Letter of Acceptance of Democratic Nomination for the Presidency - Able Presentation of the Tariff and Other Leading Questions of the Day.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. - The following is the President's letter of acceptance:

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8th, 1888.
Hon. Patrick A. Collins, and others, Committee, etc.:

It seems perfectly clear that when the government - this instrumentally created and maintained by the people to do their bidding - turns upon them, and through an utter perversion of its powers extorts from their labor and capital tribute largely in excess of the public necessities, the creature has rebelled against the creator, and the masters are robbed by their servants.

The world does not afford a spectacle more sublime than is furnished when millions of free and intelligent American citizens select their Chief Magistrate, and bid one of their number to find the highest earthly honor and the full measure of public duty in a ready submission to their will.

It follows that the candidate for this high office can never forget that when the turmoil and strife which attended the selection of its incumbent shall be heard no more there must be in the quiet calm which follows a complete and solemn self-consecration, by the people's chosen President of every faculty and endeavor to the service of a confiding and generous nation of freemen.

These thoughts are intensified by the light of my experience in the Presidential office, which has soberly impressed me with the severe responsibilities which it imposes, while it has quickened my love for American institutions, and taught me the priceless value of the trust of my countrymen.

It is of the highest importance that those who administer our government should jealously protect and maintain the rights of American citizens at home and abroad, and should strive to achieve for our country its proper place among the nations of the earth; but there is no people whose home interests are so great, and whose numerous objects of domestic concern deserve so much watchfulness and care.

Among these are the regulations of a sound financial system suited to our needs, thus securing an efficient agency of national wealth and general prosperity; the construction and equipment of means of defense to insure our national safety and maintain the honor beneath which such national safety reposes; the protection of our national domain, still stretching beyond the needs of a century's expansion, and its preservation for the settler and pioneer of our marvelous growth; a sensible and sincere recognition of the value of American labor, leading to a scrupulous care and just appreciation of the interest of our workingmen in the limitation and checking of such monopolistic tendencies and schemes as interfere with the advantages and benefits which the people may rightly claim; a generous regard and care for our surviving soldiers and sailors, and for the widows and orphans of such as have died, to the end that while appreciation of their services and sacrifices is quickened, the application of their pension fund to improper cases may be prevented; protection against servile immigration, which injuriously competes with our laboring men in the field of toil, and adds to our population an element ignorant of our institutions and laws, impossible of assimilation with our people and dangerous to our peace and welfare; a strict and steadfast adherence to the principles of civil service reform, and the thorough execution of the laws passed for their enforcement, thus permitting to our people the advantages of business methods in the operation of their government; and guaranty to our colored citizens of their rights and citizenship and their just recognition and encouragement in all things pertaining to that relation; a firm, patient, and humane Indian policy so that in the peaceful relations with the government the civilization of the Indian may be promoted, with resulting quiet and safety to the settlers on our frontiers; and the curtailment of public expense by the introduction of economical methods in every department of the government.

The pledges contained in the platform adopted by the late Convention of the National Democracy lead to the advancement of these objects, and insure good government - the aspiration of every true American citizen, and the motive for every patriotic action and effort.

In the consciousness that much has been done in the direction of good government by the present Administration, and submitting its report to the fair inspection of my countrymen, I endorse the platform thus presented with the determination that, if I am again called to the Chief Magistracy, there shall be a continuance of devoted endeavor to advance the interests of the entire country.

Our scale of federal taxation and its consequences largely engrosses at this time the attention of our citizens, and the people are soberly considering the necessity of measures of relief. Our government in the creation of the people, established to carry out their desires and accomplish their good. It was founded on justice, and was made for a free, intelligent and virtuous people. It is only useful when in their control, and only serves them well when regulated and guided by their constant touch. It is a free government because it guarantees to every American unrestricted personal use and enjoyment of all the reward of his labor, except what may be his fair contribution to the necessary public expenses. Therefore it is not only the right but the duty of a free people, in the enforcement of this guaranty, to insist that such expenses should be strictly limited to actual public needs.

It seems perfectly clear that when the government - this instrumentally created and maintained by the people to do their bidding - turns upon them, and through an utter perversion of its powers extorts from their labor and capital tribute largely in excess of the public necessities, the creature has rebelled against the creator, and the masters are robbed by their servants.

