Italy seems to be getting her share of troubles with our going into the war. It is just recovering from the earthquake and is now threatened with a serious flood.

England and Germany seem to be trying to cut off each other's food supply. Both of them claim the other has violated the rules of war in various ways and thereby put itself out from under the protection of such laws.

The Ford automobile people are preparing to erect a plant at Charlotte for assembling their cars which are sold in this state. The erection of this plant will mean quite an addition to the industries of Charlotte and will mean much for the whole state.

According to recently published figures there are thirty-three counties in this state in which no person pays an income tax, or to state it in another way no person in these thirty-three counties has a gross income of more than twelve hundred and fifty dollars a year.

The New Letter publishes in its last issue a list of moonlight schools in this state. This list shows that 13 counties have one or more schools and that the total number of schools is 47. This is a splendid showing for such a recently inaugurated movement and if the movement continues to grow it will become an important factor in reducing the per cent of illiteracy in this state.

Garzanti is again in the limelight of publicity. He has ordered one foreign legionnaire to leave Mexico and has now issued an order authorizing the military to take possession of the property of the said legionnaire in Vera Cruz. The said legionnaire however is a very reliable at present because Garzanti has such a good hold on the press that little news gets out. There seems to be a long way off from this.

It is said the Chinese people who have been noted for their "back to the farm" movement, which has already worked wonders with that country. This movement was brought about by the policy of the new government of this great nation. This country needs a "back to the farm" movement, too, one that means something.

Kinston is now discussing the advisability of moving the colored school which is located in the vice district to a better location. In writing about this matter a color says it would be better to close up the segregated district than to move the school. This seems to be the right idea and is what should be done. Many people are inclined to look upon a segregated district as a necessary evil and laboring under this misapprehension they allow them in many cities. Greenville is not ahead of other cities in this respect and it is a source of much wonder as to why such a blot on an otherwise fair city is allowed. Public sentiment against such a practice would mean its death in short order and we would like to see such a move started in Greenville.

ONLY THE CAPTAIN'S BOOTS

Household's Advance on Supposed Burglar Came to an End in Fit of Laughter.

The rambling old house where Captain Fields and his unmarried daughter, Martha, lived stood back from the road half a mile, fenced on every side by the captain's broad acres. It happened one morning in early spring when the captain had marshaled all available help from the neighborhood and had two hired men besides to help get the corn ground ready and the seed planted early.

Martha had been busy since morning arranging for a big dinner in the old southern fashion. About ten o'clock she left the dinner cooking on the big range and went upstairs to make the beds, but came flying down with pallid face and called to state whispers to the girl, "Go ring the big dinner bell for the men. There is a burglar upstairs under daddy's bed. Be quick and then come to me."

The girl did as she was bidden and Martha stood at the exit to the stairway, ready to defend with her life if need be, but prevent his escape she must.

The men from the fields came mounted on the horses with harness flinging, supposing that the house must be on fire or some such dire disaster threatened. When told that a man was under the bed upstairs they determined to make short work of him and marched up, throwing missiles and shouting, "Come out, but the burglar refused to endue.

Then some one moved the comforter back and exposed a pair of the captain's Sunday boots—Chicago Tribune.

A case which has attracted statewide interest is now before the Supreme Court. This is the case of Goldsboro in which Judge Peebles found the two editors of the Goldsboro paper guilty of contempt and imposed a heavy fine on them. They appealed to a higher court and the case is now up for trial. The outcome of this case has been looked forward to with a great deal of interest by the people of the state. An imposing array of counsel has been retained by both parties and the case will be hotly contested to the end.

JUST A RACIAL PECULIARITY

Theory That Left-Handed People Are Mentally Inferior Has Been Proved to Be Wrong.

For ages the belief has prevailed that left-handed persons are physically and mentally inferior. This belief has persisted in face of the fact that not a few great men, including among others Leonardo da Vinci, have been left-handed.

