many cities these exercises were supplemented by civic and military parades.

Two Ships in Distress. SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—Two coastwise boats were reported in distress off the Oregon coast tonight. They are the steamer Fair Oaks and steamer Yellowstone both from Gray's harbor for San Francisco.

The Yellowstone with her main and mizzen masts gone, was 20 miles off Cape Arago, with the Pacific coast steamship Governor standing by.

The Fair Oaks was off Cape Bay by her lead and gone and her bridges smashed.

South Carolina Plant Breeders. COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 18.—A grand attendance marked the opening here today of the second annual convention of the South Carolina Plant Breeders' Association. D. R. Collier of Hartsville, is president of the association, and W. H. Harris of Clemson College, is secretary and treasurer.

Winterville Items. WINTERVILLE, Jan. 17.—Messrs. James Smith and Joe Branton went to Greenville Thursday night. See Mr. W. Dall for everything good to eat.

See Harrington, Barber and Co. for your stork orders. They have the two best styles.

Mrs. J. C. Smith, of Norfolk, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. B. Chapman and Mrs. Jim Dixon returned home this morning.

Brother Farmer, sit up and take notice, that we carry nearly everything you need in your line. Come and see us for our prices. B. D. Forrest.

A new lot of mattresses of all kinds put in at A. W. Ange and Co.

Chief of Police of Ayden caught two negroes that had escaped from that town, near Greenville. The negroes passed through here. It is not known here what the negroes did.

The remains buried east of Harrison, Barber and Co.

Preaching at the Baptist church tomorrow morning at 11:00 o'clock.

Wanted at once, one hundred head of best cattle. Highest prices paid. Pumps, pump pipe, black pipe, always on hand at A. W. Ange and Co.

Messrs. R. F. Cox, Amos Dixon and J. P. Harrington returned from Raleigh where they attended the Grand Lodge of Masons.

If you want an Oliver typewriter, one of the best machines on the market, see J. Cox and Son.

When you want your house painted or your four bolt hinges. Come to see us we have the best on the market. Try us and be convinced. B. D. Forrest and Co.

OLE BULL'S AMERICAN TOURS
Famous Violinist Was Always a Favorite in This Country, Where His Ability Was Recognized.
The first American appearance of Ole Bull, the renowned Norwegian violinist, was at the Park theater in New York 70 years ago on November 25, 1842. Bull was born in Norway in 1810, and his parents intended him for the church, but from his early childhood he manifested a passion for music which could not be denied. His first master, Spohr, a German violinist, was not much impressed by his Norwegian pupil, and discouraged rather than encouraged his ambition. Bull was a German in a duel and fled to Paris, where he was robbed of his money and violin, and, deeply despondent, threw himself into the Seine. He was rescued by a fisherman, and he soon developed the attempt at suicide provided him with the means of continuing his musical studies, and he soon developed into a genius. His first American tour lasted two years, and was a financial and artistic success. In 1852 "The Paganini of the North" returned to America and attempted to plant a Scandinavian colony in Pennsylvania, but lost most of his fortune in the project and returned to the concert hall. He was from the first a great favorite with Americans, and at his death, which occurred at Bergen, Norway, in 1880, was sincerely mourned by thousands on this side of the Atlantic.

Economical Handling of Salt.
The salt harvested in the Saline valley of California is now transported to Seawater, the nearest shipping point, 26 miles away, by means of an overhead tramway, which was recently completed at a cost of $100,000. The tramway is conveyed in buckets, and the hourly capacity of the line is 20 tons. A very interesting feature of the line is the fact that the derrick of the buckets as they make a descent of the mountain is utilized in raising the buckets over the next grade. Salt has been mined there for years, but the amount of the product has been limited to the local consumption, as the expense of getting the salt to the shipping point by mule power has been prohibitive.

REGULATOR OF LONDON TIME
Woman Implicitly Trusted to Keep Timepieces of Great City Correct to the Second.
Women are sometimes accused of not being on time, so it may be surprising to some persons to learn that London's champion timekeeper is a woman. Miss Anita Belleville has an office unlike any held by a woman in any other part of the world. She acts as purveyor of the correct time in London.

With her chronometer, which is one of the most perfect in the world and a triumph of the watchmaker's skill, she calls at the Greenwich observatory once a week and checks her instrument by that official time, then carries it around to her clients. A great many of her clients are watchmakers, who find her chronometer able to make finer distinctions than any other instrument known. Miss Belleville is found to check many exact time electric clocks that are set from a central station. When tested a few days ago at the observatory, her chronometer was found to have varied only one second during a whole week's time.

