A LEARNED PASTOR.

He Won His Countryman and Captured the Congregation. A congregation in a certain eastern city had lost their pastor and were desirous of filling his place. But their last minister had been self-taught, and the aristocracy—to wit, the deacons, etc.—stipulated that the new minister should have a classical education.

In order to be sure of their man the deacons agreed to let applicants preach a sermon on trial. The living was good, consequently trial sermons were the order of the day. But, as the deacons said, they knew an educated man from a dufer, so the living remained vacant. At last a Welshman heard of the vacancy, but he was less learned than the one who had left. Still, he determined to try.

The day was arranged, the applicant duly arrived, and the candidate mounted into the pulpit. He got well on in his sermon when he suddenly recollected that he was expected to show his learning.

"My friends," he said, "I will now quote you a passage in Greek." With a solemn look he repeated a verse in his native tongue. The effect was marvellous. Approving nods and smiles were exchanged among the deacons.

Thus encouraged he followed up his advantage by saying: "Perhaps you would also like to hear it in Latin?"

He then repeated another passage in Welsh. This was even more successful than before. The preacher cast his eye over his flock and saw that he was regarded with looks of increasing respect.

Unfortunately there was also a Welshman in the congregation. He was sitting at the back, almost choked in his efforts to stifle his laughter. The minister's eye fell on him and took in the whole situation at a glance. Preserving his countenance, he continued:

"I will also repeat it in Hebrew." He then sang out in his broadest Welsh. "My dear fellow, stop laughing or they will find it out."

The other stilled his laughter and dined with him. —Detroit News-Tribune.

Cleopatra's Needles.

At Heliopolis were the Temple of the Sun and the Temple of Isis. The latter was visited by the deities of Egypt. The temple was considered the most accomplished of men in Egypt. When Strabo came hither, 100 years later, he saw the house which Plato had occupied. Moses here learned "all the wisdom of the Egyptians." Papius described Heliopolis as "fall of obelisks." Two of these columns were carried to Alexandria 1,337 years ago and set up before the Temple of Caesar. According to the authorities, this temple was built by Cleopatra. In any case the two obelisks acquired the name of Cleopatra's Needles, and, though the temple itself in time disappeared, the remains where they had been placed—one erect, one prostrate—until in recent years one was given to London and the other to New York.

A Little Lower.

The late Archbishop Temple, who is popularly believed to have been unequivocally brusque and cutting of tongue, had a sense of humor which enabled him to be suave upon occasion. When he was head of Rugby school, a handsome son of whom she was inordinately fond, went to Dr. Temple in great indignation. Her son's housemaster, she said, had described him in a letter to her as an imposter.

"My boy never deserved such an epithet!" she said, with deep feeling. "My dear madam," said Dr. Temple, "I feel sure that what the housemaster meant was that your son could not possibly be the angel he looked."

The Importance of Sight.

Among the five different organs by means of which alone we are enabled to perceive the various phenomena of the external world there is none of so great importance to us as the eye. There is no sense we make use of to such an extent or so often necessary to supplement and render sure the action of the other four as that of sight. To direct our sense of touch, to aid our localization of sound and in many ways to help our appreciation of smell and taste the eyes are invaluable to us.

But Some Are Better.

"All men," said the orator who refuses to give up stump speaking, "are born equal." "Hold on!" exclaimed the listener. "That may do to say in the street, but I can't take it home with me." "If I were to say to my wife that I thought our boy, whom we've christened Robert, wasn't any better than the red-haired twins next door there wouldn't be anything left for me to do except to say, 'Farewell forever' and live at an hotel!" London Tit-Bits.

BRIGHAM YOUNG.

The Great Mormon Leader Was a Man of Remarkable Shrewdness.

Whatever else may be said of Brigham Young, he was a great general, a magnetic leader of crude though undoubted power and a shrewd lawyer. We may about the idea that he was in truth a divine prophet, but we may scarcely deny him a large gift of the prophetic imagination. He was perhaps the greatest materialist of his time, but he got results. Though men of American blood had never before attempted irrigation farming on a large scale, though the possibilities of the arid country were then undreamed, though the obstacles of great distance from supply centers, of dangers from the Indians and from famine, were seemingly insurmountable, Brigham Young saw with the eye of the Mormon empire in the midst of the Great Desert, and such confidence did he place in his vision that his faith bore up and inspired all his people. Natural power is not so common in the world that we can afford to refuse it recognition, even when its exercise is not unaccompanied by glaring abuses.

The matchless bravado of the dreamer! Before his followers had enough to eat, before they knew whether they would ever see another spring, Young was sending out explorers and scouts to living reports concerning more distant valleys, already planning for the extension of the Mormon empire far beyond the valley where the first settlements were made, now Salt Lake City.

