RURAL MAIL ROUTES.

There is no future of the rural free delivery mail service that impresses more than the patronage the people give their respective routes, and this largely determines whether a route shall be discontinued or reduced to less frequent trips. When the people themselves fail to show interest in the service the conclusion naturally follows that they do not appreciate it. If an inspector goes over a route and finds that not over twenty-five or fifty per cent of the people living directly on the route have mail boxes, he at once forms the impression that they have very little interest in keeping the route in operation.

It is not the policy of the government to abolish or curtail any route if the people show by their patronage that they appreciate it. Not long ago there was talk of reducing some routes at Wilson to three times a week, and now we see it stated that two routes at Elizabeth City are to be reduced under the patronage is increased, sixty days having been given for the people to show their interest in the matter.

We call attention to this that the people of Pitt county may look after their routes. The rural free delivery service is too great a convenience to be curtailed or discontinued, but on the contrary it should be enlarged until every rural section is served. The people can show their interest by getting every family living on a route to put up a mail box, and then take more newspapers and write more letters. It helps every home to have plenty of good newspapers in it. Take a daily paper if you can, and as many others as possible. Let your list of reading matter include your county paper, your church paper, a good farm paper, a magazine or two and such others as your means will permit. Follow these suggestions and you need have no fears of losing your mail route.

The Supreme Court has licensed 57 more lawyers, that many passing out of a class of 67.

The place where spelling reform would really amount to something is in Russia. The names over there are enough to kill folks.

The failure of a Philadelphia bank for $7,000,000 was enough to shock financial circles. Perhaps it is lucky for the president of the bank that he died a few days previous to the crash.

A Louisiana woman belonging to the sect of "Holy Rollers" saturated her clothing with oil and set herself on fire that she might ascend to heaven. If she made a mistake in her destination she will be acclimated when she gets to the other place.

Such heavy tobacco sales as are in progress now ought to make trade better and collections pick up. And don't.

One man says he never could keep up with United States spelling any way, and thinks the reform will help him out.

The school book agony for this state is over, at least so far as the publishers are concerned. The purchasers' part is yet to come.

The papers have not told how the great Bryan demonstration in New York jarred President Roosevelt. We expect he showed his teeth.

One thing about the new spelling, it will help a fellow out on words he did not know how to spell. Anything they sound like will do now.

Mr. Bryan made a strong speech at the reception given him in New York Thursday night. One of the measures he advocated is government and state ownership of railroads.

The Bryan reception was pulled off in New York, Thursday night, and it was a big affair. North Carolina was well represented and took her part in welcoming the next president back from his trip around the world.

Putting in box sewers on the streets is that much work wasted they will not out by Christmas. When the town has work done on the street's somebody should be in charge who knows what to do?

They key note of a speech delivered by Judge Alton B. Parker at St. Paul, was that we should have fewer and better laws. He spoke strongly of the efforts of mediocre members of State legislatures to make for themselves reputations by endeavoring to get laws enacted that have nothing in them. He said "the quality of the laws, and not their number, counts." Judge Parker is right.

A Wilson special says: The Raleigh and Pamlico Sound Railroad has made physical connection here with the Atlantic Coast Line. The laying of the track toward Raleigh will begin at once. The grading has been completed for about eight miles in this direction. Several hundred hands are at work on the road east and west of Wilson. The entire road is to be completed from Raleigh to Washington by next June.

GREENVILLE GRADED SCHOOL

Next Session Begins October 1st.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

Through the columns of your valuable paper I desire to transmit to the people of Greenville some information concerning the next session of the graded school. By order of the board of trustees the white school will reopen on Monday, Oct. 1st, the colored on Oct. 8th. Both schools will continue for a period of eight months.

Contrary to my expectations and hopes, there are several changes in the faculty. Our teachers for the coming year will be as follows: First grade, Miss Ivine. Second grade, Misses Taylor and Harding. Third grade, Miss Florence Sweet. Fourth grade, Miss Elizabeth H. Wade.

Fifth grade, Miss Lillie Bennette. Sixth, seventh, ninth and tenth grades, Misses Neff, Cox and McKinney.