This instrument has been carried all over London, but is apparently little affected by traveling on trains and electric tram, for it has never deviated more than 50 seconds from Greenwich time in a week.

Miss Belleville has inherited her unique occupation. Her father, Henry Belleville, got permission from the astronomer royal about half a century ago to take the correct time by means of his chronometer, which he employed by chronometer makers. After his death his wife carried on the business, and now his daughter is keeping up the work by bringing the "king of time" makers all over London.

FIRST DICTATOR OF MEXICO
Herman Cortes, Who Conquered Country, Is Undoubtedly Entitled to the Distinction.
The first man of European blood to rule over Mexico was Herman Cortes, who died at Seville, Spain, 356 years ago on December 2. Cortes landed first on the little island of Ulux, in the harbor of Vera Cruz, now the site of the famous prison for political offenders. From this point, as his headquarters, he led his Indian tribes hostile to the Aztecs, he carried on the conquest that finally resulted in the complete destruction of the great Aztec empire. Cortes was also without the impediment of the Aztecs, he made the conquest was complete, and Cortes was appointed as the first governor of New Spain, as Mexico was originally called. He was soon recalled, and in 1535 New Spain was made a viceroyalty, including all the Spanish possessions in north and central America. Cortes' conquests necessitated the conquest of Mexico, the last being O'Donoghue, who withdrew in 1821, when Mexico became free and independent.

The adoption of a pension system was recently submitted to the membership of the Benckizers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union has been carried by a substantial majority.

Officer Smith Is Shot Down By S. M. Pollard in Farmville Saturday Night

Died Sunday Morning in Hospital at Washington

CORONER'S INQUEST LAST NIGHT
Shooting Occurred in the Store of Mr. Pollard, Who is Now in the County Jail Here Awaiting Trial.

According to evidence given at the coroner's inquest, one of the coldest blooded murders ever perpetrated within the bounds of Pitt county was committed Saturday night in Farmville when Chief of Police T. H. Smith was shot by a man whose revolver he had taken from him. S. M. Pollard, a druggist of that town, which shot professional to the officer, as he did Sunday morning at the hospital in Washington where he was taken on the Norfolk Southern a short while after the shooting, was the man who shot him. The remains will be taken to the Cherry Hill cemetery for burial tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Footstole, Ragged, Remnant of Huerta's Army Made Way Into Marja

Almost Famished From Three Days March

TRANSPORTED TO FORT BLISS
Over Thousand Women and About 200 Children and Infants Traveled Through the Long

MARSA, Tex., Jan. 18.—Footstole, ragged, almost famished from their three days march on foot of 67 miles over a windswept, mountain road, routed from Ojinaca, Mex., by the rebels, with 1,067 women and about 200 children and infants, arrived today within a few miles of Marja. They are to be transported by train to Fort Bliss at El Paso.

The ragged remnants of the Huerta army, which sought asylum in this country rather than face possible extermination by the rebels, will be formally interned at Fort Bliss as wards of the government. They will be held indefinitely on footing of the cases of war.

None of those in the unique caravan was more visibly affected on coming within sight of the American military camp, who ordered the evacuation of Ojinaca in face of the rebel fire. General Mercado was severely humiliated not only at defeat and the necessity for flight, but because of a report that he was to be executed and should be returned to his native country.

Besides General Mercado, among with the United States cavalrymen, who acted as guards, were the Federal generals Uta, Ahuana, Ibarra, Orphan and Rosero, all of whom were still retaining their uniforms.

The pitreous march, announced with incidents. The birth of a child, the death of several wounded soldiers, the search of water in the desert, the constant rattle of the rifle, the line of march, and the rounding up again of stragglers of the refugees were some of the difficulties which which the United States cavalrymen had to contend.

Viewed from the hilltop, the advancing army, as it emerged through the mountains, looked like a black line, backward into the dusty distance 50 miles away, was a picture of exhaustion, although the prospect of soon reaching their destination seemed to revive courage.

Since they were routed from Ojinaca, the Mexican soldiers have had scant food supplies. Their march to Marja was made possible by the establishment of the three camps provided en route. But these camps were supplied with limited rations because all foodstuffs and supplies had to be carried by mules. Many were without food and without blankets, and their suffering at night was intense.