The cost of government must continue to be met by tariff duties, collected at our custom houses upon imported goods and by internal revenue taxes assessed upon spirits, liquors and malt liquors, tobacco and oleomargarine. I suppose it is needless to explain that all these duties and assessments are added to the price of the articles upon which they are levied, and thus become a tax upon all those who buy these articles for use and consumption. I suppose, too, it is well understood that the effect of this tariff (taxation) is not limited to the consumers of imported articles, but that the duties imposed upon such articles permit a corresponding increase in price to be laid upon domestic productions of the same kind; which increase, paid by all our people as consumers of home productions and entering every American home, constitutes a form of taxation as certain and inevitable as though the amount was annually paid into the hands of the tax-gatherer.

These results are inseparable from the plan we have adopted for the collection of our revenue by tariff duties. They are not mentioned to discredit the system, but by way of preface to the statement that every million of dollars collected at our custom houses for duties upon imported articles, and paid into the public treasury, represent many millions more which, though never reaching the national treasury, are paid by our citizens as the increased cost of domestic productions resulting from our tariff laws.

In these circumstances, and in view of this necessary effect of the operation of our plan for raising revenue, the absolute duty of limiting the rate of tariff charges to the necessities of a frugal and economical administration of the government seems to be perfectly plain.

The continuance, upon the pretext of meeting public expenditures, of such a scale of tariff taxation as draws from the substance of the people a sum largely in excess of the public needs, is surely something which, under a government based upon justice, and which finds its strength and usefulness in the faith and trust of the people, ought not to be tolerated.

While the heaviest burdens incident to the necessities of the government are uncompensatingly borne, light burdens become grievous and intolerable when not justified by such necessities.

Unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation, and yet this is our condition. We are annually collecting at our custom houses, and by means of our internal revenue taxation, many millions in excess of all legitimate public needs. As a consequence there now remains in the National Treasury a surplus of more than one hundred and thirty millions of dollars.

No better evidence could be furnished that the people are exorbitantly taxed. The extent of the superfluous burden indicated by this surplus will be better appreciated when it is suggested that such surplus alone represents a taxation aggregating more than one hundred and eighty thousand dollars in a county containing fifty thousand inhabitants.

Taxation has always been the feature of organized government the hardest to reconcile with the people's ideas of freedom and happiness. When presented in the direct form nothing will arouse popular discontent more quickly and profoundly than unjust and unnecessary taxation. Our farmers, mechanics, laborers, and all our citizens closely assessed upon their lands and other property, and demand good reason for such increase. And yet they seem to be expected, in some quarters to regard the unnecessary volume of insidious and indirect taxation visited upon them by our present rate of tariff duties with indifference, if not with favor.

The surplus revenue now remaining in the treasury not only furnishes a conclusive proof of unjust taxation, but its existence constitutes a desperate and independent menace to the prosperity of the people. The vast accumulation of idle funds represents that much money drawn from the circulating medium of the country, which is needed in the channels of trade and business. It is a great mistake to suppose that the consequences which follow the continual withdrawal and hoarding of the people are not of immediate importance to the mass of citizens, and only concerns those engaged in large financial transactions.

In the restless enterprise and activity which free and ready money among the people produces, is found that opportunity for labor and employment, and that impetus to business and production which brings in their train prosperity to our citizens in every station and vocation. New ventures, new investments in business and manufactures, construction of new and important works, and enlargement of enterprises already established, depend largely upon obtaining money upon easy terms with fair security; and all these things are stimulated by an abundant volume of circulating medium. Even the "harvested grain of the farmer remains without a market, unless money is forthcoming for its movement and transportation to the seaboard.

The first results of the scarcity of money among the people is the exaction of severe terms for its use. Increasing distrust and timidity is followed by a refusal to loan or advance on any terms. Investors refuse all risks and decline all securities, and in the general flight money still in the hands of the people is persistently hoarded. It is quite apparent that when this perfectly natural but inevitable stage is reached depression in all business and enterprise will, as a necessary consequence, lessen the opportunity for work and employment, and reduce salaries and wages of labor.

