Democratic Rule for good Government. and Mrs. Joe Persons Remedy for the Blood.

So Tired, So Tired, Chronic Dyspepsia.

For ten years I had been a sufferer from chronic dyspepsia, which was pronounced incurable. I was completely run down and in the summer season was not able to do anything and spend a great part of the time lying down. I could not touch meat of any kind, or any solid food whatever, as I could not digest it at all and had to live on crackers and light diet. I was very nervous, would have severe nervous spells, and could not get any natural sleep, I was so restless. I suffered all the time from chronic dyscentery, which kept me weakened down. That was my condition, when I determined, as a last resort to try Mrs. Person's Remedy. I had tried so many treatments and so many patent medicines without benefit, that I had no faith in anything and had almost made up my mind not to try another thing, when Mrs. Pearson came to my house last April and induced me to try her Remedy. I bought half a dozen bottles. Felt no relief whatever until I was no the fourth bottle, when I knew I was getting better. I became strong, and at last could sleep well and there was no necessity for me to lie down in the day time. I took twenty two bottles before I stopped. My digestion is now perfect, and I can eat meat, vegetables and anything else I want, and as much as I want. When I commenced using the Remedy I weighed 98 pounds, now I weigh 115 pounds. Dysentery perfectly cured, and it is all owing to Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. It is everything claimed for it.

How Millionaires Achieve the Pleasures of Aristocratic Company.

"How do they do it?" I asked a lady last week when I thought I likely to know how money is got out of an African millionaire bitten with nobesire to become a man of fashion. She said: "Well, of course, when they take a fine house, guests have to be found. Then there is a committee to run them." "Yes," I said, "but supposing that I were a fine lady, poor, but greedy, and did not aspire to more than a few hundreds." "You would have to be one of the right set, you know," she explained. "Yes," I continued, "I will suppose myself a bright particular star of the right set and both nice looking and influential." "You need not be the first; the second would be enough. You first have to make the acquaintance of your intended victim, but this is easy. Then you find yourself talking to him at a party or somewhere. You say to him, with a simple, innocent look, that you have a little money that you would like to invest, and you ask him to invest it for you. He probably will agree to do this. Then he invests it and soon returns you £200 or £500." "I am supposing that the £100 is lost?" I asked. "Oh, but you don't really give him the £100; you only say that you want to invest it. He understands what is meant, and just buys whatever society influence he thinks that you may have." "And do many ladies try this game?" I asked. "Plenty," she answered, "and I do not blame them. They have to live, and if they have anything to sell or if a millionaire thinks it will do him good to buy it, why not? After all, you don't suppose that couple of thousand received and made much of for any other reason than for getting what they can out of them? All the talk about honesty is only a device by way of letting the man know that if he wants social currency he must pay his footing." "Oh," I said.

And yet what possible pleasure can these mill ionaires find in being admitted into the outer courts of a society that laughs at them and that only tolerates them in order to plunder them—a society to whose ways they are strange and in which they are as much the outed ones as we did be a fine day into Johannesburg barroom! Some of these millionaires have the goodness to perceive this. They enjoy life with their own friends and in their own way. These I respect. But for those who are buying their way into a position that is completely ridiculous I feel the utmost contempt. I never knew the late Barney Barnato—indeed to my knowledge I never saw him—but I often heard that a number of fine ladies and gentlemen had been invited to meet him. Each went to the dinner in the hope of getting something out of him, and their hopes rose when, after the dinner was over, he thanked them for the pleasure of finding himself among them, and said that he was anxious to do something to show his appreciation of their kindness. Then he recited to them the soliloquy of Hamlet, and wished them good evening. I always had a sneaking admiration for the departed Barney after I heard this story.—London Truth.

A ROMANCE OF LONG AGO.

Peggy Hutchinson's Admirer of Noble Birth Whom Her Father Turned Away.

Among the thousands of documents stored in the statehouse in Boston are three letters and part of a journal that outline a romance of the days when Massachusetts was a province governed by Thomas Hutchinson. It is a story that has not been known to the world and not even to the personal friends of those interested. The characters in this romance are a titled lover, a father who refused his sanction to a proposed marriage and a New England maiden who died in ignorance of both the love and the lover's vain plea. Some letters are missing.

The first document in the story is a letter to Governor Hutchinson, dated April 5, 1771. The writer was William, son of Lord Fitzwilliam, and in this letter he recites his love for the governor's daughter, telling how he kept me weakened down. That was my condition, when I determined, as a last resort to try Mrs. Person's Remedy. I had tried so many treatments and so many patent medicines without benefit, that I had no faith in anything and had almost made up my mind not to try another thing, when Mrs. Pearson came to my house last April and induced me to try her Remedy. Warning Glances.

