

Born Teacher who Willed Her Estate to an Orphan Asylum.

Have your request to contribute a notice of some great North Carolina teachers whom I have known for publication in the educational edition of your paper to be issued on the 13th, inst. In the attempt to comply with your request, I will do my best as possible, present your readers, or perhaps unknown to you, and yet one, who if judged by her true and high apprehension of the responsibility of a teacher, her faithful and diligent discharge of her responsibilities of a teacher, her long and arduous service as an educator and her remarkable success in impressing those who came under her influence with a proper appreciation of the value of moral and intellectual culture, would, I think be deemed worthy a place by the side of those who occupy the most exalted positions in the Pantheon of North Carolina's truest and warmest souls and daughters.

About sixty-five years ago, or to be exact 1835, Miss Sallie Ann Jones, then a young lady of eighteen or twenty years, opened a primary school in support of one of the residences of Miss Anna Evans of blessed memory in the good old town of Greenville. Her school soon outgrew the capacity of that room and was removed to the old Masonic Lodge, whence on to the Greenville Ave. only, where halls had been honored by the presence and services of such teachers as Elizabeth, Lovell, Henry Dinwiddie, Judge E. J. Warren, Dr. C. J. O'Hagan, David B. Wallace, Mr. James Murray and others.

For more than a quarter of a century this primary school was an amazing institution in that town, attracting by its well earned reputation, a large patronage from parents and the adjoining counties, and few were the boys and girls of that section and period who do not owe its advantages. It was strictly held to its original basis, never transgressing its curriculum, the elementary branches of English—these were taught, however, with a precision and thoroughness never exceeded elsewhere.

Miss Jones was a lady of rare intelligence. Her mind had been developed and cultivated by study and by careful and judicious reading, she had a genius for teaching and was devoted to it as a life work; she knew how to excite and sustain the interest of her pupils, an interest in their studies and possessed to an eminent degree an aptitude for imparting instruction; she was thorough system, in all things, and proverbially prompt and best of all, seemed any refuge that might serve as an excuse for an evasion of duty. It follows from the above, that if the discipline in her school must have been nearly perfect. She was by her gentle and sympathetic bearing towards her pupils their confidence and esteem, and yet with her uniform conscientiousness, she was inexorable in the maintenance of discipline; her rules were to be obeyed. Upon the table at which she sat laid the insignia of authority—the dread instrument of retribution—the studious and obedient regarding it with a humorous complacency, while to the disobedient and delinquent, it was an object of terror. There are two venerable and most estimable ladies living today in the good city of Raleigh, one of whom can testify to the truth of the above statement; the other, if not from personal experience, can, as an eye witness confirm the testimony.

I recall quite a number of her boys, who have risen to distinction in life, a few to eminence, and scores of her girls who have traced the most polished circles of society from whose homes sons and daughters have gone forth, who are today the benefactors and ornaments of the communities in which they live. It was she who guided their youthful feet in the paths of virtue and learning, and it is through them, that the gracious influence of her life is going out and on to ever widening circles. In the course of her useful career she accumulated quite a nice little estate which, dying, she bequeathed to one of the orphan asylums in the state, an act strikingly in accordance with her noble and generous nature. T. C. DA. IS. Wilson, N. C., Aug. 10.

[The above was taken from the recent educational edition of the Raleigh News and Observer. I will be read by the people of Greenville with much interest, especially the many who were pupils of Miss Sallie Ann Jones and love her memory.—Editor.]

Rust and Shedding.
Washington, August 15.—The weekly report of the Weather Bureau says: "As in the previous week, the best favorable reports respecting cotton are received from the eastern districts where the prevalent moist and shedding conditions, during the past week, have put the cotton belt in a large part of the central and eastern portions of the cotton belt is received from 50 to six inches of rain, which has proved injurious. In northern Alabama and in portions of Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, cotton has improved, but in other portions of these states the crop was deteriorated. Oklahoma and Indian Territories, Kansas and Missouri cotton has generally improved, although local conditions of shedding, rust, and insects are received from Arkansas. "Too much rain and lack of sunshine have proved unfavorable to tobacco in Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, elsewhere this crop has advanced satisfactorily."

