Butchers Raise the Price of Beef
When They Learn Shipments
Had Been Tied up by the Strike.

GLEN FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 19.—The price of beef rose two cents a pound today as soon as local butchers found that the strike on the Delaware and Hudson had tied up shipments.

ALBANY, N. R., Jan. 19.—Dispute over the discharge of two employees by the Delaware and Hudson Railway led to a strike today which had tied up the entire operating end of the system. About 5,000 men, it is estimated, are out. Only shop workers and refuse collectors remain on duty. The discharged men threaten the discharged men if full back pay is the only union demand.

Strike Will Affect 30,000 Miners.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 19.—Suspension of traffic on the Delaware and Hudson Railroad appeared complete today, according to reports received by the superintendent of the Pennsylvania division. If any train service is restored before the strike is ended nothing will be handled but mails. No attempt will be made to carry passengers.

Thirty coal mines operated by the Delaware and Hudson Company probably will be shut down. Counting other mines that will be involved about 20,000 miners will be affected.

Mail Train on Time.

The morning mail trains from Wilkesbarre and Homestead arrived at Carbondale on time and were returned to the city at the usual hour. The mail itself only the crews here

Ayden Items.

AYDEN, Jan. 15.—We are of the same opinion as the man who preferred being buried alive to shelling a barrel of corn by hand, when you can get the celebrated Black Hawk shelter for $2.00 at J. R. Smith and Bro.

The wicked fiend when a man persueth, James McVea, (colored) has mysteriously taken to the tall timber and being in the presence of Sergeant Smith he didn't do it.

Now when it comes to catching rats, we rather think Uncle Jack Hart has this whole township skinned. He tells us with the assistance of Bud, his wire trap and dog, he killed a thousand rats during the year 1913.

R. Smith and Bro. keep a full supply of these traps.

This is ideal weather, and when a man complains of hard times we think it is chronic or he is grouchy.

We hear that Hon. J. H. Small is to make a tour of his new tract, a picture, in the near future. He takes pictures of the new postmaster, and arrange for the primary to decide the question. We have heard it suggested to pardon Mr. G. W. Prescott for all his past offenses, and continue him in office as he has made us such a good officer, that it is hard to duplicate him, but the old maxim runs up: To the victim belongs the spoils.

The fertilizer drummers are announcing the high grade stuff, and making the boys think their's are the best, but this fall the tune will be changed.

some of the farmers think they will soon have to cure tobacco with coal. Already we notice a great many of the country people are buying coal stoves in communities where we thought none would ever be used.

Most every day a new one comes out for the Post Office, only one can get it, and who that will be is the question, we hope there will be no unscrupulous methods used to defeat the other fellow, as we here all neighbors, and will continue to be. So lets let the Golden Rule and give it to the one who wants it worst, and stop it.

It requires a standing army to guard the interest of Uncle Sam, at a big salary, while one Kiddick will guard your tobacco with care. He will night watch it, and they get the whole every time, plenty of them to run Smith and Bro.

We hear that Mr. Nemire Garrie of Littlefield, will build 27 new tobacco barns this spring and winter.

The Mayor and his Cabinet held a special session last Friday night, look into the development of the case.

Mr. Herbert Corey, has rented the house of Mr. J. C. Jones on West Broadway, and will soon move there-in.

The tribulation Fall was busy Monday morning meeting out to the lawless of Saturday night, some for play and rather rough, and some for match in.

When a man offers to sell his house and lot for a handsome profit that is business, when he gets cash for that, that money, but when he sells, and cant rent, and has to move to another

County Home a Disgrace Says Grand Jury Report

Orders Commissioners to Purchase
Site and Build New Home

EMPLOY EXPERT ACCOUNTANT

To Make Thorough Investigation of the Charges Against W. A.
Forbes, Superintendent
Convict Camp.