Instead, then, of being exempt from the influences and effect of the immense surplus lying idle in the national treasury, our wage earners and others who rely upon their labor for support are most of all directly concerned in the situation. Others, seeing the approach of danger, may provide against it, but it will find those depending upon their daily toil for bread unprepared, helpless, and defenceless.

Such a state of affairs does not present the case of idleness resulting from disputes between the laboring man and his employer, but it produces an absolute and enforced stoppage of employment and wages.

In reviewing the bad effects of this accumulated surplus and the tendency towards gross and scandalous public extravagance which a congested treasury induces, nor the fact that we are imagining without excuse, in a time of profound peace, substantially the rate of tariff duties imposed in a time of war, when the necessities of the government justified the imposition of the weightiest burdens upon the people.

Divers plans have been suggested for the return of this accumulated surplus to the people at the expense of the government, and some at variance with all rules of good finance; some are delusive, some are absurd, and some betray by their reckless extravagance the demoralizing influence of a great surplus of public money upon the judgments of individuals. While such efforts should be made as are consistent with public duty and sanctioned by sound judgment to avoid danger by the useful disposition of the surplus now remaining in the treasury, it is evident that if these devices are accomplished another accumulation would soon take its place if the constant flow of a redundant income was not checked at its source by reform to our present tariff laws.

We do not propose to deal with these conditions by merely attempting to satisfy the people of the truth of abstract theories, nor by alone urging their assent to a political doctrine. We present to them the proposition that they are unjustly treated in the extent of the present federal taxation, that as the result a condition of extreme danger exists, and that it is for them to demand a remedy, and that defense and safety promised in the guarantee of their free government.

THOROUGHLY DEMOCRATIC, BUT will not hesitate to criticize Democratic measures that are not consistent with the true principles of the party.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1888 [ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT GREENVILLE, N. C., AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.]

Even Radical partisan papers were bound to confess that the crowd which turned out to hear the "Old Roman" in New York last week, was the largest and most enthusiastic political demonstration ever witnessed in the empire city. New York will show what her political status is in November by rolling up a Democratic majority of not less than 40,000.

Mr. Cleveland's letter of acceptance of the Democratic nomination for President is one of the clearest and ablest public documents which it has ever been our pleasure to read. It discusses with marked ability and perspicuity all the issues incident to the present campaign.
There is no attempt at evasion.
He meets them all in a manly way that will command the admiration of intelligent men of every vocation in life, and that will bring conviction to the minds of the independent voters of the country everywhere. No one who reads it with judgement unbiased, can doubt for a moment its sincerity and truthfulness, or fail to see that the Democratic party is the party of the people and for the people.
It is a splendid campaign document; and it ought to find a place in the home and around the fireside of every farmer in the United States, and among all classes of laboring men.
Wherever it is read it will certainly make votes by the hundred for the cause of Jeffersonian Democracy. Those who have hitherto been disposed to sneer at the President, and to speak disparagingly of his qualifications for the high office to which he was called four years ago by the votes of the people, must feel their own littleness in comparison with Grover Cleveland, the patriot and statesman, who is the equal of Washington and Jefferson, and who has but few rivals among the men of to-day.
The great heart of this nation is with him; and he will be re-lected by a majority that will bring consternation to his enemies and gladness to his friends.

We are sorry to note a disposition on the part of our highly priced contemporary, the Wilmington Star, to underrate the ability of Judge Fowle in the present struggle. The Star well knows that Judge Fowle is the superior of Oliver Dockery in every respect. He has demonstrated to the satisfaction of his friends wherever he has met Dockery in public debate, that he (Fowle) is much the abler of the two on the stump, and that the cause of Democracy will not suffer in his hands. If the people are pleased, why should the Star complain? Fowle will carry the State by a majority as large as any man who could have been selected as the standard bearer of the Democratic party; and it is wrong for the Star to try to make the public believe that Judge Fowle cannot sustain himself on the stump with a man of Dockery's stamp and caliber as his competitor. As the stately pine towers above the sapling, so does Fowle tower in moral worth and intellectual ability above that demagogue, Oliver Dockery. Dockery stands no chance of being elected than did Tyre York four years ago. He will be beaten out of his boots; and Fowle's matchless eloquence will be a great and potent factor in bringing about such a result.
Fowle has shown that he is well worthy the title of "the silver tongued orator of North Carolina." We write this because we know that the Star has a great deal to do with shaping public opinion in this State, and the unjust things it has been making at our candidate for Governor of late, bodes no good to the Democratic party. Those who are not well informed about this matter will be misguided by the Star's insinuations, and led to believe that Fowle is a man of mean abilities as a public speaker; when the truth of the matter is, he is, as an orator, the peer of any man in the State.

