

MRS VINES ENTERTAINS.

Engagement of Miss Patrick to Mr. Mayo Announced.

Beneath the hospitable walls of her home at the Hotel Bertha Mrs. C. C. Vines gathered about seventy-five of her friends on Friday evening, May 3rd.

The halls were beautifully decorated in red and white; the parlors in pink. The graceful potted plants and profusion of roses everywhere and the pretty dresses of the ladies lent beauty to the scene, while the soft strains of music that floated through the halls from Crocchia's Italian band added just the touch that made a perfect evening.

Miss Bessie Patrick and Mr. C. C. Mayo presided at the punch bowl, while refreshments were daintily dispensed by the ladies.

After a very interesting guessing contest—A Romance of Pitt—the announcement of Miss Bessie A. Patrick's engagement to Mr. C. C. Mayo was made in a very unique manner, the ladies finding literally the truth in a nutshell.

Many good wishes to the bride-elect were expressed, and appropriate toasts were given by Mrs. Vines, Mrs. Jarvis and Misses Irma Cobb, Winnie Skinner and Rutha Whitbeck.

Mrs. Aycock and Miss Irma Cobb were awarded prizes in the guessing contest, which they presented to the bride-elect.

Appeals to Canada to Help out Shortage in Cotton Goods.

Special to Reflector.

New York, May 4.—Many retail buyers have questioned the statements made this season by selling agents and jobbers regarding the shortage of staple cotton goods, and the fact that it is impossible to make the deliveries called for. That these statements have not been exaggerated, in fact, have been under rather than overdrawn, is shown by the position in which one of the largest concerns, namely, the Richmond Underwear Co., with New York offices in Wooster street, and factories at Richmond, Va., and Seranton Pa., manufacturing muslin underwear, now finds itself. This concern, which does an enormous business, has been unable to obtain since the year opened, sufficient supplies of cambries and other goods with which to turn out the orders now on their books, notwithstanding the fact that the orders for goods were placed unusually early. Failing to obtain supplies from American manufacturers, selling agents, jobbers or retailers, an effort was made to obtain supplies of cotton goods from Canada. That these efforts were unsuccessful was revealed by answers from all parts of Canada stating that cotton goods could not be furnished. Some of the firms state that the mills are behind. Some firms submit a few samples subject to the fact that the goods may be sold out before the New York concerns final order may reach them.

Sweetenham's Successor Sails Jamaica.

Cable to Reflector.

London May 4.—Sydney Oliver, until recently principal clerk of the West African department of the colonial office, and ex colonial secretary of Jamaica, and acting governor of the Island in 1900-1902 and 1904, who was appointed to succeed Sir Alexander Sweetenham ex-governor of Jamaica sails for Jamaica today, on the steamer Port Kingston, in order to take over the governorship of the Island.

Richard Mansfield Sails for Europe.

Special to Reflector.

New York, May 4.—Richard Mansfield sailed today for Europe on the Atlantic Transport line steamer, while Mr. Mansfield has been pronounced improved from his illness, he has released his company, which would indicate that he does not expect to resume acting for a considerable period. He is accompanied by his family, and will spend a considerable time abroad.

WEAK HEARTS

are caused by Indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

digests what you eat, takes the strain off of the heart, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the Stomach and Digestive Tract, Nervous Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach.

After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.

MRS. LORING NICHOLS, Penn Yan, N. Y.

I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I could not eat. I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for four months and it cured me.

Indigestion

Stomach troubles are not a symptom of and not to be treated as a separate disease. Indigestion is a real disease, yet there are symptoms of a certain kind. DRAMATIC SCENE IN ONSLOW COURT ROOM.

Tried and True Heroes of the War Clasp Hands and Renew Their Old Friendship.