North Carolina, Pitt County.
In the superior Court, January
Term, 1914.
To the Honorable P. A. Daniel, Judge
Presiding:
We, the Grand Jury for the above named term of this court, beg leave to submit our report as follows:

We have examined into, and passed upon all matters brought before us have reported same into this court and have made due presentation of such violations of law as have come to our knowledge.

We have made careful inspection of the Convict Camp, the County Home, the Court House, and the offices of Superior Court Clerk, the Sheriff,
the Register of Deeds and the County Treasurer. The County Jail we did not inspect on account of a case of small pox in the jail. We have had the Sheriff, the Superintendent of Health and the entire Board of County Commissioners to appear before us and have made diligent inquiry into charges against and criticisms of certain members of the Board of County Commissioners and of the Superintendent of the County Home. With one exception, we find no cause whatever for complaint against any member of the Board of Commissioners. There have been some technical violations of the law, but we find no attempt to defraud or exploit the County.
On the contrary, in the matters complained of, these men were, we believe, trying to serve themselves and at some personal inconvenience.
The one exception noted above was a matter that we consider of such grave importance that we have brought it into this Court in the form of an indictment of Mr. W. L. McLawhorn, former Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, Mr. W. A.
Forbes, Superintendent of the Convict Road Gang, has misappropriated money, feed stuff, and meat, the property of the County. In the limited time at our disposal we could make no thorough investigation of this charge, as such investigation would entail an examination into all transactions connected with the work on the roads for a long period. We have taken this matter up with the Board of Commissioners however, and have been assured by them that they will promptly employ an expert accountant and probe the matter to the bottom.

We find the Convict Camp in good condition at this time. The convicts appear to be properly fed and cared for except that three or four of them claim to have no shoes. We are assured that, if this be true, shoes will be immediately provided for them.
The teams are in most excellent condition.

We find the Court House in good condition, except for some accumulation of trash and filth in the corridors, the basement and, to a lesser degree, in the Court Room. We fear that this condition is largely due to a lack of appreciation, on the part of the general public, of this building which has been provided for, and should be the pride of all the people of the County. We earnestly urge the utmost diligence on the part of the officers in charge of this building.

We find conditions at the County Home most deplorable. Such an institution is a shame on humanity and a disgrace to the County of Pitt. We are informed by the Superintendent of Health that, with the present situation and equipment, there can probably be no material improvement in these conditions. If this be true, and these conditions must continue, we think it would be meritorious to painlessly destroy those who have no home and no hope rather than doom them to such an existence as this place affords.

We have discussed at great length
the Board of County Commissioners this matters and have insisted
on a definite promise from them that
no such violations of law as have come
to our knowledge.

We have discussed at great length
the Board of County Commissioners this matters and have insisted
on a definite promise from them that
no such violations of law as have come
to our knowledge.

After the criticisms, we have felt obliged to make, it is our duty to submit this report to take up the subject of the offices of the Clerk of this Court, the Sheriff, the Register of Deeds and the County Treasurer. We find the work of the County, in the hands of these several officers, being conducted in a most thorough, efficient and systematic manner and all their duties are being performed in such conformity as to elicit our heartiest commendation.

In concluding our labors, and asking to be discharged, we wish to express to your Honor, and to the officers of this court, our sincere appreciation of the courteous treatment we have received from you all.

Marriage Licenses.

Last week Register of Deeds, Branson Bell, issued marriage licenses to the following couples:

WHITE
J. H. Taylor and Margie Smith,
Murry K. Porter and Bertha Stokes,
Johnnie Smith and Bessie Cowart,
Roy W. Sutton and Lillian Sawyer,
Jesse Smith and Barbara Jones.

COLOR
Silas Moore and Pearl Hudley,
Wm. Joyner and Mary Joyner,
Henry Brown and Mary Solomon,
Johnnie Bryant and Lena Cowart, Austin Jones and Henrietta Cow-art.

Forest Whitaker and Francis Jordan,
Amos Wooten and Lucy Daniel.

Killed in Runaway.

