TUESDAY, JULY 9, 1901.

The stock brokers and banks in the north that have been breaking during the last few days do not indicate that the wave of prosperity over the country is so large as it has been pictured.

The fact that a negro prisoner who was hired out to a farmer and of his own accord came back to jail, saying he had rather stay in jail than to work, shows the good the whipping post could accomplish.

The hot wave is bad enough on us here, but still we have much to be thankful for. Just think of the suffering in the great cities with prostrations and deaths by the hundreds. In New York city alone on Tuesday 500 people were overcome by the heat and 148 of them died. In other places it was as bad.

Yet People Live!

Almost the greatest of human mysteries is that anybody should be able to live. It would be an easy matter to prove by an arithmetical process that everybody should be dead. Not only are people alive but their number increases at such a rate that in three hundred and fifty years (according to the statistician) the world will be overpopulated. The army of microscopists who go about scraping the surfaces of things in their mad hunt for microbes report that the telephone as well as the street car strap and everything else which men handle is the lair of microbes, among which may be the germs of fatal disease. They have induced the churches to abandon the communion cup in favor of individual cups, not for the sake of cleanliness but to prevent the distribution of bacteria. A Boston man who is regarded by his neighbors as sane has been impressed by the statement that whenever a consumptive sneezes the air is filled with the microbes of tuberculosis, and he has urged the use of an anti-germ muffle. A Chicago bacteriologist is reported to have had all his teeth drawn because he considered it impossible in any other way to destroy the bacilli which lodge in the mouth. Another hygienic person who believes that the air is crowded with disease microbes has been consistent enough to live in a germ-proof dwelling.

The active promoter of disease being eager to attack men and women, it is clear that it is fatal to the law of averages for any large number of persons to be alive. The most common precautions against disease are neglected, as could go all the sanitarians. It is in spite of the rules of mathematics that each census shows a great increase in the population. It is up to the sanitarians and bacteriologists to explain why we are not all dead instead. The sanitarians affirm that a house in which there is no escape of death seeds is an exception, while nearly all public buildings into which people are crowded are said to be without an adequate system of ventilation. The crimes against the laws of personal hygiene are incalculable. It is not to be supposed that disease germs are of modern origin, and it must be admitted that in sanitary science and protective medicine generally there has been great progress. The result is a lowering of the death rate in all civilized countries. Yet this does not explain how so many of our forefathers were able to live long enough to rear large families. The fact seems to be that men are too prone to succumb as they are to conditions which the sanitarians regard as deadly.—Philadelphia Record.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Washington correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5th. Senator Tillman passed through Washington this week, and he expressed some vigorous political opinions. For instance, he said: It is stupid to talk about the Democratic party being the enemy of the business interests. We do not have the free coinage of silver, but events have proven that our contention as to the need of more money was correct. The prosperity which the country has experienced is simply due to the large increase in the supply of gold through new discoveries. We are riding now on the crest of the wave, but it will not be long before we get into the trough. Hard times will come, and then what are the Republicans to do. They have enacted a high tariff and have given us a gold standard and when they find that neither of these will avoid disaster, they will seek to find some other remedy, the result of which will be to help the rich without regard to the poor. Of the future Democratic policy, Mr. Tillman said: "We will be against a carpet-bag government for the Philippines, because we know the evils which such government brings in its train. I do not know that the money question will figure in the next campaign, but I do know that there will be plenty of vulnerable spots in the Republican armor which we can attack." Of the probable Democratic candidate Senator Tillman said: "I do not yet see a candidate in sight, but I for one, will not favor the nomination of any one who has not been identified with the party during the past four years. I do not see how it is possible for so-called Democrats to expect the Democratic party to endorse in 1901 the principles to which the Republicans are now wedded, and yet they are so openly discussing such a proposition. They expect the Democrats to move side by side with the Republicans and then what. That is not my way of making a fight."

Col. R. M. Johnson, Texas member of the Democratic National Committee, who passed through Washington this week, on his way to New York, said of the political outlook: "The Democratic party is all right, and it has fully recovered from the defeat of 1900. What we want to do to win next year is simply to take advantage of our opportunities. The Republicans seem to be all at sea on the tariff question, and in my opinion the tariff will again come to the front as an issue. But there will be other live issues besides the tariff in the next campaign."

Senator Hanna sent his private secretary to Washington to impress upon the mind of Mr. McKinley the necessity for his presence in the Ohio Republican convention to prevent the present bickering growing into a regular cut throat fight, and the result was that Mr. and Mrs. McKinley left Washington today for Canton.

