Poetry.

THE TEN TRAVELERS.

[The poem below now and then takes the rounds of the press. The puzzle to us is not in the manner in which the ten travelers are claimed to be disposed of in the article, but that so many people are ready to display their gullibility by taking in the thing as truth. There is nothing easier than for the reader to discover the fraud in it if it is read carefully.
For instance, in verse five two men are placed in room A, the third man in room B and so on until the ninth man goes to room H when the host turns back to room A and takes the second man, who has already been counted, and puts him in room I, leaving the tenth man out of the game entirely, the nine rooms serving only for nine men. The REFLECTOR does not claim to be smarter than any of its contemporaries, but this is very easy to see through. Read and see for yourself.—ED.]

Ten weary, footsore travelers, All in a woful plight,
Sought shelter at a wayside inn
One dark and stormy night.

“Nine rooms, no more” the landlord said “Have I to offer you?
To each of eight a single bed,
But the ninth must serve for two.”

A din arose. The troubled host Could only scratch his head, For of those ten there was no two Would occupy one bed.

The puzzled host was soon at ease—He was a clever man,
And so to please his guests devised
This most ingenious plan:

A	B	C	D	E	F	G	H	I
---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---

In room marked A two men were placed The third was lodged in B, The fourth to C was then assigned, The fifth retired in D

In E the sixth he tucked away, In F the seventh man,
The eighth and ninth in G and H, And then to A he ran.

Wherein the host as I have said, Had laid two travelers by;
Then taking one, the tenth and last,
He lodged him safe in I.

Nine single rooms, a room for each,
Were made to serve ten men;
And this it is that puzzles me
And many wiser men.

The Boyle Case Jury.

Raleigh Call.
A statement has gotten out, and is in danger of misleading anybody interested in that feature, with reference to the denominational status of the jury in the Boyle case. It was published to-day that all the jurymen were Baptists. That is not so. There were four Baptists, five Methodist, two Christian, and one of no denomination at all.

It has transpired that Boyle's reputation at other places has not been of a character to help him much here. A St. Louis dispatch to the New York Sun, dated October 5th, says: “J. J. Boyle, the ex-priest of the Roman Catholic church, who is now on trial at Raleigh, N. C., was known in this city a year ago.
Boyle's reputation, while here, was best known to the police, who gave him a very bad character. About a year ago he officiated at a Catholic church in a small town in Illinois, but left in disgrace, having contrived to raise a large sum of money for the purpose of building a new church, and, having then come to St. Louis to spend it among fast women. About a year ago Policeman Carr arrested the man at a house on Spruce street for disturbing the peace, on complaint of the inmates.”

Found Fault with the Company.

Greensboro Workman.
The New York Star tells of the Long Island railroad running a special train and only getting one passenger. On account of the Live Stock Association's Fair at Hungstongton, the Long Island supposed that the capacity of the regular passenger train would not be sufficient to carry all that would want to attend so it advertised that it would run a special on a certain day, that day was a real stormy one, and only one passenger was at Sag Harbor, the starting place.

The officials tried to dissuade him from going, offering him the money he had paid for his ticket, and telling him that there was no one else going, but he insisted upon the Company's keeping its contract and said he did not care whether he had company or not, that he would just as soon go alone.

As they could not get him to give in they carried him through as they had advertised.

A railroad official is reported to have remarked, in reference to the matter, that the solitary passenger found fault with the company for not putting on a parlor car, a sleeping and a dining room coach, but the rumor is not generally credited.

Let Us Give Thanks.

Thursday, Nov. 28, Set Apart As a Day of Thanksgiving.

PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT.
WASHINGTON, D. C. Nov. 1.—The following proclamation setting apart Thursday, November 28th, as a day of National thanksgiving was issued late this afternoon:

A highly favored people, mindful of their dependence on the bounty of Divine Providence, should seek a fitting occasion to testify their gratitude and ascribe praise to Him who is the giver of their many blessings. It behooves us then to look back with thankful hearts over the past year and bless God for His infinite mercy in vouchsafing to our land enduring peace to our people, freedom from pestilence and famine, to our husbands abundant harvests, and to them that labor recompense of their toil.