A serious runaway accident occured at Bethel this morning about eleven o'clock that resulted in the death of Charlie Jones, a young white man about thirty years of age.

He was driving through Bethel when his team became frightened in some unknown way and dashed out after running for some distance
he was thrown out and his back broken and horribly mangled.
The unfortunate man was from Connecticut and was in the employ of Mr.
Edgar Warren.

Because business looks good is no reason that the man who does not try for it will get much.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Majority of Friends Thought Mr.
Hughes Would Die, But
One Helped Him to Recovery.

Pomeroyton, Ky.—In interesting advances from this place, Mr. A. J. Hughes
writes as follows: "I was down with stomach trouble for five (5) years, and would have sick headache so bad, at
times, that I thought surely I would die.
I tried different treatments, but they
did not seem to do me any good.
I got so bad, I could not eat or sleep,
and all my friends, except one, thought I would die. He advised me to try Theodor's Black-Draught, and quit

taking other medicines. I decided to take his advice, although I did not have any confidence in it.
I have now been taking Black-Draught
for three months, and it has cured me—haven't had those awful sick headaches
since I began using it.
I am so thankful for what Black-
Draught has done for me."
Theodor's Black-Draught has been found a very valuable medicine for derangements of the stomach and liver. It
is composed of pure, vegetable herbs,
contains no dangerous ingredients, and
acts gently, yet surely. It can be freely
used by young and old, and should be kept in every family chest.

STOMACH TROUBLE
FOR FIVE YEARS

Majority of Friends Thought Mr.
Hughes Would Die, But
One Helped Him to Recovery.

Pomeroyton, Ky.—In interesting advances from this place, Mr. A. J. Hughes
writes as follows: "I was down with stomach trouble for five (5) years, and
would have sick headache so bad, at
times, that I thought surely I would die.
I tried different treatments, but they
did not seem to do me any good.
I got so bad, I could not eat or sleep,
and all my friends, except one, thought I would die. He advised me to try Theodor's Black-Draught, and quit

taking other medicines. I decided to take his advice, although I did not have
any confidence in it.
I have now been taking Black-Draught
for three months, and it has cured me—
haven't had those awful sick headaches
since I began using it.
I am so thankful for what Black-
Draught has done for me."
Theodor's Black-Draught has been
found a very valuable medicine for derangements of the stomach and liver. It
is composed of pure, vegetable herbs,
contains no dangerous ingredients, and
acts gently, yet surely. It can be freely
used by young and old, and should be kept in every family chest.

AN UNDERSHOT CUPID

By FORBES DWIGHT.

Perhaps the best description of William Boles that can be given is to say that his idea of a highly hilarious evening was to spend it searching for certain illusive Greek roots.

That perhaps gives a very proper idea of the gentleman and renders it unnecessary to mention his heavy-lensed tortoise-shell spectacles, his baggy clothes, his absurd ties, and his air of always having something very important on his mind.

Besides Greek roots there was one thing worthy of mention in William's rather austere and ascetic life; and that was a bow-legged underfoot, 70-pound bulldog rejoicing in the highly un-Hellenic name of Frazzles.

William Boles came to the city of Greenville in his study at the house of his widowed sister with whom he boarded and who was indignantly proud of William's bulging forehead and his success with Greek roots. Frazzles was cowering joyfully somewhere about the yard below, and William should have been on the trail of the usual Greek root. But instead he was staring moodily at a bit of paper before him. On the paper were sundry lines, each beginning with a capital. One would never have thought of the austere William as breaking out into metrical thought; indeed, it surprised William as much as it would have done any one else.

New neighbors had moved into the house next door, and one of the said new neighbors—the daughter of the house—had a most amazing pair of violet eyes. William had first noticed them when he had seen her making friends with Frazzles through the fence one day. They were most disturbing eyes.

William had known by certain all too apparent signs that he was rapidly descending into paths of insanity, but tonight the crowning climax of it all had come. He had written a poem, a poem about her eyes—23 lines of soulful driven in fabled hexameter.