The care of the eyes is perhaps one of the most imperfectly understood of any of our daily duties. More ills arise from their misuse than the public generally appreciate. Epilepsy is a frequent result of eye strain, and a careful and intelligent observation will convince most people that more headaches come from abuse of the eyes than from any other cause. Probably one-sixth of the adult population of this country would be benefited by the use of glasses, at least during their working hours. They tire quickly, have headaches, the digestive apparatus is completely upset, there are pain in the back and a general feeling of dizziness and nausea, and the true cause is never suspected. The patient is bilious or nervous; has indigestion or liver complaint. The evil is attributed to everything but the proper cause. Fit the person to good glasses and the difficulty vanishes almost as if by magic.—New York Ledger.

Unknown Genius.

Warren's hall in Freeport, Me., has a drop curtain which was painted by an unknown tramp. When the hall was being built, a tramp applied to the proprietor for something to eat, and was set to do some painting to pay for it. The owner wanted some fancy decorating done, and the tramp was allowed to try his hand at it, and succeeded so well that his work was accepted and now remains as a testimony of the skill of an unknown wandering genius.—Boston Herald.

"A Timely Warning.

Under the above caption the Wilmington Star sounds the following timely warning to honest and selfrespecting Democrats throughout the State:

The star warns delegates to the State convention who do not favor the Rea-all-Butler fusion proposition that a desperate effort will be made at Raleigh to induce the representatives of the 150,000 Democrats of the State to surrender to the leaders of the 15,000 Populists. There is no doubt whatever that a very large majority of the delegates appointed to the State convention are opposed to the disgraceful barter of voice for offices embodied in the Rea sell-Butler plan; but it is the delegates who attend conventions and not them and every delegates who does not wish to see the complete disruption and demoralization of the Democratic party on the very threshold of the campaign should consider it a patriotic duty to attend the convention, and to be on the ground early.

"Forewarned is forarmed."

The Post Office department asks the press to give this notice an insertion or two. "Friends and relatives of soldiers in the field, in addressing letters to them, should mark plainly the company and regiment to which they belong, as by doing so the distribution of the mail will be facilitated. This applies to both the regular troops and the militia volunteers."

ORIGINAL OBSERVATIONS
Made by Orange Crushed

No hardware store keeps hinges for a horse's gait.

Some men's opinions of themselves are the largest of the two.

There is one class of buildings that cannot be taxed—air castles.

The stock blacksnake is stylish for winter, but the ice lemonade does very well for summer.

There is a great deal of wait in a woman's words—when you pop the question and she answers "no."

Why not wind up the war with Spain? The regulars are ready to, Wade in and the volunteers are anxious to give 'em Fitz

Young man, when on board a coasting ship you early see ma ter. At least one rudder not have any more. Now steer up, boys, but don't get overboard.

Against Its Constience.

The proprietor of a large London restaurant has a small hydraulic lift fitted up in a corner of his "second class room," which is used for conveying the various dishes from the kitchen.

One day an unmistakable native of the land north of the Tweed entered the shop, and, having ordered some refreshment, sat down to wait. The waiter in attendance called down to the cook through the speaking tube, and in a short time Sandy was astounded to see the very things he had ordered rise up, apparently from the bowels of the earth.

With a horrified yell he bounded up, made for the door and exclaimed:

"No, no! Ye'll no get Sandy Mc-Nab to lose what the auld deil's had the cookin o't!"—Nuggets.

Different Now.

"It's funny how marriage will change a man," said Flogg the other day. "There's Monster, for example. Before he was married on the 1st of May Taintor would intoxicate him, so he used to say. Now when he comes home late at night and meets Mrs. Monster, one Taintor, the sight of her actually sobers him."—Boston Transcript.

Reciprocity.

Phitts—Has old fellow been? How are you? Just heard that you have gone into the newspaper business.

Bitts—Yes; just bought a country paper.

Phitts—That so? Why, you can give me an occasional puff, then.

Bitts—Certainly. What are you busy with now?

Phitts—I am in the clothing business—ready made clothing.

Bitts—Ha! Then you can give me an occasional suit of clothes.

Phitts—Well, dunno about that. It costs money to manufacture clothing, you know.

Bitts—That's true, and it costs nothing to manufacture newspapers! Then they part.—Pearson's Weekly.

"If"

The man who lost a finger, or
Is shy a little toe,
Now sits around and tells us what
He'd do if he could go.

The fellow who is color blind
And he whose locks are white
Talk bravely of what they would do
"If they could go to fight."