German scientists, however, declare there is absolutely no evidence to support the theory that some racial or mental or physical defects. It is a racial or family peculiarity which is found among animals as well as human beings.

Left-handedness is often left-handedness, the entire side of the body showing evidences of a greater development on that side. In the brains the preponderance of one or the other half of the body may vary according to race. Thus the gibbon and orang-outang are as a rule right-handed; the gorilla and chimpanzee left-handed.

In the German army seven recruits in every hundred are left-handed; among the school children the percentage is slightly higher. These figures, however, are very deceptive, for many persons who are born left-handed later become right-handed. The number so born in Germany is estimated at 25 per cent.

Tonic of the Open Air

There is no better, more invigorating tonic to the man who is compelled to labor within doors than sunlight and the open air. This is particularly true of the warm hills and the wooded districts of the country where the air, wafted across great open stretches, is particularly pure and bracing.

Therefore, the men who labor with brain or hands, or both, in cities, should avail themselves of every opportunity to tie themselves to the country, or if they cannot do that, to the breezy pines of the city where the air is better than alone the crowded thoroughfares and where the sunshine mingles with fewer obstructions.

Most men, these days, when competition in all lines of industry and trade is keen, daily are living a strenuous life, putting forth their best energy, straining such talent as they possess to accomplish results. When they feel the strain is too great and near the breaking point, they should seek the tonic which instinct prescribes.

Scene Before the Mirror

What these jungle ladies lack in clothing they make up in hair adornment. Some styles are pleasing while others are very grotesque. Their hair combs are made of a very tough wood, and they need to be tough, for one of the feminine customs is to put gum all through their hair to keep it in place. A very strong comb is needed to get it apart, but the women contrive somehow to do it; and as time is not money in Africa, they are never in a hurry. One is not surprised to learn that sometimes it takes a woman a week to have her hair properly arranged.—The Christian Herald.

Classifying the Owl

A lady recently selecting a hat at a milliner's, asked cautiously: "Is there anything about these feathers that might bring me into trouble with the Bird Protection Society?"

"Oh, no, madam," said the milliner. "But did they not belong to some bird?" persisted the lady.

"Well, madam," returned the milliner, pleasantly, "these feathers are feathers of a hawk; and the hawk, madam, seems as 'ow' food he is of mice, is more of a cat than a bird."

Famous Contralto With Boston English Opera Company Gives Warning to Vocal Students

There are few people in the country today more qualified from a standpoint of experience to advise ambitious vocal students, particularly with operatic aspirations, than Elaine De Sellem, the leading contralto of The Boston English Opera Company which comes to White's Theatre Wednesday evening February 17th, in a magnificent production of Verdi's famous opera "Il Trovatore." Miss De Sellem says: "The pity of it. I am sure that I have said with excruciating in the vocal habitat; but it is the truth nevertheless. If you don't believe it, listen at some of the vocal studio doors and hear some of the wailing that is supposed to eventuate in vocal supremacy, but which is certain to eventuate in financial and vocal disaster. I can only add in the words of the poet—"pity tis—tis true."

NEGRO KILLED BY TRAIN

Asleep Near Track When Train Strikes His Head.

Early Sunday morning Norfolk Southern train No. 4 struck and killed a negro man, Moses Williams, whose home is thought to be in Wilson. It is not known exactly how the accident happened. From the position of the body and the wound on the negro it is believed he was lying or sitting on the end of the cross ties, probably drunk and asleep when the train came by and struck him as he raised up to get out of the way. The train was stopped as soon as the accident was discovered and held until a doctor had been summoned. The train was allowed to proceed after a short investigation and finding that the negro was dead.

Yesterday the coroner, Dr. J. C. Greene, held an inquest over the body and after a full investigation which was concluded this morning decided that the killing was accidental.