Owing to the fact that Prof. Dove combined the seventh and eighth grades last fall, there will be no eighth during the coming session.

Miss Florence Sweet, the lady who will succeed Miss Rhodes, is from Ripley, Tenn. She has the reputation of being one of the best lower grade teachers in West Tennessee, and I am sure we were fortunate in getting her. She is a thoroughly competent teacher and is intensely interested in her work.

The successor to Miss Rogers in the fourth grade is Miss Elizabeth H. Wade, of Farmville, Va. Miss Wade is a graduate of the State Normal school of Virginia. She has been an instructor at the summer school of the South, and also at the summer schools at the University of Virginia. She is a specialist in primary methods, and will make us a very strong teacher. I feel sure. Her testimonials are of a high order.

Miss Ellen Gertrude Neff was originally from Indianapolis, but during the past few years she has lived in Tennessee. She was educated in the city schools of Indianapolis, graduated from Grant University, and has attended every session of the summer school of the South since its organization five years ago. Miss Neff has held some very responsible positions in the teaching profession and judging by her testimonials, she has been entirely satisfactory everywhere she has taught.

Miss Blanche McKinney, of Reidsville, is a graduate of the State Normal College at Greensboro. She has taught three or four years most successfully. While I was principal of the Reidsville schools, Miss McKinney taught Latin and mathematics for us. I had an opportunity to observe her work closely and I know that she is an exceptionally fine teacher.

During the summer I have received hundreds of applications for the vacancies in the Greenville school. I have steadfastly refused to consider but one class of people, viz., those who have had the best educational advantages, and who could furnish a number of good testimonials stating that they have been successful and satisfactory teachers elsewhere, people of high character whose hearts are in the work they are trying to do. From this class I have selected those whom I consider the best. I hope no errors have been made.

All but three of our teachers are full graduates of the best colleges in the South. These three have had special training at Chicago University and the University of Tennessee. To get a stronger teaching force would be rather difficult, it seems to me.

If the enrollment in the first grade is very large this year, which is more than probable, the grade will be divided into two divisions. One division will come to school in the forenoon and the other in the afternoon. At the end of the first month the second division will come in the forenoon, the first in the afternoon, and so on alternately. This arrangement will give the teachers in the second grade something that is very much needed, and will also be better for the first grade children. It is conceded by all experienced teachers that long daily sessions for first grade children are injurious to many ways.

I hope the parents will send the little tots along. We shall keep them only three hours each day, but in a term of eight months Miss Ivine can accomplish a great deal for them. When they reach the second grade they will be a year older; two teachers will serve them and they can be advanced rapidly.

In every school with which I have ever been connected, I have found a class of pupils who simply cannot manage Latin. Superintendents all over the country have had and are having the same trouble. They are not hesitating to permit pupils to drop this study and take some other subject instead. Next year all pupils in the Greenville school must take Latin in the eighth grade. At the end of the year the teacher and the superintendent will make out a list of those who have trouble with the subject, and who may drop it if they so desire.

Next month a list will be made of those in the present ninth and tenth grades who may drop Latin and take physics instead. The work in physics will necessarily be theoretical, as we have no laboratory, but much good work can be done in it, nevertheless.

I hope the pupils in our school have enjoyed and are enjoying the vacation, and when school reopens they will be ready to do some good work in their respective grades.

Very truly
H. B. Smith, Supt.

GOTTON CROP SHORT.

Excessive Rains Rotting the Bolls Fifty Per Cent Off.

The excessive rain has badly damaged the cotton crop throughout the cotton belt in this State. The reporter of this paper talked yesterday with persons from different sections of the State, and they all report large weed that prevents a very fine appearance, but they say the fruitage is short and that the bolls are rotting. Farmers have brought sample bolls here, showing that the rain is proving very destructive to the staple just at this time, rotting the few bolls that are left. Much of the fruit has fallen off the stalks before maturing.

Reports were received yesterday direct from Jonesboro, Smithfield, Apex and Burlington, to the effect that the crop is bound to be short one half. Mr. W. H. Powell, of Fayetteville, a cotton dealer and a large planter, said yesterday that he has fifty acres of cotton, from which, with good average seasons, he would gather fifty bales, but that he is certain it will not yield more than twenty-five, as a result of the excessive rain.