And he whose doctor told him that
His heart is out of whack
Is daily going for a chance
To rip them up the back."

As for the able-bodied men
Who linger here today,
Ah, well, of course they'd all enlist
"If they could only get away."

An exquisite and unique American flag of great value is an attraction in a well-known Washington jeweler's window. The flag is composed of 921 stones. The stars and bars are arranged by using 321 diamonds, 247 sapphires and 324 rubies. The neat flagstaff is of virgin gold, surmounted by a cap of the same metal. This is doubtless the most expensive American flag that has ever been made.—Orange Va. Observer.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular Correspondent.)

Washington, May 25th, 1898.

Had the administration been as successful in battling as that Spanish fleet, which is flitting up and in Cuban waters, as it has been in bottling up every particle of interesting war news, the end of the war would be in sight. Of course every body recognizes the necessity for keeping news of contemplated movements out of the newspapers, lest their publication should aid the enemy, but there is no good reason why this state of affairs should exist. Had every cable from Cuba been cut as soon as war was declared, and the same rigid censorship been put in to effect upon domestic news as that is now exercised, Spain could have derived no benefit from the publication of war news by American papers. If the present censorship be followed by results, there will not be much complaint, but if it be merely a cloak to hide the blunders of some lofty, Czar-like arcss will not long remain silent.

Orders have been issued in profusion to our fleets in Cuban waters, and there is, of course, a general hope that they will succeed in finding and fighting the Spanish fleet—no one doubts that we can beat if we can get at them—but Secretary Long seems to take it for granted that the Spaniards can avoid a fight just as long as they may desire to.

Those who for one or another reason are desirous of dragging the war on indefinitely have again been trying to persuade Mr. McKinley to postpone the invasion of Cuba until fall. They have got a new argument now—that the rainy season will soon make as much ammunition as they think the army ought to have before being sent to Cuba. They also ring the changes on the old argument that military operations on a large scale cannot be carried on in Cuba during the rainy season, which usually begins about the tenth of June and continues for six or eight weeks—an argument long ago disposed of by the active campaigns of the insurgents during rainy seasons. If the statement about ammunition be true which they so persistently dolorously and well, it is more deplorable and is but a short time. I continued to use it for six months and continued to improve all the time. It did me more good than all the blood medicines I ever used. Cancer that has developed as far as mine had is impossible of cure, but I could have gotten it five years ago. I know it would have cured me. I believe I would have been in my grave long ago if it had not been for Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. It relieves the pain and suffering from the cancer, and gives me good, sweet, restful sleep. I have appetite and was weakened down. It gave me good appetite and strength. I would urge upon and advise any one who has the least appearance of cancer to begin to use Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy and Wash at once. I believe it will cure any case of cancer if only taken in time, before it gets to the body and in death, shall be heard again. The last word of Gladstone was "Amen." He had been unconscious and Dorothy Drew had just gone out of the sick chamber in tears because her grandfather did not know her. Hinson went to the bedside and recited the litany. The old man murmured "Amen," and then the door of the old God. I was drifting word to end the career of a man who could say with truth: I have longed a good fight."—Charlotte Observer.

"Amen!"

Mr. for some reason or other, lay across upon the last words of the renowned of earth. Perhaps Gladstone forgot that if a man die he shall live again, and that, when sent and body are reunited in the resurrection, he who died long ago in death, shall be heard again. The last word of Gladstone was "Amen." He had been unconscious and Dorothy Drew had just gone out of the sick chamber in tears because her grandfather did not know her. Hinson went to the bedside and recited the litany. The old man murmured "Amen," and then the door of the old God. I was drifting word to end the career of a man who could say with truth: I have longed a good fight."—Charlotte Observer.

Do You Suffer from Cancer? If so Read This.

I have had cancer on my face for 14 years, and have tried all the cancer doctors of any reputation in this country. I went to Atlanta and put myself under treatment of a cancer doctor of great reputation. I remained in that city about six weeks, but got little benefit. It appeared first under my eye in a small blue pimple and from it started from that to eating until it has now eaten away one of my eyes, one of my ears is gone and a good portion of one side of my face. I became heavily discouraged by the treatment of all cancer doctors and resorted to my blood medicines. I tried all the blood medicines of any repute in the country, which but little benefit. Accidentally, or I might say, providentially, Mr. Joe Person passed by my house last summer and came in to see me and asked me to try her Remedy. I did so, and in two weeks I became discouraged and in bad health every way and had just given up to die. I thought that I would cause one more trial and try her Remedy. I did so, and the very first dose I took did me more good than any medicine I ever used. Cancer that has developed as far as mine had is impossible of cure, but I could have gotten it five years ago. I know it would have cured me. I believe I would have been in my grave long ago if it had not been for Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. It relieves the pain and suffering from the cancer, and gives me good, sweet, restful sleep. I have appetite and was weakened down. It gave me good appetite and strength. A Bell-Chickens-Soldiers.

