SCENES IN NAPLES.

Some of the incidents of the Street Lif of the Neapolitans.

The commonest people of Naples seldom buy anything from the stores or shops, but patronize ped-dlers and street hawkers almost exclusively. At the portable kitchen booths a bill of fare is offered to the hungry wayfarer that is laughingly reasonable in price and varied i kind. Besides the ever presen macaroni, the principal articles of food are the frutti di mare, "se fruits," including mussels, polyp and sea spiders, all regarded as most tempting delicacies by the ever hungry lazzaroni.

Then there are roasted fishes o all kinds, maize dumplings, so called spighe, and finally the national mean food, called braccinole, which really a dumpling or cake made of lamb meat and lard. Snatl soup is another delicacy, as well as chee with bacon (la pizza). Like all southerners, the Ncapolitans show a marked fondness for sweets of all kinds, and they would be quite los without their portion of struffoli, rather tough cake made principa of honey. Then nothing appeals the lazzaroni appetite so insidio as the famous Easter cake of Cas satello, which is sprinkled most temptingly with fluid pork fat and in which whole eggs are baked, shell and all, a questionable dainty to un educated palates.

The lazzaroni women are seldom beautiful and generally not even pretty. They are usually poorly built, with swarthy complexion and irregular features. Now and then one finds a lustrous pair eyes of great beauty, but rarely The Neapolitan women are not be compared with the women of th country as seen in Rome and in th Campagna, whose trim figures graceful movements and frequently charmingly fascinating faces often greet the eye of the traveler Their fullness of form, proud bearing and fine profiles are all conspid uously absent in the wives of the lazzaroni. And how could it well b otherwise? Are they not "beasts o burden" for "beasts of burden? Are the facehini, by reason of the occupation, much more than this ?-Home and Country.

What He Was Worth.

This story is told about Rober Burns: Burns was standing on long pier on the water front of Edinburgh. A well known and wealthy merchant, walking by, stumbled and fell into the water. He could no swim and so sank. When he arose for the third time nobody dared to save him, but an old weather beaten sailor, at the risk of his own life, ran up the pier and, jumping in, rescued the man.

The gentleman had been worked over quite a while before he became conscious, and when he realized the situation he rewarded his rescue with what in our money would amount to 25 cents. At this the crowd which had gathered, knowing his wealth, hooted and jeered. But Burns, who was standing by, quiet-ed them and said: "Surely the gentleman knows what his life is worth!"

Testing a Horse's Wind.

While talking about horses the and can always tell whether a horse is short winded or not. Before I buy a horse," he continued, "I just borrow it for about an hour or so and then I get out on some lonely road and see what kind of stuff he is made of. I first let him choose his own gait for a couple of mile posts and finally go e him plenty of rein, making him go for all he is worth. All the time I just keep my eye on his haunches, and if I see any ro tary motion there it's a sign he' thick winded, and of course every one knows that kind ala't much good.'

Better Tarta.

The oriental monarch amused in any quantity himself by giving a humary guest a the best known members of the at warehouse Maine legal profession many years ago, once sat at a meagerly lad board, and in this case the starving guest was the humorist. The dirig room had been newly and splendidly furnished, whereas the dinne was very slender. While some the guests were flattering the host for this line. on his taste in decoration Squire Hamilton said:

For my part I would rather less gilding and more carving."

Force of Habit.

Secure a Good Location while there is an opportunity to do so at Reasonable Prices and on Easy Terms.

I have devided that splendid property, just east of the town limits in South Greenville, into convenient lots for home-seekers and will sell them on easy terms. There is no better location for homes anywhere around Greenville. High elevation, level, and convenient, being only a few minutes walk from the business part of town. This property is just outside the corporate limits, yet those who reside there will have the benefit of the graded school, and be as near to the churches, and depot and postoffice as are the people in many parts of the town, being only three hundred yards from Five Points, nice neighborhood adjacent to the property. Talk it over with me and let me show you these desirable lots. No better time than NOW to buy. Greenville will grow rapidly in the next few years and property will be higher. Catch the opportunity before it is too late.

FINISHED FOETRY. Hard Labor as Much as Fine Frenzy a

Factor In Its Production. There are yet some persons lef who fancy that poetry is the product of a fine frenzy; that the poet renius awakes from a sublimate taleptic trance to fill page after page with effortless beatitudes. A number of manuscript sheets of Longfellow's "Excelsior," which may be found in Harvard, should not only explode this theory, but give hope to many a discouraged mateur. As Longfellow first constructed the first verse of this poem

The shades of night were falling fast As through an Alpine village passed A youth who, as the peasants sung. Responded in an unknown tongue, Excelsior.

This was manifestly weak, as the nly obvious reason why the Alpine beasants sung was that they might ifford a rhyme for the youth's re-of Pitt county, having issued Letters ponse in an unknown tongue. A of Administration to me, the undersecond trial at the verse, however, not only failed to improve it, but arranged it in such form that it is difficult to believe Longfellow guilty of the fault. The last two lines of the fault to read: he verse were made to read:

A youth who bore a pearl of price, A banner with the strange device.

There are not many even among the magazine poets of today who would consent to refer to a banner as "a pearl of price." But the poet of F. M. whichard. 1 A, Surg Aug and by this time three lines to his bing and the substitution of "a Pitt County (Befo had by this time three lines to his liking, and the substitution of "a youth who bore mid snow and ice" completed the verse as it has been read and spoken throughout the length and breadth of the land, all to black gross to show that the genins of the poet is in the conception and that the production of the w R Baker and wife Maggie Carson, W R Baker and wife Mollie Baker solely in the direction of patient

CLUSE OF COURT.

It Was a Busy Term.

The January term of Pitt Superior court closed Saturday afternoon, occupying the full two weeks allotted to the term, and Judge Long left for Jones county to hold court there. This court transacted a large amount of business and disposed of many cases. More than $2,300 was collected in fines and costs, about half this sum being fines and going to the school fund. The amount collected for jucy tax was about $250.

Other cases disposed of near the close of the court and not here! fore reported were:

John Lewis Hooks, larceny, pleads guilty, sentenced to jail six months to work roads.

T. B. Cherry, nuisance, pleads guilty, placed under boud for appearance at April term and show good behavior. S. P. Humphrey, selling liquor without license, not guilty.

The sentence of six months i jail against W. J. James for selling whiskey illegally, was changed to a fine of $500 and costs. Gen. Wheeler Dead.

New York, Jan. 25 .- General Joseph Wheeler, the famous Confederate calvary leader and brigadier general of the United States army since the War with Spain, died at 5:35 o'clock this afternoon, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Sterling Smith, in Brooklyn. The veteran of two wars, was 69 years old, but in spite of his age, there was hope until yesterday of his recovery from the attack of pneumonia which caused his death.

The warm weather preceding this bad spell put peach trees in bloom in some sections of the state.
