

RETIRED IN GOOD ORDER

But it Took Twenty Five and Costs.

There is lots of business being done in this town of court, but not and then it is spiced with a bit of good humor enough to make it interesting for the spectators.

It was Tuesday that a gentleman of color was upon the charge of carrying concealed weapons. The state had put on one witness—the police officer of Grifton who started to arrest the negro for disorderly conduct and saw him drop a pistol in his flight out of town—and rested the case.

Knowing that the affair took place last Christmas eve two years ago, counsel for the defense brought forward testimony, but arose to plead statute of limitation.

"When was this indictment begun, Mr. Solicitor?" was asked the prosecuting officer.

"Presentation was made at September term, 1904," was the prompt answer.

"That settles your client," remarked the court addressing the defendant's counsel. Then, after producing a character witness, the attorney offered some extenuation, stating that it was Christmas and his client was merely feeling the spirit inebriated to the occasion.

"But I don't like the way you feel as you fill up on spirits and try to take possession of these smart towns," interrupted the court.

"Beg your Honor's pardon, but was not taking possession but was evacuating," rejoined the counsel.

"Then he should have retired in good order," replied the court, "and I think it would be in order to let him try road service for 30 days."

"I hope your Honor will not give him so severe a penalty for his first offense," pleaded the counsel.

"Then let him pay a fine of $25 and costs, and see if he can retire in good order under that," was the judgment of the court.

LETTER TO J. B. CHERRY.

Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sir: People ask how many square feet a gallon will cover. Depends on condition of building.

There is a great deal of lying on this point. The stock claim of lying paints is 300 square feet, two coats. It's a lie, and a rascal.

Devoe covers 300 to 500, our agents think. We think 300 to 500 and 500 to 1000; though doubtless, they both occur.

How much the other paints cover is equally doubtful; we guess 100 to 400.

The truth is found in another comparison. Devoe is all paint, fine paint, strong paint, and full measure; the others in general are, at the best, diluted, adulterated and short measure. They cover according to body and measure. You can't paint with clay lime crink sand barytes water or air—nobody in them. Go by Devoe.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOE & CO.

P. S. H. L. Carr sells our paint.

AN OLD PAPER.

One That is Genuine and not a Reprint.

F. M. Hornaday has shown us a copy of The National Intelligencer, printed in Washington, D. C., and dated April 28th, 1836. It is a genuine old paper, and not a reprint as some of the so-called old papers exhibited in this late day are.

While off on his recent trip Mr. Hornaday visited the old home place of his mother's ancestors in Scotland county, near Laurinburg. This old paper was found in the walls, between weather boarding and plastering, of the "big house" known as "Ballacholish" that was built by her great grandfather. Two other copies of The Intelligencer, one dated 1835 and the other 1841, were found in the same place. They contain notices and speeches by H. Clay, Daniel Webster and other prominent public men of that time. How the old papers got in their hiding place that preserved them all these many years cannot be explained. They were found while recent repairs were being made to the building.

Mr. Hornaday will donate this old copy he has to the Historical Society of Trinity College.

CAFE OPENS FOR SEASON.

Carolina Club Growing and a Credit to the Town.

The opening of Carolina Club cafe for the season, Friday night, was a very pleasant occasion, both for the members of the club and guests who were present. The occasion was entirely informal and all moved about through the well furnished apartments at will, enjoying the music, reading room and games. An elegant oyster supper was served.

Carolina club has far outgrown the pessimistic predictions some were disposed to make at its organization some over two years ago. It now numbers about eighty members and has always been conducted on so high a plain as to make it creditable to its members and to the town. Its furnishings are modern and in keeping with the best social clubs of the day. Objectable features sometimes prominent in club quarters are not permitted, so that it is not only a place for pleasant gathering but has a good moral influence as well. The members are to be congratulated upon its success.

Watch the Advertisements.

This is the season of the year when people are busy and it will always pay them to watch the advertising columns of THE REFLECTOR, especially when contemplating purchases. It will save time and save money to do this. There are frequent changes in advertisements to which special attention cannot be called in the local column, and every issue of the paper should be read through to be sure that nothing is missed. Our advertisers are up-to-date business men and what they have to say is always worth reading.