He says, moreover, that the crop in Cumberland county will be equally short, one prominent farmer declaring that his crop is cut short 75 percent.—Raleigh News & Observer.

Favorite Umbrella Gone.
As the showers have held up for a short period, and the sun shines, though feebly, will the person who borrowed, took over arms or otherwise, one very favorite umbrella from my office without leave or license, please return the same before the next rainy season sets in. I have had it 10 years and have carried it 25,000 miles, and prize it very much. No charge for use.
Isaac A. Suggs.

E. G. Ferrell, a member of the grand jury at Durham court, was summoned before Judge Fred Moore to show cause why he should not be attached for contempt, he having been intoxicated while serving on the grand jury. Ferrell is said to be a prominent farmer and church member. He was fined $50.

Wednesday afternoon lightning struck Randolph Crom's house completely demolishing one stove and damaging the others, also tearing up the ceiling, around the base of the flue. From there the hot went to one of the porch posts, splitting that. Mrs. Crom was sitting nearly directly under the flue that was struck and had a narrow escape from the falling bricks. The baby was in the cradle near by. Neither of them were hurt.

Prof. L. Blueberry and Nye have about completed their extensive canvass through several counties in the interest of Winterville High School. They report that a far greater number of students have engaged rooms in the dormitories than ever before. The lady teachers Misses Edie Barker, intermed teacher, Elizabeth Bonshall primary teacher and Bessie Sams music teacher, arrived today. Several pupils also came in.

BLOCKED SALE ONE DAY.

But Market Cleared Up in Good Shape.

In spite of the rapid work done by the tobacco warehouses and buyers Friday, there was a blocked sale and one house had to hold over to sell this morning, Saturday. The cash paid out by the banks for the one day's breaks was over $20,000.

Some parties working in the in the interest of other markets have started the report that the Greenville market is so overrun that tobacco cannot be readily handled here. This is a mistake. Notwithstanding the immense business of the past week the warehouses and buyers are cleaned up and are in as fine shape for business the coming week as ever. All the tobacco that comes will be promptly handled and the banks have plenty of money to pay for it.

First Sale.

The first bale of cotton of this season's crop was brought in today by Thomas Little, colored, a tenant on the farm of Mrs. Nann Brown, and sold to Speight & Co., and sold to A. M. Agelosto & Son, Norfolk.

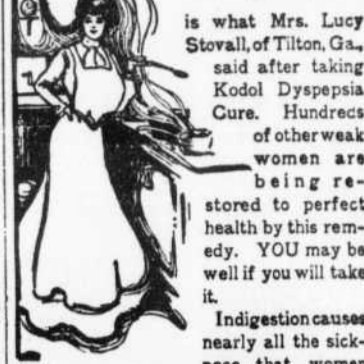

Thomas is the same man who was brought in the first new bale a year ago, but this is several days later.

A HUMOROUS PATIENT.

Surgery has much to gain from spinal cocaineization, says Robert Jones, a Liverpool surgeon, in the Medical Press. He advocates this process in cases where patients cannot or will not take other anesthetics. The resulting insensibility to pain lasts more than an hour, but the patient often develops abnormal loquacity.

Mr. Jones tells of an operation in which he cocaineized the spine. It was that of a big man, who as soon as he had taken two or three whiffs of chloroform jumped off the operating table and scampered away. This happened twice, and Mr. Jones tried cocaineization, injecting cocaine into the cerebro spinal fluid. By this means a troublesome operation of cutting out bones in the leg was safely carried out. The man, an old peacher, meantime regaled the doctors with stories of his art, only once interrupting when the surgeon was chiseling a bone, to ask, "What is that knocking?"—London Mail.

Fall of the Bicycle.

In one of the principal streets, where the tide of commerce flows strong, the sign "Bicycles Stored" stands out from the wall of a building where bicycles were much stored eight years ago. "Yes," said a man in charge, "there was a time when we kept the wheels of business men and clerks during the day, and it was a paying thing too. Our regular customers paid us by the month, and there were over 200 of them. Then every day we took care of the wheels of from twenty to fifty transients. How many do we have now? None—scarcely none. The men who rode on bicycles, to and from their offices never ride wheels downtown and, so far as that goes, rarely ride at all. It's all off, nothing doing."—Philadelphia Record.

