Quiet in the Building Line. Just now is about the quietest time in building operations that Greenville has had in a long time. You can watch out for more activity in this direction at an early day. Just now the new Methodist church is the only building of consequence in course of erection.

Friday night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Brown a literary and social meeting of the Epworth League of Greenville Methodist church was held.

The feature of the evening was a guessing contest. Lists of questions were given out, and the answer to each question was a name of a flower.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, by their charming and cordial hospitality were ideal hosts, and everyone felt "at home."

The following program was rendered during the evening, and the participants were at their best:

Stio. by Miss Nina James, entitled Good-Bye, by Tom L. Recitation, by Mrs. C. L. Hornaday who was called twice more, and rendered suitable recitations to the delight of all present.

FOUND A BLIND TIGER.
Conducted by a Woman Near the River.
Saturday night there was a difficulty between some of the white women of ill repute inhabiting quarters in the vicinity of the wharf. Annie Smith assaulted and beat Harriet Taylor. This naturally made the Taylor woman mad, and in her talking about the matter she also told that the Smith woman was selling whiskey. Chief of Police Smith went to investigate and found the charge well founded. The Smith woman, finding she was caught, admitted that she had had twenty-four bottles of whiskey. Capt. Smith saw some of the empty bottles and they bore the label of Santa Paul, Washington, N. C. The woman said the whiskey was sent up to her Saturday. She was before Mayor Wooten this morning under two warrants, one for the assault and one for whiskey selling. She was bound over to Superior court in both cases, justified bond in the sum of $200 being required in each. Liability to give three bonds was a passport to jail.

The harness was broken so as to free the horse from the buggy and the animal ran a short distance before stopping.

A SPUNKY GIRL.
She Served the Young Man Exactly Right.
Here is a rainbow bubble floating on the surface of the social swim in this city. A short time since a girl from another part of the state was the guest of leading Fayetteville family, a girl full of life and chic, but with plenty of hard sense, and well able to take care of herself. Owing to the "golden youths" invited her to take a buggy ride, and after they had proceeded on their way a hundred yards or so, he turned to her and said, with unpardonable impudence and freedom: "Miss —, I have heard that you are pretty fast." "Oh, you have eh?" she replied, flashing a look at him. "Hand me the reins, and I'll show you how fast I am." He relinquished the reins, supposing that she would put the horse out at 2:40 gait, to illustrate her rapidity. On the contrary, she deliberately made a circle, turning the vehicle around, drove back to the gate of her friends' house, jumped out, swept her escort a formal courtesy, and disappeared leaving him to pursue his ride alone. It may be imagined that the discomfited young man took good pains not to circulate this episode, but the story has got out and the general verdict is "served him right."—Fayetteville Observer.

Go To The Country.
Fresh country air is wholesome and a sovereign remedy for many of the ills that afflict the weary city dweller. The tendency in this country has been too much to crowd into the great cities and many of the poor of the slums and overtaxed tenements would be greatly benefited if they could be removed to the farms. The magazines that encourage the love of rural life are doing a great work and not the feature of their mission is the cultivation of the aesthetic quality. They promote a love for the beautiful in nature that will result in the preservation of much of the natural loveliness of the country that has been too ruthlessly dealt with by the unappreciative utilitarian in the past.—Louisburg Times.