Of all the marchers the Mexican women were the best. These were instances of women who yielded their places on horseback or by foot to men. All remnants of uniform rations of an army disappeared during the march. It was a curious mingling of people and animals, while in places the women, with their red dresses and shawls gave a touch of brilliant color to the scene. Wherever there was space in the line or between horses' legs, women, children and men were crowded together. A rooster, saved from the wreck of Ojinaca, crowded from the back of a burro, to which he was carefully attached with a leather strap. Children perched on the top of baskets, and punched the animals with sticks.

Huddled tables looked from the arms of mothers on the moving masses. Women, children and men from time to time yielded their places on horse or burro to some friend or kinsman who needed a rest.

THE CAROLINA HOME and FARM and EASTERN REFLECTOR

Every fellow who can drive a nail straight and push a saw to the mark can find work in Greenville.

The ringing of the saw and hammer is the sweetest music a true Greenville ever heard and in most parts of it town the music is plentiful. "Keep it up."

Another good feature of the building operations of the present time is the better class of buildings that are going up.

If you are hunting for work you are willing to do it, come to Greenville and find plenty of it waiting to be done.

The smaller machine a man drives the loader the horn and longer gauntlets he wears.

Clothes does not make a man but it certainly goes a long way in modern times.

The number of automobile homes in this state is now about half way between ten thousand and eleven thousand.

So far as the farm labor problem goes, the farmer is going to come out best who plants no more acres than he can cultivate well with the help available.

It is the fellow who has an income large enough to pay taxes on who should be reading the notice sent out from the revenue department of the government. The return must be made by the first of March.

With only 27 per cent of the tillable land of the United States under cultivation, the crops produced last year are estimated at ten billion dollars. Just think what a harvest this country could make if all the land was cultivated.

Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels is keeping up his good work of saving large sums of money to the government. On contracts for projectiles, placed last week, the saving was more than a million dollars.

When it is taken into consideration that a murder like the one in Greenville Saturday night, can be traced back to liquor as the prime cause, it is strange that every right thinking man does not unite his efforts with those who are endeavoring to entirely wipe out the traffic in it.

There are many good people in Virginia, and they ought to get together against the whiskey traffic and wipe it out in that state. North Carolina could better enforce her prohibition laws were it not for the interference of our neighbors.

Saturday morning several of the main buildings of Oak Ridge Institute were destroyed by fire, and at once them overment started to rebuild the school in a larger place. It was a fire not long since that took the Horner school away from Oxford. It brings no harm to the schools, however, to locate them in the larger cities, but on the contrary they are the gainers thereby.

SCARCITY OF LABOR

Senator F. M. Simmons recently returned to Washington City after spending a vacation at his home in New Bern, and in talking about the prosperous conditions of North Carolina, pictured how much greater this would be but for the scarcity of labor. He expressed the belief that fully 20,000 laborers could find immediate and profitable employment in this State. It is surprising that so many people will loaf around without employment in the large cities where population is congested, when they could come South and find plenty of work and live comfortable. Not only the farmers but the towns in this State need more laborers. Here in Greenville, for example the greatest hindrance to building operators is the lack of mechanics. Almost any kind of carpenter gets from $2.50 to $3. a day, and skilled workmen more, and even at this people have to almost buy mechanics to get work done.

LARGE BODIES MOVE SLOWLY AND AWKWARDLY

There size does not by any means always speed economy, speed or efficiency in a business institution. Everybody knows that if he will take time to think of it. What is needed is that he shall make a practical application of his knowledge; in other words be wise, for wisdom is but knowledge put into practice.

If all the time now wasted by thousands of people each day standing on city street corners waiting for street cars were spent in brisk walks to their homes, as it could be if they lived in smaller towns, they would not only save their car fare, and the additional time they now spend on the cars, but they would preserve their health and lengthen their lives.

If all the time that is now wasted in waiting for service and attention in the big city department stores were saved, it would far exceed in value the supposed differences between prices in the big and little stores, and the net result be a big saving.

The annual expense of exchanging and returning goods in the big city stores add a tremendous amount to the costs of doing business, a cost that is practically eliminated in the smaller stores. This is due largely to the fact that personal interest and responsibility, while present in the smaller store, are as largely absent as to be practically a negligible quantity in the large store. Of course the big stores will deny this, but their "trouble" departments prove its truth.

THE INFLUENCE OF ENVIRONMENT

The Chicago Tribune, in a recent editorial, comments on the influence of environment as follows:

"Abraham Lincoln was born in a country. He was born in an era when poverty, while it may have been bitter, had not the sting of poverty of today. He had for guides a woman's love and kindness, the Bible and Shakespeare. Napoleon had no home, but it was his good fortune to be drawn into proper and, to him, inspiring school associations. His studies absorbed him. They supplied him sinews for ambition and stuff for dreams.