Mr. F. Hege, the director of the poultry division of the experiment station, has as next door neighbors the Second Regiment. If soldiers have an insatiable taste or anything it is a nice chicken. Of these Mr. Hege has some 600. On numerous occasions in months past the chickens at the experiment station have been reduced in numbers by chicken thieves. On one occasion eighty fine fellows disappeared in one night.

Mr. Hege's ingenuity soon brought these depredations on his own house to a close. He had an automatic electric bell arrangement strung around the fence that encloses his poultry yard. The moment an intruder crossed a gate it automatically climb the fence ding-a-ling would go a little bell. Since then Mr. Hege has missed none of his chickens and often times in the dead of night has he been awakened by the bell.

Since the soldier boys became his neighbors Mr. Hege has been awakened very frequently by that bell and the explanation of this he received the following letter yesterday in his mail:

"Dam your fence. We will have your chickens or bust. We belong to the State and so do the chickens. Don't skeered of your dogs neither. Poison is cheap"

THE REFLECTOR wants to congratulate the Democracy of Pitt county upon its auspicious beginning of the campaign. The county convention Saturday was large and harmonious. The people show that they are tired of the corrupt fusion rule under which they have been for the last few years and want a return to power of the Democratic party. the only party that has ever given us good government. The convention did well in endorsing J. Bryan Grimes for Congress and L. I. Moore for Solicitor. There are no better young men than those in tendering them to the people of this Congressional and Judicial district we can assure them that men more capable of bearing the Democratic banner cannot be found. Nominate and elect these young men and you will have faithful officers.

While on the subject of conventions THE REFLECTOR wants to suggest that the coming Congressional convention be held in Plymouth. It has been many years since the convention was held there, and being near the centre of the district it is of easy access to all counties. We also suggest that the Judicial convention be held in Greenville This town has never had a Judicial convention and is entitled to it this time.

AROUND THE CAMP.

2nd Regiment Headquarters }
Raleigh, N. C., May 24, '98. }

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

All the boys in camp were sorry to learn of the accident to the 3rd battalion of the 1st regiment, enroute to Florida, in which one member from Durham was killed and another badly injured.

Several men have deserted from our company. Burnett, Clark, L. Allen and Belcher left this morning.

Our men are faring better now. We have vegetables, meat, beef, sausage, and in fact a good deal better diet than heretofore.

Col. Burgwyn assured Capt. Smith that we would be mustered in today.

We were all very sorry to learn of the death of Dr. Brown, Mrs. Sugg and Capt. Williams.

The ladies of Raleigh are going to give us a supper tonight.

We are having church every night now.

More pretty women are here every day than a few.

Capt. Smith says he hopes we will get our uniform on better than those who have deserted.

Bronse Jarvis came to see us on his way home from Colorado.

There is nothing important to report from the second regiment. We have not been mustered in and it don't look much like we will be. Think I will telegraph you it such a thing ever happens.

The first regiment is ordered to Tampa today. They go in batteries three different routes.

We are in tents now. Rations are improving slowly and we get two meals a day. There has not been a biscuit since we came here, and neither bread, butter or milk has been heard of. Boys nearly broke.

Boys all broke, dead broke.

COMMANDER BATTERY Z.

An Exchange of Notes

The heart of North Carolina has been deeply touched at the way the South has taken up arms in behalf of the Union, and its expression of admiration is taking on a patriotic form. The proposition is to return to the South all the captured battle flag, now held in the North. The Grand Army of the Republic, at its meeting in Cincinnati, will probably recommend that his proposition be carried into effect.

A number of leading Republican papers are advocating this movement, among them the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune, which says: "The time to give back the captured flags has come. Ohio can also longer the trophies taken from her sister States so long ago. She would rather restore them once more into the hands and the tender care of those who first bore them alot; as a token of love to her sister Commonwealths, whose defeat in war has long since been turned into victory o peace and plenty."

This is all right, and it they insist upon restoring our captured flags, we will receive them, but at the same time we will insist upon being allowed to show some magnanimity, too, in sending a cargo of captured swords, guns and other me nentoes back to the North in exchange. It is a good time to make the swap and wipe out old scores along that line.—Charlotte Observer.

