ELECTRIC POWER.

Reflector Presses Driven By Motor.
THE REFLECTOR has just had installed a 3 horse power electric motor to run its presses. Machinist R. L. Humber put in the shafting, pulleys and belting, while Superintendent J. A. Dunlap, of the water and light plants, looked after the electrical arrangement. The motor was purchased from the General Electric Co. through H. Harding the local agent. The adjustments were completed and power first turned on the presses Friday evening. While all the minor arrangements are not yet perfected, it is seen that the motor runs the presses beautifully. Those who feel interested in seeing the motor and presses at work are invited to call in any evening after power is turned on from the municipal plant.

THE BOSS AXEMAN IN GASTON COUNTY.

During the big sleet Mr. Dave Garrison, of Worth, was having chills, and he hasn't shaken them off yet. But it is remarkable how much work he does even on his chills. On Monday after the sleet he went to the woods and cut cord wood until the noon hour, when he was stopped by a chill. During the morning he cut 31 cords of wood. At noon he lay down before the fire and when he had shaken off his chill he went back to the woods. The afternoon was spent in cording up the wood he had previously cut, and when night came he had laid up 64 cords as an afternoon's work. So the record for the day stands: three and a half cords of wood cut from the stump, one chill shaken off, and six and a half cords of wood laid up. Mr. Garrison says that to cut and put up five cords of wood is a light day's work. He loves to feel his keen ax-blade reaching deep into the timber at every stroke. Mr. Garrison is a tall man, of large frame and powerful build and muscles. He says he is feeling a little older than he used to, but is still full of snap and go, all quickness and energy with his work.—Gastonia Gazette.

A Crazy Negro.

Macon, Ga., Feb. 15.—In an address before the five hundred delegates, attending the convention of negroes in this city, to discuss racial problems, Bishop H. M. Turner declared the American flag to be a dirty and contemptible rag. He further said that hell was an improvement on the United States when the negro was involved. In closing he said: "If a little ignorant and stupid white man who was never heard of until ten thousand years after the resurrection trumpet, wishes a little notoriety he begins to believe and slander the negro and bounds into popularity. And I challenge any one or all of them to meet me in public discussion and I will show that the negro is a far better man than they are."

A special from Durham says that about 7,000,000 pounds of tobacco has been sold in that town of this year's crop at an average 11 3-4 cents. At South Boston the average price has been 9.32, the total sales aggregating 2,000,000 pounds. At Greenville and Kinston the average price has been a fraction under eight cents. Is the tobacco sold at Durham of better grade?—Raleigh News and Observer.

THE WHITE HOUSE WEDDING.

MISS ALICE ROOSEVELT BECOMES THE BRIDE OF CONGRESSMAN LONGWORTH.

Ceremony Performed at Noon Today Amid Splendid Surroundings. Many Nationalities Represented, Immense Display of Presents, Couple Leave for the South.