When the case of State vs. Capps was called to the Superior court of Onslow county a few days ago, there came forward an old man plainly dressed, white haired and flowing beard, but in bearing every inch a man, in the person of the defendant Capps. The defendant's counsel not being present, the professional services of Hon. Frank Thompson and Hon. E. M. Kocnee, of the local bar, was proffered him by these gentlemen, and being accepted, the trial proceeded. The charge was assault and battery upon one P. Russ, the latter being the State's only witness. He, bearing the marks of old age, but yet vigorous, came upon the stand and told how he and his old neighbor had had a falling out and came to blows. The State rested its case and the defendant went upon the stand and gave his version of the fight, which was substantially as told by the prosecuting witness. In his charge Judge Long told the jury if they believed the evidence of the defendant himself they should find their verdict guilty, which was promptly done by the jury. Then came the grand climax. Judge Long called both of the old men up in front of him within the bar, and speaking to the defendant, said: "You are an old soldier, perhaps," "Yes," said he, "I am sixty-four years old. I was a member of the 3rd N. C. State troops during the civil war. I was at the battle of Chancellorsville. I remember the charge made on that memorable day." "My brother," said Judge Long, "was killed in that charge." "Yes," said the old veteran, his eye kindling as he seemed to live over again the events of that terrible onslaught. "Yes, I remember the young soldier, falling with the battle flag in his hands at the foot of the enemy's breastworks which we immediately captured. I was one of the soldiers that bore the body of the wounded Stonewall Jackson off the field, where he was shot down by mistake by his own troops."

"Were you in the war?" asked Judge Long of the prosecuting witness. The old veteran stood at attention, and promptly replied: "I was a member of the 18th regiment." "How old are you?" asked His Honor. "I am 77 years old," said he. Judge Long then, with voice tremulous with emotion, said: "Old veterans, the war is over. You should not fight each other. One in this case is just as guilty as the other. Only one, however, is indicted." Turning to the defendant, Judge Long said: "I shall suspend no judgement over you. When you leave this world to join your comrade on the other side, not at my hands shall a suspended judgement be on the records of this court against you." Then looking to the old veterans kindly in the eye, he continued: "Won't you old veterans shake hands and be friends?" For a moment, like two old prime game cocks, they faced each other, but for only a moment; the spirit of reconciliation set in motion by the kindly words of the judge stole over and wreathed those old battle-stained, wrinkled faces with the smiles of comradeship and brotherhood; in paths of deep silence and with a mighty hand grasp, these battle-scarred heroes looked in the face of each other, while tears trickled down the faces of the immense throng in the court room.

The Name Missing.

A news letter from Black Jack received a day or two ago, was not printed because the name of the writer did not come with it. A hard lesson for people to learn, though it ought to be an easy one, is that newspapers do not print articles unless the editor knows who sends them. The name of the writer should be sent with every letter, not for publication, but as an evidence of good faith.

Small Fire.

Department Quickly Puts it Out.

About one thirty o'clock this afternoon there came near being a big fire in the row of frame buildings on Fifth street opposite the market house. The row of buildings is occupied by colored people and used as shoe shops, barber shops, restaurants, etc. One negro kept a clothes cleaning and pressing establishment in which he used a gasoline tank holding about five gallons. In some way he set this tank on fire and almost instantly there was a big blaze that found plenty of material to work on.

The alarm was given, and a crowd of people hurried in the direction of the dense smoke. A hose reel station and hydrant were right close to the fire, and the firemen had a stream on and the fire put out in a few minutes. It certainly was a fine place for a fire to spread, but the fire department was too quick for it.

The alarm came just as rain was falling in torrents and many of those who went to the fire got soaking wet.

Twenty Millions Starving.

Special to Reflector.

Shanghai, China, May 2.—This is the day when the supplies on the ground are expected to be exhausted. They have been pitifully insufficient all the while, but now there is practically nothing to feed the poor wretches who are literally starving before the eyes of those who would benefit them if they could. Money will be needed on hand to last until the end of July, when the harvest will bring relief. The commissioner especially appeals for canned milk and says there are 200,000 children in Samsara province who have no milk and are forced to eat coarse bread made of acorns, powdered wood and umbers, resulting in thousands of deaths and much disease. The commissioner appeals to the Anglo-Saxons for two millions, five hundred thousand dollars to save twenty millions of human beings who are dying lingering deaths from starvation.

JUDGE WEBB'S WAY.

He Would Not Try a Case Between Father and Son.

Fayetteville, N. C., May 2.—In a way that does great credit to his big heart and broad mind, Judge Webb disposed of a vexatious case in the Superior court yesterday. Pope against Pope, says the Observer, in reporting the disposition of the case, in one form or another, has occupied a place on the docket of Cumberland Superior court for many years, and if for a term or so it escapes the calendar, like the cat it is sure to "come back" later on. A brilliant array of counsel, drawn from both of the Dunn and Fayetteville bars, appeared on both sides, and bright lights shone in the offices of the lawyers way into last night, where they were busy on Pope vs. Pope. A number of Fayetteville lawyers, it is said, reckon time and mark events in their experience at the bar from the time Pope vs. Pope first went on the docket. It may therefore be justly termed a casus celeberrimus.