Training to Be a "Laird."

Coley Carnegie, youngest son of the late Thomas Carnegie and nephew of Andrew Carnegie, has gone into heavy training for the lordship of Skibo. Uncle Andrew desires a male heir to take up the line and head the house of Carnegie on the other side of the big pond. The present laird of Skibo some years ago sold, after the chronicle of an episode of one of his kin, there is not a male of the name of Carnegie fit for the laird. Two years ago Uncle Andrew decided, however, there was good timber in his nephew. "If Coley will straighten up," Andrew Carnegie announced, "I will take him to Scotland and make a real laird of the boy."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Scots Laid.

The young man who goeth a-walking at eve with his lady love and aither with his purse depleted or the acceptance of some dry ice cream, will hear with delight that in Glasgow, Scotland, there is a law passed recently closing hours for the shops, for violation of which a number of persons were recently heavily fined. The law provides that any person who keeps open any house, building, part of a building or other premises as an ice cream shop shall not keep such premises open after the hours between 10 o'clock in the morning and 10 o'clock at night on any day.

At the sound of the closing door she had glanced up, and then, at sight of the king, the spring to her feet and run toward him, her hands out, her blue eyes belated with tears.
"Ah, she," she cried, with a pretty little sob, "I have wronged you!"
"You have wronged me?" she put her arms forward, and the trembling air of a pretty child, who claims an embrace as her right, but the king stepped swiftly back from her.

"All is over forever between us," he cried, "I have been very harsh with you, Françoise. You will forgive me. I have your paper and pencil, that I may command the order?"
"They are here, sire, upon the side table. I have also a note which, if I may leave you for an instant, I will write in the anteroom."
She stepped out with triumph in her eyes. It had been a terrible fight, but all the greater the credit of her victory. She took a little pink slip of paper from an alibi desk and dashed off a few lines upon it. They were, "Sire, I have been very harsh with you, Françoise. You will forgive me. I have your paper and pencil, that I may command the order?"

"I do not ask, madame, I order. Since you have learned to abuse your position, your presence has become intolerable. The united kings of Europe have been forced to speak to me as you have spoken to me. Each thing you say is not twice, madame. You see I am not a fool. At 6 o'clock you leave Versailles forever." The king's eyes were fixed on the door as he spoke.
"Oh, I have been very harsh with you, Françoise. You will forgive me. I have your paper and pencil, that I may command the order?"
"I have been very harsh with you, Françoise. You will forgive me. I have your paper and pencil, that I may command the order?"

"It is useless, madame," said he. "I have thought this matter over for a long time, and your madness today has only proved what must in any case have taken place. You must leave the palace."
"I will leave the palace. Say only that you forgive me. Oh, sire, I cannot bear your anger. It crushes me down. I am not strong enough. It is not punishment, it is death to which you sentence me. Think of one long year of love, sire, and say that you forgive me. Oh, will you give your anger up for mine? My God, he weeps! Oh, I am saved! I am saved!"
"No, no, madame," cried the king, "I have thought this matter over for a long time, and your madness today has only proved what must in any case have taken place. You must leave the palace."

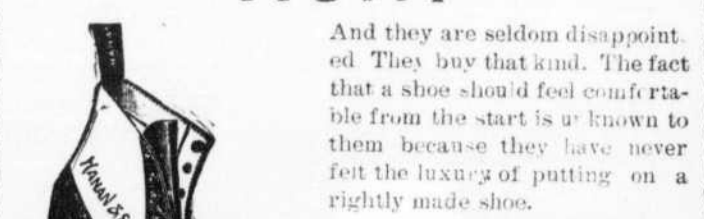

"You have learned to abuse your position, your presence has become intolerable. The united kings of Europe have been forced to speak to me as you have spoken to me. Each thing you say is not twice, madame. You see I am not a fool. At 6 o'clock you leave Versailles forever." The king's eyes were fixed on the door as he spoke.