Washington, D. C., February 17.—No social event in the history of this country has ever attracted as much interest in all sections of the country and among all classes of the population, as the wedding of Alice Roosevelt, eldest daughter of President Roosevelt, to Congressman Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio. The popularity of Miss Roosevelt's father, coupled with the outside fact that all the world loves a lover, particularly if that lover is the daughter of the chief executive of the country and has endeavored herself by her naturalness and democratic ways, has made the wedding of Miss Roosevelt a national event in the full sense of the word. The wedding came quite near being considered an international event, and, to some extent, has assumed that character, although President Roosevelt, with true Democratic spirit, tried his best to prevent it. For many weeks the preparations for the joyful event at the White House had been going on, and during the last few days, a tremendous amount of work had been done in the line of decorating the various rooms and arranging matters for the reception of the large number invited guests. But, until a great deal remained to be done during the last few hours preceding the ceremony. From early morning there was feverish activity in all parts of the White House. The florists and decorators put the finishing touches upon their work begun yesterday. The beginning of the ceremony had been set for high noon, but the first carriages with guests began to arrive shortly after eleven o'clock, and when the noon hour approached, there was an unintermitted line of carriages depositing their occupants at the hospitable door of the White House. It was a brilliant assemblage which filled the magnificently decorated rooms. Women in beautiful gowns, men of distinguished appearance, in military uniforms, the rich garb of the diplomatic corps or the less picturesque costume prescribed for ordinary civilians at noonday functions of this character, crowded the space reserved for the invited guests and awaited patiently the beginning of the ceremony. A few minutes before noon Bishop Satterlee, of Washington, and the Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, who were to perform the ceremony, arrived in the East room and took their places within the enclosure of white ribbons, forming a barrier around the altar. A few minutes later the bridegroom, accompanied by his best man, Mr. Thomas Nelson Perkins, entered the room and took their positions at the side of the altar, where they awaited the arrival of the bridal party. At the stroke of twelve the Marine band in the lobby began to play the wedding march from Wagner's "Lohengrin," and at the same moment the bridal party started in two columns toward the East room. The bride leaned on her father's arm and walked with stately and dignified steps. Mrs. Roosevelt walked with her son Kermit, Miss Ethel with her brother Archibald and the baby of the family, Quentin, was conducted by his cousin, William S. Cowles, Jr., the only son of Capt. and Mrs. William S. Cowles. Mrs. George C. Lee, the venerable grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. William S. Cowles walked together and were followed by the other members of the Lee, Roosevelt and Longworth families, who had come from all parts of the country to attend the wedding. The eight ushers selected by the bridegroom awaited the bridal party at the foot of the stairs and preceded them to the East room, where they arranged themselves, four on each side, forming an aisle. They held white ribbons in such a way that they formed an arch, beneath which the bridal party marched toward the altar. The ushers were Quincy Adams Shaw, of Boston; Frederick Wintrop, of New York; Francis R. Bangs, of Boston; Guy Newman, of Boston; B. A. Wallingford, of Cincinnati; Larz Anderson, of Washington, D. C.; the Viscount Charles de Chambrun and Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., the eldest son of the President. The wedding ceremony was conducted in accordance with the ritual of the Episcopal church, Bishop Satterlee officiating and the Rev. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith assisting in the ceremony. During the progress of the ceremony the boy's choir of St. John's Church sang a number of sacred selections, including Mr. Longworth's favorite, "Be Thou Faithful unto Death," from "Elijah," and a selection from the Song of Solomon, "My Beloved Cometh." When the critical moment arrived and Bishop Satterlee asked the all-important question, the bride answered with a firm and clearly audible "I will." The answer of the bridegroom, although undoubtedly also in the affirmative, was by no means as audible as the answer of his fair life partner. Miss Alice Roosevelt looked lovely in her magnificent bridal costume. The gown was cut in Princess style, which is particularly becoming to the slender and graceful figure of the bride. It was of pearl white satin, showing a design of roses outlined in silver thread on a plain background. The skirt was plain and tight fitting around the hips and waist, with no trimming whatever. The bodice was tight fitting as far as the bust, where it draped softly in crosswise folds, the fronts fastening in alternate tabs, showing a vest of soft tulle, which began at the end of the yoke. The transparent yoke was of real rose point lace, an heirloom of the Lee family. The sleeves were of elbow length, being finished with soft ruffles of the same lace. The train, fully three yards long, began at the shoulders, was of heavy white satin and finished on the sides and at the bottom with ruches of chiffon. The bridal veil, another family heirloom, was of soft tulle, falling almost to the bottom of the train. It was held by a spray of orange blossoms falling loosely over the coiffure. The bride carried no flowers, but only a small, ivory bound prayer book, the same which her mother carried at her wedding.

Miss Roosevelt had originally intended to use for her bridal dress some of the magnificent satins, brocades and other costly materials which had been presented to her by the Empress Dowager of China, and other Oriental potentates, whom she had visited during her trip last year. She changed her plans, however, upon the suggestion of the President, who called her attention to the fact that it would be more appropriate for her to select for her bridal dress only materials of American manufacture.