"William, oh, William!" called his sister's voice from the hall below. "Here's Frazzles coming up to you."

A moment later Frazzles was clawing vigorously at the door. William opened it and in bounded 70-pound pounds of animation, from a room with the girl next door. William abstractedly watched him scurrying about the study.

He stepped to the table and picked up his recent assault upon prosody. His eyes were stary and liquid and like the rest of it that didn't make him any less a silly fool for writing those verses. What would she say if she ever saw them?

He snatched them angrily up, crumpled them in his hand and hurried them to the door.

"And that's the end of that," said William Boles, with finality.

Frazzles ceased growling at a basket and cocked an ear when William's paper hit the floor. He bounded forward. In another moment it was in his mouth.

"Here! Here, girl! Come here!" William commanded in his most dominating voice. But Frazzles, remembering many a gambol with an old shoe in his mouth and William in pursuit, bounded joyfully about the room, belching the stairs with the howl of William in pursuit, edged through the front door, which was open, and sped down the front path.

William went to the gate and whistled. Then on the next porch he heard words that fairly froze his blood.

"That's the good Frazzles! Give it to me! That's the good old fellow!" William felt his knees giving way beneath him. He had headed those verses—headed them like a sentimental fool he was, he now remembered—"To Margaret's Eyes."

Quite involuntarily he whistled for Frazzles again.

Footsteps sounded on that next porch. The vines were pushed aside. She stood there looking over at him. "Where you looking for Frazzles, Professor Boles?" she asked.

Every one called him "Professor," although he was not a full-fledged one as yet. It seemed so natural, and so eminently fitting.

"No—er—yes—that is, is he there?" he stammered miserably.

She leaned farther across the porch railing.

"He's just brought me—that you sent me," said she.

"I didn't send it," he cried in anguish.

"You didn't? Didn't you write it?"

"Yes! I'll have to admit I wrote it, but I never intended you to see it."

"Oh," she said in disappointment. "It's such a lovely poem, too."

William gripped the gateposts hard. Was she having covert fun with him?

"I—good heavens, what do you think of me?" he groaned.

There was a little embarrassed laugh.

"You've—you've flattered my eyes awfully," she said softly, "but—about what I think of you—suppose you come over and see me."

She had Frazzles in her arms. She was burying her flushed face in his slightly wrinkled face. William Boles forgot there was such a thing as a Greek root.

And for the first time in his life Frazzles found that one and the same moment two of his staunchest friends would pay no attention whatever to him, despite all his flowery cavortings about them.

STRENUOUS IN HIS PLEASURES

British Author Takes Chances With Life and Limb That Would Not Appeal to Many.

Ian Hay, whose carefree "Happy-Go-Lucky" has scooped an hour for many a reader, not to say reviewer, may have need himself of the easygoing traits of his hero, for Mr. Hay has lately taken up two dangerous pastimes, motorizing and politics. He writes as follows to an American friend:

"I nearly ended my literary and other careers about three weeks ago by capsizing my motor on the way back from Oban. I was driving along a Highland glen and rounding a sharp corner when suddenly I realized that I was going much faster than I thought. Next moment the car slid right across the road, a tire burst and the whole thing rolled over sideways. I was thrown out on the road, my head struck a stone, and I lay around me. Luckily the car did not turn right over, as the glass screen stopped it, or I might have been pelted with stones. Ultimately another car came up and we succeeded in getting my car back on its legs again. The extraordinary part of it all was that it had received no particular damage beyond a broken screen, and in three-quarters of an hour of the accident I was on my way to Edinburgh."

"I have lately become a politician and have been doing so as prospective Unionist candidate for Kirkcaldy Burghs. It is quite a hopeless cause, there has been a radical majority of 3,000 or so for the last 20 years, but it should be a useful experience."

NO 10-MINUTE-A-DAY WIFE

Writer in Collier's. Doesn't by Any Means Agree With Mrs. Milholland Bolesvain.