Gin House Burned.

About 11 o'clock Thursday night the gin house of J. B. Galloway, in Chicod township, was destroyed by fire, together with about ten bales of seed cotton. The loss is about $3,000. The fire is supposed to have caught in some way from the boiler which had been used while ginning during the day.

BAD NEGRO WITH GUN.

Shoots and Seriously Wounds a Woman.

On Wednesday afternoon Sam Brown, colored, who has frequently figured in the courts for sundry disorders, went to the house of Flora Blangier, colored, on Cotanch street below King's stables. Sam had tanked up on about enough of bad whiskey to make him a fool. He had some words with the woman about some clothes she had taken to laundry for him, when he drew a pistol and began shooting at her. Four shots were fired, one of them striking the woman in the hip and making a serious wound.

Sam was arrested and placed in jail to await development of the injury caused by the wound.

"SPOKE THE TRUTH FOR ONCE."

That is What One Lawyer Said About Another.

There was a three cornered case in progress in court, the solicitor prosecuting two defendants each of whom had a lawyer. To make the case appear as good as possible for his client, each lawyer must say as much as he could against the other defendant.

The first lawyer was closing his speech and his finishing sentence was "Gentlemen of the jury, if you consider the evidence carefully you must say that my client is guilty."

Seeing the smile on the faces of the jurors as he was taking his seat, the error flashed to his mind and he turned and said "I mean not guilty."

"He spoke the truth for once," said the next lawyer as he arose to make his speech. "My friend labored hard to convince your gentlemen of the jury to the contrary, but his conscience so hurt him that he had to admit the truth and tell you his client is guilty."

These are some of the little passing shots one hears in court.

TO IMPROVE SERVICE.

Government Orders Rural Mail Boxes Numbered.

Postmaster R. C. Phelan has received an order from the post office authorities requiring the numbering of mail boxes on the rural free delivery routes. This is a requirement of the government to facilitate the handling of mail on the routes, and goes into effect all over the country. The numbering of each route will begin with "No. 1" taking the box nearest the postoffice from which the route is served.

Patrons of the route should cooperate with this movement to improve the service for their benefit. The postmaster will furnish each patron with the official number for his box and the patron must put the number on the box.

Garner Sutton and Ike Rochelle had trouble on the streets some time ago, in which Burton was out on the head by Mr. Rochelle for jostling him.—Free Press 21st.

Col. Grimes' Great Address.

In the Farmers' National Congress in Richmond last week Hon. J. Bryn in Grimes, Secretary of State for North Carolina, delivered an able address on "The Agricultural Resources of the South." We have seen no abler presentation of the South's wealth, and the address may well be filed away in every office and home for the study of our great resources. The eloquent closing paragraph was as follows: "In this summerland, the land of boundless undeveloped wealth, of inexhaustible resources, lies the future of this great Republic. Here is the most American part of our Union, the dawn of a new era is upon us. Here, beside the farm is being built the factory. Around them are great forests, and iron roads, and deep rivers, run to growing ports. Good roads are being built on every hand, postal routes will go to every man's door. A parcel post is being recognized as a necessity soon to come, and everywhere telephones destroy isolation. School houses are near every home, and church-spires rise in sight of each other. Prosperous, cultured and happy homes abound everywhere. We are rich in all material resources, but richest in brave men and good women. To this home of plenty, this land of promise, our own fair, Sunny Southland, we would love to welcome you!"—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

A New Editorial Type Needed.

The type foundry ought to go to work and get up something new for the editorial pages of the Atlanta papers. The ordinary black faced type they use served its purpose at first, but has now become monotonous. Diamond, we believe, is the smallest type made. If the foundry could turn out a size three times smaller and induce the Atlanta papers to set up their editorials in it, they might be doing a public service, for then the editorials would be no more recognizable under the coating of ink than the candidates of the respective papers are under their coating of mud. It would only be necessary for the words "Ring Or, gan," "Railroad Passes," "Corporation Lawyer," and a few other such complimentary expressions, to appear up boldly at frequent intervals among the otherwise unreadable type and the sense of it all could be easily grasped. This is thrown out as a suggestion by the adoption of which the readers of the Atlanta papers might be saved a good deal of agony during the long distance campaign now on in Georgia.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Decided to Tell the Truth Once.