Now, therefore, I, Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States of America, do earnestly recommend that this Thursday, the 28th day of this present month of November, be set apart as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, and that the people of our country, ceasing from the cares and labors of their working day, shall assemble in their respective places of worship and give thanks to God who has prospered us in our way and made our paths paths of peace, beseech-ing Him to bless this day to our present and future good, making it truly one of thanksgiving for each reunited home circle as for the nation at large.

In witness whereof I have here-unto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

OUR FREE LECTURES.
The second series of free lectures for workmen and workingwomen began last week in the various Grammar Schools designated for the purpose. These lectures are provided by law and paid out of public funds. More than 200 of them were delivered last winter as an experiment, and the plan was highly successful. This year it is proposed to increase the number to 450. The subjects will embrace science, politics, art, music and many other topics, all of which have been made special studies by the lecturers. As the lectures are all delivered in the evening, and in convenient places, they will undoubtedly be of great benefit to the class for which they are intended. In my opinion these lectures are a step in the right direction, and the example should be followed by every city in the country.

thus engaged, let us not forget to ask His blessings upon the poor and needy amongst us, and to contribute liberally to the helpless orphans that are dependent upon our care and to the institutions which have been organized in our midst for their maintenance.

New York Letter.

Royalty on Sale—Free Lectures—Trility's New Purchase.

(Our special correspondence).
NEW YORK, Nov. 4th, 1889.

The gaze of the metropolitan public this week has been fastened mainly on a couple of events, these were taking place across the Atlantic. It was not that any great consequences were to be attached to the marriage of two American beiesses to a couple of broken-down European princes; but the actual celebration of one and the failure of the other has served to entertain us in an admirable manner. In the Hatzfeldt-Huntington alliance it is hard to see any redeeming feature from either an American or a moral standpoint. Hatzfeldt seems to be simply a “rake” with the title of prince, and Mr. Huntington has bought this title for $3,000,000 and his daughter. I venture to say that it's about the poorest bargain the great railway king ever made. In regard to the other case, Miss Caldwell has suddenly jumped in the eyes of the public, from the sublime to the ridiculous. From giving a fortune of $300,000 to found a great university to this amusing attempt to storm the stronghold of mock royalty and gain admittance thereby to the back stairs, is quite a step.
Prince Murat, who by the way, is old enough to be Miss Caldwell's father, refused to close the bargain because he thought an allowance of $10,000 a year was too beggarly.
Miss Caldwell would not raise her bid, and so the Prince is in the market still. The young men of America can now rejoice. There is “no loss on our side.”

Laughable Reflections.

And Mirth Provoking Selections as Compiled by the Reflector's Bad Boy.

“A cold in the head always makes a man religious, for then he is sure to get on his sneeze.”

“Really, madam, I do not think that dress would be appropriate for you. It does not match your hair.” Mrs. S.—“Well, I'm going to have it, any way. What color should I dye my hair?”

Teacher—“If a man has 3,000 pounds of ice in his wagon, and one fourth of it is lost by melting, how many pounds do his customers pay for?” Boy (whose father is in the business)—“Three thousand pounds.”

Professor of music. “Who is the world's greatest composer, Mr. Sawboes?” Mr. S. (who is also studying to be a physician and sometimes confuses medicine and music)—“Chloroform, sir!”

—“And your brother got on the fence two weeks after he landed, eh?” —“He did that, but he didn't last long. He got too smart and arrested an alderman for sellin' whiskey” explained Mrs. Flogg. “I look like a perfect fright. I never had any idea I would get tanned so much in the course of one short week.”

