Having served as trustee of college in this state for a number of years, and having lived in college town for the pass twenty yeara, we are convinced that there is no class of people in all the country who need taking down a "batton hole" more than does large per cent of the young men registered as students in North Carolina colleges. In these colleges you will find an elemen that is dangerously near azarehy and outlawry. They do not besitate to hold up the authority of to their wishes, destroy and mutilate its property, and visit all sorts of humiliating indignities upon a oung man whose only crime is that he is spending his first year at college. These are not hasty conclusions, but are facts based upon numerous examples, and are intended for the guilty, and not oody else. To be convinced that these unwarranted practices of students are on the increase, you only have to read the papers, which tell about them in all sec tions of our country.-Raleigh