When the case was called this morning Judge Webb very soon discovered that it was a suit between father and sons. Then his Honor had a few words to say, and what he said was sensible and proper, if it was not technically legal. He said in substance that he had never tried a case between father and son, and never intended to do so. He had the parties together and settle their difficulties out of court; that they should shake hands and be friends, for life is short at best, and friendship between father and son is of more value than the land in dispute. "I had the great part of the amount myself than have the case tried," concluded the big-hearted judge. Immediately there was a consultation between clients and counsel, all matters of difference were compromised and the costs divided between them, and thus ended Pope vs. Pope.

NORFOLK CONNECTION.

We are at a loss to understand why the Atlantic Coast Line does not give this section better connection in their service from Norfolk this way.

There are at present three daily passenger trains leaving Norfolk for Rocky Mount. One of these trains leaves Norfolk at 8:40 a. m., one at 4 p. m., and one at 6:30 p. m., the two afternoon trains being only about two-and-a-half hours apart. Neither of these makes connection at Hobgood with the connection on the three divisions of Coast Line east and south of Meade, and people wanting to come from Norfolk to any point on the Plymouth, Washington or Kingston branches are compelled to leave Norfolk at 8:00 a. m., stop over four hours at Hobgood or Tarboro and not reach their destination until 6 or 7 in the evening.

When these three branches of the Coast Line below Parmele had only one daily passenger train it was important to the business interests of the towns served by them that the one train arrive as early in the evening as possible. But now all three of the branches have double daily passenger service, the middle train bringing the bulk of the mails, hence the evening train is not so important as before. A connection at Hobgood in the first afternoon train of Norfolk will be a great convenience to the towns on these branches.

Train No. 2 between Weldon and Kingston leaves Weldon at 3:03 p. m., making very close connection at Weldon with the Seaboard train from Raleigh, and if the latter is late the connection is missed. This train (No. 59) comes on by Hobgood about two-and-a-half hours before the arrival of the train leaving Norfolk at 4 o'clock, and at Parmele usually has a long wait for the train from Rocky Mount. It is scheduled to reach Greenville at 5:57 p. m., but owing to the delay at Parmele it is a rare exception when it comes on time.

The Reflector offers this suggestion as a remedy for the trouble and at the same time give this section connection at Hobgood with one of the trains coming out from Norfolk. Let the 4 o'clock train from Norfolk move up half an hour and leave there at 3:30. Then let train No. 59 be moved back enough in leaving Weldon to connect with this Norfolk train at Hobgood. This would always insure connection with the Seaboard train at Weldon, would give connection with the Norfolk train at Hobgood and would give ample time for the Rocky Mount train to reach Parmele before the arrival of No. 59 and avoid delay there.

True this arrangement would alter the evening trains about an hour and a half later in reaching Plymouth, Washington, and Greenville, but it would insure all important connections and enable trains to arrive on time scheduled, which is of far more importance and convenience than the present service.

Add Took Charge at Norfolk.

Special to Reflector.

Norfolk, Va. May 2.—Samuel M. Adsit, general freight and passenger agent of the St. Joseph and Grand Island rail road, who has accepted the newly created position of general freight and passenger agent of the Virginia Railway at Norfolk arrived here yesterday and took charge of his new position. He is about forty years of age, and began railroad work as a clerk twenty seven years ago.

THE EASTERN REFLECTOR

Truth in Preference to Fiction

GREENVILLE NORTH CAROLINA FRIDAY, MAY 10, 1907

The rain has had a good season for setting out tobacco plants.

Do not block the progress of your county. Vote for bonds next Tuesday.

The editorial page of the Durham Herald looks just now like King has gone a-fishing.

Mr. Bryan grows in weight as well as in popularity. He now pulls the beam at 334 pounds.

Give the boys and girls a chance to get an education. Vote for bonds next Tuesday.

Some Salisbury folks must want the earth. One man has sued another there over a three inch strip of ground.

Push Pitt county ahead as the foremost county in North Carolina. The way to do this is to vote for bonds next Tuesday.

At the rate immigrants are arriving in this country it looks like it would not take many years to depopulate European countries.

Wilmington cut out a moving picture show of the new hat. Not a bad idea, as that is one of the things that should be soon forgotten.

There is always something in being on the winning side. These who want to be on that side should vote for the bonds to secure the Eastern training school.