A Michigan editor grew tired of wielding the whitewash brush in matters of obituaries, decided to reform and tell the truth just once. He commenced as follows on a well known citizen: "Died—aged 57 years, six months and twelve days. Deceased was a mild-mannered private citizen with a mouth for whiskey and an eye for bootie. He came here in the night with another man's wife and joined the church at the first chance. He owed us seven dollars on the paper, a large meat bill and you could hear him pray six blocks. He died singing 'Jesus Paid It All,' and we think he was right, as he never paid anything himself. He was buried in an asbestos-lined casket, and his many friends threw palm leaf fans in the grave, as he may need them. His tombstone will be a resting place for hot ovals."

The People Will Revolt.

The "standpatters" accuse the Cummins men of disturbing the harmony of the republican party, but as a matter of fact Governor Cummins is pursuing the only course that can give permanent strength to his party. It is an insult to the intelligence of the people to say that they will long support a party dominated by the corporations. If agitation for reform endangers a party temporarily, the ignoring of known evils threatens the very life of a political organization.—Ex.

A POLITE SALESMAN.

How He Struck It Rich With a Shabby Looking Customer.

A friend of the late Charles Lockhart, Standard Oil magnate, relating some of the deceased millionaire's eccentricities, told the following story: Something happened to him in New York which would make a plot for a Sunday school book if the same plot hadn't happened too often in Sunday school books that it is getting trite.

There was a new silverware and jewelry establishment struggling along in New York. Not a small shop, you understand, but a big concern which was not yet recognized as a leader in fashionable trade. One very hot summer afternoon a tall, sad and rather ill dressed old man entered the shop and said he wanted to buy a wedding present.

Now, it was a hot day, the clerks were tired and irritated, and the stranger looked like a visitor from the remote farming district with about $1.49 to spend. He passed from counter to counter pricing things.

The clerks were not at all cordial. At last, down at the end of the silverware department, he bumped into a young fellow, a new man in the shop. This clerk was trying to make good; also, to do the situation justice, he hadn't been there long enough to know the difference between a promising customer and an unpromising one.

The old man went higher and higher in his examination of silverware. He got to pricing full sets of silver plate. After the young clerk had run through the list he said:

"Is that the best you've got?" The young clerk remembered then that the firm had begun the manufacture of a specially designed, extra heavy set of plate for a rich New York family. The order had been canceled, but some of the pieces had been finished for show. He trotted out that set.

The old man figured out on the back of an envelope every frill which could be added to a set of silver plate, shoved his list at the clerk and asked how much it would cost. The clerk consulted the manager and answered that it would be fifty thousand and some odd dollars and cents.

"All right, have it made for me," said the old man.

"How much do you want to deposit?" asked the clerk.

"Oh," said the customer, "I'll pay the whole thing and get it off my mind." So he drew a check for the amount.

The clerk didn't recognize the signature—he'd never heard of Charles Lockhart—so he took it to the manager and asked if the latter thought it was good.

"Good for a thousand times 50,000," said the manager.

Lockhart came back to that store in the Christmas season that year. The clerk knelt him that time, for the $50,000 purchase had become a tradition of the store. He went past them all, though, and asked for the clerk who had sold him the silver plate. When he found his man, Lockhart bought $30,000 worth of Christmas presents.

This story ends the way it ought to end for the Sunday school library. The clerk with an $80,000 a year customer on his string attracted the attention of the firm, and now he's a big man in the silverware business. Sounds like a chapter from "Thrifty," by Samuel Smiles, doesn't it?—Keystone.

The Retort Victus.

"A number of years ago when I lived in Woburn, Mass.," said a well known Bostonian the other day in the Boston Herald, "a Dr. Kelley resided there and was the leading physician of the town. Later there came a young physician who was far less successful than his neighbor. In fact, he lost so many cases that many remarks were made concerning him.

