Entered at the Post Office at Greenville, N. C., as Second-Class Mail Matter.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1901.

Our friends the advertisers are making heavy demand on THE REFLECTOR. However, we will try to take good care of all who want the paper to read what they have to say.

Judge F. D. Winston, who has presided at this term of court, has made many friends among the people of Greenville and Pitt county. He is a good Judge, and will hold the courts here next year.

The fairs that have so far been held in the State this fall reflect the largest attendance in their history. The State fair at Raleigh will be held next week and a record breaking attendance is also expected there.

President Roosevelt has opened wide his arms and taken the brother in black in his fondest embrace. A few days ago he had Booker Washington to dine with him at the White House. This is a spectacle for the country to behold, and that it is pleasing to most people, especially of the South, goes without saying.

Rev. George Stuart, an Evangelist, recently held a meeting in Elizabeth City. He aroused the churches and the people on the subject of whiskey drinking, with the result that the Board of Aldermen of the city have been petitioned to issue no more whiskey licenses when those now in force expire. There are many more towns in North Carolina that could be benefited by a similar visit from Evangelist Stuart.

"Those who live in glass houses must not throw stones," they say; and it has been observed that a good deal is said about lawlessness in the South by those who are surrounded by a pretty thick atmosphere of it. For instance, it has been given out that New York City has had a grand jury this year which had to investigate thirty-five cases of homicide. Meanwhile some people up in that part of the country talk glibly about lawlessness in the South—Scotland Neck Commonweath.

If the Democrats of North Carolina really believe that United States Senators should be elected by direct vote of the people, as they have asserted in their State platform and have reiterated by a legislative resolution, they should come as near as possible to carrying out this idea, by selecting the candidate for Pritchard's seat by a primary.—Winston Sentinel.

Possibly some who remember the Senatorial primary held in the election last year are not as enthusiastic for such primaries as they once were. THE REFLECTOR believes Senators should be elected by a direct vote of the people, but does not fancy the primary.

LETTER FROM DR. WALLACE.
WASHINGTON LETTER.

Another Former Citizen Writes of Old Times in Greenville.
WACO, TEXAS, Oct. 11, 1901.
EDITOR REFLECTOR:
In your issue of October 8th is a letter from one, T. C. Davis, I desire to know; for he does not seem to live in Greenville, where he lives. I was very interested in regard to what he said of Miss Sallie Ann Jones, and reading a list of her students, all of whom I went to school with to that venerable lady, of to me blessed memory.

I regret that my name was not mentioned among the list, not that it would be any particular honor to me, but about all the common school education I received was at her school—I may say all until I went to Wake Forest College where I graduated in 1850. I most I may say without vanity, that I have been of some consequence in life, and have enjoyed my share of respect by my fellowmen both in North Carolina and in Texas, where I have lived for nearly half a hundred years. Of whatever (little or much) consequence I may have been, I attribute it to the early instruction derived from Miss Jones.

It is therefore that I regret especially, as I was always a favorite with her, both in childhood and manhood, that my name and my brother's, Col. Warren Wallace, were not mentioned in the list of her students. I think I was at school with your correspondent, T. C. Davis. I was with one Davis in the time of the secession, which led, to St. Petersburg. Thus in time the victim of secessionism can go by rail to Europe. The fact that such magnates as Hill and Morgan are interested in the undertaking is the most positive assurance that it will be carried to a successful conclusion.—Kinston Free Press.

Much has been spoken and written from time to time in the way of active debt. Many persons will tell you never to go in at all, while others will tell you that it is all right to go in debt just so you think you can get out at the proper time and in the proper way. Well, perhaps both these positions should be regarded with some caution.

The truth is, going in debt has made some men and ruined some others, and the latter class is by far the larger. It depends upon a man's ability to do certain things as to whether or not he ought to go in debt. It is a good matter for some and a bad matter for others.—Scotland Neck Commonweath.

You are Right.
There are too many folks wanting to teach school who ought to go to school or plowing. The Alabama Enterprise gives this example: "In answer to the question by your county superintendent in a recent public examination of teachers, correct the following sentence and give reason for change: 'The fleet were seen off Hatteras,' a colored applicant wrote out the following as his answer: 'Hatteras's fleet were seen going off, because it had stayed as long as it could.' The poor fellow is now wondering why he failed to get a first grade certificate and was given a third instead.

According to the final census report there are 39,659,212 males in the population of the United States and 37,244,145 females, showing an excess of 1,815,067 males. This disparity is doubtless due to the greater number of male than female immigrants, which disturbs the natural balance of the birth rate. The fact that in this country there are not girls enough to go round is disquieting.