Friday Night.
The Imperial Entertainment Company is to appear at Masonic temple here house Friday night, the first of a most successful summer season at W. G. H. Theatre, where thousands of people witnessed the splendid performances. The life motion pictures are worth seeing and should not be missed.

Hurts Fodder But Makes Hay.
It is the happy man who looks at the bright side of things. As farmer was asked if the rain was not ruining much fodder. "Yes," he replied, "but it is making hay grow as fast as you ever saw it. So it is not so bad after all."

To Whom It May Concern,
This is to certify that I am indebted to the game of ball between Aycock and Ormondsville, August 8th, and that there was an understanding before the game, between both captains—McKinzie and Turnage respectively—and myself, that only seven innings were to be played. Willis Dixon.

Miss Lillie Carmer Dead.
Miss Lillie Carmer, daughter of Mrs. J. R. H. Carmer, died at Washington Tuesday. She was well known in Greenville, where she frequently visited some years ago, and had a number of friends here.

LOSES A LEG.

W. C. Moye Meets a Terrible Accident.

Between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning Wiley C. Moye, who works at the manufactory of the Building & Lumber Co., and is also one of the stockholders in the company, met with an accident that means him for life. He was in the act of passing by a planing machine that was in motion, and stepping too near a shaft the left leg of his pants was caught by a set screw. The rapid motion of the shaft drew his leg around it and before the machine could be stopped his leg from the ankle nearly to the knee was horribly mangled, the bones being broken into fragments and the flesh torn to shreds.

Mr. Moye was taken to the office of the factory and medical aid summoned as quickly as possible, an examination showing that an amputation would be necessary. The accident was a terrible one and much sympathy is expressed for Mr. Moye. He is an industrious young man and the misfortune comes upon him just as he was in the prime of life.—Daily Reflector 17th.

ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL.

W. C. Moye Dies From Accident.

Wiley C. Moye, the young man whose leg was so terribly mangled in the accident with which he met at the plant of the Building & Lumber Co., Thursday morning, never recovered from the shock and loss of blood, but died at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The death under such circumstances of a young man so full of promise is extremely sad. The funeral took place this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Nobles place.—Daily Reflector 18th.

A Dozen Crushed.

Allentown, Pa., 16.—A mass of limestone, weighing thousands of tons, slid from the side of the quarry of mill A of the Lehigh Portland cement company at Allentown at noon today just five minutes before seven men work in the quarry which is a thousand feet long, 150 feet across and one hundred feet deep. The heavy ruins of the past two days had softened the earth and caused the slide of rock. Only nine of the men got away safely, four of whom escaped by running up a mass of rock on the opposite side of the quarry. The remaining eighteen were huddled in a space three feet square, and twelve of them were killed, and six injured. Two of the latter, may die.

The Robber Lacked Nerve.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 17.—News was received here this afternoon of a bold attempt which was made last night to hold up and rob Mr. Turner, the ticket agent and telegraph operator at Starkey's Station on the Roanoke & Southern division of the Norfolk & Western railroad. The attempt was only interrupted by the awakening of a colored man at the proper time.

Mr. Turner was busy working with his telegraph instrument when he was interrupted by a big black negro, who walked up behind him and said, "I guess you have plenty of money." Turning around the agent was confronted by the man, who had a pistol pointed at his head. The visitor demanded the agent's watch, and while Mr. Turner was moving to get it the noise awakened a colored man waiting for a train and who had fallen asleep in the corner of the station. The robber turned, and seeing the other man, made a break for the door and disappeared.

EXCURSION TRAIN PLUNGES THROUGH DRAWBRIDGE.

Engineer Failed to Stop Train and Passengers Were Hurlled to Death.

Between 50 and 100 Killed and Large Number Injured--Many Greenville People Among the Victims.