"I have been very harsh with you, Françoise. You will forgive me. I have your paper and pencil, that I may command the order?"

"I see, my dear daughter, that you have sorrowed," said the king, glancing at her with a kindly and yet searching eye.
"I have indeed, your grace. All last night I spent in prayer that this trial may pass away from us."
"And yet you have no need for fear, Françoise. I assure you. Others may think that your influence has ceased, but we, who know the king's heart, think otherwise. A few days may pass, a few weeks at the most, and once more it will be the same rising fortunes that every eye in France will turn to."
The lady's brow cleared, and she glanced at the king with a look of surprise. "I trust that pride does not lead me astray," she said. "But if I can read my own heart there is no thought of myself in the grief with which I am stricken."

"For all that, my daughter, you are ambitious. Would you not love to turn the king toward glory?"
"I would give my life for him," she said.
"And there is your ambition. Ah, can I not read your soul? Would you not love to see the church rings away from Louis like autumn leaves in the west wind?"
"Then I am not to go? You would not have the heart to send me away, would you?"
"No, no, but you must not annoy me, Françoise."
"I had rather die than cause you an instant of grief. Oh, sire, I have seen

WORKING BY PLANS.

Most things that are brought to pass worth the notice are the result of plans and not the happy chance of good luck. A well known historian says of Napoleon Bonaparte that he generally planned things months ahead, and doubtless he took a glance at things a year or more ahead sometimes. In all his great success he was only reaping the reward of labors and activities engaged in according to well laid plans weeks and months ahead. And what crowned Napoleon with success will do the same for men of less ability and weaker ambition if they will only lay plans carefully and execute them well. There is no chance in this world. Things are brought to pass according to the inexorable laws of cause and effect; and whoever trusts for results on any other basis will in the end find that he is trusting in what no man has ever yet realized.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

HARD TIMES

Tobacco growers are getting very satisfactory prices for their weed. This is a subject of congratulation; for the season has been unfavorable to the production of tobacco, and if in addition to a short crop farmers had to accept poor prices, bad indeed would be the state of affairs.

The cotton crop will be short next fall and winter, and in many sections people will not realize much from that crop. Early corn seems to be in fairly good condition, as is also the pea crop, and the outlook for hay seems to be good.

Taken all in all agricultural conditions, although bad, might be more unfavorable than they are. Let us hope that we are not hurt so badly as some would think; and let us act accordingly. "Hard times" are to no small extent a result of timidity, distrust of the future and lack of confidence one in another. Such a condition is frequently a product of our own manufacture, when there is really no warrant for it.—Kinston Free Press.

A Trolling Hen.

Mr. M. B. Haddock, who lives about 8 miles from town, dropped in to tell us a chicken story. He said that a few days ago a hen came along the road by his house from the direction of Ayden. The hen was working her way leisurely, picking at insects as she strolled along, and was so gentle that nothing seemed to frighten or disturb her. When Mr. Haddock last heard from the hen she had come on about 4 miles in the direction of Greenville, keeping the road all the way.

Reining Completion.

Reverend at windows are better placed in Jarvis Memorial church, the new coffee being erected here by the Methodist congregation and which is nearing completion. The church is a most handsome structure.

Mean corn liquor and a pistol ended the career of Sam Webb, a negro of the Big Ivy section of Bamberg county, Saturday night. The coroner's jury Monday morning, at the scene of the killing, returned a verdict to the effect that Webb came to his death by the accidental discharge of the pistol and that the weapon was fired by the deceased.

Many newspapers on each side of the party line have succeeded in effecting that reform. Indeed, the old-time party organ, the political journals that never dared to indulge in views of its own, but, like a servile camp follower, echoed the sentiments of the reigning powers, putting its benediction on whatever the leaders or bosses approved, and handing out maledictions of whatever failed to gain their favor, that brand of newspapers is almost extinct. One after another nearly all of the really important journals have achieved their freedom. And this may be recorded as one of the most cheering evidences of the intellectual and moral progress of the United States. The change in this respect has only to go on a few years longer at the rate of the last four decades to consign the last of the servile organs to the companionship of the dodo in the dark domain of oblivion.—Exchange.

