COTTON ACREAGE AS VIEWED NOW.

New Report Makes Cut Over 14 Per Cent.
Washington, July 26--Assistant Secretary Hay today made the following report to Secretary Wilson on the acreage of cotton in the Southern States in 1905 as compared with that in 1904.

A MAD STRUGGLE.
Woman's Screams Brought Aid and Arrest of the Negro.
Charlotte, N. C., July 26.--Ed Hall, a young negro, attempted criminal assault upon Mrs. Mack Auten at the home of her husband, four miles east of the city, this morning, but was foiled in his purpose.

A HUGE "BABY"
Tips the Scales at 337 Pounds
"There is a good sized baby at my house," remarked Superior Court Clerk D. C. Moore to the reporter this morning, there being a jovial twinkle in his eye as he spoke.

PERSONALS AND SOCIAL.
Thursday, July 27th.
S. J. Parham went to Henderson today.
Miss Sadie Joyner went to Haskells this morning.

A Marked Improvement.
Washington, July 25--The weekly crop report of the Weather Bureau today says:
Although improvement is indicated in parts of nearly all of the cotton states, it is neither general nor marked.

Accepts Call as Pastor.
The committee appointed by the Baptist church to notify Rev. J. E. Ayscue of his call to the pastorate of the church, reported to church at the service Wednesday night that he had accepted the call.

Lawn Party Near Grifton.
St. John's and Salem churches will have a joint lawn party in L. J. Chapman's grove, near Grifton, on Wednesday evening, August 2nd, from 8 to 12 o'clock. The attendants are expected to contribute a number of pennies that they are years old.

AVON FARM CROPS.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

On the Avon farm, now owned by W. H. and S. T. White, is a scene to be delightfully enjoyed. W. H. White gives his personal attention to the large farm with its 200 acres in cotton, 375 acres in corn, and 30 or 40 acres in tobacco. The Avon has been noted in days gone by when Col. Joseph H. Saunders was the princely superintendent for William Grimes— and was the most valuable piece of property of a farm nature Mr. Grimes owned. Messrs. White have again gotten the farm in its pristine glory. There is a crop of great beauty on the place this year and Mr. White expects to harvest a bale of cotton to the acre and something like fifteen hundred barrels of corn.

Mr. White has used no commercial fertilizer except potash, and this with cotton seed meal he made from the farm, and he attributes much of the success of this year's crop to the fact of giving distance to the crop in the row, his cotton rows being 4 feet apart. This shows the wisdom and good judgment of Mr. White in his management. We dare say there is not a more attentive and successful farmer. He is running forty-two plows on his several farms in the county, and is a first-class man and citizen in every respect. X.

The Security Life and Annuity Company Mutual.

A Home Company conducted on a safe, economical basis in the interest of its policy holders. Why we can save you money.

The oldest companies have been on a 4 per cent reserve basis for many years. Several of them have recently changed from a 4 per cent basis to a 3 per cent or 3 1/2 per cent basis, on account of a decrease in interest rates. Probably 80 per cent of all the outstanding business is now on a 4 per cent reserve, only the new business being on a 3 per cent or 3 1/2 per cent reserve. Following are the rates of a few companies on the old and new basis:

Twenty-Payment Life. Age 35.
COMPANY	OLD RATE	NEW RATE	NEW RATE
New York Life	4 per ct.	3 1/2 per ct.	3 per ct.
Equitable	$35.00		$38.34
Penn Mutual	35.00		38.34
Prudential	34.21		37.25
Mutual Benefit	34.01		36.95
Metropolitan	33.97	$36.96	36.22
Mutual Life	35.00	36.87
North Western	34.91		37.80
Security Life & Annuity	32.50

The variation in rates of companies on the same reserve basis is due to difference in the amount added for expenses. Every policy is registered and the full legal reserve deposited with the Insurance Commissioner.

THE FIRST GOLF BALLS.

They Were Made of Bull's Hide Stuffed With Feathers.

The first golf balls were made of leather of untanned bull's hide, two round pieces forming the ends and a piece for the middle. These pieces were softened, shaped and firmly sewed together, a small hole being left through which the feathers might afterward be inserted.