As Mr. McKinley left Washington today without appointing a new Pension Commissioner, it looks as though he had decided to allow Commissioner Evans to keep that position, notwithstanding the hubbub against him that has been aroused by the skillful agitation of "old soldiers," on the ground that his construction of the law has not given the old soldiers all that was coming to them in the way of pensions. It is hinted that an attempt is to be made to force Mr. McKinley to act by carrying the fight against Evans into Ohio politics.

The Simple Plumbing establishment, at Bangor, Maine, is known all over New England for its systematic and persistent advertising. Mr. S. T. That is more than you can say of any other method." Philadelphia Record.

BLACK JACK ITEMS.

BLACK JACK, N. C., July 5.

On Wednesday evening, July 3rd, about 5 o'clock, the people of our town were surprised to see Mr. Fred Cox and family and Mr. Josh Mills, of Greenville, drive in town, but in short while horses and buggies were coming from every direction bringing quite a number of ladies and gentlemen to what soon showed to be a marriage, for just as the sun was hiding his brilliant face behind the western hills Mr. Leonard Dixon, of this township, led to the Hymenal altar Miss Wessie White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. White, and they were soon made man and wife. J. Marshall Cox, J. P., officiating. The attendants were: Walter Dixon with Miss Annie White, Olin Dixon with Miss Lula Smith, Jodie Dixon with Miss Mary Mills, E. L. Clark with Miss M. Julia Tyson. Miss Mimery Dixon and Lucy White were the flower girls. Immediately after the marriage Mr. Dixon gave an invitation to all the guests to accompany him to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dixon, three miles east of Black Jack, where they held their reception, and a sumptuous supper was served. I like to forget to tell you that Fred Cox and Josh Mills were ushers. I expect Fred and Josh will be the candidates for the next Presidency. They think they can handle the expansion question nicely, because the Black Jackers were so well behaved.

The bride and groom were the recipients of many ornamental and useful presents.

Little Mattie Mills, who has been very sick, is improving.

Miss Mamie Cox is visiting relatives and friends at Black Jack this week.

L. H. White, who has been on the sick for some time, is improving rapidly.

The corpse of Joseph Quinley arrived Wednesday evening from Baltimore where he died from an operation at the hospital, and the funeral was held Thursday at the family burying ground at Quinley.

At New Bern.
The Greenville boys defeated New Bern on their own grounds on the 4th in a score of 21 to 10. Our boys say they were treated white in New Bern, one feature of the entertainment being a moon light excursion the night they got there.

Below is the line up of the Greenville team:

WINTERVILLE DEPARTMENT.

THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., July 6.

On Tuesday night J. Y. Joyner, Professor of English in the State Normal and Industrial College, spoke to the teachers on the subject of English Literature. He urged the importance of first securing a vocabulary. The child must have words to express his thoughts. Great art to store up words to be used for ages. Sit at the feet of nature and learn from one who never makes a mistake. Child uses words often heard so must surround them with the best English. First work is that in state of development. Vocabulary is largely acquired by hearing. Cultivate a literary taste. Literary habits of nearly all are formed before they enter college and those who have a literary taste when they enter college never have. All kinds of literature is to be found and unless care is taken the child will feed on garbage instead of the ambrosial of God.

What is all of this training for? You need to exalt it above materiality. Spirituality is chief fruit of literature—soul fruit, only means develop the spiritual side in the broadest sense.

In English parlance eloquence failed to cause unjust laws to be removed but Chas. Dickens by his masterly word painting in English literature caused a change in the minds of the people and soon the repeal of many unjust laws. Prof. Joyner is giving his life to this work and we are proud to claim him as our own for he belongs to Pitt county.

On Wednesday night W. F. Harding Esq., of Greenville, and a member of the County Board of Education, spoke for us. He expressed surprise at finding such a magnificent school building so well equipped, and was glad to say A. C. Cox was one of the greatest men he ever knew. He thought when the people asked for Summer School here they were undertaking too much, but was glad to find his mistake, and all well cared for. Glad to see the teachers have such an opportunity to receive instruction as they were getting here. Glad to see the dawn of a new era. When knowledge is diffused there will be a great change in the state. Once a contest in the state about appropriations to higher education but now unheard of, but now University is full. Wake Forest put up new buildings and broadens her work. Trinity is the endowed Methodist school in the south, Davidson under new President is taking on new life. Elon, one of our youngest, is rapidly growing and many others are improving. No boy or girl lacks at the doors of the College at Winterville in vain, but the struggle to prepare for entering college. The state opens schools for only a few months in the year. Present State officers are committed to the cause the Governor and legislature are trying to carry out the pledge so that no white boy will be disfranchised in 1905. In the State there are over 600,000 school children, 1,000 are in colleges, 10,000 in academies, 100,000 in public schools and 200,000 in no schools. 2,500 children in Pitt county in no school during the year.

