

SHELMERDINE ITEMS. SHELMERDINE, N. C. Aug. 12. F. G. Wisley left this morning for Atlanta, Ga., N. J., and various other points.

With Greenville, Winterville and Ayden all having electric plants, why not predict that these towns will ere long be connected by a trolley road. It would be a fine thing for all three of these good towns.

An idea of what has to be endured sometimes in dealing with labor unions is shown by an incident which occurred in Greensboro the other day. It seems that the plumbers' union has a regulation which prohibits any member of the union from riding a bicycle to or from the shop to a job of plumbing on which he may be engaged.

The preliminary report of Commissioner Yerkes, of the Internal Revenue Bureau, shows that the receipts from all internal revenue sources during the year ended June 30, 1905, amounted to $234,187,675, an increase as compared with the fiscal year 1904 of $1,284,195.

Those Virginia Republicans undoubtedly haven't much chance, or else they would not be promising so much.

Frank T. Pulley, the efficient chief of Tarboro's police force, has been spending several days with his brother, Robert Pulley, at Jackson avenue.

Miss Minnie House and sister left for their home near Hester this morning accompanied by their friend, Miss Isabelle Oakley, of Shelmerdine.

COUNTY MATTERS.

Proceedings of the Board of Commissioners. The board of county commissioners were in regular monthly session on the first Monday.

Orders amounting as follows were drawn on the treasurer: For papers $157.75; county home $54.49; books and stationery $30.75; attorney $50; register of deeds $23.95; commissioners $27.70.

A petition from the Greenville tobacco board of trade was presented asking that convicts working the public roads in the county be assigned to the roads adjacent to the town of Greenville.

Those present were: Mrs. H. C. Hooker, then 4-lighted all present with several vocal selections, which were rendered in a graceful and charming manner.

For the purpose of better working the roads between Carthage and Bethel townships, it was ordered that the hands on the roads of Sam Edwards, Louis Higginbotham, G. G. and R. D. White.

Wires Damaged by Lightning. During the storm Sunday afternoon some damage was done to the wires around town, the telephone and electric light wires being struck several times by lightning.

What has become of the Osceola band? We have not heard a note from the boys this summer. There is too much good talent here for it to be allowed to go to waste.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Many Birthday Presents and a Delightful Evening. A delightful surprise party was given to Miss Bernice Horaday, at her home on Second street.

As Miss Bernice returned to her home in the early evening and found a large number of friends present, her look showed that she was greatly surprised.

Those present were: Mrs. H. C. Hooker, then 4-lighted all present with several vocal selections, which were rendered in a graceful and charming manner.

MORE TROUBLE.

Prince George, the Prophet Breaks Loose Again but Gets His Dates Badly Mixed. The Journal acknowledges the receipt of a postal from Ayden which is signed by some one who styles himself "Prophet George."

His prophecies ended so miserably that he has kept quiet for a long time and now he is kind of going slow but at the same time he keeps up his old tricks.

EXCURSION DID NOT GO.

Crowd Not Large Enough to Make the Price. There was to have been an excursion from here to Tarboro today by one of the colored Sunday schools of the town.

It takes plenty of horse sense to run a successful horse show. Lie, and the world lies with you, tell the truth and alone you talk.