Early this afternoon THE REFLECTOR received a telegram from Norfolk that the excursion train that left Kinston this morning for Norfolk had been wrecked at Bruce, a little station between Suffolk and Norfolk. The only particulars given in the telegram was that the train ran into an open draw of the bridge and that many of the passengers were killed and injured. Bruce being a small station definite particulars could not be had.

The excursion was for colored people and many from Greenville went on it. When news of the wreck was bulletined there was much excitement among the people here. The excursion was run by W. E. Jolley, a white man, and three other white persons went along to assist him in managing it.

During the afternoon several telegrams came from colored people in the wreck to their friends or relatives letting them know they were safe, but none of these messages gave any further information than had already been received. All the afternoon the telegraph office was crowded by persons trying to get information about the wreck, and THE REFLECTOR telephone rang constantly for news. Not much can be given at this writing more than that several were killed and injured, but their names are not yet known.

LATER.—It was learned just before going to press that the draw to the bridge was opened for a tug to pass, and the engine and one coach of the train plunged into the river before the engine could apply brakes. Bruce is about 9 miles from Norfolk. The wreck also caused much excitement in Norfolk, as people there being under the impression that it was a white excursion. Several telegrams were received here asking if certain persons had gone on the excursion.—Daily Reflector 17th.

They were anxious moments to the crowd that waited around the telegraph office Thursday evening and until well into the night to get further information from the wrecked excursion train at Bruce, Va., told about in Thursday's REFLECTOR, and in which a number of Greenville people were involved. Those having friends or kindred in the wreck were anxious to learn of their safety, and to enable them to get as much information as could be had the telegraph office was kept open at night an hour later than usual.

As details of the wreck came in the horror and magnitude of the disaster increased. Early reported that the engine and one car had gone overboard into the river, while later the number increased to three cars, and the list of casualties grew from 7 killed and 24 injured, to 20 killed and about 50 injured, with the belief that even more cars were submerged beneath the cars.

It was known Thursday night that among the identified dead the following were from Greenville; Walter Forbes, a young white boy. Nelson Peebles, colored. Doc Hembly, colored. Mary Jones, colored. John Marable, colored. Advice was sent for the bodies of these to be sent to Greenville by first train.

W. E. Jolley, white, manager of the excursion was reported missing and believed to be drowned. Heber Forbes, the other white man who went to assist him, was reported in a hospital, injured but doing well.

It was expected that today would bring more definite information of the extent of the disaster, and as this came to hand its horrors had increased. When the train went into the open draw bridge it was running at a speed of 15 or 20 miles, the engineer having ignored the rule to stop his train at such bridges. Both the engineer and fireman saw the open draw too late to stop the train. Airbrakes were applied but did not work, the engineer and fireman jumped to save themselves, and the engine and two coaches dived with human beings plunged through the opening into the river.

The work of rescuing began as early as possible after the wreck and during Thursday afternoon as fast as bodies were brought out the dead were taken to undertaking establishments in Portsmouth and the injured to hospitals in Norfolk. The list of dead and injured that has been furnished does not bear out the tale of the disaster. It is impossible to even identify all who are brought to the surface, while there are many others whose bodies lie at the bottom of the river in such a mangled condition that even after being up they can never be recognized. Many who have lost their lives in the wreck will fill unknown graves owing to this impossibility to recognize them.

The streets adjacent to Scott's undertaking establishment in Portsmouth where bodies were taken for identification, are a mass of humanity, mostly negroes who are there searching among the dead for friends or relatives. The frequent wails of grief that rend the air tell when such have been found. The scenes are pitiable.

This morning several bodies were taken into Portsmouth that were found during the night and the search is still in progress when the last information came from Norfolk. It is believed that the list of dead will reach 50 or 60, while some fear it may go to 100 by the time the worst becomes known, as very few who were in the two coaches escaped alive.

Workers were at work today in the effort to raise the coaches from the river, and when this succeeds more bodies will be found. The difficulty in identifying is the cause of so few names being furnished.