Army surgeons say that a large proportion of the militia volunteers who have been undergoing physical examinations were rejected because of disabilities incurred by bicycle riding. This violent exercise, they say, is responsible for many disorders of the heart and spinal column, which have inflicted thousands of young men for enduring the hardship of army life.

Died.

At the residence of Mr. J. F. Jordan, 505 E. Hargett street, yesterday morning at 4:50, May 21st, 1898, little James Hugh, infant son of J. Irwin and Zula B. Parham, aged six months and four days. Funeral from residence Sunday morning 10 o'clock.—Raleigh News and Observer.

The friends in Greenville extend sympathy to the parents in their bereavement.

Mr. William Hemby died Monday afternoon at his home in Beaver Dam township. He was about 52 years of age, and was the eldest son of Mr. Josh Hemby, whose death occurred week before last. He was a brother of Mrs. J. S. Smith and Mrs. W. B. Smith, of this town.

Attempt to Break Jail.

Monday night the prisoners in the countyjail attempted to make their escape and came very near being successful. Private night watchman, R. M. Kennedy, w We making his rounds heard the prisoners singing and dancing in the jail. They kept this up until such a late hour that Mr. Kennedy's suspicions were aroused and about one o'clock he went to the jail to investigate. Creeping up to the building under the sounds of the singing and dancing he heard the clink of tools on the brick walls. He got some people to stand guard while he went to notify the Sheriff what was going on. When the jail was opened it was found that all the prisoners were out of the cells and they had cut a hole three brick thick entirely through the outer wall at the northwest corner of the building. It would have taken but a little while longer for the holeto have been large enough for the prisoners to have easily crawled through. Jailer W. P. Ormond says he thinks that while he was giving supper to the prisoners one key was slipped off six keys with which they unlocked the cell so as to get out in the corridor. One of his keys is missing and this is the only way it can be explained. Sheriff Harding tried to make the prisoners give up the key but they processed not to have or know anything about one, Even threats of punishment failed to get anything about the key out of them.

Fusionists All

Moye, of Pitt, spoke the truth though he convicted many Populists in exalted station of falsehood when he declared in the convention that every delegate who denied that he was in favor of fusion with some party or other lied. It was a painful and barbed shaft, and it struck home. The Populist who is not a fusionist is a curiosity that should be caught and caged.—Raleigh Post.

Chamber of Commerce.

Something that Greenville has long needed and which THE REFLECTOR has long advocated, a Chamber of Commerce, is now secured for the town. There was a good number of business men at the Court House, Friday night, to take part in the organization, and the interest manifested shows that they are determined to accomplish something for the town.

The meeting was called to order by J. G. Moye, and on motion J. B. Cherry was made chairman and H. A. Moye secretary.

A. M. Moore, being better acquainted than any one present with the work of such organizations, was called on to give the meeting the benefit of his information. He spoke a very interesting talk and pointed out many ways in which a Chamber of Commerce could benefit and advance the interests of the community. At the close of his address a vote of thanks was extended him.

Those desiring to become members of the Chamber were invited to enroll their names. Twenty-four joined, seven suitable by-laws were adopted and organization effected by electing the following officers:

President—J. B. Cherry.

Vice-President—H. A. White.

Secretary—L. I. Moore.

Treasurer—J. L. Little.

A committee consisting of L. I. Moore, J. G. Moye and W. F. Harding was appointed to wait upon the business men of the town and invite them all to become members of the Chamber.

The next meeting will be held on Monday night, 30th, after which regular meetings will be held on the first Thursday in each month.

The Chamber has excellent officers and the REFLECTOR feels sure that Greenville is to be greatly benefitted by the organization.

Operation Performed

Dr. Orville Horwitz, a professor in the Jefferson Medical College, of Philadelphia, arrived here Monday morning for a consultation with Dr. E. A. Moye on the condition of Mr. Alfred Forbes. The professional men decided that the best chance which was very successful, and Mr. Forbes has since been getting along well.

Steady!
It has been said that the loss of life and property by war is a lesser evil than the attendant or resultant damage done to the quality of a whole person's life by mental and moral disrepution. A popular war excitement is like "a house on fire"
It is too small an unity for the orderly life of millions of people to not be interrupted; that thought and feeling should be turned away from business, common duty and the gentle methods of culture; that the useless expenditure of nervous energy and the rush of blood to the head should cause a epidemic of moral insanity.
Whatever happens or does not happen, our people should keep cool in these eventful war days. To the soldier, simple self possession is the better part of courage and discipline. So it should be with that great mass of our people who, in time of war as in time of peace, constitute the home guard of American civilization. Firm, soldierly qualities are everywhere demanded. If we keep all our wits about us, we shall be none too well furnished for the present office.
We have a great deal to care for besides the war; in fact, everything for which we ought to care if war did not exist. The exciting characters of the duties imposed by war itself must unconcentre or nebulose us—must not allow our best life to be interupted.—Youth's Companion.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

There was a large number of Democrats from the various townships in attendance upon the convention today to select delegates to the State, Judicial and Congressional Conventions.