Chinese Exclusion
The Exclusion treaty with China having lapsed, considerable doubt is expressed in official circles at Washington as to whether it will be possible to obtain China's consent to another treaty for the exclusion of Chinese laborers. Throughout China at the present time there is ill feeling toward the United States, due in a large measure to the indiscriminate enforcement of the Exclusion act, such enforcement in very many cases humiliating Chinamen of rank and importance. This ill feeling is expressing itself in a boycott of America's products. China and the United States are friendly nations, yet China is discriminated against as no other nation friendly with the United States is. Chinese laborers are excluded, but the citizens of other nations, regardless of social conditions, are admitted to this country, providing they can meet the requirements of its Immigration laws. Naturally, China feels that if her citizens can meet the requirements of our Immigration laws they should be admitted too, and not without cause, for her citizens morally are equal, if not superior, to many citizens of other countries, that secure landing on American shores. It is really a serious question whether or not China should even be asked to assent to another treaty of exclusion of her citizens. All things considered, it might be better either to make a law excluding them which the United States has a perfect right to do, or so to amend our Immigration laws that undesirable citizens of all countries, including the Chinese, will be unable to enter this country. If between China and the United States there is friendship why should any exception be made that will reflect in the least upon China? How would Americans feel if the situation were reversed? It must be borne in mind also that China is an awakening nation; that it is beginning to understand why it has lost caste among the nations of the earth. Spurred on by Japanese influence, it may become another and more powerful Japan, for its people are today better educated on the average than are the Japanese. With such a prospect would it not be better policy to cement the friendship that now exists, than to run the risk of creating a menace to American interests in the Far East. —N. Y. American.

OLD TOURAINE.
As Rich in Historic Interest as in Natural Beauties.
Touraine is as rich in historic interest as it is in natural beauties. The house of Valois had a special liking for the banks of the Loire, and the great nobles of their court built near the royal residences their own chateaux—marvels of architecture, strength and beauty, but of which there is not a stone that is not cemented with blood, and they met plot with counter plot, if treason could not be met with force, a sudden surprise or a stab in the dark or the malignant skill of some Italian chemist laid to rest forever suspicions which might have been unfounded. It is but fair to state, however, that this was not often the case, for the nobles were turbulent and ambitious, and when not engaged in waging war openly or covertly with their sovereign, quarreled among themselves and led forth their retainers to surprise or besiege a neighboring castle. On the battlement of every donjon there was a watchman, day and night, every eye in the valley below, and ready to his hand was a huge horn, one blast of which would alarm the garrison and bring them to the walls. A few feet below the watchman there dangled from a jutted beam the corpse of some poor wretch, and in the loathsome dungeons beneath the most others were chained to the rocking walls, for every castellan had the right of administering "greater and lesser justice" and could dispose of the lives and liberties of his vassals as he deemed fit. He had other privileges also, some of which make us wonder why the revolution did not come centuries earlier. Frederick Lees in Architectural Record.

Calvinized.
One very hot day Dr. George E. Ellis, the historian, going to an informal dinner with a friend, wore a very comfortable but unfashionable thin coat and manila hat. A notoriously orthodox clergyman began to banter the Unitarian divine regarding his big straw hat, whereupon Dr. Ellis replied that he would not have a word said against that article of apparel, inasmuch as it had been a good friend of his for four years. "Why," exclaimed his friend, "how could it have lasted so long?" "Because it has been Calvinized," replied Dr. Ellis. The host, misunderstanding the word, inquired with amazement how the hat could be Calvinized. But Dr. Ellis, with a sly twinkle in his eye, looked straight at the orthodox minister as he replied: "I did not say 'Calvinized.' I said the hat had been 'Calvinized—dipped in brimstone.'"

A Useful Member.
The small son of a clergyman who was noted for his tiresome sermons overheard two friends of his father saying how dry they were, and how hard it was to keep awake during them. The following Sunday, while the minister was preaching, he was astounded to see his son throwing pebbles at the congregation from the gallery. The clergyman frowned angrily at him, when the boy piped out in a clear treble voice: "It's all right, pop. You go on preaching; I'm keeping them awake."
His Slight Mistake.
"Do you remember, dear," he asked as they sat down on one of the rustic seats at the summer resort, "what I cut our initials on this tree behind us three or four years ago?" "Why, no, George," she replied. "I don't remember that. Are you sure?"
He arose, walked around the tree and inspected the bark closely. "Yes," he said, "it's the same tree, all right, but it was another girl."
His Punishment Assured.
The musical instrument seller had succeeded at last in working off a cheap fiddle on a customer at four times its value.
"Where shall I send it?" he inquired.
"To 914 — street. My flat is on the third floor."
The fiddle dealer's face fell. He had moved, with his family, the last before to the flat on the second floor of 914 — street on a three years' agreement.