“He too, ma,” said Tommy, who had stayed at home to help his father keep house while his mother was enjoying her vacation, “I got ‘tanned red’ too.”

Sallie—“I feel so happy this evening. My whole soul seems—George—“So at last my dream is to be realized!” “Yes, pa has at last consented to my—
“But I didn't think he knew.” “He has consented to my getting a new bonnet.”

Tramp—“Madam, I haven't had anything out a soup bone to gnaw in three weeks. Can I die somewhere on your place?” Lady of the house (slowly relent-ing)—“Yes, yes, you can go back to the wood lot and die in the onion patch; but, mind you, don't you struggle all over those young shoots.”

Hagley—“Doctor, I don't know what's the matter, but ever since I took a plunge in the surf this afternoon I can't get a darned thing in my left ear.” Doctor—“Let me see.” (After an examination.) “Oh, there's nothing serious; you've only got a bath towel in your ear.”

She agreed with him—“Don't you think,” said a youth, after working his vocal cords with intense vigor beside the hotel piano, “that I ought to go on the stage?” “Yes,” replied Miss Pepperton, who doesn't like him very well, anyhow, “I certainly do. There is one that leaves for the station just an hour and a half from now.”

The Drummer.

American Press.
Always find time to talk “business” with drummers who seek your trade. The drummer is a commercial encyclopedia, the great mercantile educator of the nineteenth century, and more of benefit can be gleaned from him than from any other source. First, he starts from headquarters brimful of the “latest” in styles and prices, and by constant rubbing against your competitors learns their means and methods, the best of which he is always to impart, even if he does usually claim originality. A month spent in the leading markets will not prove as beneficial as an hour with a live drummer. Treat them well and show them welcome. You can buy goods for less money from a drummer than you can from “his house.” He can always point out defects in his competitors' wares, and by comparison.

The Fayetteville Centennial.

Sanford Express.
The Good old town of Fayetteville is getting ready for the great centennial gathering within its gates Nov. 20th and 21st. Twelve triumphal arches are to be erected across the main streets. The occasion is to be made demonstrative and glad with long civic and military processions, with martial music flowers and brilliant oratory, balls and banquets, &c. It is in some sense the greatest event the State has ever celebrated and every North Carolinian ought to hustle to get to Fayetteville on the occasion of the celebration. There will be more distinguished North Carolinians together and eminent people from abroad than ever before.

Avoid little indiscretion. Even though harmless in themselves at first, yet they will grow and grow until they become as big as mountains in their precious influences, and will spread a ruin as wide as the sweep of a tornado. Even a word of insinuation, thoughtlessly uttered, has been taken up by malice tintured lips and viperous tongues, and in a week the reputation of an innocent fellow being is soiled by the mildew of suspicion, and a bright life goes under the dark cloud of reproach. We don't estimate the bigness of little things or the power they possess. It is the first leak in the ship which starts it to a watery grave. The kiss of the gentlest zephyr can keep in motion the waters of an ocean, and the smallest pebble will start a ripple which will grow and grow until foam crested billows sweep in roaring fury across the deep, stirring its waters into wildest surging and scattering destruction o'er all things within their angry sweep. And so with our little acts of imprudence and indiscretion. They start ripples of strife and trouble and sorrow which grow and grow, and swell and swell, until the wildest billows sweep down the river of time, fuming and foaming and tossing, spreading dismay here and making wrecks upon the ocean of eternity.

The Kicker Left.