In a message to THE REFLECTOR this afternoon the names of the following additional from Greenville are given among the dead:

The Teacher's Troubles With Foolish Parents

Every school teacher knows what it is to contend with a pupil that is allowed to have his own way at home, and a boy who has parents that "take up" for him when the teacher whips him is to be pitied—not on his own account but because he has such foolish parents. We had rather have a boy brought up in an orphan asylum than to have him brought up by parents who have no more discretion or sense of duty than to get mad with the teacher who, in the discharge of his duties gives their boy a part of what he needs with a hickory sprout. There's nothing that will put devilment and rebellion in a boy and carry him to the dogs any faster than the foolish habit of parents in taking sides and sympathizing with him when he runs up against a whipping at school. Some great philosopher has said that while imperfections of nature cannot be entirely removed, they can be greatly diminished by wise management. When a boy is naturally possessed of a mean disposition and happens to have parents who, under false sympathy, refuse to compel obedience, that boy is more than apt to be heard from later on through the criminal court records.—Our Home.

The Jim Crow Text Book.

The late superintendent of education for Wake county made a recommendation that has attracted far less attention than it deserves. It is, briefly stated, to give the negro school children text-books with pictures of negro children and not of white boys and girls. He thinks that these text-books should be simple and he argues that "the average negro child cannot handle abstract questions. Their minds are not equal to those of the white children. It is also a mistake to put readers in the hands of negro children with the pictures of white girls and white boys in them. It helps to increase the desire for social equality. Give them readers with pictures of negro girls and negro boys and farming implements in them." There is sound logic in this. We are not so sure about the study of pictures of white children increasing the desire of negro children for social equality, but the general idea of negro books for negro children is a good one. Such books would undoubtedly stimulate a greater desire for learning in the breast of the little darkeys.—Charlotte Chronicle.

There are few states in the union according to the latest statistics, which are not investigating official corruption of various degrees and kinds. Some of them have legislation openly and notoriously on the market. Members are bought like so many cattle. Great and righteous indignation is created and in some instances the people have risen in their might, demanded and secured reform. No one suggested for a second that because a Legislature was flagrantly corrupt that it be abolished. Yet a corrupt Legislature is far more detrimental to public interests and demoralizing to public sentiment than any minor branch of government could be. So we view the dispensary business. Admit that there is graft and corruption in it, does it necessarily follow that honest men cannot be obtained to operate it?—Columbia Record.

The physical view of the health of the men in Wake county jail for embezzlement is now being urged upon the governor, who is told that continued imprisonment for Rogers and Storey may mean death. Very properly Governor Glenn says that this is not a case to be diagnosed by lawyers, but by physicians, and that he must hear from a "non-partisan" board of doctors that confinement means death before he can think of "prison bounds" relief.—Raleigh News and Observer.

ANIMAL ARCHITECTS.

Many birds, insects and certain fishes are clever architects and builders and have mastered some of the rudiments of masonry, and at least one bird is a very clever stonemason. The last is called by the Spaniards the "pedrero," or stonemason. In Great Britain it is known as the wheatear. It usually builds in a deep crevice in a cliff, but often it chooses a low excavation or cave and sets to work. It uses no mortar, although some other birds can mix mortar to any degree of hardness. It first collects a number of stones and places them together as a foundation for the future nest. Next it builds a dry stone wall in front of the place the nest is to occupy. This is often a solid barrier, in which the stones are piled in such a way as to make it almost as thick as it is long. The barrier of stones in front of one nest examined by a writer on the subject was nine inches long, nine inches thick and ten inches high. In this barrier there were no fewer than 282 stones. In the foundation of the nest were 76 more, making 348 in all, of which the total weight was four and a half pounds, the largest stone weighing two ounces. Having thus made the foundation and wall of stone, it builds inside the latter a comfortable nest, the upholstery of which is in no way deficient in finish. Swallows and house martins build by sticking together pellets of prepared road mud. Most of the material is obtained from the drying puddles on the high roads. If not mixed with anything else the tendency of these pellets would be to crumble when dry. But the swallow tribe are supplied with a mucous secretion which enables them to gum the particles together. The swallows' nests from which the Chinese "bird's nest soup" is made are constructed of this mucous matter only. An Indian swallow, which builds little boat shaped nests against the trunks of lofty trees, practically makes them of dried saliva.