Before stuffing the leather sphere was turned outside in an operation not without its difficulties—so that the seams would be on the inside.

The skin was then placed in a cup shaped stand, the worker having the feathers in an apron before him, and the stuffing was done with a steel rod.

This was very hard work, as may be imagined. The aperture was then closed, the seam sewed up, and the only seam showing was this tiny one.

But the life of each ball was short. The seams soon opened, and the feathers protruded. On a wet day the water would be seen driven off in a shower every time the ball was struck.

And the moisture added to its weight, so that a ball that started as a twenty-eight would soon weigh a pound. If the match was an important one a new ball must be put down at each hole.

With these disadvantages one can see that a new kind of ball was much needed and made many converts to the game.

Although the gutta percha ball used on the links is seemingly perfect, the inventor is busy trying to make one even better. The ball made of this material has been in use since 1848.

A golfer of that period experimented with a piece of india rubber and succeeded in fashioning it into shape. But when it was put into use it was found that it was not a success.

It would leave the club all right, but after going a short distance it would duck down, so its use was abandoned.

The caddies amused themselves with the discarded invention until it was pretty well nicked up. To the surprise of everybody the ball, with the addition of a few more, sailed through the air much better than the old one.

The next mold was nicked to give the gutta percha sphere the same lines, and this, with one improvement after another, is the ball in use today.—New York Journal.

All in Her Eye.

A woman noted for her good management—a phrase which is often a euphemism for parsimony—was making some garments for her small daughter. She had limited herself as to material, and proud of her success in achieving much with little, exclaimed as she finished her work, "There's not enough left to put in your eye!"

A few moments after she was horrified to see the afore-said small daughter, seated on the floor, patiently and painfully filling her eyes with the tiny scraps of cloth scattered over the carpet.

"Dorothy," her mother cried, "what are you doing?"

"Why, mamma," the matter of fact Dorothy responded, "you said there wasn't enough to put in your eye, and there's enough for both of mine."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Singular and Double Bishops. It is not generally known, says a biographer of "Nineteenth Century Ecclesiastical Celebrities," that at one time there was a remarkable similarity between the family names of the bishops of Exeter and Worcester, so much so, in fact, that one looked like the plural of the other, the one being spelled Philpott and the other Philpotts.

This remarkable coincidence afforded the bishop of Exeter an opportunity of perpetrating a joke at his brother Worcester's expense. Referring to him on one occasion, the bishop of Exeter spoke of him as: "My singular brother of Worcester."

"Ah!" retorted the bishop, who was well known for his manly straightforwardness, "There is nothing double about me."

Origin of Words. The origin of words is often curious. Take "quiz," for instance. This came from a wager laid by a Londoner that he could coin a word that would be on the lips of every one on the following day. He then went forth and wrote "Quiz" on the walls, fences and walls and billboards of the city. The next day every one was inquiring what it meant, and the word thus got its meaning. The word "tip" originated in the old coffee houses of London. At the door was a brass box with a slit in it. Engraved upon it usually were the letters "T. I. P." an abbreviation for the words "To insure promptness." Customers as they departed dropped coins in the box for the waiters.

Equal to the Emergency. An old admiral well known for his power of exaggeration was describing a voyage at supper one night. "While cruising in the Pacific," he said, "we passed an island which was positively red with lobsters."

"But," said one of the guests, smiling incredulously, "lobsters are not red until boiled."

"If correct," replied the undaunted admiral, "but this was a volcanic island with boiling springs."

A GAME OF CARDS.

She Made the Trumps and He Approved of Her Decision.

They had been partners at the card party all the evening, and naturally he became her escort home. "I held such poor hands during the series of games that I would enjoy holding better ones now," he said as he reached gently for hers.

"If you had a different partner," she said after a mild and ineffectual resistance, "you might have held better hands during the game and afterward."

"But you were such a good one then and such a good one now," he insisted, "that I want you to be my partner all through the game of life."

For a brief instant her hands struggled to be released. "I am afraid I do not know how to play my cards," she said smilingly.

