Quarterly Magazine Will Be Issued by the Training School. Plans have been made and are being carried out for the establishment of a quarterly magazine by the East Carolina Teachers Training School to be called the "Training School Quarterly". For a long time the school has felt a need for some means of reaching the public through some publication of its own and it was decided by the faculty that a magazine to be issued quarterly by the co-operation of students and faculty is the best means. The Senior Class of 1914 asked for and was granted the privilege of launching the magazine. The first number, therefore is to be in the hands of the Senior Class and is to be issued some time during the spring term. A faculty advisory board was elected by the class consisting of Miss M. D. Graham, Miss M. E. Jenkins, Miss D. B. Waltz who give the publication direct faculty supervision. From the class a board of editors was elected: editor, Miss Mattie Bright; Managing editor, Miss Annie Snow; associate editors, Misses Emily Grace Smith, Blanche Lancaster and Marion Alston. The city wagons were busy this morning hauling the benches and after they are placed it is the purpose of the authorities to have same painted and when this is done it will add much to the beautifying of both places. With Walsh, Schalk Chappell and a few lesser lights on the hospital list, it looks as though the White Sox may be up against it at the getaway.

So many people will knock home industries and at the same time never spend one nickel for their upkeep.

The Board of Aldermen at their regular monthly meeting Thursday night ordered the extension of the granite walks beyond the Coast Line tracks. Every month the board does something to make us glad.

The richer the few, the poorer the masses.

Greenville could very easily have at least one clean up day.

At least the suspense is over. The first straw hat has appeared.

Push and we push with you, knock and you knock alone, for this dreary old earth is full of dirt and Greenville has enough knockers of her own.

Some people are always trying to get even with those they dislike, but we are a little different; we are trying to get even with those who owe.

There's going to be an organization that will try and induce people to sit up and stand up straight. Why not one to make people act straight?

What the matter with the road machine, where is the good road most committee? The roads are certainly had enough for some of those busy people to get to work.

Some of the streets of this town would certainly welcome a scraper. What a shame to let them get rusty! Far better to wear out than rust out. Why not use them?

It is said William Randolph Hearst is greatly dissatisfied with the Wilson administration because Wilson has ignored Hearst's suggestions about how the country's affairs should be run.

There is no better time than now to begin war against the fly family. If we delay this work it will only require a few weeks for the army to increase to such a number that it will be a difficult task to oust them.

Mr. F. C. Harding, chairman of the Confederate Monument campaign announced the change in the date for the opening of the work to April 13 at which time a workers dinner will be given. A canvass of the entire county will be made by the committee and when the citizens are called upon for their donation, they should loosen their purse strings and respond liberally.

The Confederate Monument Campaign will start Monday next. This campaign is for the raising of $1,500 for the erection of a monument on the court house square to the heroes of the Confederacy. It will cost $3,000 to complete the work, and the County Commissioners at their regular meeting several months ago agreed to give half of that amount. Now it is up to the citizens of Pitt to do the rest, and it is hoped that they will respond liberally to the call.

Hats off to Kinston. She is doing her best to keep away carnivals with their gambling games and fakers. Greenville should get in line in a like manner and prevent the appearance of any such in our midst. It not only corrupts the morals of a community, but there are so many people that will spend their last dollar on these gambling vices and go in need for weeks. Keep such things out of their sight and they will in all probability prosper, and the community will derive benefits therefrom.

President Wilson and his supporters are some tickled over their victory in the house and their attention is now turned to the senate.

Have those sties been selected for the city park and hospital?

Some of those husky fellows in the army of the unemployed would make fine material for the farm life.

A headline reads "Americans Safe in Torreon." That may be true but a hay pile in Carolina lies easier.

THE VALUE OF FOREIGN FRIENDSHIP.