Nearly every one of these present had had more than one opportunity in his life to attend social functions on a princely scale and to revel in the beauty of magnificent decorations at weddings or big State functions. Nevertheless all were struck by the exquisite beauty of the decorative arrangements carried out in every detail at this wedding. The quiet elegance of the East room and the other rooms and corridors formed a suitable background for the truly artistic decorations of the interior. Enormous quantities of the richest and most beautiful flowers, ferns, palms and other green plants were employed with great consummate skill that a most pleasing effect was produced, noble and rich, yet unobtrusive and artistically perfect in its harmony. It is extremely doubtful whether any bride who was not a princess of royal blood was ever so overwhelmed with wedding presents as Mrs. Longworth. Her weeks wedding gifts of every description have been flowing into the White House, until the library was actually filled with the gifts. They came from every part of the United States, from every corner of the world and varied in value from a few dollars to a king's ransom. One of the most beautiful presents sent to the bride of the White House by one of the foreign governments is a fine goblet, the wedding gift of the French Republic, through its president. It is a piece of tannery, two feet wide and four feet long. The design is very handsome and is a reproduction of a painting by Ebrahan of Strassburg, an Alsatian artist, renowned during the middle part of the last century. Emperor William's gift to the bride was a handsome bracelet, artistically wrought in gold and jeweled. The Empress Dowager of China sent a curiously wrought treasure chest, covered with beautiful carvings and filled with costly silks, satins, brocades, ivory carvings, lacquers, etc. The king and queen of Italy sent a fine piece of mosaic from the Government Mosaic Works in Venice. The Cuban Republic sent a magnificent gift in the form of a collar of pearls valued at more than $25,000. Nothing gave stronger proof of the popularity of the bride than the fact that the wedding presents sent to her from all parts of the world were by no means all sent by wealthy people or the heads of governments. Many of the gifts came from comparatively poor people, farmers in some of the Western states, artisans and others not richly endowed with worldly goods. From those sources the bride has received enough vitals to feed a good sized family for a year. Among the gifts were potatoes, all kinds of vegetables and fruit, pumpkins, eggs, and even coal in generous quantities. Among the countless gifts from wealthy friends of the Roosevelt

A CALL TO ALL.

President Moore Coming Next Saturday.
To the Cotton Farmers of Pitt County, Business men, Lawyers, Doctors and men of every other Profession or Calling who are Interested in the Prosperity of our Country:
You are earnestly invited and requested to attend a mass meeting to be held in the court house at 11 o'clock on Saturday, February 24. President C. C. Moore, of the North Carolina division of the Southern Cotton Growers Association, will be present and speak on the cotton situation, the most vital subject now confronting the Southern people.
In his letter President Moore says, "I want to see every farmer in your county on that day. I want to talk to the people who go to the cotton fields and who actually drive the mule that pulls the plow, and all others who are directly or indirectly interested in the price of cotton." Now let the public show their interest by their presence on that occasion.
R. R. COTTEN, Pres. Pitt County Branch Southern Cotton Growers association.

THE NORTH CAROLINA TEACHERS' ASSEMBLY.

Next Session to be Held in Raleigh.
The next session of the North Carolina Teachers' Assembly will be held in Raleigh, June 12 to 15, 1906. The executive committee of the assembly came to this decision a few days ago after receiving an invitation to meet there, extended to them by the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce. The decision of the executive committee to meet in Raleigh will be good news to the teachers of the state. Everybody likes to go to Raleigh. Now there is also an opportunity for the teachers in other parts of the state to learn much about North Carolina as the capital city, where they can visit the capitol and the various departments of the state government. It is the State Museum can be found a fine display of the great and varied resources of the state, where lessons can be learned in North Carolina history and in the State library and in the library of the Supreme court will be found interesting and instructive lessons in the history of the State. There are more schools in Raleigh, where there are more teachers and more pupils, than in any other city in North Carolina. Among these are the North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical College, the North Carolina schools for the Deaf and Dumb and for the Blind, S. Mary's school, the Baptist University for Women and Peace Institute. Other places of interest see the North Carolina Hospital for the Insane, the State Penitentiary, the Soldiers' Home, the Methodist Orphanage, etc. The executive committee was promised that ample accommodations at a rate of $1 a day in first-class boarding houses would be provided for as many as 2,000 teachers, and the railroads will offer the usual reduced rates. Six large and beautiful auditoriums will be placed at the disposal of the assembly.
A Mecklenburg county negro accidentally cut off one of his big toes. He carried the toe in his pocket to a physician to get it sewed back on.