Durham Sun.
We do not know what paper gets this off, but it is a very good thing.
It is worth reproducing in these columns for the kickers of Durham: St. Peter sits by the heavenly gates, his hands on the strings of a lyre, and he sings a low song as he patiently waits for the souls of those who expire. He hears in the distance the chorons of songs that swells from the foot of the heavenly throne, and he smiles as the music is wafted along, and warbles a lay of his own. “There is room in this region for millions of souls, who by sorrow and we were bereft, ‘tis for those who have suffered, the melody rolls, but the kickers must turn to the left! There is room for people who when they were young, persist in sowing wild oats, yet who boomed up their town with sinew and tongue, but the kickers must go with the goats! There is room for the people who pointed with pride to the beauty and growth of their town, who kept singing its praises along ‘till they died, but the kickers will please amble down! They'd say that the music was all out of tune, and the angelic robes hand-me-down's, and they'd send for a jeweler off to the moon to sample the gold in their corners. So while there is room for a million of souls, who by sorrow and we were bereft, we want no complaint of the music that rolls, so the kickers must turn to the left.”

It seems to be a freak of human weakness for people to love to be haunbugged by strangers. There is something fascinating in it. They are generally made to believe that by investing one dollar they can get two, and it is not very difficult for the stranger, who is skilled in the haunbugging business to make them believe it. Let any advertising agent strike this or any other town, and there are men who will give them five and ten dollars for what is perfectly valueless; but it is a scheme and it always works well, that is we mean with the man that gets the scheme up, but his poor deluded victim goes on not to repent of his folly, but to wait for another bite—some new humbug. But how different is it when you come to your home people—they who are always with you, who work honestly and earnestly for you. It is they to whom you begrudge to give your support, and it is they whom you allow to do work which you reap the benefit of, and for which they never get pay. If it is wrong in practice, and it is wrong in principle; but all men are not that way, there are some who duly appreciate the labor of their home people.—Winston Daily.

A Tennessee editor wants to know how people can expect him to get out a real newsy paper when he is twelve miles from a railroad, five miles from a river, millions of miles from heaven, two miles from the devil and only two hundred yards from a gin mill. This is laboring under difficulties that might discourage even a Tennessee editor.

THOROUGHLY DEMOCRATIC, BUT will not hesitate to criticize Democratic men and measures that are not consistent with the true principles of the party.

[ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT GREENVILLE, N. C., AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.]

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 13th, '89

What a glorious day for the Democracy was last Tuesday. Just as the REFLECTOR predicted Mahone was beaten in Virginia, but his defeat was even more overwhelming than was hoped for.

In Ohio the result was no less glorious than in Virginia, for in that State the bitter South later, J. B. Foraker, has been defeated. Hon. J. E. Campbell, the Democratic candidate, was elected Governor by 8,000 majority.

New York elected the entire Democratic State ticket by 20,000 majority. The Republicans control the Legislature of that State, because of a gerrymander they have made which it is almost impossible to overcome.

The Democrats carry Maryland by 4,500 majority. In New Jersey the Democratic candidate for Governor was elected by 10,000 majority, and the majority in the Legislature is increased eleven.

Of course the Democrats carried Mississippi, as the Republicans brought out no opposition to their ticket.

Iowa elects a Democratic Governor by 10,000 majority, but the Republicans have the Legislature, that State, like New York, having the districts formed so that the Democrats will have to get an overwhelming majority to break the gerrymander.

Pennsylvania went Republican as usual, but with the majority cut down.

The Republicans carried Massachusetts, but it was the negligence of the Democrats in staying away from the polls that gave them the State.

Nebraska went Republican, as it was expected to do.

As said in the outset, this is a great victory for the Democracy. It is also a strong rebuke to the present corrupt administration, and points clearly to the result of the next Presidential election. Harrison and Quay were backing Mahone in all his corruption, hoping to elect him and thereby break the solid South, but they now find as a rebuke to their scheming and bribery that the South is more overwhelmingly solid than ever before, and that the Democracy has even invaded Republican strongholds and gained victories where victory was least expected.

It is hardly possible for a man to receive a worse defeat and be covered with more ignominy than Billy Mahone, and Foraker is not a great way behind him.