Feminism by all means—only that doesn't commit one to accepting every statement advanced by Mrs. Milholland Bolesvain. Take her remark the other day about ten minutes in every twenty-four hours being enough for "keeping house." Now, ten minutes may do in a Manhattan apartment house, where babies are against the law, but who calls running a Manhattan apartment "housekeeping?" In our domestic life, as Mrs. Bolesvain says, there are no dumb waiters or "maid service included." In the lease. One cannot have breakfast brought to one's door, and one cannot, somehow, take breakfast to be cooked. The housekeeper in our town is a homemaker. She has to mend, to do, and to stop. Her eyes are weary, and her hands are like the rest of it that didn't make him any less a silly fool for writing those verses. What would she say if she ever saw them?

He snatched them angrily up, crumpled them in his hand and hurried them to the door.

"And that's the end of that," said William Boles, with finality.

Frazzles ceased growling at a basket and cocked an ear when William's paper hit the floor. He bounded forward. In another moment it was in his mouth.

LITTLE TRICKERY TRIXY

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS.

Trixy gazed wistfully at the patients who, from time to time, went up the stone steps.

"Oh! For a pain or something that I, too, might have!" she sighed and caught sight of her rony, sparkling beauty in the mirror. "I do not remember ever having looked so interestingly pale."

She gazed out of the window again. A slim, dainty girl who walked with a limp was making her way slowly toward the door that bore the name of Hermann Gunthel, M. D.

"Even a limp gets one through these portals," sighed Trixy. "Why, oh, why, am I so abnormally healthy?"

Trixy worked herself into many a fever of vague imaginings. Romantic gains she were about the doctor and his feminine patients and smiled wistfully when she pictured them one and all fainting into the doctor's arms. Somehow, Trixy could conceive of no visit to a physician wherein a faint played no part.

"Certainly I would faint!—only from sheer joy at being near him! I never had the chance," mused Trixy. She pictured her golden head falling snuggly—she knew it would be snuggly—against his shoulder, and his hand stroking her brow.

With the wonderful thought of Dr. Gunthel's soft hand on her brow inspiration came to Trixy.

She would faint. That very day, when he came up the street in his small runabout, she would dash out on her own steps and swoon right before his very eyes. He would pick her up tenderly and carry her into that charming office and admittance to her wardrobe. She gazed with longing eyes at her new black plush silk.

"I would love to wear it for the fainting fit, but I might just fall on some mud or something and it would be ruined." She sighed and looked at her gray velvet walking dress.

Could fall all the way down the stairs in that without hurting it," she rejoiced, "and after all gray rather suits me."

Toward 5 o'clock, when the doctor usually came in for his evening office hours, Trixy stationed herself beside the window. Her heart was beating a little more rapidly than on previous watches and she hoped she would not bump her head or do anything unwomanly when she performed her swoon before the doctor's eyes.

When she heard the familiar motor horn belonging to his car, she jumped up and went swiftly out onto the steps.

Had there been a spot on those stone steps Trixy assuredly would have sought it. As it was she had to anticipate a fall that must be graceful and without danger to her physical being.

She arrived at the bottom of the steps just as the doctor drew up at his curb. He glanced up at her and a fleeting smile swept over his face.

A second later Trixy rushed to his side. He had tumbled in a heap before the car. She knelt down and drew his head to her lap. Her breath was coming and going in quick pants. She gazed helplessly up and down the street. There was no one in sight and she did not know what to do with the unconscious man.

She was about to let him down gently and seek aid when the doctor opened his eyes. The color returned to his ruddy cheeks and he collected himself with startling suddenness.

"You fainted," cried Trixy.

"That was a very foolish thing to do," murmured the doctor. "Very foolish," he repeated. "I have had some trying cases at the hospital today."

The fleeting smile again crossed his eyes. "I am glad it was you who found me," he said, with charming candor. "I have wanted to know you."