HE'D DIE FOR THE LIE AND HIS DIO.

Goldboro, Aug. 31.—A strange negro who gave his name as Tom Smith, died in a restaurant here yesterday. A few minutes before he was taken off he prophesied that he would soon pass in his cheeks. He said that he had been working for the Hines Lumber Company at Kinston, and that a short while ago he intended to get married and wrote to his old mother in Virginia that he was paralyzed and asked her to send him twenty dollars. Receiving the money he went to a store to buy a shirt in which to be married, when he was stricken with paralysis. He recovered from the shock and came on to this city, where he went into a restaurant this morning and got breakfast. While he was eating he told his tale and said that he was going to have another stroke of paralysis all on account of telling his old mother a lie. In a few minutes after he finished eating he had the stroke and died in a short while. It is a strange story, but it is vouched for by reliable negroes.

WHEN TEXAS HAD A NAVY.

Interesting Times Recalled by Proposed Exhibition of Texas War Vessels at Jamestown Exposition.

(By S. E. Snyder.)

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 1.—That Texas ever had such a thing as a navy will be news to almost everybody except of course some of the older Texans.

The Republic of Texas has not been so long a thing of history but that there are still men living who have seen the ensign of that nation flying at the peak of the flagpole of her fleet. This is recalled because an effort now afoot to exhibit one of these old ships at the great world's navy rendezvous at the Jamestown exposition in 1907.

The Texas navy was created in 1835, when Henry Smith was provisional president of the republic. There were three armed schooners in the little flotilla, but they made the Mexicans tired of life along the gulf coast. They preyed upon Mexican commerce, raided coast settlements, and with their captured booty and supplies did much to maintain the Texas military establishment aside from supporting themselves.

This navy was gradually strengthened until in 1840 it numbered six good staunch fighting ships. The flagship was the Austin, carrying the ensign of Commodore Edwin Ward Moore. The others were Zuzala, San Antonio, the San Jacinto, the San Bernard and the brig Dolphin. It was the mission of that fleet to make as much trouble for Mexico as possible, and when in 1840 the province of Yucatan went into revolt President Lamar, of Texas, ordered Commodore Moore to help the revolutionists, and if the Yucatan soldiers had done their part Mexico would probably have lost another slice of territory, for the Texas fleet certainly did create some excitement wherever the enemy happened to be.

After two years of this sort of warfare the fleet sailed up the Mississippi and laid up for repairs at New Orleans. Here it remained so long a time that Gen. Sam Houston, then president of Texas, ordered it to Olveston, but Commodore Moore refused, on the ground that most of his private fortune had been expended in repainting and maintaining the fleet. Very soon after the Texas congress decided that it did not need any navy and the entire outfit was sold.

It is understood that at least two of these magnificent craft are in good repair and may be had for exhibition purposes at the Jamestown exposition. An antiquated schooner of war would be a strange sight flying the flag of the Republic of Texas among the powerful fighting machines of today, which will be presented in Hampton Roads next year as a spectacle of the Jamestown exposition.

SHOT AT HIS DESK.

Brother of Greenville Man Killed.

Saturday morning at 2:15 o'clock Mr. A. P. Hyman, of Rocky Mount, was shot while at work at a desk in his office. The ball came through an open window striking in the side. It is thought that some one shot him from the top of a passing train. Mr. Hyman was a brother of Mr. R. Hyman, of Greenville, and the latter went to Rocky Mount upon hearing of the tragedy.

TRADE MUST BE RECIPROCAL.

Barter is the basis of all trade. If we would sell, we must also buy. This is true of all nations and men. A tariff is "protective" only to the same extent to which it is prohibitive of trade, and is injurious to both buyer and seller and to the extent to which it is prohibitive.

It gives an unjust advantage to one class, that is to those who have a monopoly in the exclusive market and against all who use homes or commodities within the "protected" zone. It is the very quintessence of dishonesty; and to advocate such a policy in the name of labor is the very quintessence of hypocrisy.

Horse Runs Away.