Our foreign trade has now reached a stupendous figure and is something like four billion dollars ($4,000,000,000) annually. Our biggest commercial trader is Great Britain and the second biggest trader is Germany and nearly 1-3 of our stupendous foreign trade is with these two great countries. When we passed the free toll measure in 1912 it made Great Britain and Germany mad as hornets and so mad that they refused to participate in the San Francisco Exposition to be held next year in commemoration of the opening of that canal. There are many shallow thinking people in this country who consider we should do whatever we please without consulting any other nation on earth. No doubt there is no nation that would ever attempt to "tell us" what we should do and what we should not do with that canal but the fact remains that the friendship of all the foreign countries will be greatly promoted by the repeal of the free toll, thereby treating every vessel of commerce exactly alike.

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS.

Every person in the world has a duty to perform. One of the principal duties is that of making a good citizen of himself, and the initial step to that end is to develop his capacities in a manner that will make of him a competent person in some one or more lines of work. A loafer is not a good citizen. He can't be for he is no producer, and a nonproducer is a wart, a blotch upon the body of the community in which he lives.

He sets a bad example for the rising generation. He is of no real value to those dependent upon him, of no account to his fellowmen, it makes no difference how much of this world's goods that he may have at his command whether he has had enough of the "dollar that makes the mare go," bequeathed to him, or in what manner he acquired them. If he does not take on some active productive work in life, if he fails to be a producer, he is a nonentity a hindrance to the community in which he has his being and in which he exerts an influence albeit that influence is of a negative character.

Every person ought to be compelled by some power to contribute his share in the up-keep and development of the community. He ought to be forced to do something that would leave a good impression and have a good effect upon his fellow, upon the material interests of the community. He would, in that way, be a force for good, thus exemplifying the highest type of good citizenship—something every person in every community should seek to be. It can't be done by legislation, but it can be brought about by individual precept. That much every man, every woman, owes to the country in which they live, to every community in which they are listed as residents.—Wapakoneta, (Ohio) News.

The men who travel say they find a other town in Eastern North Carolina where there is such building going on as in Greenville.

After holding office for sixteen years Miss Tyler yesterday received a message from the postal authorities stating that she would have to her successor, B. A. Williams. Miss Tyler's protest was too late as the commission had been given to Mr. Williams in due course.

Making practical application of his views as to the importance of the Bible as a book and a rule of life Secretary Daniels asked, "What does the Courtland office over to her successor, B. A. SECRETARY OF NAVY ADDRESSES BIBLE SOCIETY

Book of Books Responsible For Virginia's Number of Great Men SAYS SEC. JOSEPHUS DANIELS

Before Richmond Audience. Puritan New England No More God-Fearing than Virginia and Carolina Declares Speaker.

RICHMOND, April 5.—Virginia's devotion to the Bible has made the Old Dominion a cradle of liberty and the "home of more illustrious men than any like body on land in the New World," Secretary Daniels declared here today addressing the Centennial of the Virginia Bible Society.

"In cottage and in colonial halls," said the Secretary, "the Bible was the book and gave an insight as to how character was made in old Virginia, and this was the source and inspiration of the staying and sturdy qualities that has enabled Virginia to give so many useful lives to the country."

Mr. Daniels said the world has held an incorrect impression of the spirit of the South prior to the Civil War, and that there "resists the fiction that Puritan New England was more God-fearing and more scrupulous and old-fashioned in the observance of the Sabbath than the people of Virginia and North Carolina."

The current slogan "back to the farm," said the Secretary, should have its counterpart in "back to the Bible," in present day religious life. But he expressed the conviction that James Bryce was mistaken when he said that knowledge of the Bible is declining among all classes in the United States.

Bible Reading Going Out. "We are told," said Secretary Daniels, "that the Bible is not read as much in the home as formerly because the Sunday school has usurped the place of the home. Parents ought never to permit even the church to come between the home and religious instruction, but it is true that the Sunday school has interposed and lessened knowledge of the Bible."