WE DO THE WORK.

And that is the reason the old Greenville Warehouse is selling so much tobacco. We get the highest prices for every pile sold on our floor. The farmers see this, and appreciating the hard work we do for them they bring us their tobacco. We treat all alike, get the best price every time. Bring your next load to the Greenville Warehouse and we will show you the truth of this. We have every accommodation for you and your team.

We are independent of Warehouse Trusts.

W. H. Gilbert Acquired.
In the United States Court at Greensboro yesterday W. H. Gilbert was tried for concealing property to defraud his creditors after having been adjudged a bankrupt, says the Record. It will be remembered that some time ago Mr. Gilbert sold out his stock of goods in Winston and went to California, directly afterwards some of his creditors filed a petition against him in involuntary bankruptcy and in due course of law he was adjudged a bankrupt. A bill of indictment was found against him at Charlotte charging him with knowingly concealing his property from his creditors after he had been adjudged a bankrupt. A requisition was sent to California for him, he was brought back, and tried yesterday for that offense. There was no evidence, the judge said, to go to the jury and directed a verdict of not guilty to be entered.

They Want All Negroes To Vote.
A man sees many strange things when he hasn't got his gun. The late Mr. T. M. Crisp, a well known Republican of that county, was refused a position in the revenue service because he voted for the constitutional amendment. And yet Senator Pritchard comes to Franklin county and urges Democrats to vote the Republican ticket now that they have adopted the constitutional amendment. The day the Republicans win in North Carolina that very day the constitutional amendment and the conditions that prevailed under Russell's administration will be revived.

School Differences.
W. H. Bagdale, County Superintendent, and W. F. Harding, a member of the Board of Education, went to Ayden Friday night to help straighten out a little trouble about the public school there. They adjusted the differences and returned home this morning.

Mr. W. S. Fleming will soon open a grocery store in the Jarvis store lately occupied by the Carrolls.

Robbed the Safe.
A bold robbery was committed at the store of W. H. Laughinghouse & Son some Thursday evening or early in the night. When the junior member of the firm went to put the day's sales in the safe just before closing up he discovered that the cash drawer in the safe had been prized open and between $150 and $200 taken. The safe stands down near the rear of the store and they had been in the habit of leaving it remain unopened during the day, so it is supposed while all were engaged about the front of the store the thief slipped in the back door and committed the robbery. There is no clue to the thief.

THE CENSUS OF 1850.

Statistics of the population of North Carolina in 1850, under anti-bellum conditions—slavery and no large interest but agriculture—before the era of industrial development and when railroad building had not more than fairly begun, ought to be of interest. It was not until 1857 that the North Carolina Railroad was completed from Goldsboro to Charlotte. It was in 1855 that work began on the Western North Carolina Railroad, being completed to Morganton when the civil war broke out. The facts brought out by the figures deserve thoughtful attention. It will be seen that before the war all the towns in the State having more than 1,000 inhabitants with the exception of Charlotte and Salisbury, were in the eastern section. In fact Morganton and Asheville were the only other places in the west having more than 500 inhabitants. Such considerable communities as Greensboro, Winston, Concord, High Point, Gastonia, Statesville and a score of smaller, but thriving towns either had never been heard of or were mere hamlets. These all grew as industrial points, railroads giving them the means of communication which the eastern towns alone had possessed in their waterways. Durham, near the central line, is also a recent growth. All the towns in the piedmont section have grown by the manufacture of cotton, furniture or tobacco, or all of them diffusing their prosperity among the farmers of their surrounding territory. If the piedmont section was a State to itself, it would be apparent that a Southern Massachusetts was rapidly rising, prosperous and intelligent. On the other hand, the relative, and in some cases actual, decline of the eastern towns under the new dispensation, is too obvious to require comment. Within one mere census, if not one fact, Charlotte will be the largest town in the State; although in 1850, it was but one third the size of Wilmington. Following are the thirty-six North Carolina towns reported by the census of 1850, with their population: Asheville, 502; Asheboro, 176; Beaufort, 1,661; Charlotte, 2,500; Elmont, 1,607; Elizabeth City, 2,824; Fayetteville, 4,416; Franklinton, 309; Gaston, 274; Greenville, 117; Hertford, 369; Jackson, 301; Lenoir, 309; Leaksville, 300; Leasburg, 301; Milton, 1,200; Morganton, 558; Newbern, 4,981; Oxford, 1,478; Plymouth, 951; Portsmouth, 519; Raleigh, 4,518; Rockyford, 639; Rutherfordton, 181; Salem, 1,209; Salisbury, 2,000; Salisbury, 2,000; Sialotte, 329; Smithfield, 329; Smithville (Southport), 1,464; Swan Quarter, 787; Swansboro, 1,090; Tarboro, 1,000; Wadesboro, 1,129; Wagram, 1,242; Washington, 2,015; Wilmington, 7,264.