"One morning while out making calls the two doctors met, Dr. Kelley having one of his patients riding with him. Dr. Brown, the other physician, saluted him with: 'Ah, good morning, doctor. I see you take your patients to ride?'"

"Yes," said the other. "I see Griggs takes yours."

"Griggs was the undertaker."

India's Sacred Vulture.

A specimen of the very rare "Pondicherry," or "sacred vulture," of India and Africa was shot recently in South Africa. Its measurements were: From tip to tip of wings, 106 inches; from beak to tip of tail, 42 inches. The "sacred vulture," which grows to an immense size, has its head bare, neck covered with folds of skin of a pinkish hue and tremendously powerful beak and claws. It is described as very assertive, driving off all other birds from their prey. It builds enormous nests of sticks and leaves and lays but one egg during the season.

DANIEL WEBSTER.

A Man at Whom Every One Would Take a Season's Leave.

It was after a season of seclusion in Marshfield, whither he retired after the nomination of General Taylor, as Achilles retired to his tent, and when he came to Worcester to deliver a speech in favor of the candidate, that I saw pass with stately tread through the dense throng gathered of an evening in a spacious hall to hear him and heard one say to another in an audible whisper, "Just look at him!"

Such impressions were not confined to New England or to this side of the Atlantic. Wherever Webster went he was one

Whom no one met at first But took a second and wondering look.

In England his person, his manners and his intellectual traits elicited glowing tributes almost worthy of respect. By Sydney Smith his form and aspect were lauded in a homely simile characteristic of the author's wit. Such men as Henry Hallam, not given to extravagance, expressed an unstinted admiration.

Carlyle was generally not indisposed to utter cynical comments on things and persons American. To him Webster seemed a "parliamentary Hercules," besides being "a dignified, perfectly bred man." The honor, partaking almost of awe, with which schoolboys in Massachusetts in the forties regarded him and recited extracts from his speeches can at this day hardly be realized. His writings remain to attest the power as well as the purity and simplicity of his style. We often hear now praise of what is termed his Saxon vocabulary. A mistake is here implied. Webster was conversant with and used with unsurpassed effect the Saxon side of the English vocabulary.

His style, however, was much enriched by the Latin contents of our English tongue, which he interwove with not less propriety and effect.—Professor George P. Fisher in Scribner's.

Putting Him Right.

A spirited looking bay horse hitted on an unusually smart delivery wagon stood in front of a grocery. The driver had gone inside, and the horse, being left alone, came in for considerable admiring attention from the small boys of the neighborhood. One youth of grimy appearance was particularly interested. He prodded the horse's flanks, rubbed his nose and otherwise endeavored to gain a practical knowledge of equine anatomy and disposition. While he was thus proceeding with his investigation the driver came out.

"Hi, there, kid!" he shouted in genuine alarm. "What do you mean by fooling around this horse that way? He'll bite your head off the first thing you know."

The boy studied the situation calmly.

"No, he won't," he said. "I'll be the last thing I'll know."—New York Herald.

Know His Landlord.

One night Sir Henry Irving on getting into a cab gave the driver a fine Havana cigar. By the time the end of the journey was reached the cabby was putting on airs. His hat was on one side, and sitting bolt upright, he was smoking with keen enjoyment, an enjoyment that rejoiced the heart of the actor, who told him he was glad he liked the cigar. "Yes, I do. I never dreamed of such tobacco," the driver replied, giving the play another cigar of the same brand, with the injunction to smoke it after supper. "No, sir, I won't, for the very smell of such a cigar as this in my house would make the landlord double my rent."

Properly Inquisitive.

He was sitting in the parlor with his best girl. Shortly after 9 o'clock her little brother entered the room and after some time asked the visitor:

"Say, Mr. Jones, can you swim?" "Now, Johnnie, you go out of here. You shouldn't ask Mr. Jones such a question."

"Oh, I don't mind," said Jones, evidently trying to make a favorable impression on the boy's mind. "Certainly I can swim. But what made you ask me that question?"