Consideration.
De Long—I say, old man, when are you going to pay back the $10 I let you have six months ago?
Shortwad—Oh, in a few days. I would have paid it back long ago only I was afraid of hating your feelings.
De Long—In what way?
Shortwad—I didn't want you to think I thought you needed the money.—Chicago News.

Love and Time.
They were seated so close together on the parlor sofa that there was room between them for an argument about the lady's hat being large and soiled with
"What's the matter, darling?" he asked.
"Oh," she replied, "I just happened to think that this would be our last evening together until tomorrow evening!"

GAINSBOROUGH, THE ARTIST.
He Painted Portraits For a Living and Landscapes For Pleasure.
Gainsborough, while painting portraits for a living, painted landscapes for his own pleasure and lived at Hampstead during the summer that he might be constantly in fellowship with nature. It was this love of nature and of simple things and the faculty of seeing beauty in them that gave such a choice distinction to his work, because it was the expression of his own simple, lovable personality. He had beauty in himself, and all his life it fed on simple delights—the joys of nature, of domestic happiness, of music and of his own art.
He was born in the little town of Sudbury, on the river Stour, in the beautiful county of Suffolk. As a boy he loved to ramble in the country, sketching, and showed so much inclination for it and so little for any other kind of study that when he was fifteen he was sent to London and placed under the care of a silversmith, who procured him admission to the St. Martin's Lane academy. Here he worked for three years, studying painting. Gainsborough's eighteenth year was an eventful one. He hired three rooms in Hatton gardens and set up as a painter on his own account. Meeting with little encouragement, he returned to Sudbury. There he fell a victim to the charms of a young lady of seventeen, Miss Margaret Burr, who had an annuity of $1,000. Here he worked on happily and quietly for fifteen years, continually studying in the open air and executing such small commissions for portraits as came his way, until he had succeeded in having himself painted in a manner of painting suited to his needs and had developed an extraordinary skill.
In 1760 he moved to Bath, at that time the most fashionable city outside of London. The gay world of that time congregated there to drink the waters. Gainsborough's success was immediate, but with increasing wealth there was no alteration in his simple method of living.—Charles H. Coffin in St. Nicholas.

Man In the Kitchen.
The helplessness of mere man in the presence of ordinary domestic tasks was illustrated in the case of the old man, who explained that he had once tried to improve his cooking by studying a book of recipes. "It was no use," he sadly confessed, "because every one of them receipts starts off with 'Take a clean dish.'"
He was kin to one of the sons of Mrs. Dunsmuir, a Scotchwoman living in Pennsylvania. She was called away from home one day just after dinner. As she was leaving she said to the boys:
"One of you must wash the dishes and the other wipe them and put them away, so that everything will be tidy by the time I get back."
"All right, mother," said Jack. "But Will's got to wipe them. I'm willing to wash, but wiping is such greasy work!"

Benefit of a Rural Life.
Fresh country air is wholesome and a sovereign remedy for many of the ills that afflict the weary city dweller. The tendency in this country has been too much to crowd into the great cities, and many of the poor of the slums and overtaxed tenements would be greatly benefited if they could be removed to the farms. The magazines that encourage the love of rural life are doing a great work, and not the least feature of their mission is the cultivation of the aesthetic quality. They promote a love for the beautiful in nature that will result in the preservation of much of the natural loveliness of the country that has been too ruthlessly dealt with by the unappreciative utilitarian in the past. —Nashville Banner.

Russian Peasants.
There is one European country in which the traveler may find people dressed in every particular exactly as they were generations ago. That is Russia. In its more unfrequented districts the peasant type has advanced scarcely at all. The people are almost as they were before the Russian invasion. The women wear the quaint national costume, which is gradually disappearing elsewhere in Russia, as it is in other countries, and the tall, bearded men show no marks of modern civilization either in habits or garb.

LOSES A LEG.