Rev. A. R. Raven, senior editor of the Bethel Herald, seems very much exercised over the fact that Rev. Geo. W. Sanderlin, a retired Baptist preacher, has been nominated on the Democratic State ticket for Auditor, and never loses an opportunity to cut at him, and to make prominent the fact that he is a Baptist. On one or two occasions heretofore Mr. Raven has alluded to Dr. Sanderlin and once seemed to wish to provoke a reply from the REFLECTOR by calling him our "Baptist candidate." We never noticed this filing, considering it uncalled for and unprovoked, and would not mention the matter now had not Mr. Raven referred to Mr. San-derlin again in the last issue of the Herald as the REFLECTOR's "own preacher candidate for Auditor, Rev. Mr. Sanderlin." Mr.
Raven, in his blind zeal, has seemed to forget facts entirely, and has strained a point in order to try to make capital of Mr.
Sanderlin's candidacy. We are sorry for this, especially as particular stress has been laid upon the fact that Mr. Sanderlin is "our Baptist candidate," the attempt being thus made to arouse denominational prejudice. Mr.
Raven is particularly unfortunate in his selection of a target to shoot at. It is a fact, well known to all men who are at all acquainted with the gentleman, that Rev. Geo. W. Sanderlin, at one time a noted preacher of the Baptist church, was compelled by ill health to give up his chosen calling, and his physicians have ever since positively forbidden his again entering the ministry. Mr. Sanderlin chose agriculture as a profession when compelled to leave the pulpit, and he is now one of the most progressive of our North Carolina farmers. The Democratic party saw fit to nominate him for Auditor, a position he is well qualified to fill, and he has accepted the nomination. Any other private citizen of the State has a right to accept office, and there is no more inconsistency in Mr. Sanderlin being on the ticket —he is not bringing the church into politics—than there is in Judge Fowle, Mr. Bain, Judge Davis and the others of the candidates. We believe nearly all the nominees on the Democratic State ticket are professing Christians, and we are glad of it.
The REFLECTOR is opposed to pastors of churches entering actively into political gatherings and trying to run the machine, no matter whether they be Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, or of any other religious faith. We regret having been called upon to say this much, as we do not seek a controversy with Mr. Raven, but his persistent efforts to draw a reply from the REFLECTOR has necessitated it. We will say in conclusion that the editorial squib which Mr. Raven takes from the REFLECTOR and patches up to abuse the Democratic party with, while endorsed by us and expressing our sentiments, was written by a Methodist preacher, a pastor of a church, a prohibitionist, and that he but expresses the feelings of nine-tenths of the white people of North Carolina, Baptists, Methodists and those who are not Christians. A pastor certainly loses influence and weakens the church for which he labors when he assumes to control political meetings, and more especially is this true when the pulpit is used as a means from which to disseminate political doctrine.

Several cases of yellow fever have appeared in Hendersonville among the refugees from Jacksonville. The citizens of our mountain town do not seem to apprehend that there will be any spread of the disease, but that it will be confined exclusively to those refugees who brought the fever germs with them from Florida.

The joint discussion between Judge Fowle and Col. Dockery will be discontinued after the 22nd inst.
The reason of this is because Judge Fowle has already canvassed the West and wants to come East, while Col. Dockery desires to speak in the West. The referees of the two candidates could come to an agreement, and the joint canvass was therefore declared off.

The Congressional Canvass.