"History might bear an entirely different physiognomy, if Napoleon, instead of having been born in Corsica, had been born in the underwood of Paris—the underwood of even his life. If Abraham Lincoln had been born in Chicago or New York today, he might not have ended as the great emancipator.

"These reflections are forced to mind by the recent utterances of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, ex-president of Harvard, extolling poverty and implying that it makes for virtue rather than for vice. The sincerity of the venerable scholar can not be questioned, but apparently he is completely out of touch with the life of the cities, of industrial centers, big and little.

"Poverty breeds slums. The slums destroy the health of their inhabitants. And there can be no mind in an unhealthy body. Where the conditions of life are as brutish and foul as they are in the slums, generations past may sometimes have been a spur to ambition. The grinding poverty in the slums today nearly always crushes and destroys."

Let the boy who has been brought up in the country understand that, even though he finds the country uninteresting, the city with its glitter is but little, if any different from the light which attracts the moth—it will eventually destroy him. Unless the young man can come to the city and meet employers of labor on an equal basis with other employees, he must seek out the slums as a place of abode, since his earning capacity will not permit of his being otherwise. With such an environment, he will soon realize that the old home is not such an undesirable place after all or he will go down into a poverty, which has no comparison with the poverty so often connected with Abraham Lincoln and others who have later become successful men.

YOU MUST CLIMB OR BE CLIMBED OVER

The world moves. Time flies. Men change. Commerce develops. The opportunities of today are greater than those of yesterday. There are some of the forces that compose universal progress.

To succeed, you must move. You must keep on going, if you are filled with the ambition to keep on top. To stand still means to go backward. There is no future in the past.

Today is dedicated to you. Today you have the opportunity to keep on going. You even have the chance to speed up and forge ahead, leading the others. You can't expect to advance if you loiter or stop on the way to rest. There is no need of looking backward. Cast your eyes to the future. Elbow your way along through the crowd. Be one of the pace setters.

It is folly to depend upon past performances. While you are thinking about some success in the past, a more eager man will come along and soon get ahead of you.

MINERS IN BIENNIAL CON-CLAVE IN INDIANAPOLIS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 20.—Tomlinson Hall was filled to overflowing today when President John P. White called to order the international convention of the United Mine Workers of America. The convention is the twenty-fourth held by the international organization and the first that has been held since the plan for biennial conventions was adopted.

The roll call by Secretary William Green showed that the convention is the largest in point of attendance in the history of the organization. The gathering also is one of the most representative that the miners have ever held. More than 1,700 delegates were in their seats when the proceedings were opened. Among them they represented the miners of nearly the whole of the United States and Canada. Delegates were present representing the anthracite miners of Pennsylvania and the miners engaged in the bituminous fields in that state and in West Virginia, in the great central field composed of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky, in Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and the South West, and as far north as the British Columbia.

The delegates were welcomed to the city in cordial addresses delivered by Governor Ralston of Indiana and Mayor Bell of Indianapolis. Response for the visitors was embodied in the annual address of President White. The address of the president and standing committees showed that the organization at the present time is in a most flourishing condition. In two years the paid up membership of the organization has increased from 100,000 to 150,000. The success of our government dependent almost entirely upon the class of officers selected, and that the officers, including the judges on the bench, are nothing more than servants of the people and that it is an intelligent electorate that puts into office men of character and courage who have influence and capability. The officers, he said, are those who make them.

Here Judge Daniels took up the cause of unlimited education and showed the great progress made through education and that education coupled with Christian homes, presided over by Christian mothers and noble Christian fathers, was the foundation and the fertility from which sprung an intelligent, moral law abiding people. He emphasized the fact that it was not the idler the drunkard, or the ignorant and degenerate that build up the towns and cities. He said that the success of our government dependent almost entirely upon the class of officers selected, and that the officers, including the judges on the bench, are nothing more than servants of the people and that it is an intelligent electorate that puts into office men of character and courage who have influence and capability. The officers, he said, are those who make them.

THE JUDGE'S CHARGE TO THE JURY WAS AN EXCELLENT REVIEW OF OUR SOCIAL, EDUCATIONAL AND MORAL PROGRESS

The January Term of Criminal Court convened here yesterday with Judge F. A. Daniel presiding, and Solicitor Abernathy representing the state. Below is the grand jury for this term.