This morning Mr. R. J. Cobb's driver took his horse and buggy to the ice factory to get ice. The negro very foolishly left the horse standing while he went to get the ice, and in attempting to dump a block of ice in the buggy. This frightened the animal and he ran away, coming through Evans street with the umbrella top of the buggy dragging behind. Both the horse and buggy were injured slightly.

BEWARE OF WALL STREET.

That financial buccaneer Harman and others, is making it entirely too dangerous for ordinary folk to sail the Wall street sea. If you want to keep your money in your pocket, or prevent it being picked, keep out of Wall street until the pirates there have made each other "walk the plank," which in turn they will do.

The racing touts and sharpers would be skinned alive by the Wall street sharks, so what chance has the ordinary man of keeping even with this game, much less coming out ahead.

This fall is especially dangerous for Wall street and the banks and trust companies it controls, will be running close to the wind, financially and are liable to do just what the public think they won't do.

Invest your money in something you can control, instead of in the stocks of corporations that are notoriously used for stock-jobbing operations of which only the insiders have any definite knowledge.

This advice is for Democrats. Let the Democrats monkey with the Wall street buzz-saw, if they want to, as they have friendly co-operations with the corporations.

24 INNING BASE BALL GAME.

New Major League Record Established in Boston

Boston, Sept. 1.—A new major league record was established today when the Philadelphia American League team defeated Boston 4 to 1 in a twenty-four inning game lasting nearly five hours. An advertised double header brought a large crowd to the ground but it was impossible to play the second game on account of darkness.

On but one occasion so far as recorded has this number of innings been exceeded. In 1895 a game between Fargo and Grand Forks, at Devils Lake, N. D., lasted 25 innings.

The second longest game on record prior to today's contest was the Harvard-Mcneister game of 24 innings played in Boston in 1892.

But three major league games approach the present record, each having lasted twenty innings.

Coombs pitched one of the longest games ever seen in this city five times passing dangerous between only to get the next man. He struck out eighteen men and was batted safely fifteen times. The pitching of Harris equalled that of Coombs for 23 innings, but in the last inning he weakened after the Athletics had scored and was hit for two three batters. The flogging was necessarily extended.

Cities Should Own Light and Water Plants.

Alderman W. T. Dahney, of Richmond, has prepared a strong argument in favor of municipal ownership of a water and electricity plants. Every city ought to own its water and lighting plant. To give franchises to private companies is a wrong to the city and every consumer and a gift to private individuals of what belongs to all. In the past the mistake of giving away franchises was due to the fact that nobody knew their value, but now there is no valid reason against city ownership or operation. Experience has shown where the operation was put in the hands of a Board of Public Works municipal plants can be run better in the interest of the whole public than when conducted by private individuals for private profit.

BUILDING AND LOAN PROGRESSING.

New Series Will Begin in November.

The board of directors of the Home Building and Loan Association was in monthly session Tuesday afternoon to receive the report of the secretary and treasurer and transfer such business as might claim attention. The affairs of the association are so far in the monthly reports were found in most satisfactory condition and everything is working admirably. Over $7,000 has already been loaned to shareholders with which they are putting up new buildings, and applications for other loans are in hand.

There is much interest in the new series of stock that will be opened the first Saturday in November. All who want shares in the new series can give their names to the secretary.

SENT HER ON.

No Use For This Kind.

A town always wants more citizens, and Greenville is no exception, but in every community there are some "whose room is better than their company." One of this kind was in evidence Saturday night. It was a "soiled" dandy who, after tanking upon mean liquor, disturbed the denizens of a certain quarter of the town by the row she kicked up. She was before the mayor Monday to answer the charge of disorderly conduct. The judgment of the court was that her presence was very undesirable, and she was given until 5 o'clock to shake off the dust of the town. She shook on the first train.