He drew her tenderly toward him and said, very low, very earnestly, "I want you to help me the best you can to play whatever cards Fate may deal us."

Timidly she looked up into his face and whispered, "If I play with you may I name the trump?"

"Yes, yes," he said—"always and always."

"It shall be a diamond for awhile," she said slowly as she looked far away into the mysteries of the starry sky.

"I shall play the ace tomorrow," he said exultingly as he tried to draw her toward him.

But she repelled him until she said, "And after that it shall be hearts for all the years that are yet to come—hearts for every minute of the time that shall blossom between us and eternity."

"Yes," he said, stooping as she came unyieldingly toward him, "hearts of love, hearts that shall win always and always while you and I are partners, my dear."—New York Times.

Habit Was Too Strong.

The force of old associations, as Samuel Haverly learned one Sunday morning, is something against which to be on guard. After thirty years of service as a railroad man, chiefly in the capacity of conductor, Haverly had retired and was spending his days quietly in his native town.

Just after he had taken his accustomed seat one morning in church he was requested to perform the duty of an absent deacon, by assisting in taking up the collection.

He was proceeding decorously along the aisle with the plate when, half way down the aisle, he came to the Atkinson pew. On this morning Mrs. Atkinson's Uncle Harvey, who happened to sit next the aisle, had dropped off into a pleasant little nap.

When Haverly espied the old man, he unconsciously doffed the demeanor suited to the place and in a twinkling became official. He tapped the sleeping man on the shoulder.

"Picket, please!" he demanded, sharply and audibly.

Irish Courtesy.

An Irishman has oftentimes such particular regard for the feelings of a stranger that rather than contradict him he will appear to acquiesce in many things that he could not be expected to believe. I said he will appear to acquiesce. A tourist who was sailing upon Loch Erne once wished to test the alleged character of Irishmen for politeness. Now, there was a regular squall on, and at a moment when the old boatman was engrossed and had all his energies bent to lowering the little craft before the wind the inquisitive one, leaning over to the old boatman, shouted in his ear, "Very little wind today!"

"Very little indeed," was the reply, "but what there is of it is mighty strong."—Leslie's Magazine.

The Malay Fishers.

Crew of Malay fishing vessels in the Indian ocean are thus described by a traveler: "Some of the Malays have not bad features, but others again are awful looking villains. Every one has his creese, or a sort of chopper, at his side, and with bright red lips and black teeth, caused by chewing the betel nut, looks anything but inviting or fascinating. The crew live principally on rice and the fish they catch. They carry a lot of coconuts and coconut oil, and apparently are a luxury sort of sweetest made of a coarse treacle and rice mixed together and firmly pressed into hard balls."

Equal to the Emergency. An old admiral well known for his power of exaggeration was describing a voyage at supper one night. "While cruising in the Pacific," he said, "we passed an island which was positively red with lobsters."

"But," said one of the guests, smiling incredulously, "lobsters are not red until boiled."

"If correct," replied the undaunted admiral, "but this was a volcanic island with boiling springs."

BETTER HOLD IT AWHILE

It is handed down now from high er up that the penitentiary cleared one hundred and twenty thousand dollars last year over and above expenses, twenty thousand more than the authorities expected. And the Winston Sentinel advises that they use this unexpected twenty thousand to start the erection of that long talked of reformatory, whereupon the Wilmington Messenger says:

"While we favor the reformatory idea, we would suggest that this extra sum be held so the penitentiary authorities will not have to borrow or ask for an appropriation in the near future because of discovery of a mistake in their calculations as to what profits the institution has made. We are always hearing about the prison being self-sustaining, but when the time comes for paying accounts instead of making figures as to profits the state has to come to the financial aid of the board."

From the arguments going on we infer that the issuing of bulletins by the government giving the condition of the cotton crop at stated periods will not be abolished. Because there have been leaks in no reason why there is not value in the reports, but they should be properly safeguarded to prevent advance information being furnished speculators.

The report that John F. Wallace, who has lately resigned as chief engineer of the Panama canal was to become president of the Seaboard Air Line railroad has been denied. While he is an experienced railroad man the Seaboard thinks it can get along very well without him.