Miss Roosevelt's "Twin" Marries.

New York, February 17.—Miss Madge Hogan, of this city, known among her friends as "Alice Roosevelt's twin," was married here today at high noon with William Holbrook, a private in Company E, eighth Infantry, stationed at Governor's Island. The peculiar sobriquet of Miss Hogan was given to her because, like Miss Roosevelt, she was born on February 11, 1881, and always had the greatest admiration for the latter. When Miss Hogan heard that Miss Roosevelt was to be married of February 17, she arranged with her intended to be married at the same time. The marriage took place at the home of Miss Hogan's parents in this city. Invitations had been sent to Miss Alice Roosevelt and Mr. Nicholas Longworth.

Entered in the post office at Greenville, N. C., as second class matter, Advertising rates made known upon application.

Truth in Preference to Fiction

GREENVILLE NORTH CAROLINA MONDAY FEB. 20 1906

Miss Alice had the offer of a title, but preferred a man.

The White House wedding is the center of interest today.

Mr Longworth will not be the first man to lose his identity at the altar.

Wonder why the wife beating bill made so many of the congressmen laugh.

Count Blini may make some folks believe that he does not want much Anna's cash.

It will be in order now for Saturday to be the day of the week for fashionable marriages.

After the wedding he will be better known as Miss Alice's husband than as Mr. Longworth.

Raleigh ought to feel satisfied. It gets the teachers' assembly and the summer school, too.

They say Congressman Longworth is a good fiddler, but he will play second fiddle after tomorrow.

John D. is about as successful peeping out of the way as he is putting up the price of oil.

If some couple that needs a start in life could get such a list of presents wouldn't it give them a send off.

If Miss Alice has been presented with 300 pianos she will have a time getting around to play on all of them.

The boll weevil is coming up for notoriety again. Pity but what he could get in the same hole with the ground hog.

Many another girl will feel just as proud on her wedding day as does Miss Alice, even if so much noise is not made over it.

The Virginia legislature is after passenger fares and has passed a bill requiring the corporation commission that State to fix a rate of two cents a mile.

The Count may turn up his nose at it as being not enough for pocket change, but lots of us fellows would be glad for somebody to fix a $40,000 annual income on us.

The last issue of the Lexington Dispatch was an illustrated industrial edition of thirty pages. It is a handsome case and worth a great deal to its town and county.

A woman can kick a man and nothing is said, but the Asheville fellow who kicked a woman out of his saloon was fined $100 and costs, and got no more than he deserved.

There is a hint that the miners will postpone their strike until 1908. But they have served the purpose of the coal kings and given them a chance to put up the price in anticipation.

High Point has the manufacturing enterprises to brag about, and has a way of advertising them in her annual banquets that can well make other towns look on with envy. It is a hard town to get ahead of.

Somebody wants to know why the cotton syndicate that offers to take all the cotton now on hand set the figure on the unlucky 13. Guess it was because that is just half way between 11 and 15, and the middle ground is always the best place to compromise.

A gentleman from the country said some days ago that he does not go to town any oftener than he is compelled to. A man from the town said that he did not leave town except when he is compelled to do so, for he said the dirt roads are so bad he can not well drive into the country and the railroads are so bad he is afraid to go on a train. This last observation was made with reference to the frequent wrecks on the railroads. It is getting to be an alarming situation. There is much unfavorable comment about the frequency of wrecks. It is common on almost all roads. The public safety demands that there should be some steps taken to reduce the frequency of wrecks and accidents and danger to human life. Are the railroad-trying to do more than their forces employes can measure up to, or is there more business than the present number of railroad lines can do? There must become inadequate somewhere. Either there are not railroads enough to accommodate business demands or there are not employes enough to do the work. It is a fearful contemplation that a man feels in danger of sudden destruction every time he takes a seat on a railroad car. To be sure, there is some element of danger in almost any mode of travel, even in an ox cart or mule wagon; but the increase in the number of railroad wrecks makes one feel like he would rather travel by the old time stage coach and arrive at his destination quite late than to start on a railroad train and not arrive at all. Surely there will be something done to protect the people who travel from so much danger. It is time the various railroad authorities were considering the matter seriously.—Scotland News Commonwealth.