The teachers before me stand as the guards against this. Teaching should be a profession and may be the day soon when it will be recognized as such and the teachers required to inform and equip themselves, then will there dawn a brighter day.

May the progress link by link reach from kindergarten to college. But teachers have not done this duty. We had the committee of the county here on one side and the teachers on the other then I'd go for the committees. Teachers do their duty 100 times better than the committees. 85 of the 86 white schools in Pitt county taught last year for about six months and the average price was $24 per month. Some received $35. So many got about $19. Pays cook more than that, for we can't get a good one for less than $20, all expenses counted. If a teacher is not worth

$2 per day she ought to be sent home. Raise the standard and rid away with 2nd and 3rd grade certificates. Teachers ought to put their best energies of mind and body in the work. If a lawyer fails, his pocket is injured, if the doctor fails physical body is injured, but if the teacher fails an immortal mind is injured and a young life ruined. Teachers should enter profession for life. Lawyers and doctors don't enter for a year or so and the teacher who does, commits a crime against his youths. Tear down old school cabins and build good houses, put a committee to back the work, give good salary, have teachers equipped and trained and parents will point with pride to their schools and then we shall see the pall of ignorance lifted and the sunlight of knowledge shine abroad.

Mr. Harding gave us a speech full of practical thought and we are glad that a man of his ability will neglect his own work to serve the school interests of the Co., as he is so faithfully doing. At the close of Mr. Harding's speech, Sup. Davis stated that Greene Co. had a higher average salary than Pitt and a good grade of work, and he would ask for an increase in salary next Monday, but the truants who were not here would get no certificates unless the Board of Education required it.

Prof. Bagdikian congratulated teachers on having first opportunity in several years of attending an institute. He had been slack on grade as pay was poor, but must raise now. Public school teachers can't go to the teachers assembly or summer schools at colleges but can come here and they are getting exactly the instruction they need. Can a teacher complain of the opportunity to improve? Some already told him they came to stay only half the time, but can't stand to miss any, so will stay all the time. Then after the institute all should follow up with a year's work or they will go down next week. There are 23 more teachers here from Pitt than were examined last year. Our hearts go out in sympathy to Miss Quinley in her sad bereavement. She was called home Monday by telegram announcing the death of her brother. May He who alone is able, comfort her in her sorrow.

Our people here do not hesitate to express their disapproval of the change in the schedule on this road. Every man in the county, and especially the towns on the road ought to unite in a request to the road to give us another change. It is a burning shame that we are to be subjected to such inconveniences for no purpose as far as we can see. Let us have a change and have it quick.

On Thursday night Prof. J. B. Carlyle, of the chair of Latin in Wake Forest College, spoke to the teachers saying in part: He was glad to be here to speak to the teachers of Pitt and Greene. How fitting that the one named in honor of the great English orator, the other the great American warrior should unite and here join heart and hand to equip themselves for better work. I congratulate you on this chance to improve—except tonight.

There have been transitions as the discovery of America, the American revolution and Napoleon upheavals in France, but one of the greatest is on today. Change is written on every phase of life and learning. Great changes have come with steam, electricity, the press, widening of woman's sphere, widening commercial life and breaking down dogmatic opinions of 1,000 years standing. These changes come with learning. Browning and his wife have helped in taste and aspirations. History traces the course of the past and gives hope of sublime achievements and wondrous changes in the future. Wondrous is the new life, filled with push, progress and perseverance. A life where drosses the slightest note of the optist over shows richer prospects and sublimity, and sustains us in defeat, but the pessimist finds no play on the ages.

We are facing a new century, our eyes catch a new sight and our ears hear the bugle call to duty. There is a golden age yet to be developed on all lines. Philo oply will be greater and love have more of life and beauty and richer rewards. What is to be the mission of learning? 1st. Must exalt man above mammon. 2nd. Exalt faith above materialism. 3rd. Teach men higher ideals of civic and social virtues. 4th. Must lighten the burden of toil. 5th. The Spirit is necessary as in days of old and we measure by dollars and they are defiled. Money is magnified and man minimized. The dollar mark silences objections on all lines and unlocks all doors. It is the magnet that attracts all. In this sign we conquer. Behold man in God's image in the dust at the feet of mammon. The teacher must change this—must speak and be heard. History, the record of God's dealing with man poetry, etc., echo again. "A man's man for a' that and a' that." To be a man is greater than to be a millionaire.

