members of the legislature who are now acting in the capacity of attorneys for railroads and similar corporations.

It is undeniably true that a vast amount of evil lobbying has been done in State Legislatures though this employment of former legislators enjoying privileges which gave singular opportunity for secret work in the direction of influencing legislation. The unceasing growth of this practice justifies the action now taken in Illinois.

Former legislators from the privileges otherwise rightfully granted have themselves to thank for the fact. They have compelled a recognition of themselves as lobby lists.