FOUR YEARS A FUGITIVE DYNAMITER IS ARRESTED
New York, Feb. 15—Matthew A. Schmidt, 24 years old, was arrested here tonight as a fugitive from justice on an indictment found in Los Angeles in October, 1910, charging him with having been implicated in dynamiting the Los Angeles Times building. The arrest was made on Upper Broadway where detectives had traced him after a search of four years.
Detective William J. Burns who accompanied the officer making the arrest, said the indictment charges that Schmidt was one of several men who went with J. B. McNamara to the works of the Giant Powder Company, in California and purchased 1,000 pounds of dynamite.
Schmidt was held without bail until February 24th to await extradition.
When arraigned before Magistrate McQuade the prisoner said he was a mechanic 24 years old but refused to answer the other customary questions. After the arraignment, however, the magistrate said the man had confessed to him in his chambers that he was Matthew A. Schmidt as alleged in the Los Angeles indictment.

WIFE'S DREAM A LUCKY ONE
English "Coster" Accepted Omen and Was Well Rewarded for His, to Him, Daring Venture.
On Sunday morning before the Derby of 1873 a coster named Timson was awakened by his wife insisting out loudly in her sleep. "The boy in yellow wins the day—an old-time popular song. Timson gave Sal a thump and told her to shut up, and, both being now wide awake, asked what all the row meant.
"I dreamt I was on Espoon Downs," she said, "and saw a jockey in yellow pass all the others, while the crowd shouted. The boy in yellow wins the day." If there's a jockey in yellow on Derby day, Ned, I'd put a bit on him if I was you."
Ned again advised her to keep a stiff tongue, but the dream had its effect on him. On the great day he saw during the preliminary center that the jockey riding Doncaster was "yellow." Mr. Merry's colors he put all the money he had (39 shillings) on the "yellow boy," and pocketed 60 golden sovereigns for his pluck.
It was the making of him. He bought a new horse and cart and christened the former Yellow Boy, while Sal had reason to exult about her dream.—London Tri-Hits.

DOG SAVED LIFE OF FAMILY.
Extraordinary sally on the part of a canal-bait dog saved the lives of a family of three on board at midnight. They were asleep in their cabin bunks on a large lying off of Wheelock, near Sandhach, in Cheshire, England, when the man in charge of the boat, John Meredith, was awakened by the animal springing on the bed and barking. Meredith still in a somnolent state, knocked the animal off, but in doing so discovered there was a big rush of water, and that the boat was fast sinking. The terrified man aroused his wife and child, and the three only just managed to scramble from the cabin and gain the embarkment when the boat sank, Meredith being compelled to wade through water which was up to his waist, with the child in his arms. It is believed that the foundering was due to a heavy load of iron bars, which caused a portion of the bottom of the barge to give way. Hundreds of persons visited the spot to see the bed clothing, pots, pans, and other domestic articles floating on the water. Later the boat was raised after her cargo had been removed.

ACCOUNTED FOR BAD LUCK.
When you see the new moon for the first time they say you should turn the money in your pockets. But it is no good doing so if you see it through glass.
This means a month of bad luck for you, and an instance of this belief was given the other day, when a burglar who appeared before the bench attributed his capture to the fact that he had caught a glimpse of the new moon through the window of the shop where he was working. "I'm glad you got it," he said.
Curiously enough, he got "a month," in a certain town the local forecast of the weather was so often wrong that his predictions became a standing joke, to his no small annoyance, for he was very sensitive. At length, in despair of living down his reputation, he asked headquarters to transfer him to another station.
A brief correspondence ensued.
"Why," asked headquarters, "do you wish to be transferred?"
"Because," the forecaster promptly replied, "the climate doesn't agree with me."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

THEY TOBACCO AND RUMINATE AND YOU WILL MAKE A GOOD SENATOR
One of America's brainiest men, formerly president of one of the great universities, speaking at Columbia University, said that senators from tobacco chewing sections were clearer thinkers than those from localities where tobacco chewing is less general. He said:
"I want to suggest that chewing tobacco leads to ruminative habits. If a man stops long enough between sentences to chew, he is more likely to have opinions that are of weight than if he does not."
This suggestion has been carried out in a series of interesting advertisements of Picnic Twist Chewing Tobacco that is now appearing in the newspapers of this section.

