WHITE MEN WHAT THINK YE OF HIM?

Marion Butler, who misrepresents the State in the United States Senate, has recently made himself a subject of contempt. He is unworthy to be recognized by decent people and ought to be ashamed to look a respectable woman in the face. Not long ago the Rocky Mount Argonaut stated that Butler made a speech in that town in which he said: "If colored men commit outrages the Democrats would be terribly shocked in public, but when they get behind a wall they laugh until they grow fat, and if they outrage me, not to report them and file worthless news to commit them."

This was a base slander on the people of North Carolina, and many papers copied, some with comment, what appeared in the Argonaut. The Charlotte Observer and Winston Free Press expressed a doubt as to Butler's using such words and leaned to the belief that he had not been accurately quoted.

In the last issue of his own paper, the Cassavan, Butler says he never said anything of the kind, and adds: "The papers that have been so eagerly commenting upon this base and unwarranted report could have ascertained whether or not the same was true, if they had desired."

Friday's Charlotte Observer published an article which shows that paper to have departed from its double that Butler used the words attributed to him. The article contained an affidavit signed by Rev. B. S. McKinley, D. J. F. Thorpe and Mr. J. D. Depley, all of Rocky Mount, and sworn to before Mr. John L. Arrington, a Notary Public, setting forth that they had the speech of Butler and that the extract quoted from his speech was in substance what he said.

What a spectacle for a United States Senator! Slanders the people of his own State and then attempts to falsify the facts. And yet there are many men in North Carolina, some of whom live in Pitt County, some who are political followers of Marion Butler.

The attitude of Governor Russell toward the criminal class is a terrible argument that the pardoning power should not be vested in one man. We see it stated that during the two months he has been in office the pardons and commutations have reached the number of forty-two. This shows to what extent this man power can be abused by a man who cares nothing for the welfare of the State or the protection or safety of her law-abiding citizens. Pardons are sometimes just, but there should be extreme caution about granting them, and the power should be left with a board of at least three good men. The present law should be changed at the earliest possible moment.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 19, '97.
It is not surprising that Mr. McKinley should be worried about what to say in his annual message to Congress about the Dingley tariff, which was according to its supporters, is to be such a revenue producer that the receipts of the government were to be speedily exhausted its expenditures. The facts are unsatisfactory enough to worry him and every other supporter of the Dingley law. Since the first of July the Treasury deficit has been more than $43,000,000. The right thing for Mr. McKinley to do would be to come out like a man and say that the present tariff had failed to provide a sufficient revenue, and to ask Congress to provide other means of raising revenue, either by increasing the tariff law or by imposing additional taxes, but he will hardly dare to do that, as it would be an acknowledgment of error upon the part of himself and those who imposed the Dingley tariff upon the country. It is probable that he will wind up by sticking to the original Dingley tariff, that the tariff will, in time, produce revenue sufficient to meet the public expenditures, and let it go at that, trusting to some way of getting himself and party out of the tariff law.

THE REFLECTOR

THE WHITE DOE

Charming Poem Read by Mrs. Cotton.

Mrs. R. R. Cotton, as announced, read her poem, "The White Doe," at the Presbyterian church Thursday night, under an intelligent and appreciative audience greeted this truly gifted lady. Mrs. Cotton is well known to every man, woman and child in Greenville, having passed the greater part of her life and on a full life in Pitt County and one entrance was glad of an opportunity to hear her.

The poem is unquestionably a work of genius and should be regarded as a State work in every point of view. As a piece of poetic history, it is one of the widest made later from many Colonial records, the work of Mrs. Cotton's should be placed in line with those of Hawke, Moore, Spencer and Saunders. As a poem and its retelling, historical facts with legal lore, Mrs. Cotton's effort should be placed side by side with the best productions of Ewald, Luther, Mrs. Mary Sigard Clark and Stoddard.

Danger in Postage Stamps.

One of the newest diseases is the "postage stamp tongue." The credit of discovering it is due to a London physician. It appears that this malicious fungi is an excellent cultivating medium for germs, of the worst character. In the ailments called postage stamp tongue the latter becomes sore and covered with red spots. A bad sore throat is likely to follow if great care is not taken. Apart from the specific disease of the tongue, any contagious disease may be acquired through the medium of postage stamps. Never lick a postage stamp with your tongue. It shows a great lack of cleanliness and hygienic knowledge.—Exchange.

After a woman bursts into tears, her husband naturally expects to find a piece of paper.

While it is true that Martin is a Thorn in Mrs. Mack's side, he is not on her side.

"Is that undertaker reasonable?" "No, he charges stiff prices." "Yes, but he's dead."

"I feel like a philanthropist," said the doctor in the office building. "I give so many people a bit when they're down."

Almost mysterious packages are being smuggled into the houses while the children are at school, to be hidden away until Christmas.

Hoax—"That man's the funniest comedian I ever heard of." Jeax—"Why?" Hoax—"He's a Baptist minister from Kentucky."

Guest (in cheap restaurant): "Here, waiter, this meal is really fine; I won't pay for it; where's the proprietor?" Waiter—"It's cut at lunch, sir."

Hoax—"It takes two to make a bargain." Jeax—"Who? I don't know; you can do it." "No, sir," says Jeax; "if you pay for one drink in a saloon, that's a bar gain."

"It's all nonsense to speak of a man going straight to the devil," says the Manayunk Philosopher. "You've got to be cooked in one way or another to get there."

"I thought you said Hobbs and his wife agreed in all things." "Not at all." "Why, in relating that little occurrence the other night you said she locked him up?" "I didn't; I said she got her back up."

Whisper—"Sorecher and his wife are going abroad for the winter." Sprocker—"For their health?" "Not exactly for the bicycling. One of Sorecher's friends happened to speak the other day about the Island of Rhodes, and Sorecher's crony to a spin there."

She went into the matinee, poor dear.

And the man behind her swore.

At the gorgeous ball she wore.

Next day she sat in church and she could hear.

The man behind her swore.