"Well," replied Johnnie as he backed to the door, "I heard six tell me that she was going to throw you overboard."—Albany Journal.

In London's Subway.

We all know the tiresome traveler who loves to ask the name of each station at which a train stops during a journey. A passenger in a third class carriage on the underground railway had put this question to everybody in turn as station after station on the Inner Circle was passed. At last an old woman, who had not spoken before, answered the inevitable inquiry by putting up her nose and sniffling critically. "Westminster bridge," she then said gravely. "They all smell different."—London Chronicle.

Greensboro Life Insurance Company, Greensboro, N. C.

Gentlemen: Enclosed you will find a remittance for the full annual premium on my policy in your company, and with it I wish to send my congratulations upon the extraordinary record of the company during the first month of its life.

I have taken out this policy for three reasons:

1. Because I believe in the substantial business men who are backing the company.
2. Because I like the form of the Income Indemnity Policy.
3. Because I desire very much to encourage, so far as I am able to do so, the building up of strong insurance companies in North Carolina, in order that we may send less of our capital through insurance companies to build up other sections of the country instead of our own.

Very truly yours,
CHARLES D. McIVER.

Who is the Keeper of Your Reputation?

This is somewhat a startling question when its full significance is grasped.

We hazard the assertion that the true answer lies in the following facts:

The reputation of the painter and in equal measure his income are in the keeping of his painter and he is practically helpless except in that he can change the source of supply at will.

The truth of the above assertion is evident when it is remembered that the painter who applies the paint seldom ever sees the paint manufactured. Even granting that he has seen the paint manufacturer, how many painters have the equipment and necessary time to assay and test every can of paint? They must and they do rely upon the skill of the paint manufacturer.

If the skill and honesty of the paint manufacturer means so much to you, painter and the property owner, can you afford to take any chances?

Can either the painter or the property owner afford to risk unknown? Can either afford to risk possible lack of facilities or adulterated material? Would it not be best to make assurance doubly sure by using Harrison's Patent Country paint, the manufacturers of which have had over 100 years of experience in the manufacture of paints and guarantee that every can bearing their name is exactly as represented by the label? Can we afford to offer anything but the best?

SUPERIOR COURT.

September Term in Session.

The following cases have been disposed of since last report: The grand jury on Saturday afternoon made the following report to the court: We the Grand Jury for the term beg leave to report; that we have acted on all bills coming before us and reported the same to the court; that we have no other bills to be acted on.

That we have visited the county home for the poor, and that we found the premises in an excellent condition. We called on the keepers' wife and asked permission to visit the room of each inmate, which was complied with and we proceeded to inspect each room and see each inmate. Of each we asked these questions: "Do you get plenty of food and clothing and have comfortable quarters?" To which all answered in affirmative, save two, and these two said "plenty such as it is."

But there are two inmates we wish to call attention to. One a girl about fourteen years of age, an idiot in deplorable condition. She is unable to walk or talk and must be kept in a chair tied during the day, she is in a room with a feeble woman not less than seventy years of age, and herself in a helpless condition, but conditions make it necessary for her to wait on this child, both night and day, such as putting her to bed and dressing her. The other is an insane girl confined in a room closed in with shutters and iron bars, in which she can not be comfortable during cold weather. We recommend that these two girls, inmates be arranged for in some other way. We are of opinion that Mr. Hardy deserves credit for the way the home is kept.

Also, we have visited the convict camp and found it in good condition. The health of the prisoners is good. And we believe that the camp is properly ordered and kept.

We have visited the county jail and found that it is kept in splendid condition, and that the prisoners are well cared for. We have inspected the court house and found that the building needs some little attention in the way of repairs to the walls, floors, shutters, etc. Also, we recommend that a desk be bought for the clerk's office that his business may be more conveniently transacted to both the clerk and the public.

The following cases have been disposed of since last report: L. E. Smith, carnally knowing female under 14 years of age, guilty, fined $250 and costs, and also to pay $50 and costs in hasty proceedings.

Zeke Harris, disturbing public meeting, not guilty.