AYDEN NEWS
What is Seen and Heard as the Wheel Turns This Way.
Cupid was whirling his darts around Ayden Saturday night and Mr. Buck Easterlin and Miss Mary Vann enjoyed and made their way to the home of Squire Joe S. Pittman in Swift Creek where the word was said that made two hearts beat as one.
Just received a ton of dynamite, 40 and 60 per cent, get you a case and wood stamps, dig ditches and reset trees. J. R. Smith & Bro.
Mr. Biggs T. Cannon tells us he made a haul at his sea beach last week which netted him 60 pounds of fish. We predict for the fishermen to make money this season as there has been so much rain which raised the streams and gave the smaller fishery a better chance.
Mrs. George James and Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Edwards spent Sunday evening visiting the family of Mr. W. E. Hooks.
The man who refused to work last week on account of the weather should be tried for contempt after having so much bad weather.
The many friends of Mr. W. P. Hart will rejoice to know that he has recovered so as to be able to leave his bed and his nurse has been dismissed.
Rev. Mr. Griffith held service at St. Johns last Sunday evening, several from Ayden attended.
It was our pleasure a few days ago to visit the site of Mr. Joseph Quinerly and see a herd of fine steers apparently ready for the market, and fine ones they were. It is a real pleasure to ride through Swift Creek Township and talk to the farmers and see their live stock. We see from the Free Press that there will be a fair in Kinston next year, or this fall, and we are beginning to bet on Swift Creek in Pitt County carrying off some blue ribbon.
Mr. B. T. Smith of Winterville spent Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. T. Eugene Cannon.
We were glad to shake the hand of Mr. W. S. Moye on our streets last week. He lives near Greenville but says he likes dearly to come to Ayden and renew old acquaintance and while here purchased two cases of dynamite, said he had a lot of large stamps in his field body in his way and wanted to get rid of them. B. T. has made a success farming and it is a treat to hear him talk.
Mr. W. Almon Gleason was telling on the streets Monday of a Reddy mole trap that he had caught 87 moles with it, and at times would catch as high as four before he moved it. They are sure destructive on tobacco buds.
Bainbridge a Candidate
Raleigh, Feb. 16—Louis Goo, Hiram Bainbridge will make the gubernatorial race and no hazard is taken in this unqualified announcement.
The name has been in many mouths for a year and more. The president of the Senate hasn't dictated any statement, but Rocky Mount seems so to speak, are authority for it and they are from his home. And they agreed that the fight is now between Attorney General Bickett and their fellow citizen of Nash.
The lieutenant governor has no campaign points. He is a big farmer, really a farmer who has made a big success of digging in the ground. He is one of the largest cotton growers in the east and as a manufacturer has made an independent fortune. He owns the Rocky Mount cotton oil mills that are not in the trust and has had no alliance with the great organizations.

WOULD BAN WAR TOYS
They Teach Children the Mutual Spirit Mrs. C. P. Gillman Says.
Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gillman was the speaker at a Cooper Union meeting on "The Next Step." In the normal advancement of the world, Mrs. Gillman said, the next step is world union.
"What is noble in hundreds of thousands killing each other in a war?" she asked. Raleigh has not prevented war. Religion is new, but the passion of patriotism is old.
"We must stop giving our children war toys and telling them war stories. The repetition of the great crimes and robberies of history must end if we are to have an enlightened race. They keep up the war spirit in children. I say it ruthlessly deteriorates a child to teach him these follies.—New York Sun.