We like that the Statesville Landmark says about the election, and reproduce a portion of it below:

There has never been such a groundswell in America as that of Tuesday. The Republican disaster, in the matter of completeness, is without a parallel. There is but one fair interpretation of the result: The disgust with the weakness and hypocrisy of the present administration at Washington is confined to no State or section, but is general and widespread. It has betrayed all its promises and deceived all who have trusted in it. The people have, as it were, stood this administration up alongside of the one that preceded it, have compared the two and then declared themselves. The rebuke is so terrible and overwhelming that one can hardly repress a feeling of sympathy for Mr. Harrison. The country has spewed him out of its mouth.

One of the irregularities in the Raleigh News and Observer. It rarely gets to this place on time, frequently being so old that all interest is lost in it when it arrives. It's a pity the mail connections were not better.

Poor Billy Mahone! He's so sick. Foraker got a dose of the same "pizon" and is almost as sick as little Billy. Harrison looks on and weeps, while Quay laments because so much boodle was wasted. Alas! Alas!

A Moore county farmer sold his tobacco off four acres for $400.—Riddick's Review.

A Pitt county farmer, a colored man at that, will get for his tobacco crop off four acres $1,000. Come to Pitt if you want to get in the finest tobacco county.

And the news has come that Miss Mamie Hatchett, late editor of the Orphan's Friend, is married. We were not exactly prepared to hear of such a consummation but the happy event occurred in Henderson on Tuesday of last week. She was married to Mr. Albert Fairbrother, editor of the Lincoln, Neb., Call. True she did not go beyond the pale of journalism, but how she did turn her back on North Carolina. She could not get much further from us than in Nebraska. But we all will have pleasant recollections of her and wish that every blessing may come upon her new home.

The Public School Committee for the District embracing the town of Greenville, are advertising for teachers to conduct separate schools for the sexes. They deem this change best in order that certain troubles which have existed in some former sessions may be remedied. They are desirous of elevating the standard of the public schools so that none would hesitate to send their children to them. The Committee will adopt a set of rules for the government of the schools and require both teacher and pupil to adhere to them. We see but one obstacle in the way of raising the standard and having these public schools conducted as the Committee desire, and that is the price offered for teachers. The REFLECTOR is of the opinion that the talent they are in search of cannot be secured for $30 per month. The price is too small, gentlemen, and the best teachers can hardly be expected to engage at such figures.

Having sold since 277 acres of said land he asked that a reasonable reduction in value be made. Read His Ad. There are few people in this section who have much to do with horses who do not know that Henry Keel is one of the best judges of that animal that can be found in the county. Since opening business in Greenville a few years ago, he has by good judgment and honest dealing held almost exclusive control of the stock trade in this community. He goes on in person to the wholesale markets and selects only reliable animals. Last week he brought in a car load of fine horses and stables which can not be seen at his place. It is always better to buy from a man like this who you know is reliable and has reliable stock, than it is to buy from an itinerant drover whom you know nothing about.

Man Killed. Another murder was committed in Pitt county last week. The water was being turned off from the mill pond of Mr. Noah Forbes, about four miles from town, and on Wednesday a large number of people had collected there to catch fish. Some one had taken advantage of the crowd being together and carried wine there to sell. It was drank freely and toward evening several drunks were to be seen. A colored man named George Barnes who had drank too much began disputing with a son of Mr. B. F. Manning and used very abusive language to him. A brother-in-law of young Manning, named Jesse Baker, interferred and ordered the negro not to curse Manning any more. The negro replied that he would curse him (Baker) too, when the latter took a car round from Manning's hand, struck the negro a heavy blow on the head which knocked him senseless. Next morning the negro died from the effects of the wound.

H. B. Harris was notified and went out to hold an inquest the jury returning a verdict that the man George Barnes came to his death by a blow from a stick in the hands of Jesse Baker. The wound was examined by Dr. F. W. Brown, assisted by Dr. W. E. Warren, who pronounced it a terrific blow. The skull was cracked nearly around the head. Baker fled Wednesday night, upon learning that the blow would probably prove fatal and has not been arrested. Notwithstanding liquor drinking is frequently followed by just such results there are people who will persist in the habit.

