FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Quarrel of Dandy and Laddie and What Came of It.

Dandy and Laddie were collie dogs and brothers, and they were owned by brothers, too, farmers up in New Hampshire. The farms adjoined, and the farmers pastured their stock in common. The dogs visited each other frequently and were great friends. One day when Laddie was gnawing a bone at Dandy's a pet kitten belonging to Dandy's family came near, and Laddie snarped at her. Dandy instantly flew at his throat, and they had a hot fight before they could be separated.

It is said that neither dog ever crossed the boundary line between the two farms after that. Laddie daily drove his flock of sheep down the lane until he reached the dividing wall, where Dandy solemnly took charge and drove them to pasture. At night Dandy would look back the sheep, and Laddie would be waiting for them at the regular place. Not once after their fight did they take the slightest notice of each other.—Chicago News.

An Interesting Experiment. Water is composed of two elements, oxygen and hydrogen, and these two elements unite when the flame of the candle gives off its hydrogen into the oxygen.

You may prove this by a simple experiment. Hold a cool and perfectly dry tumbler over a burning candle, and the inner surface of the tumbler will soon become dimmed with moisture. Presently little drops of water will collect on it, and if it were possible to keep the tumbler cool all the time you might get enough water to fill another tumbler. This seems like a magic of nature. The vapor given off in the burning is condensed into water by contact with the cool glass.

Do to a Good Person. It is curious and a credit to a person, "he looks as if he couldn't say 'No' to a good'."

It is interesting to note the story of a great and good man (I believe one, who was called by the name of the prophet, "the righteous name was used by his neighbors to frighten the children. They all had good-fairy of the night, the great in conversation with the "good" name of other, and the nobleman was so much surprised at the honest appearance of the poet that he said "You look as if you couldn't say 'No' to a good'."

The Rainbow Road.

We followed the Rainbow Road. When the storm had subsided, the rainbow stood by the big east wood. With its top against the sky, the dot and the dog and I. The dog with the curly tail. And a whole lot of our treasure big. A whole lot of our treasure big. And the dog went along to guard the band.

The colors came down to the ground. Somebody told us a story of gold. And the end of the bow. We hurried along a row. Ready to seek and find. I had the lot and so came down. With the curly tail dog behind. For was a gift, and so, in case danger, I gave her the exact place. Oh, we were almost there. And we would have been rich no doubt. But the wind came with a dreadful cry. And the beautiful bow went. The great bird's feet hid some. The great bird's feet hid some. We ran as fast that dot was lost. And the dog with the curly tail. And the rainbows came and the rainbow. But look and the dog and I—no heart. —Youth Companion.

HEARING AT GRIFTON. N. C.

Hearing on Proposed Bridge Matter in Pitt County (Next Week).

The following notice was issued yesterday from the United States Engineers' office in this city:

"Whereas, Good reason exists to believe that the proposed location of a bridge over Contentnea Creek, N. C., to be built by the commissioners of Pitt county, N. C., would cause an unreasonable obstruction to the free navigation of said Contentnea Creek, an account of its proximity to a point in said Contentnea Creek, it is proposed to hold a public hearing.

"In order to give you an opportunity to be heard as required by the Act of Congress approved March 3, 1899, you are hereby notified that the said public hearing will be had before me, at Grifton, N. C., in Lang's Hall, at 12 o'clock, noon, on Wednesday, October 16, 1907, when you will be given an opportunity to be heard in the matter.

All the papers will be laid before the secretary of war for his decision, it will perhaps be out your purpose to submit in writing whatever you may wish to present.

Death in Transition to Fiction

GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, OCT. 10, 1907

Some men only get their names and pictures in the papers by writing patent medicine testimonials.

An exchange wants to know what would this world be without girls? It would be a stagnation.

The Clarkton Express says that if the Republicans do nominate Roosevelt for a third term, there are Democrats that can defeat him. We hope the Express is right.

This has been a fine fall for saving hay, but we feel quite sure there are many farmers in Pitt county who will continue paying their good money for the weas can product. There ought not to be a bale of hay shipped into this county.

The Raleigh News and Observer owes much to its enemies for the liberal advertising they give it.

Mr. Page may be a success running a railroad, but he is not a success in a newspaper controversy.

With numerous other interesting topics occupying space in the newspapers of late, the candidates for governor have been lost sight of for the time being. They could not hold attention with such competition.

A town does not lose as much by competition with neighboring towns as it does through lack of public spirit among its own people. The town that sits still and just waits for things to come its way does not find much coming, while the town that gets up and goes after things finds them.

Every business man in Greenville should feel an interest in the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to be held Monday night, and should manifest that interest by his presence. While the organization has not been as active as it might have been since it started a year ago, yet it has done much good. It did a noble work in helping to secure the training school, and there are other things in which it has been beneficial. In fact it should be alive at all times with an eye constantly looking to those things that mean development and progress. Going after a thing with an organization behind you will be much more fruitful of results than individual effort. Come out Monday night.

The life of a newspaper man is often far from being a bed of roses. Editor Pittman, of the Dunn Weekly Guide, was arrested the other day for having four cords of wood sawed on a sidewalk of a back street in that town, and was fined $10. He took an appeal to the Superior court. It does look like if his newspaper man is fortunate enough to own four cords of wood at one time, he should be allowed to have it sawed almost anywhere he pleases.—Durham Sun.

They are making a big case out of that Rowland trial at Raleigh.

If there was a game warden in Pitt county he could find something to do.

Gaston county has more cotton factories than any other county in North Carolina, and the Gaston Gazette recently issued a handsome 32 page illustrated edition telling about these forty-odd mills and the other advantages of that county.