Among the birds of the western hemisphere the best mason is a pouter as well. This is the oven bird of the pampas in South America. It is called the "causara," or house builder, by the Spaniards. The nest is made of mud and bits of straw, practically the same as the material used for most buildings in Mexico. The walls are very thick, and there is a partition wall inside, reaching so high as to form an antechamber.—Chicago News.

Deceiving the Natives.
The British Medical Journal tells the following story: According to Sir John Mactwin, a well known Scotch surgeon, on the introduction of vaccine inoculation into India, the practice met with great opposition from the natives. In order to overcome their prejudices Mr. Ellis of Madras, who was well versed in Sanskrit literature, composed a short poem on vaccination in that language. The poem was inscribed on old paper and was said to have been just discovered. The object of the poem was to show the impression of vaccination's antiquity might help to reconcile the minds of Brahmins to the use of a prophylactic drawn from their sacred cow.

The Hedgehog.
A hedgehog curls itself up by a frown—that is, by muscles like those which produce a frown—and it frowns severely or gently, according to circumstances. If it is poking hard, it "sighs" it is right. If really hurt, it frowns into a tight ball. The prickles can be erected in a measure, though as they point all ways, this is not needed. They are as sharp as needles. We have only known one dog, a large black and white setter, which would deliberately bite a hedgehog till it killed it. But this dog was quite mad and shared some of the anesthesia common to certain lunatics.

Enforced Virtue.
"It's no use, Tommy," said Bob, after trying to open the pantry door. "Not one of the keys will fit, and so we don't get any of those preserves."
"Oh, yes, we will," said wise Tommy. "We will wait until mamma comes home and ask her for some for being such good boys."

GRANT AND LONGSTREET.

A West Point Friendship That Held Throughout Their Lives.
The strong schoolboy friendship which began at West Point between Grant and Longstreet lasted throughout their lives. Grant was of the class after Longstreet, but somehow their silent, serious natures were in spontaneous accord, and, says Helen D. Longstreet in "Lee and Longstreet at High Tide," they became fast friends from their first meeting. That one was from the west and one from the south made no difference, just as later it made no difference in their feeling of personal affection that one led the army of the Union and the other was a Confederate general.
General Longstreet often spoke of the details of the capitulation at Appomattox. He said that when he went into the conference room in the McLean residence as one of the Confederate commissioners he was compelled to pass through the room occupied by General Grant as his headquarters.
He felt curious to know how General Grant would receive him. He had loved Grant as one of his closest boyhood friends, but times were much changed. Grant was victor, he was vanquished. He was therefore prepared to observe the rigid demeanor of those between whom ceremony only forces recognition. But as soon as he entered the room Grant rose, approached him with a greater show of demonstration than ever in the older days and slapped him on the shoulder, exclaiming: "Well, 'Old Pete,' can't we get back to the good old days by playing a game of brag?"
The important part of that meeting, the splendid bearing of the conqueror, the modest demeanor of the Union victor and above all, the noble generosity of Grant in refusing to accept the sword of Lee and in giving the fairest terms possible under the existing circumstances, these are known to all who have read United States history.

The Giddy Octogenarians.
They were neither of them brilliant scholars, but they liked to move with the times, and regarding their knowledge of current events, so the daily newspaper was regularly delivered at their humble domicile, and it was Jennie's duty to read out during breakfast time all the most interesting items of the day. One morning, after wading through the latest intelligence page from the front, she turned to another page of the paper and said: "Herbie, it says here that another octogenarian's dead."
"What's an octogenarian?"
"Well, I don't quite know what they are, but they must be very sick creatures. You never hear of them but they're dying."—Scottish American.