To The Public. Notice is hereby given that there will be hereafter two Public Schools in the White School District No. 66 of Pitt County, which comprises the town of Greenville, one for males and one for females. The schools will open for the reception of pupils on Monday the 11th of January, 1890.

The School Committee desire to employ two teachers for one school in the session of twenty weeks, and applicants for these positions will be received until Dec. 20th, 1889, at which time appointments will be made by the committee. Applications should be made in writing and addressed to J. B. Yellowley, Chairman, and applicants should furnish references as to qualifications and experience.

The committee desire to make these schools equal in efficiency to the best private schools, and wish to employ teachers who are thoroughly competent. The salaries will be $30 per month. J. B. YELLOWLEY, Chair. JACK WHITE, B. F. SUGG, School Committee.

Letter From Rev. L. L. Nash.

MR. EDITOR:—Thinking that my friends in dear old Greenville might be interested in a line from me, and your many readers throughout eastern North Carolina, where I spent nine years of my life, I will send you, and through your columns to my friends, my kind greetings.

I will say first, I am glad to see you are making such a good paper. You have the pluck and brain to succeed and you deserve success.

I rejoice in the good revival meeting the good people of Greenville have so recently enjoyed. I feel, perhaps, a deeper interest in Greenville than any one else who ever lived there. I remember the condition of the town when I was first sent there in the fall of '77. Many who stood by me so heroically then, are now at rest in Heaven. Their faces rise up before me as I write, and I hope to meet them "in the sweet by and bye." Who that ever knew Ben Warren Brown could ever forget him? Mrs. Ann M. Pearce, so full of love for the church, and of good works still lives in my memory; and "Ann" Hoyt will never be forgotten. Time would fail me to name all of precious memory who crowd upon my mind as I think and write. Mrs. Dill so quiet and true, and her husband such a good friend to me, and Mrs. Blow, and so many others whose memory I cherish. How can I fail to enshrine the memory of my dear friends of Greenville in my heart, and cherish the kindest recollections of my dear friends who live there? God bless dear old Greenville and Pitt county—yea all of eastern Carolina.

The recent revival there brought these memories up so fresh, that I feel I must give expression to them in kindly greetings. The first revival I conducted in Greenville resulted in 66 accessions to the church. I was looking over an old book recently, and saw their names. Many of them are there yet, and I rejoice to know that they are adorning the doctrine of God our Savior, by an upright walk, and a godly conversation, and the Lord has so recently blessed them by a baptism of His Spirit.

Truly may it be said: "The Lord buries His workmen, but carries on His work." Many who worshipped in the old church, now sleep, while the vine still grows, and flourishes on another spot. It would have given my heart much joy to have seen the 43 members taken in at the altar I had the honor to aid in building. May God keep every one of them faithful to the end.

I hope no one will think me egotistical for expressing my joy over the progress of the cause of our Lord in Greenville. I feel like I have the right to rejoice. Then I am glad the Greenville Institute, which I had something to do with founding, is doing much for the education of the rising generation of our old town. I feel that I am paid for all my toil in the success that is coming to the enterprises that I have cherished so long, and so fondly.

I send my christian greeting to everybody in Greenville, and to all my friends in the east. God bless and prosper them yet more abundantly. L. L. NASH. Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 9th, 1889.

Religious Notes.

Rev. E. C. Glenn will preach at Shady Grove next Sunday morning. It will be his last appointment before the annual State Conference.

The North Carolina Annual Conference of the M. E. Church, South, will meet in Greensboro Nov. 28th, Bishop Hargrove presiding. Greenville will send delegates.

Elder M. T. Moye will preach in the Baptist Church to-night, instead of Elder Bowen as we announced last week. Elder Bowen will preach here next Wednesday night.

