The second marriage was no happier than the first, and Coleman and wife No. 2 separated a few weeks ago, the wife obtaining a divorce and substantial alimony. Two days after the divorce was granted the couple remarried, but quarrelled incessantly since.

Coleman left his home two weeks ago with $640 in his pocket, all that he had left of his magnificent possessions, declaring he was going away never to return. He went to the village of Colfax, where he bought two quarts of whiskey.

An Influence in Home Circles.

Paying Double Prices A great newspaper exerts an i fluence far more extensive and lasting than that which is commonly credited to it. During the early days of the United States the power of the press was apparent chiefly in political circles; but with the advent of Schittes with which to multiply the circulation of news papers and the great advance made in their excellence as news purvecors they entered the home, and soon began to ex welse a marked influence on family life. This induence is continually increasing: and it is because of this important fact that the basiness world has 100 g