The meeting was called to order by A. L. Blow, chairman of the county executive committee, in a brief but stirring speech.

The roll of delegates of the several precincts was called, 92 delegates out of 102 being present.

D. C. Moore was chosen as permanent chairman of the convention by acclamation. D. J. Whichard, H. T. King and W. L. Brown elected secretaries.

On motion of J. B. Grimes, of Chicod, committee of one from each township appointed on platform and resolutions, as follows: A. S. Walker, L. Moget, S. M. Jones, J. R. Gurganus, J. B. Grimes, John Pierce, R. R. Cotten, Benj. May, F. G. James, W. G. Mizzelle and W. J. Laughinghouse.

The committee retired to prepare its report. While out, on motion of J. H. Smith, of Falkland, L. I. Moore, of Greenville, was called on to address the convention and responded. Dr. C. J. O'Hagan was also called upon and gave the convention one of his usual strong old time Democrat speeches. He scored the fusion Legislature for its wicked legislation, and the outrages, plunder and robbery that have prevailed under their rule and said the leader of that horde, Marion Butler, wanting the Democrats to fuse with them, was the most infamous proposition he had ever heard of.

Committee on platform and resolutions returned and stated through their chairman, R. R. Cotter, that in view of the fact that no voting will be done before we hold another convention it is deemed best not to report any platform and resolutions at the present convention.

On motion the delegates of the different townships retired to select their quota of the delegates to the State, Judicial and Congressional convention.

Chief Dan, the auburn haired orang outang at the zoo, is very superstitious, and his convictions with regard to straws are not limited to the mere fact that they tell how the wind blows. The chief believes that chewing a straw with certain supernatural qualities will bring his dinner. If he hears a noise before 4 o'clock, the regular time, and he daily tries to put this theory into practice. From among the heaps of straw in his cage he selects with great care the longest and straightest, and after having placed it in his mouth he goes to the glass front of the cage and shading his eyes with his hand peers to the right and left in search of the keeper with his dinner. If the keeper is not in sight, the chief throws the straw away as not possessing sufficient "charm" and selects another. This performance is repeated over and over with the utmost gravity until the meal arrives.

In 1768, when Richard Arkwright perfected his cotton spinning machinery, there were in England 7,900 persons engaged in the production of cotton textiles. Nineteen years later, in 1787, the number of persons employed in the spinning and weaving of cotton had increased to 320,000.

In the Japanese match factories the boxes and labels are made by little girls, who are wondrously dextrous in the work. These little experts get from 1 to 5 cents for 15 hours' work.

Experienced.

"And, now," said the colonel of the sappers and miners, "who will volunteer to crawl through the trench and fire the magazine?"

There was no response.

"It is a dangerous mission," said the officer. "The man who attempts it will find himself in very cramped quarters, and is liable at any moment to get stuck. Who will go?"

There was another brief silence, and then a thin man with a wonderful face spoke up:

"I guess I can do it, if any man can, colonel. I used to live in a New York flat."

From the beginning of the present war France has not only given her sympathy but her moral support to Spain and the French newspapers have reviled us, called us "Yankee Pigs" and had no other similar compliments. The tradesmen of Paris are largely dependent upon the custom of rich Americans and they are likely to regret the day they took sides against us. The American Patriotic Woman's League is forming chapters in all the large cities, its members signing a pledge to buy nothing made in France. This boycott would touch France feeling in its vital spot, the pocket-book. Such retaliation would have more effect than all the proclamations of ministers and cabinet.—Charlotte News.

Sweetest Love Story in Literature

"Wherever Mr.. Browing trod, whatever she touched, became endowed with the sacredness of her presence," writes Clifford Howard of Robert and Elizabeth Barret Browning in the June Ladies' Home Journal. "When Mr. Browing returned with her on a visit to England, after an absence of several years, he repaired to the little church in which they had been married, and there, at the entrance, he reverently kneeled and kissed the paving stones upon which she, the light of his being, had stepped. And in after years, when the light had gone from his life, he sought this sacred spot on the twelfth of each September, and in the dusk of the evening shadows passers-by might have seen a white-haired man kneeling for a moment as if in prayer before the doorway of the dark and silent church. Yet little would they have thought to recognize in this man the poet Browning, whose mystical writings have led the world to regard him as a man of austere nature."