Charity and Children takes note of the Gaston county man, mentioned in last Tuesday's Landmark, who owns two plantations but has no copy of the Bible in his house and refuses to buy one, even on credit, on the ground that he has heart disease and doesn't want to take the risk of dying and leaving a debt on his family. Charity and Children says he is about like the man who refuses to subscribe for a newspaper on the ground that "he has no time to read it." That Gaston man is a rare bird and he has been on The Landmark's conscience since we heard of him. It seems to us that if any one man needs to examine the Scriptures and meditate on them frequently it is a man with heart disease. In spite of his meanness somebody ought to send that Gaston man a Bible.—Statesville Landmark.

It is claimed that at the stockyards, the packers use every part of the animal but the squeal. They appear to have a place to utilize even that now that they are on trial.—Durham Sun.

It is a good time also for our people to be interesting themselves in manufacturing enterprises. Sites for factories can be secured along where the railroads will enter and run through portions of the town, and transportation facilities will be very convenient. Deals for such sites can be made by waiting until after the railroads are built. Greenville needs factories of various kinds, and the time is ripe for agitating them.

Another thing that the business men of Greenville ought to be interesting themselves in is the improvement of the public roads leading to the town. Every obstacle that hinders people in coming here to do their trading should be removed and there is no better way to attract them than by having good roads over which they can haul their produce to town and take back loads of merchandise.

Greenville should be awake to her opportunities. More railroads, factories and good county roads will make this a good town.

It is in the province of the Water and Light Commission of Greenville to give a great impetus to the establishing of small manufacturing enterprises here. It can be done by providing a day current for the town's electric plant. There are already a number of enterprises here that want power, and if current could be had in the day time many others would be established. We have talked with some of the commissioners and are glad to know they are considering plans for the day current. We hope they can see their way to put these plans in operation, for it will be a stimulus to the development of the town as well as enhance the revenue of the plant. The improvement of enterprises means that much more progress for the town.

The farmers of Pitt county should bear in mind that they are not alone in this matter of organization. The spirit is abroad all over the State and throughout the South, and organization is in progress everywhere. The farmers feed the world and they should at least have the right to fix the prices of their products. Thorough organization will put them in position of this right.

His pride gives the count a mighty poor foundation to stand on.

One thing even liberal advertising has not found is that lost Fryin Pan Shoals light ship.

RAILROADS, FACTORIES AND GOOD ROADS.

A well informed man remarked to THE REFLECTOR that within the next two years Greenville will have to more railroads than at present. By way of explanation he said that by the time named the Raleigh & Pamlico Sound road will be completed and trains running through from Raleigh to the sound. The other road will be a main line of the Atlantic Coast Line running from Wilmington to Norfolk via New Bern and Greenville. With such a prospect for Greenville in the near future it is no wonder that the town seems to be taking on new life and so many people are anxious to make investments here. Almost any investment made here now would be a safe one, for by the time the contemplated railroads are completed property will be much higher than at present.

It is a good time also for our people to be interesting themselves in manufacturing enterprises. Sites for factories can be secured along where the railroads will enter and run through portions of the town, and transportation facilities will be very convenient. Deals for such sites can be made by waiting until after the railroads are built. Greenville needs factories of various kinds, and the time is ripe for agitating them.

There are already a number of enterprises here that want power, and if current could be had in the day time many others would be established. We have talked with some of the commissioners and are glad to know they are considering plans for the day current. We hope they can see their way to put these plans in operation, for it will be a stimulus to the development of the town as well as enhance the revenue of the plant. The improvement of enterprises means that much more progress for the town.