W. C. Moye Meets a Terrible Accident. Between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning Wiley C. Moye, who works at the manufactory of the Building & Lumber Co., and is also one of the stockholders in the company, met with an accident that means him for life.

The accident was a terrible one and much sympathy is expressed for Mr. Moye. He is an industrious young man and the misfortune comes upon him just as he was in the prime of life.—Daily Reflector 17th.

ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL.

W. C. Moye Dies From Accident. Wiley C. Moye, the young man whose leg was so terribly mangled in the accident with which he met at the plant of the Building & Lumber Co. Thursday morning, never recovered from the shock and loss of blood, but died at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

A Dozen Crushed.

Allentown, Pa., 16.—A mass of limestone, weighing thousands of tons, slid from the side of the quarry of mill A of the Lehigh Portland cement company at Allentown at noon today just five minutes before seven men work in the quarry which is a thousand feet long, 150 feet across and one hundred feet deep. The heavy ruins of the past two days had softened the earth and caused the slide of rock.

The Robber Lacked Nerve.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 17.—News was received here this afternoon of a bold attempt which was made last night to hold up and rob Mr. Turner, the ticket agent and telegraph operator at Starkey's Station on the Roanoke & Southern division of the Norfolk & Western railroad.

EXCURSION TRAIN PLUNGES THROUGH DRAWBRIDGE.

Engineer Failed to Stop Train and Passengers Were Hurlled to Death.

Between 50 and 100 Killed and Large Number Injured--Many Greenville People Among the Victims.

Early this afternoon THE REFLECTOR received a telegram from Norfolk that the excursion train for Norfolk which was wrecked at Bruce, a little station between Suffolk and Norfolk. The only particulars given in the telegram was that the train ran into an open draw of the bridge and that many of the passengers were killed and injured.

The excursion was for colored people and many from Greenville went on it. When news of the wreck was bulletined there was much excitement among the people here. The excursion was run by W. E. Jolley, a white man here, and three other white persons went along to assist him in managing it.

The work of rescuing began as early as possible after the wreck and during Thursday afternoon as many as bodies were brought out the dead were taken to undertaking establishments in Portsmouth and the injured to hospitals in Norfolk.

The streets adjacent to Scott's undertaking establishment in Portsmouth where bodies were taken for identification, are a mass of humanity, mostly negroes who are there searching among the dead for friends or relatives.

They were anxious moments to the crowd that waited around the telegraph office Thursday evening and until well into the night to get further information from the wrecked excursion train at Bruce, Va., told about in Thursday's REFLECTOR, and in which a number of Greenville people were involved.

It was known Thursday night that among the identified dead the following were from Greenville; Walter Forbes, a young white boy. Nelson Peebles, colored. Doc Hemby, colored. Mary Jones, colored. John Marable, colored. Advice was sent for the bodies of these to be sent to Greenville by first train.

PERSONALS AND SOCIAL.

Thursdays August 17th. J. L. Fleming went to Hamilton today. J. L. Moore went to Scotland Neck today. Miss Jessie Lee Sugg returned home from Norfolk Friday to look after him.

The raising of the cars and engine from the river has been placed in the hands of a steaming company of Norfolk and the company began work this morning. The number of bodies already recovered from the wreck is between 40 and 50 and more will be found when the cars are raised.

MAIL CARRIER ARRESTED.

United States Commissioner L. A. Sugg had his first case before him today. The defendant was S. W. Scarborough, a rural free-delivery mail carrier, from Kingston, and the charge against him was the sending of an improper letter in the mail.

The survivor as groups of interested friends surrounded them, gave harrowing accounts of their experiences in the awful wreck. It is marvellous how a number she were saved came out of the disaster alive.

A well-known poultry and pig-raiser of Northampton, Miss., is combating bird lice and other vermin with tobacco stems, with the aid of the birds' intelligence and prudence.

Wednesday a man from Belvoir township, we did not learn his name, brought to town a large rattlesnake which he had killed. The reptile had eleven rattles. That is the second rattlesnake reported from Belvoir this season.