Lay broad foundations for faith. To lose faith is to lose power. To live nobly you must believe strongly. Without faith the sublimest truth and facts fall. France trying to destroy this found her people sunk in the dark abyss of despair. Lake ship on the sea without Captain, anchor or rudder, so is man when not stayed in faith in God. Teach men to stand on faith. Have vision to see the present and to interpret minds and appreciate to the present. I bid you teach boys and girls that above all one purpose runs and truth, justice and righteousness rule.

Many problems are all one. Labor and municipal troubles, strikes, race problems, etc., are all one problem. The question is how to instruct the citizen and get him to do it. Intelligence makes the citizen a patriot, he embodies and exemplifies, he is the type of the Divine. But the opposite is weakness and like blind Sampson tears down on his own head.

Men and women of Pitt and Greene, I bid you God speed. You have your sacrifices and toils, but above and crowning all the triumph.

The beautiful language, fine thought and stirring eloquence of Prof. Carlyle charmed the audience. Only one fault found—the split too soon.

Friday night was on a different line now the less pleasant. Short programme was exceedingly rushed, after which 20 gallons of lemonade was brought in and all drank to their comfort. Then began the social feature when man unknown to each other became known and at 10:30 ended the most pleasant feature of the institute. So say we all.

Monday night ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis, of Greenville, will address the Institute, and on Wednesday night there will be an address by Dr. Venable, President of the University.

The old Phillips School, where "one in the city" was named after John L. Phillips, and a monument to a citizen's memory, was much of a little party and had a ball in one of the fishing tents for far away. We attended a prize of $10 for any one who could stay on his feet and stand out for five rounds. It was safe money, although when two or three of the boats came in at the same time we had all we could handle.

One night a fellow as big as the side of a house came along and we smiled trouble. We put him up against the heaviest man in our party, who thought to only tipped the scales at 180 pounds, had two good lands and a head that couldn't but with a pile of bricks, but the stranger was as strong and the end of the fourth round we began to worry about the timer.

The ring was on the stage at the front of the hall, and at the rear of the stage there were two windows. So I say to our man as I spotted his mouth, "Work him over to one of the windows."

"It wasn't no easy job, but he did it before the time was half up and he didn't lack a beat in the head. That's the way we saved our skin."

"That funny part of it is that our champion had to give the best up of the law for some money and we could never see a side of him that wasn't blundered into the kitchen."

A fellow doesn't have to be a swell to swell.

What a wonderful thing it is to be a swell! It is not a matter of the clothes you wear, but of the way you live. It is not a matter of the money you have, but of the way you use it. It is not a matter of the position you hold, but of the way you fill it. It is not a matter of the power you have, but of the way you use it. FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To Prevent Kitchen Odors.
A preventive of the odors that arise from cooking vegetables is a broad crust, very hard and very stale. Drop it into the water just as it strikes a boil and let it steep ten minutes, then strain it out. Most of the oil will come with it. Further, the steamy crust will have kept it from vaporizing. Cauldrons not quite fresh always smell tremendously. The best thing for it is a cold to work with water, boiling hot, before the cold cooking. If the heads are big, cut them into pieces so as to make sure of removing every bit of discolored crust.

Even when summer heat puts an open fireplace out of commission, a quick fire of saw, excelsior, light shavings, even newspapers, will set up a purifying draft and help to free the kitchen of unpleasant odors. Putting an open fireplace, the kitchen ought to have a range hood. There are hoods and hoods, at almost any price you choose, from the big burnished copper affairs in the great hotels to the modest sheet iron contrivance which is an integral part of many among the newest stoves. There is a movable hood, working up and down like the shutter of a roll top desk—that is in theory all a hood ought to be—with something to spare, but in practice has proven much less satisfactory than the stationary one.

No mechanical contrivance can wholly make up for the lack of care and intelligence in the cook notwithstanding it is a fact that a hood well set in a large measure carries away the fumes of food.

Attention is called to the notice of execution sale by O. W. Harrington, Sheriff.

You can take comfort from the thought that there will be ruin and cooler weather after while.

Preferred Jail to Work.

A colored man serving a term in jail was recently hired out to a farmer. He worked along for a day or two and then failed to show up at the end of the term any more. The farmer started an inquiry after him and found that he had come to town and gone back in jail. The negro said he had rather stay in jail than to work.

Four to One.

Mr. W. R. Cunningham served as a special police Thursday. Early in the night he arrested a negro and three other negroes went to make the prisoner away from him. The officer was game and held the crowd at bay, but the prisoner gave him a light cut on the finger and also cut a long gash in his coat. Policeman Dudley hearing the scuffle went to Mr. Cunningham's assistance and the prisoner was landed. The other three ran away.