He had risen and was standing looking down into Trixy's astonished but happy eyes. "I took this house because I saw sitting in the window the day I was looking for an office."

Trixy wondered if she had really accomplished her swoon and this day the doctor was a part of it. She gazed in to the doctor's face and found it expectant, as if he waited to hear her voice.

"You should not be standing here talking," she said quickly; "it is evident that you are working far too hard or you would not have fainted."

"But I did not exactly faint," confessed the doctor. "I was really frightened. I was really frightened."

"Angry? No," she said, "because you undoubtedly saved me from bumping my own head." She smiled. "Come in with me and have a refreshing cup of tea. I have a story to tell you."

"I am no longer tired," the doctor said joyfully, "but a cup of tea is just what I need."

DEAD BODY FOUND

BURIED IN BRUSH PILE

Mrs. William Lynch Killed While Husband is Away From Home on Business.

RALEIGH, Jan. 25.—When Mr. William Lynch returned last night to his home about two miles from Wendell from a visit to that place he failed to find his broken screen, and a hurried search by neighbors for his dead body was found half buried in a brush pile in a little stretch of woods near the home. Her face and body was terribly mutilated and bruised, and she had been dead several hours.

Mr. Lynch is a well known and respected farmer of the Wendell section and lives about 15 miles from Raleigh.

A thorough investigation of the premises revealed that Mrs. Lynch had been killed near her home and her body dragged by the perpetrator of the killing to the brush pile 50 yards distant. Her cap was found near the place where the signs show she was killed.

TO TRY THE SUIT AGAINST SENATOR GORE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 28.—When the district court of Oklahoma county convenes for the February term next week one of the first cases that will be brought up for trial, according to present expectations, will be the $50,000 suit filed by Mrs. Julia R. Bond of this city against United States Senator Gore, as P. Gore, Oklahoma's "Red Devil" eloquent. Both sides in the case hint that the trial will develop some sensational features that were not brought to light when the charges against Senator Gore were aired in Washington a year or more ago.

Mrs. Bond, the plaintiff, is thirty-one years old, and is the wife of Julia R. Bond of this city. She is of medium size and rather striking appearance. Her first husband was a dentist, whom she married at 18, while he still had another wife. After her first marriage had been annulled she became a teacher of shorthand and was thus employed when she met and married Bond.

In her suit against Senator Gore the woman asks $50,000 for alleged damages to her reputation following alleged advances made to her in Washington when she called to see the senator in the interests of her husband's candidacy for the position of internal revenue collector.

Mrs. Bond said that when she first saw Senator Gore in his private office he seized hold of one of her hands, and her mesh-bag, and that when he seized hold of one of her feet as she sat talking to him she thought it time to go. He told her to see him again, she said. The second time they met in a room at the hotel, she said. At that time he attempted to seize hold of her as she sat on the bed, she testified, and that when her glasses had been broken in trying to avoid him she called for help and left in company with men who came to her assistance.

Friends of Mr. Gore have not hesitated from the start to declare their belief that the whole affair, as described by the woman in her testimony in Washington, was a "plant" framed up by the political enemies of the blind senator to ruin his public career. Others ascribe the woman's action to a desire for revenge upon Senator Gore because he did not secure for her husband the po-

Mrs. Frank Wilson at Home.

On Tuesday afternoon at her home on Fifth street, in her easy and graceful manner, Mrs. Frank Wilson charmingly entertained her friends, from 2:30 to 5:30, in honor of her guests, Mesdames Stinson, Keel and Hassell and Misses Wadrop and Hartsell.

Mrs. Frank Wilson, Jr., and Miss Brown stood at the door to take the cards of the callers, who were received at the front door by Mesdames R. O. Jeffers and E. B. Pickett.

Mesdames Lina Baker and C. S. Forbes received in the hall where Mrs. J. W. Perrell and Miss Susie Warren served tea and wafers.