Hon. I. G. Skinner and Mr. E. A.
White, the candidate for Congress in this district, made three speeches in Pitt county last week. We were only able to hear one of these speeches, at Beaufort's on Thursday. Mr. White was the first speaker, and after a few preliminary remarks of an unimportant nature he began a discussion of the tariff, which he said was the main issue dividing the two parties, and devoted his entire speech to that question alone. Mr. White is considerably above the average Republican in intelligence, but he showed plainly that he was laboring at a disadvantage, and seemed considerably embarrassed. As first, we thought this embarrassment due to the fact that he was unaccustomed to public speaking, but when Mr. Skinner announced that he was a professional politician, we attributed the hesitation and seeming embarrassment to his knowledge of the weakness of the cause which he advocated.

He came out squarely in favor of a high protective tariff system, and like all other Republican speakers, claimed everything as being due to the tariff. He would seem to be that England would come over here with the products of her paper labor and bankrupt our country. He charged the Democrats with being free traders, extravagant, and attempted to prove that the last three years of Republican administration had cost less money than the three years of President Cleveland's administration.

He declared himself to be a farmer an Alliance man, President of a club and said that never had the district been represented in Congress by any one except a lawyer save one time, and then by a physician, and that it was time that the farmers had one of their class to represent them. After a few more remarks of a general character Mr.
White took his seat and Mr. Skinner rose to reply.

Mr. Skinner began his speech by saying that the Democrats of the First District, in Convention assembled, had commissioned him to come here and ask the people for their votes. He would, before going further, reply to Mr. White's assertion that he was a farmer. This was the first time in the canvass that he had made such a claim, he was surprised at his making it, and could not imagine what induced him to do so. Instead of being a farmer White was a professional politician. He had known him since a boy and had never known him to work on a farm. He owned real estate, as did Mr. Skinner, but had no more right to it himself and had no more right to the name of farmer than had Skinner or any other man who make no such profession. At one time he was a merchant, then a revenue officer, since which time he had been bossing the Republican party. That he might be a member of the farmer's Alliance, but if so he had no right to be there and was in direct antagonism to many of the principles of that organization.

Mr. Skinner then proceeded to discuss the tariff and answered fully every charge made by Mr. White.
He proved by the record that the assertions of Mr. White were untrue and showed the burdens of protection. Mr. Skinner showed himself perfect master of the subject and explained it more satisfactorily than any speaker we have ever listened to. He answered Mr. White's charges that the Democrats had failed to fulfill their pledges to run the government more economically and to repeal the internal revenue, by showing how much money had been saved by the Democratic administration, and said that more would have been saved had not the Republican Senate increased every appropriation bill sent them by the Democratic House. That in the collection of the internal revenue alone over $100,000,000 had been saved. As to the abolition of the revenue laws no National Democratic platform had ever adopted such a feature, and the party was not pledged to its repeal. That in North Carolina the Democrats favored its repeal, had pledged themselves to try to repeal it, and on every possible occasion had thus voted. That the Republicans put a free whiskey plank in their National platform, but when Mr. Johnston, of North Carolina, offered an amendment to the Mills bill repealing the internal revenue laws only one Republican Congressman voted for it.

Two great questions divided the two parties. The Republicans favored a high protective tariff that enabled the rich manufacturer to grind down the poor man, and proposed to get rid of the surplus by lavish expenditures of the public money. The Democrats favored a tariff that only raised enough money to defray the expenses of the government economically administered, that the tariff, instead of bearing heaviest upon the common necessaries of life should bear heaviest, if heaviest it bear at all, upon the unnecessary luxuries of the rich.
By this means there would be no surplus created, the poorer classes would get their necessities cheaper, and there would be no unjust discrimination in favor of the rich and against the poor. He proved Mr.
White's assertion that the Democrats were free traders to be utterly without foundation, and showed that a Republican commission, appointed by a Republican Congress, after taking much evidence and viewing the question in all its phases, had declared that there was a reduction of 20 per cent needed in the tariff, while the Democrats only proposed a reduction of 5 per cent. The present protective tariff was unjust, burdensome and odious, and should be modified. American laborers were paid higher wages than British laborers because labor was scarcer here and in greater demand.
England, with her free trade, paid higher wages than either France or Germany, protected countries, and in West and was paid the laborers in China, the highest protected country in the world.

The Blair bill, so Mr. White said, would give Pitt county about $60,- 000, but before the people of Pitt county could use this money they would have to put with it the same amount of their money, and this they could not do. He believed the bill to be unconstitutional, did not support it for that reason, and knew the people did not want him to go to Congress and violate his oath.

