eided to strike out that clause of the bill placing a duty on books and scientific instruments for educational institutions and add an amendment putting those articles on the free list, as they are at present. The democrats of the House made the most of the almost numberless unjust and uncalled for discriminations made by the bill in favor of the few against the many, but the speech made by Representative McMillin natarally received the most attention, both from the opponents and friends of the bill, because of his position as the; ranking democras of the Ways and the State. Colonel Carr writes: Means committee, and because on necount of his long experience in tariff matters he had been requested by Representative Baily to make the statement that the increased burden of taxation imposed by the bill was on luxuries, Mr. McMillin said : "The Are coarse shawls and knit goods luxuries? When "Cousin Osborne' tound this out he was indignant, although there are people who say that the reduced income of the office is about six or seven times as much as he has ever been able to earn in private life. B: that as it may, "Cousin Osborne" applied to Mr. McKinley to have that order of Secretary Olney's Carolina to those who will govern in set aside and the old scale of consular tees resumed, but Mr. McKirley feared the scandal that would follow such action on his part, and said he would plane of prosperity, and bring peace not do it unless Corgress directed it to and contentment to all. Senator Gorman was the only democrat who took part in the debate, and he merely took advantage of the opportunity to good-naturedly nag the republicans a little about their anxiety to get at the offices. If it comes to a direct vote of the repeal of the present civil service law, there are ple ity lemocrats who will vote "aye," although they knew that it would mean the replacing of every democrat in a Federal office by a republican. A bill to repeal has been introduced.

Cure All Liver Ills.

Doctors Sav: Bilious and Intermittent Fevers which prevail in miasmatic districts are invariably accompanied by derangements of the Stomach Liver and Bowels. The Secret of Health. The liver is the great "driving wheel" in the mechanism of man, and when it is out of order, the whole system becomes deranged and disease is the result.