HAVE WALKED 500 MILES.

A man and his wife and two children—bright little tots about five years of age and twins, too—walked into Lexington Monday evening and asked permission of a citizen to spend the night in his barn. They told a rather interesting and pathetic story. The woman was intelligent and almost refined and had evidently seen better days. She was the daughter of a prosperous commercial salesman and often visited relatives in northern cities. While on a visit to New York she met her future husband and married him. They lived happily for several years, but finally met with reverses. In the meantime the father of the woman died and bequeathed to his daughter a little home and a ten acre tract of land in a certain small North Carolina town. When the husband and wife had about come to the end of their resources in New York they thought of the little tract of land in far away North Carolina and determined to make an effort to reach the place and try and eke a living from its scanty resources. They disposed of their few belongings and started on their journey. When they reached Philadelphia they found themselves nearly penniless and many miles from their destination.

They were not daunted however, and just one month and five days and ago they walked out of the city of Philadelphia, and have made the entire journey of nearly five hundred miles on foot. They had just a little money with which to buy food occasionally and have slept where they could find a resting place, at times in open fields, in sheltered barns, upon hay stacks and occasionally some kind hearted soul would take them in and give them a bed for the night.

They are now nearing the end of their journey, their destination being less than a hundred miles from Lexington. It is not their intention to walk into the town which will be their future home, but will stop at a nearby station and purchase tickets "home." It is our opinion they are exactly what they claim to be and we hope they will see with success. Their names are withheld at their request.

The little claps in the party are holding out bravely and all seem to be in good health and spirits. The gentleman to whom they applied for assistance gave them lodging Monday night and they resumed their journey yesterday morning.—Lexington Dispatch.

A Plea for Single Beds.
Two in a bed is the custom of sleeping in the United States, at least, and also in Canada and England. But in Germany and France single beds are the rule. The latter plan is more beautiful and comfortable. It is gradually coming into use in this country. Single beds involve more linen, more work in making beds and more washing, but I never knew a family to return to the old plan after once giving single beds a fair trial. Especially in summer is the single bed to be preferred or even sleeping on the floor, to two in a bed. Many families declare they never knew what comfort was during the hot summer nights when they adopted the single beds. I might add a word of protest against allowing babies or young children to sleep with old people. The latter certainly draw upon the vitality of the former. This is probably true as between any bedfellow one of whom is sickly or less strong than the other. Consumption and other diseases have often been communicated from one bedfellow to another.—Good Housekeeping.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

It is confidently predicted by people who ought to know that the President is most anxious to have Secretary Lodge will kindly tender his resignation, as the portfolio that he desires to offer to Lodge. So confident is the President that Mr. Hay will resign, as soon as the Ishlman treaty is concluded, that he has persuaded Mr. Lodge to make no effort to secure the chairmanship of the Committee on Foreign Relations which, by right of seniority, would go to Senator Cullum and which Senator Lodge would prefer to everything else except the portfolio of State. It is given out that for the present Senator Lodge will retain the Chairmanship of the Philippines Committee.

Secretary Gage seems to be slated for retirement and it is believed that he will hand in his resignation soon after his return from the West. The friends of the new Republican machine in the South are trying to persuade the president that the cause would be greatly advanced by the selection of Senator McLean for a Cabinet position and it is hardly possible that he may be invited to join the presidential advisory board. Although Secretary Hall has taken no definite steps in that direction, his friends think his failing health will compel his retirement and that he will be forced to go abroad for a time.

Representative Overstreet of Indiana was in Washington this week and says that the President ascertained that his financial bill, which will make the silver dollar exchangeable for gold, will receive Executive support. He will therefore reintroduce the bill early this session.

A number of Congressmen who have been in Washington during the Ashley Court of Inquiry, which is still in progress, have expressed the opinion that irrespective of the merits of the case, the removal of the existence of a condition of affairs in the Navy Department which should be investigated and it is considered extremely probable that a Congressional inquiry, which will thoroughly investigate that department, will be next in order. The only thing that will prevent it will be the opinion by the party leaders that such a course in view of the amount of bad government it would be likely to expose, would be self-defeating.

As was to be expected a split has come between the President