The Democrats were in favor of economy in all departments, and if the people wanted their money spent lavishly Mr. White was the man to represent them. He had learned extravagance in the corrupt Republican legislature of 1868-'69, which did so much to cast discredit upon North Carolina, and as he had learned well, he was amply able to squander money again. After paying a glowing tribute to the Democratic nominees for President and Vice President, and speaking a good word for our state ticket Mr. Skinner took his seat.

A reply of fifteen minutes was allowed each speaker, and in his time Mr. White attempted to break the force of some of the arguments made by his competitor. His efforts to do this were great, and while it was plainly evident that he was making a failure we could but sympathize with him—wish he were engaged in a better cause. In his rejoinder Mr. Skinner was much more effective than in his direct speech, and regret was expressed that he could not speak longer. The general opinion of all present was that he had much the best of the discussion, and his speech did much good ministry.

There was not a very large crowd present, and these were largely white men, but a more attentive assemblage has never met in the county. The people seemed interested in what was being said and showed their appreciation by closely listening to the speakers. There was little or no moving about, and not more than a dozen men left the ground during the whole discussion. Only a few negroes—not more than twenty-five—were present, and they were more quiet than we have ever noticed them, before. Mr. White failed utterly to arouse in them the enthusiasm usually created by Republican orators. Both speeches were entirely free from personalities or anything of an unpleasant nature.
Mr. Skinner addressed a good crowd in the Court House here Saturday, and made a better speech, if possible, than the one at Roun-tree's. Many who heard it say they never listened to an abler or more convincing argument.

Don't forget the amount you owe the REFLECTOR. We are not saying this for fun.

Personal

Mr. J. D. Pease is in Baltimore.
Mr. J. L. Fleming left yesterday for Wake Forest.

Mr. J. C. Lanier is clothing for Messrs. J. B. Cherry & Co.
Miss Ella Harrington has returned to school at Murfreesboro.

Mrs. J. D. Williamson has returned from her visit to Virginia.
Mrs. V. L. Stephens is visiting her parents in Martin county.

Mr. J. D. Murphy returned last night from a trip to Baltimore.
Mrs. E. A. Sheppard and Mrs. W. S. Rawls left for Baltimore last week.

Misses Hortense Forbes and Nana Fleming left yesterday for Staunton, Va., Female College.

Mr. Job Tyson has rented the livery stables on the Market square and is now carrying on his business at that stand.

Mr. J. H. Tucker returned last week from Asheville, where he had been spending several weeks. He tells us the city of the West has been thronged with visitors this summer.

Messrs. Johnson, of the Wilmington Messenger, Caddell, of the Raleigh News and Observer, Wilson, of the Wilson Advance, and Roberson, of the Washington Gazette, have been in town this week.

Mr. J. B. Johnson, Jr., who for two years past has been employed in the REFLECTOR office, left Monday for Chicago, which place he will make his future home. He is a steady, reliable, worthy young man, and the best wishes of the REFLECTOR go with him.

Miss Novella Higgs, who is teaching a class in Greenville, is the youngest instructor in the art of dancing there is in America. Only 12 years old, she has already taught three classes within the past year, and is unexcelled as a teacher. All the latest and most fashionable dances plain and fancy are taught. Her class now numbers eighteen, but there is room for more and others are solicited to join.

The Democrats of New York last week re-nominated J. D. Hill, for Governor, and Gen. E. F. Jones, for Lieutenant Governor. Both nominations were made by acclamation.

The late rains having destroyed so much of the fodder crop it would be a good idea for the farmers to take immediate steps in raising forage for their stock. It would be advisable to sow largely in oats.

Mr. Leon F. Evans left a sample of bright yellow tobacco at our office on Saturday. If we are any judge of the weed, this is a first-class article. He says he has two barns equally as good as the sample brought.

Mr. Fernando Ward, who on the first Monday in this month was elected as Tax Collector by the Board of County Commissioners, has declined the office, and to-morrow the Board will meet to make another election.

Joe Forbes says he is not going to be outdone, and it seems to be true. He has just fitted up a restaurant the corner room adjoining Mr. O. Hooker's saloon, and says he will serve the bivalves in any style the coming season.