Frank Anderson, affray, not guilty.

Scott Turriage, larceny, not guilty.

Frances Stancill, larceny, not guilty.

Several cases against the Atlantic Coast Line railroad arising out of the excursion train wreck at Bruce, Va., having been settled by compromise came up for final judgment to be entered. These were:

Mike Atkinson, administrator of Jackson Atkinson, for $1,000.

J. W. Allen, administrator of Adelaide Carr, for $850.

E. G. Flanagan, administrator of George Walker, for $850.

E. G. Flanagan, administrator of Alex Bullock, for $850.

B. W. Moseley, administrator of Nelson Peebles, for $750.

B. F. Jolley, administrator of W. E. Jolley, for $7,250.

ANOTHER TRAIN NEEDED.

It has long been apparent that a daily train is needed on this branch of the Atlantic Coast Line, and THE REFLECTOR believes the time is now ripe to secure it if the proper effort is made. More than two years ago an effort was made to get another train on this road that for a time looked like would meet with success, but other things came along that sidetracked the movement for the time being. A Sunday train was put on, but this was of no practical benefit except for getting mail on Sundays and to give people who desired to do so an opportunity to travel on Sunday, yet this did not help the congestion of freight and the slow handling of passengers and mails on week days.

Then there was a makeshift of an evening connection with trains going west from Kinston that gave some relief to passengers and mail when the connection could be made. Now by a change of schedule on the Atlantic and North Carolina road this connection in the evening is practically broken, so that all dependance the one-time old branch of Coast line is on the rail train and on the train that is compelled to come back to Kinston and through the city in the morning.

This is ample business on the road for two trains a day carrying out a passenger train and one freight train that is compelled to come back to Kinston and through the city in the morning.

Walter Sheppard came in Saturday evening from the Oxford orphan asylum to visit relatives in and near Greenville.

Miss Lena Matthews returned Monday evening from visit to Mt. Airy.

Miss Mrs. W. J. Smith and two of her children went to Bethel this morning.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Adopted by Ladies of the Baptist Church. Whereas, it has pleased God to remove from our midst Miss Myrtle Wilson, our beloved sister and friend, therefore be it resolved: 1st. That while we bow in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well, we, in behalf of the members of the Missionary and Aid societies of Memorial Baptist church, feel that we have lost a valuable and useful member, the community a sweet and noble life, and all who knew her an earnest and sympathetic friend whose daily life was a constant and unfailing source of inspiration and comfort.

2nd. That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy in this hour of pain and suffering and pray that the God of love may uphold and sustain them in their irreparable loss.

3rd. That a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the minutes of the societies, a copy be sent THE REFLECTOR for publication, also one to the family.

Chewed Ear Nearly Off. Charlie Pope, fireman and Ernest Jones, porter, on the A. C. L. passenger train, got into an altercation on the train before reaching Kinston last night, and Pope chewed Jones' ear nearly off. The row was quelled and the two men assisted in putting up the train, but when they started off, in the presence of Capt. George Smith, the engineer, Jones knocked Pope down, thus renewing the row. They were parted however, before anything more serious was done. Both are colored men--Kinston Free Press.

Coming Next Week. The Yorkville Vandeville and Comedy Company, with a strong corps of special stage artists, will appear in Masonic Temple opera house for one night only on Friday, Oct. 6th.

LETTER TO E. M. MCGOWAN. Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sir: "It costs as much to put on poor paint as good--a common saying and true--it costs much more to put on poor paint; poor paint is paint and barytes or paint and sand or paint and lime or paint and chalk or paint and bezzine or paint and water; these are the usual cheapies; there are others.

It costs more gallons of paint and a chest than of honest paint; and the cost of the labor of painting is as much as a gallon--one gallon costs as much as another, for labor."

This is the way to reckon your costs for this year; but how about next year?

Paint Devoe, and next year costs nothing; year after next the same the same for several years.

Paint anything else, and your costs recur according to what you paint with. Some of the mixtures wear one year; some two; some three.

It costs twice, three times, four times, five times, as much to paint with a cheap as to paint with Devoe.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & CO.,