Rev. W. H. Slaughter, of the Free Will Baptist Church, will preach in the Court House in Greenville on Saturday night before the 4th Sunday in this month, also on the 4th Sunday, both day and night. So we have been requested to announce.

The Free Will Baptist Conference began at Beedy Branch Church, about seven miles from Greenville, last Thursday and held through Sunday. The attendance every day was quite large, and on Sunday the crowd was immense. Every vehicle that could be procured in town was in service on that day to take people out.

Mr. E. C. Glenn, the Evangelist, closed his meeting in Washington Tuesday night of last week. The result of his work was about 250 professions of which number more than 100 have attended with the different churches. There never was such a religious interest in the town during his meeting and the influence for good is great. He is now conducting a meeting in Concord.

Divine blessings are following the labors of the men of Greenville in the prayer-meetings they are holding twice each day and something of a revival spirit is felt. The meetings are well attended, especially those at night which are devoted to work among the unconverted. During the last week there were five professions made at these night services. All christian people should pray for these meetings, and every man in the community who loves the cause of Christ should encourage the work by his presence.

Rev. R. B. John was prevented by sickness from filling his appointments in the Methodist church on Sunday. Some of the other churches in town having services that morning, a very interesting prayer-meeting was conducted in that church by Mr. Jack White. In his talk he referred to the recent meeting here and the work that is still going on and contrasted Greenville's past reputation for immorality with the broad christian influence that is now being exerted and the good work that is being done for the Master.

Rev. J. N. H. Summerell, Presbyterian minister from Tarboro, preached in the Baptist Church of this town on both Sunday and Monday nights. He grows more and more in favor with our people. He is not partial to his sermons being called beautiful, rather preferring they should be good, but more beautiful lessons than those drawn from his sermon Sunday night, from the text "And the cup was found in Benjamin's sack," are seldom heard fall from the lips of any man. That sermon was good, in the fullest meaning of the word.

Rev. A. D. Hunter, of Cary, who has been called to the pastorate of Greenville Baptist church, came down last week to view the field, and preached two sermons while here. The people of Greenville were very much pleased with him and his sermons impressed them that he is a man of no small ability. While not positively accepting the call, he expressed himself favorably as to the work here and said it was very probable that he would accept. It is the opinion of the RELECTOR that Mr. Hunter will be an excellent man for the work of this field. The last issue of the Raleigh Chronicle has this to say of him: "Rev. A. D. Hunter, of Cary, has received a call to the pastorate of the Baptist church in Greenville, N. C. He has gone there to survey the field. If he goes Greenville will be lucky."

Frank Reed Improvements. Capt. C. A. White has moved his family into his new residence on Plank Road street. It is truly a handsome building, large, commodious, substantial and an ornament to that portion of the town. The improvement made by moving in the yard fence and making a new sidewalk in front of his premises is very great. The dwelling of Mr. H. A. Tyson, in the same neighborhood, is also very neatly completed and is a pretty enough building for any town to boast of. Work progresses well on Dr. McG. Eruhl's house and ere long its handsome appearance will add to the same portion of the town.

Short Crops. The farmers now very generally report short crops. The harvest is showing the yield to be much smaller than was expected.

Mr. R. M. Spier, of Pactolus township, tells us that he will only get about 16 bales of cotton this year from where he usually gets 40 bales, and that he will not have more than two-thirds of a corn crop. Of his fattening hogs 40 head have recently died of cholera.

We hear that Mr. W. H. Mizell, of the same township, will get little, better than two bales of cotton of 75 acres. The freshets ruined his crops.

Mr. J. W. Smith says crops are coming in very short in his neighborhood and he is fearful it will cause still harder times.

Mr. Leonidas Fleming, from North side of the river, says hardly more than one-third of a cotton crop will be gathered in his neighborhood. The crops there are even much poorer than last year. He says the farmers must cultivate crops upon which they can realize money all through the year, and not have to depend on one crop and one selling season.

The Thanksgiving turkey has two weeks in which to get fat.