It is stated that the government is contemplating an order discontinuing the use of bicycles by rural mail carriers on their routes. We fail to see why there should be objection to any means of locomotion used by the carriers so long as they perform their duties well.

The weeds and grass that have been cut and remain on the sidewalk is a nuisance saying nothing about the danger it is to the health of the town. Weeds when cut should not remain over twelve hours, they should be hauled off to a safe distance.

Wonder what the Bennington investigation will amount to when completed. It was given out when the explosion occurred that the boilers were unsafe, but their use was continued and the disaster followed. This is about all an investigation will show.

Some writers have been saying that railroad wrecks were practically unknown in England. A wreck that occurred near Liverpool, a few days ago, in which twenty three people were killed, will about equal any disaster that takes place in America.

That the Japs are no fools becomes more pronounced every day. It has come to light that they do not want the Philippines, even if a bonus should be attached. This explodes Uncle Sam's hope of unloading an undesirable possession.

A New Jersey posse in pursuit of a negro murderer, surrounded him in a thick woods and set the woods on fire to smoke the negro out. Note the fact, please, that this is an occurrence in the North.

Japan will ask for an indemnity of about a billion dollars from Russia. When you think that the war has cost Japan a million dollars a day, the amount asked for does not seem so large.

You can't stop Asheville. She has opened her doors to the New Orleans yellow fever fugitives and sent them an invitation to come up to the mountains and escape the plague.

We see from reports in some of our exchanges that the big sausage mills have done a rousing big business during the dog days. We are not very fond of sausage at this season of the year.

A man died in Michigan the other day from having a hat pin pressed into his heart. Silly fellow. He ought to have had the lady remove her hat before he started the pressing business.

In New York they send "mashers" up anywhere from six months up, but here in North Carolina they either send them to the undertakers establishment or to the hospital.

The steamer fitted up to take Peary on his arctic expedition is named the Roosevelt. Guess it has a big stick on the bow with which to break the ice.

It is said that Peary's desire is to plant the flag somewhere near the North Pole. It strikes us that flags wouldn't flourish and grow much in that country.

The Japanese are giving Secretary Taft and Miss Roosevelt a royal reception in Tokyo. They think there is nothing like Uncle Sam's folks.

We learn that the President has been worked up to such an angry pitch that he is about to lay down the olive branch and take up the big stick again.

It is all right to pay honor and respect to a man after he is dead, but wouldn't it make a fellow feel better to receive some of it while he still lives?

Lawson is eager to take the West into his confidence. The West will be very wise, however, if she don't let Tom take her money also into his confidence.

Mr. Root is now favoring the president which was in vogue about seventy-five years ago, whereby the secretary of state shall succeed the president.

It is said Premier Balfour refuses to resign. Acting just like some of our Americans.

The let up in the heat was not of long duration. Yesterday was one of the most sultry days we have had.

Morton has been elected president of the Equitable. The little salary of $80,000 per year attached will probably enable him to keep fairly presentable.

Emperor William, it is said, will have Japan and Russia to understand that he has no desire to give away. Evidently he means to charge for it.

Put as much energy in work during the fall and winter as has been given to base ball in the summer, and there will be better times ahead.

The long promised Charlotte hotel looks to be on the way. A contract has been let for one to cost $200,000. It will be called the Highlands.

Cotton leak false Holmes has not been bothered yet. It begins to look like he knows a little about "the man higher up."

Might not be a bad idea for New Orleans to send representatives to Havana to learn how to stamp out yellow fever.

Rockefellow says "Everyone is striving to get ahead." We guess he's right since he is one of them in front.

The $50,000,000 coal merger in Ohio doubtless means higher priced coal for next winter.

Say, it has been several days since we have heard of Paul Jones being buried again.

The political campaign in Norfolk is being enlivened by scraps between the candidates.

The odors of the Equitable still fume very high, and Depew is yet to arrive.

One thing Italian immigrants are doing for New Orleans is spreading yellow fever.

Gen. Marston Paid for Contempt.