At the library door they were received by Mesdames S. T. White and W. H. Dall, Jr., and in the receiving line in the library were Mrs. Frank Wilson, the hostess, Mrs. C. B. Hassell, of Williamson; Mrs. John Stinson, of Bethel; Mrs. W. B. Wilson; Mrs. James Keel, of Rocky Mount; Mrs. Zeno Brown, Miss Lillian Wadrop, of Hendersonville; Miss Lill Wilson and Miss Lena Hartsell, of Raleigh.

The guests were received at the dining room door by Mesdames Albin Dunn, E. B. Ferguson, B. E. Batts, J. L. Wooten, T. M. Hooker, and Miss Ivy Taylor.

Refreshments consisting of ices, cakes, cream, minis and salted almonds were served by Misses Helen Laughlinhouse, Novella Moe, Helen Grimes, Minnie Egan Sugg, Mary and Linda Warren.

During the afternoon the Italian orchestra, stationed in the rear hall, entertained the guests with delightful music.

The house was very handsomely decorated with cut flowers and pot plants. The color scheme of the hall was red, the library white and the dining room pink.

The firm of W. L. Wooten and Company being owned by W. L. Wooten and Dr. E. A. Moye, have this day dissolved partnership by mutual consent. W. L. Wooten will collect all accounts and pay all indebtedness.

Will Permit Mexican Rebels to Export Arms From United States

It Will Place Them On Equal Footing With the Federals

PRESIDENT LIFTS EMBARGO

Only Military Lihls Will be Permitted to Ship War Munitions Across the Mexican Border.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The embargo against exportation of munitions of war from the United States to Mexico is about to be lifted. President Wilson and the cabinet today finally decided that because the embargo, by practically depriving the constitutionalists of arms, while the Huerta government is free to get them from many sources, really puts the United States in a position of showing partiality rather than neutrality.

The embargo is to be lifted with the idea that rather than contributing to bloodshed, the importation of arms by hastening an end of the war will reduce bloodshed.

An official statement outlining the purposes of the administration will be issued from the White House.

Foreign governments have been advised of the pending action of the United States through the embassies and legations abroad, and diplomatic representatives in Washington have been notified.

It was said that the development would not affect the American embassy in Mexico City nor the American troops on the border.

Superior artillery has enabled the Huerta forces to hold the large cities of the south, Torreon, Tampico, Monterrey, Saltillo, San Luis Potosi and others against Villa and a rebel army estimated at 15,000 men now is preparing to move as the first step in a campaign against Mexico City.

Let Only Give Rebels Square Deal

Every administration official who was let into the confidence of the few who knew of the impending step, took pains to emphasize that the Washington government was not raising an embargo to aid the constitutionalists nor as any evidence of sympathy with their cause, but merely to correct an inequality in the warfare which has been brought about by the operation of the proclamation of 1912.

Sells 59 Lots in Forty-Five Minutes Breaking Any Previous Record

One of the most successful auction sales of real estate ever held in this section was that conducted by the Atlantic Coast Realty Company at Stokes yesterday. In order to prove to those in attendance that they are at all times on the job and know how to dispose of real estate in a hurry they on yesterday broke all previous records made by the company, when in forty-five minutes they sold fifty-nine ideal building lots at satisfactory prices. In fact every lot sold higher than was expected, which goes to show that the people in and around Stokes realize that the little town is wide-awake and is compelled to go forward.

On next Saturday, February 7th, the company will hold two sales at the Stokes city lots. At 10:30 in the morning a sale will be held for the white people, and for the colored at 2:30. Mr. H. S. Shaffer is the representative on this sale and it is safe to say that it will be a success under his personal supervision.

Favorable Report Made By Inspector For Free Delivery Of the Mails

AS TOURIST AGENT OF THE SEABOARD

Charles H. Gattis, Formerly District Passenger Agent, Returns to Enter on This New Work.

(The News and Observer.)