The Cakes of Our Childhood.
It must be a common experience with us all to look back with something of wonder, even of humiliation, to the things in literature or art we once thought exquisite and of highest worth. The oratory we once sat under, the music we once sang or played, the engraving we used to buy and hang on our walls when we were eighteen and infallible—how poor and cheap they often seem after a quarter of a century or so, during which we have read more, thought more, used our eyes more and drunk deeper of the "still sad music of humanity!"

Herbivorous Animals.
Herbivorous animals do not eat all of nature's menu. The horse refuses the water hemlock that the goat eats with avidity, and, on the other hand, the goat refuses some plants that are eaten by the sheep. The tobacco plant is avoided by all save the goat, man and the tobacco worm. Some botanists think that no plant is absolutely poisonous, but only relatively so, being harmful to only certain animals.

Spring an Editor.
"Are there no times," said a man entering the office of a busy editor, "when you can write better than at other times?"
"Yes."
"Ah, I thought so. That man who writes most consult their condition I have no doubt. Now, tell me, when can you write best?"
"When I am alone," the editor replied.

The Time For Romance.
Bridgroom—Well, that umbrella is gone, and I'll have to get another one. Will step into Fifth Street, please.
"Dear me! Why?"
"My darling, let's not spend our honeymoon waiting for change."—New York Weekly.

GREENVILLE, PITT COUNTY, N. C., TUESDAY, AUG. 22, 1905.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

We want to again refer to the address of President Jefferson to the Tobacco Board of Trade, published in The Reflector a few days ago and urge the other business men of the town to follow the example of the tobacco men in working together for the advancement of the town.

The Pinesboro Record, edited by Maj. H. A. London, has entered upon its 28th year. The Record was founded in 1878 by Maj. London and has been solely under his management ever since.

The retiring superintendent of schools in Wake county recommended to the board of education that negro children be given text books with pictures of negro children.

That Georgia man, who when he was waylaid and attacked by seven negroes, drew his pistol, shot two of them dead in their tracks and mortally wounded three others, was an expert in handling his gun.

As the inter-state commerce commission has been pushing Greenville forward as a trade center, you would see the town prosper as never before.

If the peace commission accomplishes nothing, the money the hotel-get out of it will make them think it was worth while, all the same.

When a law is enforced against all people alike no one has a right to complain, but there are sidewalks in Greenville that have not yet been cleared of weeds.

Everybody has his own liking. If John Wannamaker thinks Booker Washington is as good as himself we see no reason for other people trying to convince him to the contrary.

If the peace negotiations result in a failure President Roosevelt cannot feel in such high feather over his good offices in bringing the envoys together.

A Russian newspaper man says Russia didn't know the Japanese before the war. Guess Russia has had all the introduction she wants now.

The first bale of cotton for the 1905 season has appeared, and Marvin, in Anson county, claims the honor. Ten fifty five was the price per pound it brought, and with the farmers of the South standing solidly together, ten cents a pound will be the minimum price for cotton.

The responsibility for the terrible wreck which occurred at Bruce, Va., Tuesday in which Mr. Ed Jolly and Walter Forbes were killed and several colored people besides a number wounded and injured should be determined and the proper punishment administered.

Russia is trying to make believe that she has always been a true friend to the United States. This won't go. We still have that big ditch to dig, with a hole in the treasury as big as a tunnel—and we don't fancy the side that got licked no how.

If women succeed in having the word "obey" displaced from the marriage ceremony, they will have succeeded all round, for they displaced it in real life about the time the first knot was tied.

The officials in New York say they are going to wipe out crime in Chinatown. It looks like they could do better work by starting right in the heart of the city.

Here's hoping that there will be more leaks sprung in the government department large enough for some more grafters to fall through.

"Labor day will be September 4th," says the Charlotte News. Down here it is every day, except Sunday.

Charlotte has had such a scandal over her waterworks system that she is advising other towns to be careful.

Say, Mr. Weather Man, what is it you are giving us?

Corruption at its Height.

The President continually talks about more laws for breaking trusts and regulating railroads. He will end in talk. If he will enforce half the laws we have against those whose quest is apparent to any one but a blind partisan, he will do his country a great service and pave the way for any needed legislation.