The following anecdote is told of General William Marston, a once famous lawyer in New Hampshire: General Marston was attending court at Dover, when a young attorney made a motion that was denied by the court. The young man re-monstrated against what he thought was the wrong ruling of the judge. So vehemently did he remonstrate that he was fined $10 for contempt of court. An older attorney took the matter up, and he was fined a similar sum. Still another, who thought he stood a little better with the judge, endeavored to straighten the matter out, but he, too, enriched the coffers of the state by paying a "ten spot" for contempt.

General Marston was then seen to rise in his seat and advance to the clerk's desk. Taking his long pocketbook from his pocket, he took out two $10 bills and laid them on the desk.

"What is that for?" said the court. "I want you to distinctly understand," said the general, "that I have just twice as much contempt for this d—n court as any man here, and I am paying for it"—Boston Herald.

Record of Cleveland's Cabinets.

Of the members of the two cabinets of President Grover Cleveland, only seven are now living and 14 are dead, as follows:

Living—John G. Carlisle, Don Dickinson, Hoke Smith, Judson Harmon, David R. Francis, Richard Olney and Charles S. Fairchild.

Dead—Daniel S. Lamont, Thomas F. Hayard, Walter Q. Gresham, Daniel Manning, William C. Endicott, Lucius Q. C. Lamar, William C. Whitney, Hilary A. Herbert, Norman J. Coleman, J. Sterling Morton, Wilson S. Bissell, William L. Wilson and Augustus D. Garland.—Philadelphia North American.

Exports are now trying to determine whether more Russians have been killed by Japs butters than have run themselves to death. It's a nutty question.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION.

The young men of North Carolina have unusual opportunities for education and training in agriculture. With the completion and equipping of the new agricultural building at the A. & M. College, Raleigh, N. C., the best of opportunities are provided for young men to secure a training in all of the lines of work dealing with farm life. No line of education is better prepared for the State than agriculture, and hundreds of young men should avail themselves of this institution the coming year.

The college opens September 6, 1905. Scholarships and work to help pay the expenses are offered for the assistance of young men who are depending on their own resources.

Young men over twenty years of age are admitted to the two year course in agriculture without examination. Arithmetic, algebra, English composition and history are required for admission to the four year course in agriculture.

Further information and catalogue can be obtained by addressing the professor of agriculture, C. W. Burkett, West Raleigh, N. C.

"Went to Sleep."

Went to sleep out yonder, Where the daisies grow, And the daisies hid him from me Long—long ago!

But I see him still in Springtime—Trace his footprints in the snow!

He comes to me when mornin' Makes the meadows smile so sweet There's a rustle o' the rose-leaves— I hear his dear heart beat.

And I hear his little feet! Went to sleep out yonder— Birds sang him to his rest. And I whispered, in God's silence: "Tis God that loves him best!" But he comes near, and still I hear His breathing on my breast!

—Atlanta Constitution

Chas. O. Haines, of the North Carolina & Ohio Railroad Company, which proposes to build a road from Washington, N. C., to Durham, is spending a day or two here, conferring with a number of capitalists who met him here. He says a surveying corps has already completed a survey from Washington to Greenville and is now working between Greenville and Newbern. The proposed road will be via Wilson and may include Raleigh. Within the next few days the aldermen of Washington will act on an application for right of way through certain streets to a desirable water terminal and much depends on the action they take. Mr. Haines says if the road is built the work of grading will commence at an early date.—Raleigh Observer.

Senator Butler says the News is going to be a self-sustaining paper in a short time. Right along then, we believe, is where he is mistaken. We understand that it proposes to compete in some sense with the Charlotte Observer. That paper, we should think, gets away with about seventeen or eighteen hundred dollars a week. Say the News will expend about twelve hundred. On that basis there will have to be some hard work done and done with surprising quickness if the News is to become a "self-sustaining" institution.—Greensboro Telegram.

Senator Simmons' position that the cotton estimates should not be discontinued because of the cotton scandal recently unfolded is exactly right. The Department should, as he says, be purged of those responsible for the leak. As to the actual value of the government's estimates we are not in position to speak, but their abandonment now would be a confession the United States government cannot clear itself of dishonest officials.—Charlotte Observer.

Record of Cleveland's Cabinets.