The Mad Dog Bugaboo.

In the Ladies' Home Journal Edward W. Bok writes on "The Bugaboo of the Mad Dog," quoting a number of authorities to show that there is a much lighter case as "hydrophobia" and inquiring if "it is not time, therefore, in view of these indisputable facts, that we should give ourselves a little more freedom from the bugaboo of the mad dog? What the newspapers so essentially report as cases of 'hydrophobia' are, in reality, nothing more or less than instances of people who have been bitten by dogs and frightened into hysterical conditions in which they involuntarily reproduce all the supposed symptoms of 'hydrophobia.' It is a pity that our newspaper editors cannot have a more careful regard for the feelings of women during the summer months and agree to suppress the reports of cases supposed to be 'hydrophobia.' They make the public mind nervous and do more to spread the silly notion of a helpless 'hydrophobia' than anything else. Women have had their feelings played upon long enough by this foolish notion of 'hydrophobia,' and enough unnecessary suffering has been inflicted upon the dog, who is often killed for nothing but a popular fallacy. It is high time that common-sense should rule that we should believe the fact that there is no such thing as hydrophobia, and rid ourselves of this bugaboo of the mad dog."

Trainmen Were Asleep

Savannah, Ga., May 24.—The coroner's jury investigation of the Florida, Central and Peninsula railroad collision, at Burroughs' Station, in which Private Barbee of the First North Carolina regiment was killed, and Private Colclough was seriously injured, showed to-night that the conductor, brakeman and flagman of the freight train, which collided with the military train, were asleep when the third section of regular passenger train passed the siding, on which the freight was waiting, and did not know whether signals were displayed indicating another section was to follow. The engineer denied that he was asleep, but was in doubt about the signals and relied on the fireman, who said none were displayed. A bridge tender a mile away testified that he heard the whistle blasts of the passenger train. The fireman has not yet been found, but an effort will be made to get him before the jury to-morrow. The crew of the freight train had been 14 hours on duty when the accident occurred.

Infamous Swindlers

Capt. Wm. P. Oldham has received at his sill in this city a circular from a concern in Greensboro offering to sell him powdered talc with which to adulterate flour. The circular states the quantity of talc to be used in different qualities of flour and tells how impossible it is to detect it. Talc is much cheaper than flour and the circular holds out the fine opportunity to make money by adulterating flour with it.

The Federal and State authorities should look after the swindlers. They violate the Federal laws for using the mails for swindling, and the State laws provide severe punishment for adulterating food.—Wilmington Messenger.

All code books carried on warships have leaden backs to make them sink if lost overboard. The letters in the book, moreover, are print d with a peculiar ink which fades away when it comes in contact with the water. To make things still more safe, the letters are changed every few months by the navy department. Even on the warships few officers know their vessel's official signal code.

The Flying Squadron

The flying squadron passed over the city yesterday morning after midnight, but no one has any idea where it is.

From 1 to 2 o'clock a strange noise was heard in the sky. The night was very dark and one could not see upward very far, but those who heard the peculiar noise in the sky at that time, say it was an exodus of birds. There must have been millions of them, for they were an hour or more passing. They made a strange sound, like boys whistling. No one could tell which way they were going, whether south or South. Possibly they were Cuban swallows, seeking more peaceful shore.—Charlotte Observer.

Don't Neglect the Red Bugle.

A teacher once refused to take the advice of the committee and excuse a bad boy from school. The boy, knowing his teacher's confidence, began to do better and continued with such perseverance that he afterward became eminent. He was three times elected governor of New York, and once to be United States Senate. He was also under one of the Secretaries, Secretary of War, and under another Secretary of State. A word of encouragement proved to be the turning point in the life of William L. Marcy. How many have failed because of the lack of such a word!

They Are United

We have seen nothing more in correspondence for the last, than the declaration, by a Southern editor that the North and the South can never be united again, the late President of the Confederacy is declared by Congress to have been a patriot. In the first place the North and the South are united. If that union did once seek a fitting test, since Worth B. Ivy fell at Cashiers it has been given.—Biblical Recorder.

The government has fixed the rate for transporting soldiers at one cent per mile, the same rate they paid during the civil war. All the railroads between them will have the carrying of 125,000 soldiers. If they can afford to transport them at one cent a mile, ought the thousands who travel in North Carolina to be compelled to pay 2½ cents a mile.—News and Observer.