G. E. Harris, foreman, O. P. Polard, Stephen Holloman, L. B. Drapee, Joe Harris, (col.), W. J. Braxton, S. M. Crisp, W. P. Wooten, A. A. May, M. Fleming, J. M. Edwards, W. R. Nannie, J. R. Fleming, H. Robertson, A. J. Tyson, J. G. Moya, Jesse L. Whitford, G. E. Allen.

The Judge's Charge.

His Honor Judge Daniels talked to the Grand Jury for about two and one-half hours. His charge was an excellent review of our social, educational and moral progress. He discussed with the grand jury the things in the environments of human beings that go to enlighten and mould characters that makes law abiding citizens, and pointed out some of the evils that tend to drag down and degenerate. He charged as much to regret in the evil doers and those who support and patronize immoral influences; as well as a warm commendation to the Christian, moral citizenship that striving for law enforcement and the advancement and development of the community.

He said in part to the jury, that they had been selected for a particular and important service, and that it was the duty of the commissioners to put in the jury box the names of capable, honest, intelligent men, and he felt sure the commissioners had done their duty. That the success of our government dependent almost entirely upon the class of officers selected, and that the officers, including the judges on the bench, are nothing more than servants of the people and that it is an intelligent electorate that puts into office men of character and courage who have influence and capability. The officers, he said, are those who make them.

JARRING NOTE IN PROGRESS

With Advancement in Medical Science Has Come the Passing of the Family Physician.

Specialization, which is a sign of the times, threatens some old customs. Among the most significant changes of today is the lessening field of the family physician. To him, as immortalized by Balzac, were confided the secrets, hopes and woes of many a household.

Modern medicine with its many branches, its specific and sub-specialties, has perceptibly reduced the scope of operation of this old stand-by. Each ailment now suggests its own specialist. One might almost divide life into the "seven ages of medical treatment," from the obstetrician at birth, the pediatricist of early infancy, the orthopedic surgeon to correct the natural deformities of childhood, the oculist to prescribe the glasses of adolescence, the surgeon for the traumas of manhood, the metabolist for the digestive troubles of middle life, the aurist for the deafness of old age.

And though the change brings with it a higher degree of efficiency, there is a natural deformation of childhood, the oculist to prescribe the glasses of adolescence, the surgeon for the traumas of manhood, the metabolist for the digestive troubles of middle life, the aurist for the deafness of old age.

It is a pity that the change brings with it a higher degree of efficiency, there is a natural deformation of childhood, the oculist to prescribe the glasses of adolescence, the surgeon for the traumas of manhood, the metabolist for the digestive troubles of middle life, the aurist for the deafness of old age.

North Carolina should center on Raleigh or Charlotte as a location for one of the regional reserve banks and let Richmond take care of herself.

It is an unusual thing to hear traveling men say that Greenville is going forward faster than any town in Eastern Carolina. That is what we all think about it.

You can afford to go around piles of material on the streets when you know that every pile means a new building going up.

If Greenville is really moving at all in the matter of establishing a boat line on Tar River, the pace is so slow that it is not perceptible.

The report is going around that the farmers are preparing to increase acreage and raise an immense tobacco crop this year. In that case they had as well make up their minds to accept a small price for it next fall.

SCARCITY OF LABOR

Senator F. M. Simmons recently returned to Washington City after spending a vacation at his home in New Bern, and in talking about the prosperous conditions of North Carolina, pictured how much greater this would be but for the scarcity of labor. He expressed the belief that fully 20,000 laborers could find immediate and profitable employment in this State. It is surprising that so many people will loaf around without employment in the large cities where population is congested, when they could come South and find plenty of work and live comfortable. Not only the farmers but the towns in this State need more laborers. Here in Greenville, for example the greatest hindrance to building operators is the lack of mechanics. Almost any kind of carpenter gets from $2.50 to $3. a day, and skilled workmen more, and even at this people have to almost buy mechanics to get work done.

LARGE BODIES MOVE SLOWLY AND AWKWARDLY

There size does not by any means always speed economy, speed or efficiency in a business institution. Everybody knows that if he will take time to think of it. What is needed is that he shall make a practical application of his knowledge; in other words be wise, for wisdom is but knowledge put into practice.

If all the time now wasted by thousands of people each day standing on city street corners waiting for street cars were spent in brisk walks to their homes, as it could be if they lived in smaller towns, they would not only save their car fare, and the additional time they now spend on the cars, but they would preserve their health and lengthen their lives.