Of the members of the two cabinets of President Grover Cleveland, only seven are now living and 14 are dead, as follows:

Living—John G. Carlisle, Don Dickinson, Hoke Smith, Judson Harmon, David R. Francis, Richard Olney and Charles S. Fairchild.

Dead—Daniel S. Lamont, Thomas F. Hayard, Walter Q. Gresham, Daniel Manning, William C. Endicott, Lucius Q. C. Lamar, William C. Whitney, Hilary A. Herbert, Norman J. Coleman, J. Sterling Morton, Wilson S. Bissell, William L. Wilson and Augustus D. Garland.—Philadelphia North American.

Exports are now trying to determine whether more Russians have been killed by Japs butters than have run themselves to death. It's a nutty question.

Relic of Last Century.

In looking over some old papers Col. A. Sugg found a relic that reminds him of by-gone days. It was a Confederate road for $1,000, which he says is one of fifty that he purchased before he was 19 years old. These bonds were issued by act of congress of the Confederate states in 1863 and were payable in 1868, but of course the result of the civil war made them valueless. Col. Sugg has had his framed to preserve it as a relic.

Third Case of Diphtheria.

Physicians have pronounced that another child in town has diphtheria. It is a little son of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Perkins, on Greene street. This is the third case that has been reported. As every precaution against the spread of the disease is taken, and the cases are very mild, there is no need of alarm. At the same time it is well enough for parents to be careful how their children run around.

Aycock's Son Has Appendicitis.

The friends of ex-Governor and Mrs. C. B. Aycock will regret to learn that their son, Frank Daniels Aycock, has appendicitis.

Mrs. Aycock, accompanied by her brother-in-law, Dr. Albert Anderson, of Wilson, went from Goldsboro to Wilson with her son, who will be treated at the Wilson Sanatorium. The many friends of the family will earnestly wish for a successful operation and a speedy recovery.—News and Observer.

WOMAN HAPPIER THAN MAN.

She has the Faculty of Enjoyment to a Greater Degree.

Women have a better time in life than men do. Under no circumstances would I choose to be a man. If I had a chance to go back to earth again in another incarnation and were given the choice I should without hesitation elect to be a woman, writes Angela Morgan for the New York World. Women know how to get the finest flavor from life. They know how simply because they are born to it, not because they acquire the knowledge through effort.

To draw the real essence from living one must be endowed with these qualities: Imagination, intuition, sensibility and the capacity to love. Women possess all these requisites to a greater degree than men. For this reason women can lay hold on the subtlest enjoyments of life. And, from the subtlest enjoyments are the best and most lasting. It is the woman who has a monopoly of real happiness in life. It is in her capacity to love that woman experiences her greatest joy. Woman gets a vast deal more out of love than man. Show me the man to whom love means one-tenth that it does to a woman! When a man loves, the external scenery of life does not change visibly to him. Life does not become a thing bewitched and gilded. His days and hours and moments are not permeated by love as an influence. Love to a man means an exhilarating chase for possession. A woman, however, captivates him, and he wants her for his own. In possession, he finds a certain pleasure—a certain pride and satisfaction—but as for happiness, the sort of happiness a woman extracts from life, why, he doesn't know. He looks the fairest of beings, but he is too busy to give it more than a cursory thought or two. His mind is too crowded with practical things to admit the "intangible." But when a woman loves, she does not live until she does love. Love to her is all absorbing, all transforming, all embracing.

"Spoon Bill" Idiots.

The late Professor Laycock of Edinburgh university used to divide idiots into two classes—poverty idiots and luxury idiots. The former were characterized by physical deformity and the latter by refined and delicate configuration, small heads and great prominence of the central region of the face. The luxury idiots, whom he traced to indolence and self-indulgence through many generations with breeding in him, he called also "spoon bill" idiots and used to point out that they were of the type represented as a grotesque noodle. There was less breeding in them, and in the upper classes than there used to be, but he himself did not doubt that exemption from any participation in the struggle for existence, with high feeding and pampering, tended to induce mental weakness of a special type.—London Telegraph.

A Use For Him.