Raleigh is soon to have a tourist agency, and from this point there will be arranged tours covering all sections of this country. And it will be pleasant news to the people of Raleigh and North Carolina that this brings back Mr. Charles H. Gattis formerly district passenger agent of the Seaboard Air Line, who resigned in 1910 to become general passenger agent of the Georgia and Florida Railroad at Augusta. Having been appointed tourist agent of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, he will establish here "The Gattis Tourist Agency," with offices in the Tucker building. Mr. Gattis will be in charge with Mr. W. A. Swallow as assistant.

Mr. Gattis has extensive experience along this line, and prior to severing his connection with the Seaboard worked up and personally conducted large parties of successful tourists in interest in the United States, Canada and Cuba, and this success is proof of his equipment for the work for which there is a large field to the south.

The Bureau's work will be to make complete plans for all kinds of excursions, tours, and parties, to the convenience of tourists and pleasure seekers, with trips for individuals, families and private parties, with all details worked out, the Bureau to have on hand maps, schedules and full information as to every state of the south and middle west will have displays. Many of the states of the far west will be represented for the first time. Idaho will be represented with a wool display, and Wyoming will show some methods of dry farming that were originated in that state. California will exhibit some of her choicest products of the garden, orchard and vineyard, and Arizona, Nevada and Utah will show the wonderful results accomplished by irrigation.

A majority of the states have responded to the invitation to make exhibitions at the show. Practically every state of the south and middle west will have displays. WILSON ITEMS.

WILSON, N. C., Feb. 2.—Dear Reflector: As I have not written to you in some time I will attempt to send a few items.

Mr. Haywood Best who had been paralyzed for four or five years, not being able to walk nor talk, but he seemed cheerful until he died a few days ago and the age of 80 years. He was taken to Snow Hill for burial. He was the father of Dr. Henry Best, who was taking care of him and lives on Park avenue.

Though it has been a week since I commenced my letter and thinking it will be long enough to send you, I concluded to let it be.

Our neighborhood is draped in mourning and sadness today.

The death angel came this morning at 4 o'clock and took from Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Pruitt their darling little son (Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Maye) grum. He was two months and eight days old last night. He was a sweet baby, thought he seemed to suffer nearly all of his life. We sympathize greatly with all the bereaved ones. The burial will take place at 5 p. m. today.

We hear of a sad tragedy in the northwestern part of Wilson this morning on Nash street. Mr. Rufus Watson went to the barn to feed his horse and a murderer shot his face nearly all off and his gun was lying by him. They asked him if he shot himself and he answered no. They asked him if someone shot him and he motioned yes. It seems as if they failed this morning to find out who it was that done the shooting. I heard about one o'clock that he was dead. I did not learn his name. He was a good citizen and a very nice man. I did not learn how many family he left.

I heard some few days ago that a lady somewhere in town left her baby to attend to something and when she went back in the house she found her baby burned to death. I did not learn the name.

We are having some beautiful weather just now but it is most too cool to plant gardens.

WILSON ITEMS.

WILSON, N. C., Feb. 2.—Dear Reflector: As I have not written to you in some time I will attempt to send a few items.

Mr. Haywood Best who had been paralyzed for four or five years, not being able to walk nor talk, but he seemed cheerful until he died a few days ago and the age of 80 years. He was taken to Snow Hill for burial. He was the father of Dr. Henry Best, who was taking care of him and lives on Park avenue.

Though it has been a week since I commenced my letter and thinking it will be long enough to send you, I concluded to let it be.

Our neighborhood is draped in mourning and sadness today.

The death angel came this morning at 4 o'clock and took from Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Pruitt their darling little son (Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Maye) grum. He was two months and eight days old last night. He was a sweet baby, thought he seemed to suffer nearly all of his life. We sympathize greatly with all the bereaved ones. The burial will take place at 5 p. m. today.

We hear of a sad tragedy in the northwestern part of Wilson this morning on Nash street. Mr. Rufus Watson went to the barn to feed his horse and a murderer shot his face nearly all off and his gun was lying by him. They asked him if he shot himself and he answered no.