Everybody has his own liking. If John Wannamaker thinks Booker Washington is as good as himself we see no reason for other people trying to convince him to the contrary.

New Swindle. Here's a brand new swindle which is being successfully worked on the farmers of southwest Michigan. A well dressed stranger stays all night with the intended victim and during the stay reports that he has lost a valuable diamond pin somewhere about the place.

Women Who Should Never Marry. The woman who proudly declares that she cannot hem a pocket handkerchief, never made up a bed in her life, and adds with a simper that she has "been in society ever since she was fifteen."

The woman who would rather nurse a pug dog than a baby.

The woman who would rather die than wear a hat two seasons old.

The woman who thinks that the cook and nurse can keep house.

The woman who expects a declaration of love three times a day.

The woman who buys ornaments for the drawing room and borrows kitchen utensils from her neighbors, and who thinks table-decorations are of more importance than good food.

The woman who wants things just because "other women" have them.

The first solid train load of goods of one order ever shipped by a Southern factory passed through Greensboro Monday, containing the first installment of furniture for the Panama Canal, contracted for by the government with the White Furniture Company of Mebane. A United States inspector completed his examination of the goods Saturday, not a single article being condemned.

The District of Columbia disfranchised itself in order to keep the negroes from voting and in doing so it sets the pace for all the Southern States. In face of the fact that the negroes cannot vote in Washington, they flock there in greater numbers than in any other city in the United States.

The churches that do not quit giving while they build are the ones that will do the most good. Pastor Rich took a great mission collection last Sunday week, and Waynesville keeps right on increasing its contributions to the Orphanage, and there are many others. Building a house is no excuse for withholding contributions to the Lord's cause.—Charity and Children.

Winston says "nay" to the distilleries. You cannot come in. We are getting on nicely without you, "thank ye."

Hon. C. E. Watson thinks distilleries should be located in the "corn districts" and not in the towns and cities.—Littleton Herald, Amen.

The Russian and Japanese plenipotentiaries are not limited as to expenses. Give a bunch of American politicians some like that and they'll finger long and discuss power as long as there is any money in the treasury.—Wilmington Star.

GRIMESLAND ITEMS. GRIMESLAND, N. C. Aug. 19. With fairly good crops here about and with prospect of good prices, our town has aroused from its extreme dullness so manifest during the summer months, and a spirit of good cheer and gaiety has been with us for the past few weeks.

Quite recently we have had many pretty visitors to our town in the persons of Miss Florida Avery, of Rocky Mount, and Miss Rebecca Knight, of Colescot, who have been visiting Miss Lizzetta Moore, Miss Lula Williams, who visited Miss Susie Moore, and others who came to make up a gay house party at the residence of W. M. Moore, Esq.

Our young townsmen also took a part in this house party and added a little to the enjoyment of our visitors.

Your Life Current.

The power that gives you life and motion is the nerve force, or nerve fluid, located in the nerve cells of the brain, and sent out through the nerves to the various organs.

If you are tired, nervous, irritable, cannot sleep; have headaches, feel stuffy, dull and melancholy, or have neuralgia, rheumatism, backache, periodical pains, indigestion, dyspepsia, stomach trouble, or the kidneys and liver are inactive, your life-current is weak.

Power-producing fluid is needed; something to increase nerve energy—strengthen the nerves.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve is the fuel you need. It feeds the nerves, produces nerve force, and restores vitality.

"When I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve and Anti-Pain Pills I was confined to my bed. I had severe nervous spells, the result of two years illness with malaria. I gradually grew so weak that I was unable to do any of the things I would become weak and almost helpless. My doctor prescribed a few more pills and suggested that I try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve. I bought a bottle and took it. The first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money."

Dr. Miles' Nerve is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

AYDEN, N. C., Aug. 18, 1905.
 Frank Dixon spent the day here yesterday.

As authorized agent for DAILY and EASTERN REFLECTOR we take great pleasure in receiving subscriptions and willing receipts for those in arrears. We have a list of all who receive their mail at this office. We also take orders for job printing.