An Englishman who has been traveling in the west in the early days of the war, with a long train of prairie schooners. The leader of the caravan, according to the Buffalo Commercial, announced that he and his fellow emigrants were going to found a town, having everything that was useful and nothing that was unnecessary. "We won't have any waste," he said. "There isn't a person in our party who won't find a useful duty in the new town." The Englishman pointed to an old and feeble man, with a bent back and a long, thin, white beard. "But that very old man there," he said. "He can't possibly be of any use to you, can he?" "Oh, yes," said the leader. "We open our new cemetery with him."

Let It Go at That.

The heavy villain of the last storming aggregation stalked into the workshop of the village editor.

"What did you mean by referring to me as a 'misfit' in your write-up of the performance last night?" he asked.

"I meant," answered the local molder of opinion, "that you were entirely too great for the company you are with."

And the heavy villain, being a stranger to the ways of the village editor, believed him.—Chicago News.

Her Great Need.

Little Alice is old for her years. One evening after she had gone to bed she heard mamma and papa laughing in much enjoyment over a game of gin.

She longed to get up and join them, but she knew she must not. The next morning at breakfast she was very quiet. Presently she drew a deep sigh.

"I feel the need of a husband, mamma! I do feel it!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Marriage of the Dead.

A strange custom prevails among a certain tribe in the Caucasus. When a single young man dies, some one who has carried to the grave a marriageable daughter in the course of the year calls upon the bereaved parents and says:

"Your son is sure to want a wife. I'll give you my daughter, and you shall deliver to me the marriage portion in return."

A friendly offer of this description is never rejected, and the two parties soon come to terms as to the amount of the dowry, which varies according to the advantages possessed by the girl in her lifetime.

An Important Omission.

Mamma—Angela, to whom are you writing?

Angela (with a pretty blush)—Harry.

Mamma—Why, Harry only left five minutes ago. Surely you must have said all you wanted to say to one another when you were billing and cooing in the porch?

Angela—No, mamma. I asked Harry if he really, truly loved me, and he said he did not. I quite forgot to ask him whether he would go on loving me for ever and ever. That's why I've got to write to him now.

Gastritis, so Pronounced by Physicians, Cured by Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy.

Huntersville, N. C.

May 15, 1902.
Two years ago I was completely run down. I suffered from indigestion all the time, with gas on the stomach, and the trouble was pronounced gastritis. I had no appetite for anything, and felt no inclination to eat. This brought on nervous prostration, and the least excitement brought on a nervous spell and I could hardly control myself. I could not get any natural sleep as a result of this nervousness. I was under medical treatment for four years, and was not even benefited.

I then determined to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, bought one-half dozen bottles and I commenced to improve when on the fourth bottle. I was much stronger, slept much better, did not have those nervous spells any more, and knew that my general health was building up. My appetite was improved and I began to enjoy eating and what I ate agreed with me. With all my ailments I had neuralgia of the bowels, which caused me intense suffering. After I took six bottles of the Remedy I found I was certainly mending, and bought six more. Before I had finished the dozen bottles the neuralgia of the bowels was completely cured. I took in all a dozen and a half bottles, which restored me to good health. I feel that I owe my life to Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. I was not able even to keep house, but had to employ help for everything. I was run down so that I felt that life was no pleasure in a certain sense. Now I am able to attend to all my household duties, and feel that I am some good, once more, to my family.

If any one has indigestion or nervous prostration, my advice is to take Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, and if one will only take enough to build up the system, it will surely cure.

Town of Farmville. Notice of summons against and warrant of

E. J. Pollard.

The defendant, E. J. Pollard, will take notice, that on the 14th day of June, 1905, a summons was issued against him, in the above entitled action, by the undersigned clerk of the Superior court of Pitt county, returnable to the September term, 1905, of Pitt Superior court, which convenes on the second Monday after the first

Monday in September, 1905, it being the 14th day of said month, which summons was returned to the sheriff of Pitt county for execution and with this endorsement, "Defendant E. J.

Pollard, do not obey this summons."

The purpose of said action as alleged by the plaintiff is to recover of the defendant the sum of three hundred dollars for breach of his warranty of a