THE GOOD STREETS MUST COME.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

That better streets are coming, and that in the near future, is such a matter of necessity and certainty one can dispute, or will attempt. One question arises, which will and ought to be the main street to the depot? That Dickinson avenue can never be made the main thoroughfare without great conflict and greater cost is too plain to dispute. Then what can be the remedy? Common sense answers—in unmistakable emphasis—Evans street to Tenth street and then Tenth to the depot. Tenth street is the widest and prettiest street in the town. The new railroad will soon be completed, and a very much greater travel both of freight and passengers. Every street should be made better. Dickinson avenue for hauling and such as wish to make a quick walking trip to the depot, but main street, the main thoroughfare should be of sufficient width as to give good room to travel and the route suggested is the only outlet, and solution to the problem. It would be used more a great deal by the riding public than any other street in the town. It is to be hoped that those in authority and whose duty it is to consider this matter will give this thought and action. The streets for the last three months have been a better than a country road. The good streets must come, and why not begin to consider the matter as soon as possible. The better streets would almost be saved in a few years by the difference in wear and tear of team and vehicles. Wouldn't some one be so kind to think and act for the good of the town? X

GRAHAM SOCIETY EVEN TS.

Graham, N. C., Sept. 1.—Miss Madeline White entertained very informally, on Tuesday evening in honor of her guests Miss Nell Skinner, of Greenville, Miss Janet Quinn, of Salisbury, and Miss Margaret Springs, of Charlotte.

The fun lay in trying to blow the largest soap bubble. The souvenirs furnished by the charming hostess, dainty white piped with red ribbon were used for the purpose.

Miss Nell Skinner, being the fortunate winner of the ladies prize, a picture by Flegg Mr. Dudley Dupuy, the gentleman's prize, a fine bryar pipe in a velvet case, and Mr. Hanos, the booby, a fig stem pipe. The drawing room was prettily decorated in trailing vines of white clematis, the only lights being used were Japanese lanterns with red and white lamps. Delightful refreshments were served and all spent a most pleasant evening.—Raleigh News and Observer.

RESOLUTIONS OF SYMPATHY

From Hope Fire Company

It is with sorrow that we learn of the death of Mr. A. P. Hyman of Fargos N. C., whose life was so cruelly taken in Rocky Mount, last Sunday night while at his post of duty by the hand of a midnight assassin. Mr. Hyman was the brother of our townsman, R. Hyman, Chief of the Greenville Fire Department, and a member of Hope Fire Co.

Therefore we the members of Hope Fire Co., wish to extend to Chief Hyman and members of his distressed family our heartfelt sympathy in their hour of grief.

We your committee request that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes, a copy sent to Mr. Hyman and a copy given to the Daily Reflector for publication.

MAN FINDS SKILLET HENDI DURING WAR

Asheville, N. C., Sept. 3.—General James M. Ray, of Asheville, who during the war between the states, commanded the 60th North Carolina infantry, has received a letter from John G. Lindsey, formerly of Asheville, and now of Chattanooga, in which Mr. Lindsey says that he recently went to the battlefield of Chickamauga and located a spot and found a skillet that he had hid there more than 42 years ago.

Mr. Lindsey was a member of company A, North Carolina regiment, during the battle of Missionary Ridge. On the evening before the battle field November 25, 1863, Mr. Lindsey went with several members of his company and begged supplies from General Bragg's cook. They secured the supplies all right, and then Mr. Lindsey prevailed upon the cook to lend him a skillet, promising to return the cooking utensils on the following night. But the fortunes of war made impossible the keeping of that promise and the return of the skillet. The troops were withdrawn that night and before taking up the march Mr. Lindsey hid the skillet in a rock out near by.

That is nearly 42 years ago. Recently Mr. Lindsey visited the battlefield and remembering the incident of the skillet and the additional fact that his promise to return the skillet remained unfulfilled, made search for cliff and skillet. With little difficulty he found the spot and skillet as he had left it. Now, after a lapse of nearly half a century, Mr. Lindsey would gladly keep his promise and return the utensil, but all the participants in the original transaction are dead and the old regimental colors are in the hands of the government.

When the president declares in one breath that he is unequivocally for a protective tariff, and in the next that he favors the bill to reduce the Philippine tariff, it looks as if he were still a Republican first and a free trader afterwards—a Republican from expediency and a free trader in principle.

The Ohio Republicans seem to be in the hands of the boss and at the mercy of the political machine, for Senator Wilson declares that he wants the party to be the product of the coming convention. He must know he has a firm grip on the delegates.