Passenger rates may be too high—we don't know—but we do not doubt that the railroads make more money hauling a big body of troops a long distance at a cent a mile than they do hauling a few passengers a few miles at 2½ to 3½ cents a mile. The railroads ought not to be allowed to make extortionate prices, as they sometimes do, but we believe in looking at things from a reasonable point of view. The News and Observer upon consideration must see the unreasonableness of its comparison.—Kinston Free Press.

Henry Shelby, one of the richest men in West Virginia, died in Shepherdstown, in that State, the other day with the peculiar distinction of never having slept in any house except the one in which he was born.

It is remarked as a curious coincidence that on May 22nd, 1861, North Carolina cast the First Regiment of Confederate Volunteers to fight United States troops, and on May 22nd, 1898, she sent the First Regiment of volunteers to fight under United States Volunteers to fight under Old Glory.

YANKEE DEWEY

The appended verses were written and recited by a bright and patriotic boy son of the Tiller School:

Yankee Dewey, he's all the talk
Down in Manila Bay, sir;
He found the Spaniards on their feasts
And blew them all away, sir.

Yankee Dewey, he's up and
O, never, you're a dandy!
Yankee Dewey, here's up and
Yes, Dewey, you're a dandy!

Then Yankee Dewey sent us word,
And this is what he said, sir:
"We've seen their gunboats every one,
And now I'll sweep on, sir."

Yankee Dewey, keep it up!
O Dewey, you're a dandy!
Yankee Dewey, keep it up!
Yes, Dewey, you're a dandy!

—Edgecombe Press.

The Distance to Manila.

The distance from Gibraltar to Manila, by way of the Suez Canal, is 8,351 miles, thus: From Gibraltar to Aden, 1,716; from Aden to Colombo 2,120; from Colombo to Singapore, 1,500; from Singapore to Manila, 1,455. It must, however, be remembered that passage of the Suez Canal, though in distance—99 miles—takes a considerable time, as it must be made very slowly. The canal, by a convention signed October 29, 1888, is examined from blockade, and vessels of all nations, whether armed or not, are to be allowed to pass through it in peace or war. The distance to Manila from San Francisco is 7,050 miles, thus: From San Francisco to Honolulu 2,080 miles; from Honolulu to Manila, 4,961. This shows a difference in favor of the passage from San Francisco of 1,301 miles.—New York Tribune.

A Thrilling Meeting.

Col. Parker, one of the most prominent of the visiting veterans and Dr. Kell, of Providence, had a meeting on the square. Friday, which thrilled many who witnessed it. The two old soldiers were shot down on the same field of battle, fighting side by side. They became friends. After the war each went to his respective home and they had not met since until Friday. They met in front of Jordan's. There was a look of recognition, a start of surprise, and then each opened his arms and the other fell into them. The scene was a touching one.—Charlotte Observer.

It is a noble act in a man when he sees one mistaken to stand up and defend whatever it is. And it is those kind of homes men who left the Democratic party four years ago, that may be expected to be the seven vote'rs with their "old noble er" this year.—Louisburg Times.

FUSION.

EDITOR REFLECTOR

There seems to be a striking resemblance existing between the Democratic party at the present time, and the children of Israel after the death of Moses and Joshua, and the elders of Israel who outlived them.

The contrast is equally as striking which existed between the children of Israel and the mixed multitude of their enemies, among whom they had to live and fight, and by whom they were frequently overcome and the same contrast seems to exist between the Democratic party and the mixed multitude of its enemies among whom it has to live and contend, and by whom it has been overcome in the last two campaigns.

The children of Israel were expressly forbidden to fuse with their enemies. They were told that if they did, by intermarrying with them, or by worshipping their idol gods, that their enemies would prove to be scourges in their sides and thorns in their eyes.

And while most of them were true to their laws, and obedient to their leaders, yet enough did frequently go off and fuse with their enemies to bring serious trouble among their tribes. So fusion with their enemies meant to the children of Israel, confusion of principle and sentiment, and all invariably brought disaster and defeat to their cause.

All Bible readers know this is true.

Now lets see if fusion has not brought the same results to us. A few years ago quite a number of our former friends, claiming to be Democrats, went off and fused with our common enemy—the Republican party. The result was confusion of sentiment among us, which brought disaster and defeat to Democracy, by destroying the best system of state and county government we have had since the civil war.

And now, in the face of all this we hear of some advocating fusion of Democrats with those who left us a short while ago, and defeated us fusing with our enemies.

Will true Democrats do this? We hope not—we think not. The only promise of safety to the children of Israel in dwelling alone, and we think the only safe thing for the Democrats to do is, to keep with those who have always stood up and met the deep blue sea are drowned.