Our readers' notice the advertisement of G. L. Heilbronner in this paper. They have a large stock of clothing and dry goods and will sell them low down for cash or in exchange for country product. Don't fail to see them.

At a special meeting of the Y. M. D. C. Monday night it was decided best to postpone the torch light procession and street parade until a more appropriate time. The recent unfavorable weather and other causes had rendered the parade almost impossible.

The following is the Petit Jury for this week: M. G. Ford, E. S. Phelps, R. B. Parker, W. W. Thomas, J. B. Bunting, Louis Hightsmith, John B. Joyner, J. D. Jones, W. G. Mizella, David Stricks, Macou Hadcock, T. M. Manning, L. S. Fleming, W. H. Ward, J. E. Spier.

The Wilmington Star has started a fund for the benefit of the Jacksonville yellow fever sufferers and five hundred dollars has already been forwarded to the stricken city. Other contributions are being received and it is hoped a larger sum than already contributed will soon be raised.

Both the Grand and Petit Jurors at this term of Court are composed of as good men as can be found in the county. They present a fine appearance, are fully up to the average for intelligence, and we have no doubt but that the interests of state and defendant will be impartially considered.

Little, House & Bro. have received their fall and winter goods and place a new advertisement in this paper. They quote some prices that will convince customers of the cheapness as well as the reliability of their goods. Their stock is large and they invite you to examine it. You will never regret trading at this reliable house.

The following compose the Grand Jury for this term of the Superior Court: S. A. Bedding, Foreman; J. H. Clark, W. H. Smith, D. C. Mooring, B. T. Smith, Albert Moore, A. R. House, S. O. Whitchard, Ferdinand Harris, Lawrence Tripp, C. L. Patrick, J. H. Hightsmith, Jesse B. Hill, J. B. Collins, J. P. Belcher, W. S. Hightsmith, C. T. Kittrell.

The editor has been confined at home by sickness since Sunday night and as the REFLECTOR was already short one hand by the departure of Mr. Johnson to Chicago, this issue is not up to its usual standard of excellence. We know our friends will bear with us this time as the paper is as good as we could possibly make it under the circumstances.

Space is reserved in this issue for an advertisement for the new firm of J. B. Cherry & Co. They are laying in a full stock of general merchandise and will give some description of it in their space. In the meantime it will be to the advantage of the purchasers to drop into their store. The entire stock is perfectly new and embraces the best goods.

Our community was filled with pain on Sunday to learn of the death of that excellent christian lady, Mrs. Mary K. Delaney. She had a stroke of paralysis on Wednesday, quietly passing away on the morning above mentioned. Mrs. Delaney was one of our oldest citizens, and was beloved and respected by all who knew her. Her remains were interred in the Baptist cemetery Monday evening at 4 o'clock.

The workmen on the bridge were anxious to have the structure completed by Court—which they did with a week to spare—so there would be no inconvenience to people coming in town. But the freshet came, making the river so high that vehicles could not be driven to the bridge, and people living on the North side of the town had to be ferried over. The water is falling now.

Several new advertisements appeared in the last issue of which no local mention was made. Brown & Hooker made mention of their mammoth stock and wish the people to know that they are headquarters for cheap goods. J. N. Bynum, Executor of R. A. Bynum, published a notice to creditors. Moses Heilbronner directs you to look for the big clock sign when in need of watches, clocks or jewelry, or when you want such articles repaired.

A. H. Wilkinson's Commercial School at Washington offers thorough business instruction.

Pity but what a roadway could be constructed at the North end of the bridge that would enable people to drive into town when there is a freshet in the river. The North side of the river probably represents half the trade of Greenville, and whenever a freshet comes that is nearly all cut off. Thus the town sustains quite a loss. We believe a suitable roadway could be built without great expense if the business men would unite upon it, and we believe the County Commissioners would aid the work. Everything possible should be done to keep the trade coming to Greenville, if the town is not hurt in that direction.