If all the time that is now wasted in waiting for service and attention in the big city department stores were saved, it would far exceed in value the supposed differences between prices in the big and little stores, and the net result be a big saving.

The annual expense of exchanging and returning goods in the big city stores add a tremendous amount to the costs of doing business, a cost that is practically eliminated in the smaller stores. This is due largely to the fact that personal interest and responsibility, while present in the smaller store, are as largely absent as to be practically a negligible quantity in the large store. Of course the big stores will deny this, but their "trouble" departments prove its truth.

THE INFLUENCE OF ENVIRONMENT

The Chicago Tribune, in a recent editorial, comments on the influence of environment as follows:

"Abraham Lincoln was born in a country. He was born in an era when poverty, while it may have been bitter, had not the sting of poverty of today. He had for guides a woman's love and kindness, the Bible and Shakespeare. Napoleon had no home, but it was his good fortune to be drawn into proper and, to him, inspiring school associations. His studies absorbed him. They supplied him sinews for ambition and stuff for dreams.

"History might bear an entirely different physiognomy, if Napoleon, instead of having been born in Corsica, had been born in the underwood of Paris—the underwood of even his life. If Abraham Lincoln had been born in Chicago or New York today, he might not have ended as the great emancipator.

"These reflections are forced to mind by the recent utterances of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, ex-president of Harvard, extolling poverty and implying that it makes for virtue rather than for vice. The sincerity of the venerable scholar can not be questioned, but apparently he is completely out of touch with the life of the cities, of industrial centers, big and little.

"Poverty breeds slums. The slums destroy the health of their inhabitants. And there can be no mind in an unhealthy body. Where the conditions of life are as brutish and foul as they are in the slums, generations past may sometimes have been a spur to ambition. The grinding poverty in the slums today nearly always crushes and destroys."

Let the boy who has been brought up in the country understand that, even though he finds the country uninteresting, the city with its glitter is but little, if any different from the light which attracts the moth—it will eventually destroy him. Unless the young man can come to the city and meet employers of labor on an equal basis with other employees, he must seek out the slums as a place of abode, since his earning capacity will not permit of his being otherwise. With such an environment, he will soon realize that the old home is not such an undesirable place after all or he will go down into a poverty, which has no comparison with the poverty so often connected with Abraham Lincoln and others who have later become successful men.

YOU MUST CLIMB OR BE CLIMBED OVER

The world moves. Time flies. Men change. Commerce develops. The opportunities of today are greater than those of yesterday. There are some of the forces that compose universal progress.

To succeed, you must move. You must keep on going, if you are filled with the ambition to keep on top. To stand still means to go backward. There is no future in the past.

Today is dedicated to you. Today you have the opportunity to keep on going. You even have the chance to speed up and forge ahead, leading the others. You can't expect to advance if you loiter or stop on the way to rest. There is no need of looking backward. Cast your eyes to the future. Elbow your way along through the crowd. Be one of the pace setters.

It is folly to depend upon past performances. While you are thinking about some success in the past, a more eager man will come along and soon get ahead of you.

MINERS IN BIENNIAL CON-CLAVE IN INDIANAPOLIS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 20.—Tomlinson Hall was filled to overflowing today when President John P. White called to order the international convention of the United Mine Workers of America. The convention is the twenty-fourth held by the international organization and the first that has been held since the plan for biennial conventions was adopted.

The roll call by Secretary William Green showed that the convention is the largest in point of attendance in the history of the organization. The gathering also is one of the most representative that the miners have ever held. More than 1,700 delegates were in their seats when the proceedings were opened. Among them they represented the miners of nearly the whole of the United States and Canada. Delegates were present representing the anthracite miners of Pennsylvania and the miners engaged in the bituminous fields in that state and in West Virginia, in the great central field composed of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky, in Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and the South West, and as far north as the British Columbia.

The delegates were welcomed to the city in cordial addresses delivered by Governor Ralston of Indiana and Mayor Bell of Indianapolis. Response for the visitors was embodied in the annual address of President White. The address of the president and standing committees showed that the organization at the present time is in a most flourishing condition. In two years the paid up membership of the organization has increased from 100,000 to 150,000. The success of our government dependent almost entirely upon the class of officers selected, and that the officers, including the judges on the bench, are nothing more than servants of the people and that it is an intelligent electorate that puts into office men of character and courage who have influence and capability. The officers, he said, are those who make them.