The farmers of Pitt county should bear in mind that they are not alone in this matter of organization. The spirit is abroad all over the State and throughout the South, and organization is in progress everywhere. The farmers feed the world and they should at least have the right to fix the prices of their products. Thorough organization will put them in position of this right.

Some Tips That Will Aid in a Young Man's Success in Life.

8. Do not shirk your work and be always thinking of the money side of the proposition.
9. Put yourself in your employer's place and figure what kind of an employee you would like to get the most out of your business.
10. Do not let your thoughts be always be wood-gathering if you expect to earn an increase of salary on pay day.

A DAY CURRENT WILL HELP.

It is in the province of the Water and Light Commission of Greenville to give a great impetus to the establishing of small manufacturing enterprises here. It can be done by providing a day current for the town's electric plant. There are already a number of enterprises here that want power, and if current could be had in the day time many others would be established. We have talked with some of the commissioners and are glad to know they are considering plans for the day current. It is a good time also for our people to be interesting themselves in manufacturing enterprises. Sites for factories can be secured along where the railroads will enter and run through portions of the town, and transportation facilities will be very convenient. Deals for such sites can be made by waiting until after the railroads are built. Greenville needs factories of various kinds, and the time is ripe for agitating them.

Another thing that the business men of Greenville ought to be interesting themselves in is the improvement of the public roads leading to the town. Every obstacle that hinders people in coming here to do their trading should be removed and there is no better way to attract them than by having good roads over which they can haul their produce to town and take back loads of merchandise.

Greenville should be awake to her opportunities. More railroads, factories and good county roads will make this a good town.

Rain Coats

Copyright 1905 by THE HOUSE OF HERRINGTON

This is splendid weather for Ducks, Doctors and Rain Coats. Every prudent man will buy a Rain Coat and get along without the Doctor and his bill. A Cravenette Rain Coat, if it is genuine, is a regular Fall Overcoat of Covert, fine Cheviot, or mixe Worsted, with the fabric chemically treated before the Tailor gets hold of it. The process doesn't hurt the cloth in any way, but helps it in most ways; makes it impervious, though not proof against a fire-hydrant. In short, a Gentleman's Rain Coat is both a luxury and a necessity. Rain Coats tailored and finished in the best style, known to Rain Coat makers, $10 to $25.

Periodic Pains.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are a most remarkable remedy for the relief of periodic pains, backache, nervous or sick headache, or any of the distressing aches and pains that cause women so much suffering.
As pain is weakening, and leaves the system in an exhausted condition, it is wrong to suffer a moment longer than necessary, and you should take the Anti-Pain Pills on first indication of an attack.
If taken as directed you may have entire confidence in their effectiveness, as well as in the fact that they will leave no disagreeable after-effects.
They contain no morphine, opium, chloral, cocaine or other dangerous drugs.
"For a long time I have suffered greatly with spells of headache, that seem almost more than I can endure. These attacks come on every month, and last two or three days. I have never been able to get anything that would give me much relief until I began the use of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and they always relieve me in a short time. My sister, who suffers the same way, has used them with the same results."
—MRS. P. H. B. 723 E. Michigan St., South Bend, Ind.
Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will benefit you. It is 25 doses, 25 cents. Never sold in bulk. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

READING DESK.
It Was Used in Churches as Early as the Seventh Century.
Lectures, or reading desks, came into use at an early date. There is frequent mention of them in ancient writings and representations of them in ancient vignettes. They were placed in the center of choirs in large ecclesiastical buildings as early as the seventh century, and the choristers were arranged in rows on the right and left of them. They are of various forms, but the eagle is introduced in a very large number. With outspread wings and mounted on a stem at a convenient height for a reader, this grand bird from an early date was made to serve the purpose of supporting the framework on which the large and heavy volumes used in the services were placed. There was probably some reference in the thoughts of those who first used them to the fact that the eagle soared to the most elevated regions and therefore in a fanciful way would be likely to carry the words of the readers or choristers nearer to heaven than they might otherwise ascend.
In some instances the inclined framework on the back of the bird was made to accommodate two books, one above the other, and furnished with movable brackets to light the reader. Frequently the eagle is represented standing on an orb and sometimes on a dragon, and the base of the stem on which it is placed is often raised on lions. A more simple form without the introduction of the eagle consists of an inclined book board raised to a convenient height on a stem. Next to this are examples that have two slanting book boards, which meet at their upper edges like a roof, and there are others with clever groupings of four desks or book boards. These are generally made of oak or some other hard wood. They nearly all turn on pivots, and some of them are enriched with much carving. Sometimes the eagle is of wood and the framework of iron. In the handsomest examples base, stem, bird and book board are of polished brass.—Chambers' Journal.