We are inclined to think that much of what has been said against the county Poor House of late is without foundation. Desiring to inform ourselves in this matter we rode out there a few days ago for the purpose of inspecting the premises, and found nothing of an objectionable nature there. The sanitary condition of the premises are as good as could be expected, the yard and buildings clean. Several of the inmates with whom we talked said they were comfortably clothed, had good, substantial food and were properly cared for. They all spoke in terms of praise of Superintendent Hardee. There were about a hundred cords of woods, already cut, on the premises.

The people of Greenville are fortunate in that they will have an opportunity of seeing Miss Alberta Gallatin in Shakespeare's immortal play “Romeo and Juliet.” No such actress has ever appeared in this town, and her support is excellent. Everywhere she has been the public has been delighted with her and the press is universal in her praise. Among the many complimentary notices of her we copy the following from the New York Courier:

Kentucky, which has been called the mother of “Juliets,” will find a powerful rival in the old state of Virginia, one of whose daughters has lately made her debut as a legitimate star.

Miss Alberta Gallatin, concerning whom there has been considerable newspaper talk of late, is the daughter of the distinguished Confederate General Albert Gallatin Jenkins who was killed in the late war, and a grand niece of Albert Gallatin, at one time Secretary of the United States Navy.

Miss Gallatin possesses a lovely, mobile face, a graceful figure, and rare degree of intelligence. She has been most successful in delineating such characters as Juliet, Parthenia and Julia. Her talents are sufficiently varied to enable her to assume with good effect a wide range of emotional tragic parts.

It is worthy of note that this young actress is always the recipient of marked social attentions from distinguished people both north and south.

BETHEL, N. C., September 15th '88.
Editor Eastern Reflector:
Please publish the following: Y. M. D. C. met in Bethel Saturday, Sept. 15th. Owing to the rain there was but few present, but these were all true-blue Democrats.

Dr. R. J. Givimes moved, and it was unanimously carried that we accept the invitation from Greenville club to be present and take part in the grand ratification meeting to be held in Greenville on the 18th inst. M. C. S. Cherry made an excellent talk of about thirty minutes on the duties of voters, which was endorsed by all present.

Our next regular meeting will be on Friday 21st inst., at 7 o'clock P. M., at which time we invite all members of our club, and not only our club, but all the Democrats in Pitt county are invited, as we expect to have some good speakers present. A grand time is looked for.

THE STAR.
A GREAT NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC
NEWSPAPER.
The STAR is the only New York newspaper possessing the fullest confidence of the National Administration and the United Democracy of New York, and the political battle ground of the Republic.
Jeffersonian Democracy, pure and simple, is good enough for the STAR. Single handed against the corruption and despotism to the South. For these four years past it has been unwavering in its fidelity to the administration of Governor Cleveland. It is for him now—for Cleveland and Thurman—for four years more of Democratic honesty in our national affairs, and of continued national tranquility and prosperity.
For people who like that sort of Democracy the STAR is the paper to read.
The STAR stands squarely on the National Democratic platform. It believes in the United States Constitution, in republicanism, in the rights of the people in excess of the demands of a government economically administered is essentially oppressive and dishonest. The scheme fostered and championed by the Republican party—of making the government a miser, wringing millions annually from the people and locking them up in debt to serve the purposes, but in the wastefulness and dishonesty, it regards as a monstrous crime against the rights of American citizenship. Republican political jugglers may call it "protective taxation"; the STAR's name for it is robbery.
Through and through the STAR is a great newspaper. Its tone is pure and its matter is of the highest quality and unquestionable. Each issue presents an epitome of what is best worth knowing of the world's history of yesterday. Its stories are told in a quick, picturesque English, and mighty interesting reading they are.
The SUNDAY STAR is as good as the best class magazine, and prints about the same amount of matter. Besides the day's news it is rich in special descriptive articles, stories, snatches of current literature, reviews, art criticism, etc. Bartlett's inimitable humor sparkles in its columns; Will Carleton's delightful letters are of his choice offerings. Many of the best known men and women in literature and art are represented in its columns.
The WEEKLY STAR is a large paper covering the cream of the news the world over, with special features which make it the most complete family newspaper published. The farmer, the mechanic, the business man too much occupied to read a daily paper, will get more for his dollar invested in the WEEKLY STAR than from any other paper. It will be especially alert during the campaign, and will print the freshest and most reliable political news, FORECASTERS, etc.