Every move made by Young was determined by a sort of diabolical logic. He had a keen eye for the witherous hands to secure control of all the water within a hundred miles or more of Great Salt Lake, knowing that this would give him a command of all the arable land, make him supreme dictator of the routes of travel and of the sources of food supply, a power of no mean magnitude at a time when misadventure was a thousand miles distant, and freight a dollar a pound or more—Ray Stannard Baker in Century.

A Better Record Book.

The Lancashire Chronicle, a Lancashire blacksmith, whose wife had not been doted by overeducation, is quoted by the Cornhill Magazine. It may be suggestive to students in our universities who spend the lecture hours in scribbling notes instead of listening and understanding.

The clerk in charge of a fairer class held by the county council at Preston, England, gave a stalwart blacksmith a note and asked: "What's this 'ere book for?" asked the man.

"To take notes," replied the clerk. "Notes? What sort of notes?" "Why, anything that the lecturer says that you think important and want to remember you make a note of in the book."

"Oh!" said he. "Anything I want to remember, I'll make a note of in this 'ere book, must I? Then wot do you think my blooming yed's for?" The Lancashireman looked scornful.

"Oh!" said he. "Anything I want to remember, I'll make a note of in this 'ere book, must I? Then wot do you think my blooming yed's for?"

"Oh!" said he. "Anything I want to remember, I'll make a note of in this 'ere book, must I? Then wot do you think my blooming yed's for?"

EDITOR REFLECTOR.

In the common order of things a lying child gives promise of developing into a lying man or woman. How many people escape the wicked slander of some deceitful, lying tongue?

Some days ago a little girl in town found a note near the door of her home. The note was addressed to her and bore the name of a little friend as its author. The whole thing was a forgery and a fraud. The contents of the note was a denunciation of the recipient and the language used so vile and vulgar that it cannot appear in print. This note may have been written in a spirit of fun, but even then the language showed the low down, contemptible nature of the child that had written to the injury of an innocent one.

I am told that this is not the first time that an incident of this kind has happened here, and my object in calling public attention to the matter is to suggest to parents and to teachers, the importance of warning children against such dangerous, low down, contemptible meanness.

When a child can be found that has been guilty of such an act, the punishment should be swift and sure. A boy that will write a vulgar letter to another child forging an innocent child's name, stands a good chance of winding up in the penitentiary, a girl in a place that is worse. Of course a note of this character is sure to wound little hearts and to estrange little friends; though in time they learn the truth and in consequence suffer no lasting harm. CITIZEN.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Foster of Hightower, Ala., relates on experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Chambersburg, Tenn., that he cured three of his fellow jurors of cholera morbus with one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some sour meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better; he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." For sale at Wooten's Drug Store.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, sour stomach is likely to follow, and especially so if the food has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let five hours elapse between meals, and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the sour stomach may be avoided. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville.

Cured of Lame After 15 Years of Suffering. "I had been troubled with lame back for fifteen years and I found a complete recovery in the use of Chamberlain's Pain Balm," says John G. Bisher, Gilman, Ind. This is not an unusual case, but it is a good example of the power of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville.

Most of the patent medicine testimonials are probably genuine. The following notice recently appeared in the Atchison, Kan., Globe: "Joe Tack, a well known engineer, running on the Pacific between Wichita and Klowa, lately appeared in a big one, with a picture, and when he was in the office today, we asked him about it. He says terrible pains in his stomach, and thought he had cancer. His druggist recommended K-dol and he says it cured him. He recommended it to others, who were also cured." drowned while bathing, and many of these fatalities occur on the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday. We have taken note of these matters for several years, as a rule confining our observations to North Carolina. The fatalities among Sunday bathers has already begun this early in the season. Ten days or more ago a negro was drowned in a creek in Wake county while bathing on Sunday, and last Sunday a young man was drowned at Wrightsville Beach while surf bathing with a party of ladies and gentlemen. If it were asserted that the fatalities among Sunday bathers was due to a violation of the Fourth Commandment the answer would probably be (1) that it is a strained construction to say that bathing on Sunday is a violation of the injunction to remember that day, and (2) if it is a violation, why are there not more fatalities among persons who engage in other and certainly more glaring forms of Sabbath breaking? And these questions could hardly be answered. But somehow we have a feeling that it is safer not to go in swimming on Sunday.—Statesville Landmark.

Ribbons Bill was getting blue! And his tongue was nimbly curled. Patent "tonics" wouldn't cure him. Companies would not insure him. All his friends were badly frightened. But their spirits soon were lightened. For Bill said—and they believed him, EARLY RISER little relieved him. BUFFALO HUNT.