Mrs. Land of Wilson, who has been visiting friends in Greenville left here Thursday for home.

Hart & Jenkins is the place to get your suit this fall, as the art handling M. H. Lauchmeier line and can give you a nice fit.

Come to see Hart & Jenkins when you need something to dress your feet, we can save you money and give you something to fit the foot. We carry the nicest and best $5.00 shoe you ever saw. Try a pair and be convinced.

Mrs. Melissa Ellis, of Timothy, spent the first part of the week here with friends.

If you need anything in the way of Crockett, Tin or Greystone ware come to see us, Hart & Jenkins.

Mrs. McLawhorn is on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. W. L. House, in Winterville.

E. E. Dail & Co. will do all they possible can to please you with their new line of heavy and fancy groceries.

Just received, fine line of harness and can fit you up in any style or price.

J. R. Smith and daughter, Miss May, spent Thursday in Greenville.

Carlos Harris says that Harrison Town and Country paints and colors are by far the best goods that he ever used and that it knocked out several other leading brands in a test at Greenville last summer. This paint is sold by J. R. Smith & Bro.

J. A. Harrington, cotton weigher at this point, always noted for his progressive spirit and an intent and purpose to serve the public in a faithful and creditable manner, has just purchased a large pair of 700 pound Fairbanks scales. Now our former friends can rest assured Mr. Harrington's weights will always bear the test.

Will Alexander has been in Asheville for the past several days on business, but will return home today.

That rock salt at J. R. Smith & Bro., is the best thing I can get for my stock. They only eat what they want of it at a time.

The four-year-old child of Jesse Ab. Stocks died Wednesday and was carried down near Black Jack yesterday and buried in the family grave yard. This is the fifth child Mr. Stocks has lost. Mr. Stocks still has 17 living children and besides he is one of our very best citizens.

Call on Hart & Jenkins for a barrel of Columbia Flour, none better to be had anywhere.

Mrs. Abram Cox after several days very pleasantly spent with friends has returned to her home.

Rev. J. R. Tingle, of Belhaven, an old resident of Ayden, is here on business.

That last car choice bay that J. R. Smith & Bro., received is fine. Mrs. Alonzo Edwards came home Tuesday from a visit to Kinston.

Will Jenkins gave us a sweet potato Wednesday, of this year's product, that weighed something like two pounds and measured about 15 inches in circumference and 5 inches in diameter. Mr. Jenkins is one of our best friends and we are proud of the fact, for he is a good looking fellow and a all round man besides. After we sun our potato a little we are going to have a feast. We can't until Monday for there won't be enough.

Sunnell & McLawhorn have moved into their new brick store on south side of Main street.

We regret very much that J. D. Fleming and family have moved to Grifton. They have many friends in Ayden who wish them success and happiness in their new home.

We manufacture lug seats for the trade, that are simply the smoothest seat on the market.

The ladies say that Cannon & Tyson have the prettiest line of dress goods in town.

We don't know of course, but it does seem a little careless on the part of some one to allow so much going and coming from Norfolk under present conditions of affairs. Surely something ought to be done. Self protection is nothing less than life.

Leagil lime is good for any crop and a farmer should use it freely, at J. R. Smith & Bro.

Mrs. John Wilson came up on the train yesterday and is stopping with friends in the country. Did you know you could get one of the old time Gophers and any size blade you want at J. R. Smith & Bro.

R. T. Dickerson and family came home yesterday from a visit to the parents of Mrs. Dickerson near Grifton.

Misses Blanch and Sudie May Cannon have come home from Kinston.

Say neighbor have you seen that Simplex fertilizer distributor at J. R. Smith & Bro. It puts it out in any quantity you want and does not waste any at the ends of row and it is a cheap machine.

J. A. Harrington went to and returned from Farmville Wednesday. The people of that town sorely ought to have a high regard for him. He just thinks Farmville a beautiful town and the sun never shined on a better and grander people, we pity the man who dares make the assertion in Mr. Harrington's presence.