Life is a puzzle after all. It is only a matter of a few years and then. Every life is made up of three periods. The past, the present and the future. The past—valuable for its fullness which are warning beacons and the ant saloon forces. Springfield, De. Twenty four hours of possibility. How few of us realize the possibility of the present. A busy business man stopped in my office the other day. We chatted a while of business conditions, his business. When he came in his salutation was "Busy? Busy? Busy? Well that is a fact and it is time for every man to be busy. These are busy times. The New Year is here. It means much another year of possible success. It must be a better year than nineteen thirteen—must be. Too many neglected moments in nineteen thirteen. Too many misused opportunities—rather unused opportunities. But to return to my interlocutor. He said something and it struck me. It was this. I have the idea that the time for a man to grasp an opportunity is just as it comes to him—just before it reaches him. Now, that is a good way of putting it. It is too late to do anything when the opportunity has passed. Man can't get to good a grasp on it as when he faces it. Nineteen fourteen make it great and still greater because of the splendid use of each day.

The Rambler

On the train the other day two met and enjoyed a conversation quite as while the train was moving. The other man, "I told you you were in notice that you were in the army."

"Well, well, what were you captain colonel, or what?" "Now to tell you the straight truth, I was a private—only a private."

"Well, give me your hand, you are the first man I have met in six months who was a private in the army."

Almost every town in the Old North state has an organization of a boosting nature and this is certainly a good idea. In addition, there should be in every town a strong "town spirit."

Traveling around it is noticeable that this spirit is lacking in many communities. I dropped into a business establishment in one of the larger places one day. I was a stranger—it was my first visit to that city and this was my first acquaintance. After I had introduced myself, I remarked "You have a pretty town here. I was surprised at the reply. This is the worst town you ever saw—not worth a cent and worth as hard as you please you cannot make anything out of it."

I was disposed to give him a little lesson in boosting and I did it. Such a pity that every man could see something worth while in his own home town and push it. I think that a man who cannot find something worth praising in his town should move and move quick. Like the Charlotte spirit. Every fellow pulling for the town.

Very few people know anything about the daily grind of a newspaper office. Still less of them know anything of the severe strain on the average daily newspaper and hardly one man in a thousand who picks up his morning paper realizes the effort and expense connected with even a fairly good daily newspaper. Once in a while I hear men finding fault with the paper—its policy or its appearance or its news columns. I wish when I happen to hear those fault finders that they could just be on the inside a little while some night—long about midnight—the A. P. news clipping it off—the specials dropping in one by one—copy everywhere—not a question of what not print or of what to print but rather a question of getting it all in, if possible. Then I have wanted to get those same fellows up against the proposition in the business office. Making both ends meet much less a dividend. By the way, just happened to think, the Observer did not suggest this paragraph. I am simply contemplative tonight.

says Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky., in writing of her experience with Cardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Before I began to use Cardui, my back and head would hurt so bad, I thought the pain would kill me. I was hardly able to do any of my housework. After taking three bottles of Cardui, I began to feel like a new woman. I soon gained 35 pounds, and now, I do all my housework, as well as run a big water mill. I wish every suffering woman would give

by The J. I. Case Tobacco Transplanter.

Great saving in time and labor, increase in yield per acre. Set your plants when ready-don't wait for rain. Each plant watered at the roots, covered with dry earth-no bakin'. Every feature necessary for every purpose, desired. Come and see these machines before you buy, built right, works right, wears right, and prices right. "The Case" is best made.

Grimesland, N. C., Feb. 13, 1914.
Messrs. Hart & Hadley,
Greenville, N. C.,
Gentlemen:
In regard to the J. I. Case Tobacco Transplanter will say that I am well pleased with it. I couldn't ask for one to work any better and it was just as you represented it to be. It worked to perfection and I am satisfied it save me several hundred dollars.
I set my entire crop of seven acres with it and it was dry weather when I set it. I used six barrels of water first setting. I set some parts of per acre and got a perfect stand the rows all through my patch by hand just to try it and I found that what I set with the Transplanter grew better the season through. I also set some for several of my neighbors and they say that theirs grew better than that they set by hand, and they are begging me to set theirs for them the coming season. I also have friends at a distance of fifteen miles from me who want me to set their crop for them.
I can't say too much for your machine and wouldn't be without one for Five Hundred Dollars and as to your services, I couldn't ask for better.
Yours truly,
JESSE. H. SMITH.