We clip the following interesting article from an exchange. It comments upon the scarcity of the buffalo, also the sport that is in store for the National Editorial Association. It says:

We doubt if any specimen of the animal kingdom has been the subject of more ruthless slaughter and almost complete extermination than the American buffalo. In fact, it is not too much to say that the wild buffalo has entirely disappeared in this country, yet we have only to look back a century or so to the time when they were numbered by millions on the great plains of the west. Just how far east and in what numbers they existed at the Mississippi is a matter of doubt, but west of that stream the number was beyond computation, even within the memory of men now living. To the Indians of the west the buffalo was almost the source of life. In their savage state they killed the animals with arrows and spears, drove them over precipices or corralled them in rude enclosures. The meat was to them the main source of subsistence, the hides formed tents, clothing and shoes, and the horns and bones were found useful. In short, the buffalo was to the Indians of our plains what the reindeer is to the Laplander.

And yet, notwithstanding their great numbers they have almost completely disappeared. They were killed for hides, for their meat and for their heads and horns, and millions of them were killed for the mere pleasure of killing. White men and red men seemed overcome by the lust of slaughter, and the result is that the buffalo as a wild animal is no more. The few of them yet living are such as have been carefully protected on reserves or have been raised as domestic animals. A few days ago the Kansas City Journal spoke of the arrival in that city of thirty-two head, "said to be one-tenth of all the buffaloes left in the world." This statement is probably correct, or practically so, and shows how completely they have vanished from among us as a native animal. Those spoken of by The Journal were being conveyed to what is called the "191 ranch" of the Miller brothers near Bliss, in Oklahoma, who already own a number, and it is stated that this addition will give them the largest herd now in existence. As an evidence of the value of such animals it is stated that this addition of thirty-two head cost the Millers $10,000, besides the expense of securing them and conveying them to their ranch. The entire cost to them will probably not be less than $20,000. The Journal adds:

The Miller brothers are preparing to give a buffalo hunt at "191" ranch, June 11, that will cost them $20,000. At the last annual convention of the National Editorial Association Joseph Miller invited the association to hold this year's meeting in Oklahoma, and he promised to feed every man on buffalo. The Millers' National Federation, which meets in Kansas City June 7, has also been invited in a body to attend the buffalo hunt, and will go by special train. About 30,000 guests are expected at the ranch.

Whether the president comes or not next fall, he has given Raleigh and Charlotte an opportunity of saying some nice things in advance. It indicates a hearty welcome if he does show his face in those two cities.

"Human Life" is the name of a magazine just out. Everybody ought to be very careful not to take it.

WHAT WILL CHILDREN COME TO WHO ARE BROUGHT UP IN THE STREETS.

Bringing up children in a town is no easy task. It is a problem hard to solve. This we admit. The streets generally are the common playgrounds for a majority of children, especially little boys. And these same youngsters who are coming along now, will a decade hence, constitute the young men and women of our State. Take the congested criminal courts, they are the direct results of children who are permitted to run wild in the streets. In the streets children pick up all kinds of vulgarities.

This is of great interest to every father and mother. It is of vital importance to society and the State as a whole.

A boy with his childhood days spent on the side-walks and in the streets eight times out of ten is a stranger to any community. The only way to correct these evils is to take the children in hand and properly train them. There are plenty of ways in which their time and minds can be occupied when not in school.

No man nor woman is fit to be a father or mother whose whole being is dominated by evils which grow up in them and poison their future, which he surely will do if the proper course is not pursued in the early training of children.

Virginia got first this time. The appointment on the Gettysburg Battlefield Commission to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Major Robbins, will go to that state. Major General Lunsford Lewis Lomax, of Virginia, has been recommended for the position and the president has requested the appointment be made.

The news correspondents occasionally pull off some far fetched stories on the public. One of them was the recent rumor that a woman of soiled character had set up the claim of being a daughter of a prominent North Carolina tobacco manufacturer. It is no surprise that such a story has been declared false.

The violet calendar seems to be out of gear. Every month so far this year has given us weather that was unseasonable. We expect summer weather in summer time, but such temperature as this in May puts us to wondering what it will be in July.

We notice in the New Bern Journal that three merchants of that city signed an agreement to close their stores at 7 o'clock in the evening during the summer. In Greenville all the merchants except grocers and druggists close.

Whether the president comes or not next fall, he has given Raleigh and Charlotte an opportunity of saying some nice things in advance. It indicates a hearty welcome if he does show his face in those two cities.

The man who never makes a mistake is the man who never does anything.

At the Eastern Public Education Society in Richmond, a member in discussing race suicide said that eight children was the limit, why not set the limit at a base ball nine.

A scientist thinks he has discovered that man descended from a fish. One thing certain, there is a lot of money and scaly specimens existing to support his contention.

It may be pretty tough on our governor to live on $4000 a year, but he had his eyes open when he "took" the job and ought not to have a kick coming now.