JILL THE HUGGER TERRIFIES
Men of Pennsylvania Town in Panic Over "Ghost's" Embraces.
In the village, which is back of Villanova is being terrorized by what is called a "Jill the Hugger" or a man dressed in women's clothes, who has chased several men late at night.
The Radnor township police are investigating statements of William Wilson, James Whitman, and Samuel Miller, all of whom, who declared the woman or whatever it was, had chased them. They are working on the theory that the woman may be demerol and have wandered away from an insane asylum or sanitarium.
The story of the three men and other residents of the vicinity parallels one about the same last year of the Ithan ghost, a phenomenon that worried the hamlet for some time.
At any time the "Jill the Hugger" can run, and some who have met "her" have been hard put to it to elude the creature.—Ithan (Pa.) Dispatch.

Puzzled by the Teacher
Youngster Couldn't See Reason Why She Should Ask Him for the Location of Her Room.
A teacher in an uptown school came downstairs from her room and discovered, just as she reached the front steps, that she had forgotten her rubbers.
The youngster was shy, and she turned back to get the forgotten footwear. As she reached the foot of the stairway she noticed a boy coming down. She recognized him as one of the backward pupils who receive special attention in a class by themselves. She decided to ask him to get the rubbers.
"Charlie," she called, "do you know where my room is?"
"No, I don't know," he mumbled. Then he turned round and ran up the stairs. He didn't stop running until he entered the schoolroom and confronted his teacher.
"Please, teacher," he gasped, "something's wrong with my room. I don't know where it is."
"What do you mean, Charlie?"
"Please, teacher, the don't know where her room is!"
"What makes you think she doesn't know, Charlie?"
"She asked me to get a letter like that," said the boy. "I never in my life have shot a bird that I hadn't my right to, never except once, and that was a rabbit what I chimped over the head with a stick!"
"The Making of a Hero.
A seasoned old "sail" was a devoted admirer of a young midshipman who served on the same warship, says the London Citizen. An accident occurred—a man overboard and a gallant rescue by one of the lieutenants, which brought a handsome letter of commendation from the admiral.
"It's a nice thing to get a letter like that," said the old tar to his young friend. "You ought to have one."
"Well, I'll have to wait my chance," said the midshipman.
"No, you needn't wait," said the other. "I'll drop from the rigging, and you jump in and rescue me."
"But I can't swim," was the reply.
"Never you mind," said the veteran. "I'll hold you up till the boat comes."

ACCOUNTS FOR OLD LEGEND
Simple Explanation of the Age-Old Myth That Surrounds the Golden Fleece.
In the legend of the Golden Fleece lies hidden the record of an ancient method of the collection of gold. The north coast of Asia Minor produced large quantities of the precious metals, as well as copper and iron. Gold was found in the gravel, as often happens still in streams draining from copper regions. The gold in copper ores, originally containing insignificant amounts of the precious metal, accumulates in the course of ages, and sometimes forms pieces of astonishing richness.
The ancient Tibareni washed the gold-bearing gravel, first by booming, which collected the gold into relatively small amounts of sand. This was then concentrated and washed through sluices having the bottoms lined with sheepskins. The gold would sink into the wool, while the sand would be washed away in the swift current.
The slits were removed from the sluices, the coarsest gold shaken out, and the fleeces, still glittering with the yellow metal, were hung upon a wattle race of misters hung golden fleeces upon the trees in the grove of Ares.
After so many millenniums the metalliferous country of Tibar-Cain is once more coming into prominence. The natives still call the high-grade copper ore and break it into small pieces, which they burn and wash with water, to matter; they still work the matts into forlike furnaces to black copper, which they ship to Alexandretta and to Exine ports. They still make the famous carbonyl iron that was celebrated as Damascus steel because it was distributed through this mart to the rest of the world after receiving a Polish by local Damascus workmen.
The ancient method, that gives a hint of the approved practice of the father of metallurgy, will soon become wholly extinct, for the modern miner is studying the disseminated copper ores of the Black Sea coast, and threatening to rekindle on a magnificent scale the smouldering fires of Tibar-Cain.—Argonaut.