A Royal Flirtation.
Perhaps the most striking example of the phrase "she stoops to conquer" in English history is furnished by Queen Elizabeth's celebrated flirtation with the Duke of Anjou. It was most important for the queen, threatened as she was by the hostility of Spain, then the leading power in Europe, to secure and maintain the friendship of France. The reigning king, Henry III, was willing to form an alliance with England if Elizabeth would marry Anjou, his younger brother. The queen promised to do this, though she had not the slightest intention of keeping her word. She invited the duke to England, carried on with him a prolonged courtship, presented him to the court as her affianced husband and even on one occasion condescended to kiss him in public. She thus kept France in a good temper until the danger from Spain had for the time passed away, when she jilted him with execrable shamelessness.

Ancient Vegetables.
During the building of the great pyramid of Cheops, says Herodotus, 1,600 talents of silver were spent in radishes, onions and garlic for the workmen.

Other patriarchal vegetables which we know from old inscriptions were grown in Egypt and other parts of the east quite forty centuries ago are the melon, the cucumber and the leek.

Many of our common vegetables we owe to the Dutch, who four centuries ago, at a time when English people hardly understood the word garden, were famous horticulturists. It seems difficult to believe that so late as the reign of King James I. peas were worth their weight in silver. A writer of the time speaks of them as "the dainties for ladies—they come so far and cost so dear."
—London Standard.

America's "Good" Women.
There are many varieties of good women in the world, some passive and others active, some submissive and others aggressive. The good American woman is the most active and aggressive of her sex. She exercises the strictest discipline over her own family. She has the most decided convictions on social questions. In nine cases out of ten she is an antidrinker, antimorphan and antibarbiter.—Blackwood's Magazine.

John Hay's Wit.
John Hay was once the subject of a cane presentation and stood while the spokesman of the donors made a speech that ran into an elaborate oration.
A friend afterward commented to the diplomatist on the length of the speech.
"Yes," replied Hay, "he didn't want me to have the cane till I really needed it."

ABBOTT-HOOKER. A Pretty Home Wedding.

Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hooker in South Greenville, was witnessed a beautiful marriage.

At 8:30 o'clock when the guests had assembled in the parlor, Mrs. H. C. Hooker sang most sweetly "A Story Ever Sweet and True."

Rev. J. E. Aycock, pastor of the Memorial Baptist church, united the happy couple with a ceremony that was beautiful and impressive.

It was a beautiful marriage and many friends were present to extend congratulations to the young couple and wish them every blessing through a life so happily begun.

Speaking of the woeful waste of money, we wish to interrupt the meeting long enough to give a few figures on an important matter that seems to have been entirely overlooked.

PRUSSIA AND ITS RAILWAY. In 1904 two Privy Councilors of Prussia were sent to the United States to study American railroad systems.

They made a thorough investigation and have made their report, accompanied by official statistics. The superiority of Prussian railroads over American roads is seen in five particulars:

1. Per million passengers carried the American roads killed six times and wounded twenty times as many as the Prussian roads.

2. They found that the average passenger rate in America was 2.92 cents per mile against 0.98 cents in Prussia.

3. The average charge for freight in America is 1.44 cents per ton per mile while in Prussia it is 0.35.

4. The original cost of construction of the Prussian lines was 65 per cent higher per mile than that of the American roads.

5. The American roads receive immense sums for carrying the mails and the Prussian lines almost nothing, and besides the latter carry a volume of postal packages for which the American roads get large extra sums from the express companies.