Mr. Bryan says the only real peace is in religion. He just ought to have went up to Washington while Teddy was out in the wilds of Colorado.

After trying to corner all the wheat of America, Mr. Gates probably discovered that it was a larger place than he expected to "round in."

The trial of the people in South Carolina on the charge of participating in a lynching resulted in acquittal. That is what was expected.

Charlotte is trying the experiment of sprinkling the streets with oil. Other places large enough to afford it will watch the result with interest.

Appearances are deceitful. Two handsomely dressed women easily unbecame Columbus, Ga., jewelers out of several valuable rings.

There were terrific thunder storms in various sections of the country last week, and a number of deaths from lightning were reported.

There is no evidence that Cleveland is hankering after a job, but some fellows keep worrying about trying to find one for him.

The president has approved the recommendation that what is supposed to be the body of Paul Jones be buried at Annapolis.

No girl likes a brass band, but they are particularly fond of gold bands and especially when they are set with a solitaire.

Asheville has quit the high feather, the announcement coming that the ostrich farm there has been abandoned.

The pipe fillers are yet making wages writing about Nan Patterson. It is time they were being blue penciled.

There is plenty of green when you look at it, but whether it is grass or crops will take a closer inspection to disclose.

It is so warm that the people on this side don't care whether Rojostevsky and Togo get together or not.

A few days ago lightning struck a circus in Ohio. This is not so strange as circuses are very drawing.

France says Russia has not violated the neutrality laws. Of course not. She can prove it by Russia.

If Gates wanted to pay $5,000 for a walking cane it was all right, just so it was his money.

Chicago strikers are appealing for aid. They ought to help themselves by going to work.

The man who never makes a mistake is the man who never does anything.

Messrs Randolph, Fleming and Jordan, of House, spent Sunday with B. A. Beverly.

The farmers are having lots to contend with now for the grass is growing at full speed and it still continues to rain. It would be a bright idea for the clerks to go out and help.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall, of Goldsboro, are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Smith. Their baby has been right ill so their visit has been an unpleasant one.

The Baptists held their regular services last Sunday. Mr. Eubanks preached an excellent sermon.

Baker Womack, of Rocky Mt., spent Sunday night and Monday with his best girl.

Miss Lizzie Grimes spent Sunday in town.

J. J. Barker, an insurance man of Goldsboro, is spending a few days with us.

Theo. T. Thomas, spent last Sunday afternoon out at J. Rufus Carson's. He can tell you who was there.

Lawyer F. G. James, of Greenville, spent Monday in town on business.

W. C. Ward and Jackson Blount spent Sunday in the country.

The congregation at the Baptist church at the beginning of the services last Sunday morning was disturbed by a very sad accident. Miss Lucy Manning and her brother Louis, drove from their home a few miles in the country to attend church after Louis had taken the bridge off the horse, in order to put the halter on, the horse became frightened and began to jump and run. Louis held on to the horse's head to the last, knowing what great danger his sister was in, as he had left her in the buggy. But the horse soon freed himself from the grip of the young man and went dashing ahead in a frightful manner. All who were witnesses of the scene started in awe expecting the young lady to be killed, especially when the frightened animal wheeled and crossed the railroad. But as God's all seeing eye watches over his loved ones, He reached out His mighty hand when she was hurled from the buggy on the rugged railroad and shielded her from fatal injury but not from painful results. She was immediately taken to the home of Dr. R. J. Grimes, one of our most prominent physicians, where she has received the best of attention in every respect. Miss Lucy is one of our most beloved young ladies, and everybody wishes her a speedy recovery.

Here are two interesting facts about policemen: (1) The policemen of London do not carry revolvers. London is the largest city in the world and there is not a more orderly city in the world. (2) A deserter from the navy was arrested in St. Louis one day last week and given over to a certain policeman to deliver as a prisoner at Newport News, Va. The officer had never ridden on a train before and was as gleeful as a child. He was born in the city 35 years ago and had never been out of it on train or boat. So here is one policeman whose lot was a happy one for awhile at least. He had never known anything but the maddening crowd's ignoble strife, and the peacefulness of the country through which he passed must have seemed very odd to Mr. Copper.

Smart Dressers.

Young men are, as a general thing, the smartest dressers.

The up-to-the-moment Young Man is a sort of a lexicon of clothes style and correctness. He knows what's what and gets it.

But good fit, the newest colors, patterns, etc., aren't enough; for unless that snappy, jaunty appearance—characteristic of our Tailor Made Clothing—is there, it is not what the young man wants.

Our success in pleasing Young Men is not just "luck." It's due to our knowledge of what the young man wants and our ability to provide for him.

Then again our prices are always reasonable. Did you ever notice how many young men come here for clothes? There's a reason for it.