Local Buggy Factory Enjoying Rapid Growth

The John Flanagan Buggy Company Passing Its 48th Successful Year

THE PAST AND THE FUTURE

Every Year They Realize Large Increase in Business and Continuous Improvements are Made to Meet Demands for their Products.

When the late Mr. John Flanagan moved to Greenville 48 years ago and established a buggy factory and repair shop here, wise and good man that he was he perhaps never dreamed that he was laying the foundation for the immense plant that today bears his honored name and keeps his memory fresh with those who knew him. He began business in a small way in a small frame building, he put the stamp of honesty on every piece of work he turned out and thus paved the way to a prosperous business career. He detested sham in any form and never let a shoddy job go out of his shop. When he took a man's dollar, he gave in return for it a dollar's value in material and workmanship. Patrons were not slow to learn this and whenever the name John Flanagan was seen on buggy that vehicle was recognized as one of merit.

Year by year the business grew and from time to time more space had to be added to meet the demands upon the plant which had won a reputation even into neighboring states. The plant grew until it covered a large part of the lot on Cotanch street opposite Hotel Macan.

After many years of successful business, its founder passed away and his son, Mr. E. G. Flanagan, succeeded him at the head of the enterprise. He organized a company for carrying on the business on a still larger scale, and it grew to such a degree that they found it impossible to meet the demands for their products without further enlargement. This being the case the company began negotiations for the purchase of adjoining property, but not being able to secure it, the lot on

Eleven Battleships and 15,000 Men Are Sent to The Mexican Coast

Up to tonight Gen. Huerta had not made satisfactory response to that demand.

All Depend on Huerta.
"Future developments depend on Huerta himself," was the way a high administration official close to the President summarized the situation.

The decision to send the fleet was reached after the President and Secretary Bryan had conferred for an hour with John Lind, personal representative of the President in Mexico and after a two hour cabinet meeting, during which dispatches from Charge O'Shaughnessy revealed that the Huerta government disputed the right of American bluejackets to be ashore at Tampico, and contended that its recent public statement of apology was ample.

Immediately after the cabinet meeting adjourned Secretary Daniels issued his order to the Atlantic fleet, and wireless messages flashed up and down the Atlantic coast to put the fleet under steam for Tampico.

It will be the largest fighting force the American government has assembled for possible action since the Spanish American war. Eleven great battleships with auxiliaries carrying in all about 15,000 men will comprise the force off Tampico. Every where at the White House the State Department and the Navy Department, the hope was expressed that the dispatch of the fleet would lead to serious consequences, and that there was a confident prediction among administration officials that Gen. Huerta would satisfy the American demand and close the incident. Officials were careful to point out that negotiations with the Huerta government had not ended, and that the way was still open to Gen. Huerta to make amends.

Admiral Badger Gets Instructions.
Rear Admiral Badger's force at Tampico, not including vessels held in readiness but not actually ordered to the scene, will comprise eleven great battleships, with many cruisers and auxiliaries carrying in all about 15,000 men. A statement issued by the Navy Department tonight said:
Eleven Great Battleships.
"The complements of the seven battleships of the Atlantic fleet which will proceed to Tampico will total about 4,200 men. There will be 2,500 marines available at Tampico as a landing force, fully equipped to field service. There will be eleven battleships in Mexican waters, with total complement of nearly ten thousand men."

Ucle Sam Says Federals Must Salute Stars and Stripes DEMANDS SOME SATISFACTION

Will Force a Public Salute From the Huerta Government as Apology for the Arrest of American Bluejackets at Tampico.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—President Wilson today ordered virtually the entire Atlantic fleet to Mexican waters to force a public salute to the Stars and Stripes from the Huerta government as an apology for the arrest of American bluejackets at Tampico last Thursday.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14.—No ultimatum has been issued, that is, no specified time has been set within which the Huerta government must comply, but the naval demonstration has been ordered as a concrete evidence of the fixed determination of the United States to back up Rear Admiral Mayo's demand for a salute
