A GEORGIA VOLUNTEER.

The following poem possesses a ten-I whilished Frery Wednesday der sentiment, which was doubtless written by one who participated in the Shenandoah Valley campaign under the immortal Stonewall Jackson:)

Far up the lonely mountain side My wandering footsteps led. The moss lay thick beneath my feet, The pine signed overhead, The trace of a dismantled fort Lay in the forest nave,

And in the shadow, near my path, I saw a soldier's grave.

The bramble wrest led with the weed Upon the lonely mound, the simple head-board, rudely writ, Had rotted to the ground;

"A Georgia Volunteer." I saw the toad and sealy snake From tangled coverts start. And hide themselves among the weed About the dead man's heart; But undisturbed, in sleep profound Unheeding there he lay

I heard the Shenandoah roll Along the vale below, Towards the realms of snow; he 'Valley campaign' rose to mind,

Of Stonewall Jackson's men

His shroud, Confed'rate gray

Yet whence he came, what lips shall say, What tongue will ever tel!. What desolate hearths and hearts Have been, because he fell? What sad-eyed maiden braids her hair-Her hair which he held dear?

One lock of waich perchance lies with The Georgia Volunteer! What mother, with long-watching eyes And white lips cold and dumb, Waits with appalling patience for Her darling boy to come?

But one of many a scar By gory-handed war?

What fights he fought, what wounds he Are all unknown to fame ; Rembember, on his lonly grave

There is not even a name? That he had fought well and bravel too, And held his country dear, We know, else he had not been 'A Georgia Volunteer.'

He sleeps-what need to question now If he were wrong or right— He knows ere this, whose cause was

An honest soldier's dust? Roll, Shenandoah, proudly roll

Adown the rocky glen : Above thee lies the grave of one Of Stonewall Jackson's men? In solitude austere, Unknown, unnamed, forgotten lies, "A Georgia Volunteer"

For the Soldiers' Home.