We have noticed that the election will be against bonds to secure the Eastern training school, but if that should be the result it will be the worst day's work Pitt county has ever done.

While laboring under a spell of "brainstorm" the cashier of a Birmingham bank imagined that he could corner the cotton market. When the storm blew over it was found that $100,000 of the bank's funds had gone up in the wind.

President Roosevelt has received additional fame. Two gentlemen recently returned from a trip abroad tell him that in their travels through Egypt they found at least ten thousand camels named after him. Camels were always known to be beasts of burden, hence may be able to carry this additional load.

The Reflector believes there are enough men in Pitt county who realize the incalculable benefit the Eastern training school will be to the county, to vote for bonds and carry the election next Tuesday in their favor. Not to do this would be a disastrous blow to the future of the county. Every citizen should desire to see the county prosper and advance, and all who hold this view will vote for bonds.

BEWARE HOW YOU VOTE.

If the bond issue to secure the Eastern training school is defeated in the election on the 14th, it will be the worst day's work Pitt county has ever done. It will be a blow to the educational and material progress of the county that will require years to overcome. It will be deliberately spurning and throwing aside the best opportunity for development and progress the county has ever had, an opportunity that will never come again. It is not a matter that can be treated with indifference now and expect to have another chance at it when the mistake is discovered. It is now or never, and to lose means that the opportunity is gone forever.

To lose this training school will check the educational progress of the county that in the past few years has become the pride of our citizens and given Pitt county the reputation of pressing to the front intellectually and financially. It means depriving the boys and girls of the county of the facilities for advancement and equipping themselves for the highest usefulness in life. It will stamp us as being a people indifferent to higher ideals and aspirations. Men of Pitt, the destiny of the county is in your hands and you will decide by your ballots on the 14th. Think on these things and beware how you vote.

The decision of the United States Supreme court establishing the authority of the North Carolina corporation commission to regulate matters pertaining to railroads in the State, should not be followed by everybody rushing to the commission with requests for unreasonable requirements of the railroads. On the contrary let the commission and the railroads come together in a business way and work such reforms in traffic and schedules, as are just both to the public and the transportation companies. Let the railroads stop contesting and fighting when orders for reforms are sent them by the commission, and let no unreasonable demand be made of the railroads. While the railroads are servants of the public and should be under State regulation, they are at the same time promoters of progress and upbuilders of the State. Let differences between the railroads and the public be adjusted on a common sense basis and put a stop to the disposition to take advantage of each other.

Tuesday's vote in Greenville on the question of issuing bonds, shows plainly to the county what the town of Greenville proposes to do toward securing the Eastern training school in Pitt county.

This has been said before, but will bear repeating, and every voter in the county should stamp it on his mind. The Eastern school for teachers is going to be located in one of these Eastern counties. It matters not where it goes, every man in Pitt county must pay his part of the taxes to keep the school going. No getting around that. Then it is the part of wisdom for every man to vote for bonds so the school can be brought to Pitt county. Think seriously over this when you go to vote on the 14th.

A big majority of the large taxpayers of the county favor the bonds to secure the Eastern training school. This being so, it looks like every man who has little or no property to be taxed should also favor it. In fact we do not see how any man who wants to see his children around him have better educational advantages and the county be more prosperous, can be opposed to the bonds.

GREENVILLE AND PITT COUNTY ARE ALL ONE AND THE SAME PEOPLE, BUT IT SEEMS RIGHT HARD FOR SOME FOLKS TO REALIZE IT.

The way Greenville and the entire county stand together is going to work wonders in the progress of old Pitt. Look what Greenville did in the town bond election Tuesday, and then watch for the big majority the county is going to give in the county bond election next Tuesday.

In one year's time after its organization, The Home Building and Loan Association has made loans amounting to $20,400. All this money is invested right here in helping people to own their homes. This is an excellent record for a young association, and shows what people can accomplish when they come together to help each other. This association is the most helpful institution the town has.

Some people complain that the bonds to secure the Eastern training school would put a little more tax on the bonds. If they would think about it a little such a school in the county would save them enough every year on the item of school books alone to more than pay their part of the interest, to say nothing of the other advantages. Under the present condition of the rural schools having to take such teachers as they can get, every time there is a change of teachers there is a change more or less in books, and this takes considerable money. With the training school the teachers would all be trained practically along the same lines, and when they went out to take charge of schools there would be system in teaching, system in work and system in the books used. This in itself would be a big saving.