The Charlotte News says that in five years' time there will not be a whiskey saloon in North Carolina, and we believe the News makes a safe prediction. At the same time it is noticeable that those yet engaged in the saloon business fail to see the growth of sentiment against the traffic and will not get out of the business until they are driven out.

The course of the Raleigh Times since Senator Drewry's imposition is reflecting no credit upon that paper. The Times is certainly in no position to be casting stones at others.

Salisbury almost unanimously voted a bond issue of $500,000 for street and other city improvements, shows that the people there believe in progress.

Roosevelt will not find any bears in the South, but he can find bulls without looking far.

Civilization is certainly advancing when the college boys get to passing resolutions against hazing.

The newspapers that are not going to be caught by a showing of the books have no uneasy feelings about the investigation. Let it go on.

Some folks can't sleep when they get the chance, and some folks can hardly get a chance to sleep. And it is a matter in which they can neither swap places nor divide.

Did they try to lose the president in the Louisiana hunting trip?

There are a lot of good things in store for Greenville, that is if we go right down after them.

Keep street paving in your mind and it will be no great while before Greenville roars into the paving business.

With the Drewry matter quieting down and the Rowland trial off of hand, Raleigh can take a few days' rest before pulling off the State fair.

The city of New Bern held an election Tuesday on the question of issuing $50,000 bonds for street improvements, and the vote was overwhelming in favor of bonds. Good for New Bern! These eastern towns are taking their places in front of the column of progress.

WHICH ROUTE SHALL BE TAKEN?

Sentiment expressed in the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Monday night, was very much against the demands made by property owners along Dickinson avenue for payment for little strips across the front of the lots to straighten and beautify that street. The question was brought up some years ago, and has at intervals since been more or less discussed in meetings of the aldermen, but every effort to do anything toward improving Dickinson avenue has been blocked by the attitude of the property owners. It is beyond argument that the property owners themselves would be the greatest beneficiaries, by many fold, for this street to be straightened and paved, but people of all other sections of the town cannot see the justice of having to pay large sums for the little strips of property in question and then improving the street mainly for the benefit of those living on it.

Another point that does not need arguing now to convince anybody, is that Greenville is going to soon begin paving. That seems to be a settled conclusion. It is also certain that the paving will begin on the business section of Evans street and then go to the Atlantic Coast Line depot. The only thing that brings Dickinson avenue into any consideration whatever as the route to follow from Evans street to the depot is that it is a little shorter distance than to go by way of Ninth street Evans and Ninth streets are already the standard width of streets of the town, there would be no property to pay for on this route, and the cost of paving the small difference in distance will be insignificant as compared with what the owners of property on Dickinson avenue want for sufficient frontage to make that street the proper width.

The situation is just this: All things being equal the people had rather see Dickinson avenue made the route to the depot, but unless the attitude of the property owners is changed the other route will be selected.

Asheville has a decided dry look. The prohibitionists carried the election in that city Tuesday by about a thousand majority. Salisbury and Wilmington should sit up and take notice.

The General Convention of the Episcopal Church, in session at Richmond, is having trouble over the rice question. The Southern bishops want a separation so that each race can have its own churches and its own bishops, while the Northern and Western bishops oppose such division.

Coming Next Week. Those favorites with Greenville theatre goers, the Four Pickers, will begin a three nights' engagement in Masonic opera house next Monday night. The company this season is stronger and better than ever, and press notices show they are playing to large houses. All who witness their performances are well pleased.

Important Business. Every member of the Christian church is earnestly requested to be present at the prayer meeting service tonight. Important business to be attended to. Let every one be there.

RANDOM REFLECTIONS.

By a Contributor. As long as the typewriter is the only weapon used by Fish and Harahan in their fight, it would be necessary to call the police or the ambulance.

With the price of pie up, the cost of indigestion is again advanced. If his continues it will soon be so that no one can afford to have it.

Mr. Wm. R. Hearst is making all arrangements to nominate himself for president. Reforming Tammany from the inside is another one of "free-wheeling" in politics. Mr. and Mrs. William E. Corey seem determined to shed both families.

Senator Platt thinks the country has had enough of Roosevelt. A. d. of whom else, did he say? Lillian Russell thinks that she is "broke." Once her face was her fortune, but she has had real money for years. No doubt Brother Fairbanks never dreamed they had put so much lettuce in his cocktail. Mexico is getting enthusiastic over Secretary Root, even if he isn't a hot tomato. A parkkeeper has sued the city of Parkersburg, W. Va., for $5,000 for a monkey bite. If the monkey had been elephant-size, the damages would have bankrupted the city. Mrs. Carrie Nation had to look for freedom in Washington. A woman dressed in a black and white outfit and wearing another freak like Wu Chang-fang to the Washington menagerie. Secretary Root is picking up a few ovations himself in old Mexico.

A Problem For Publishers. One of the most serious problems that confronts the newspaper publishers of this country, especially those of the smaller cities and weeklies, is the impending increase in the price of print paper, which will probably be double what it is now is. There will be few outside the strongest of the minor publications that will be able to weather the storm and continue the present price of subscription. The greatest sufferer will undoubtedly be those weeklies whose proprietors several years ago injudiciously reduced the price of subscription from $2 and $1.50 to $1.00," says the Deatur Herald.

This unfortunate cut in price occurred when the country was in the clutches of hard times, and the people were not able to pay their bills. When prosperity struck the country, and prices of commodities naturally went up, the price of the country weekly was kept at one dollar, and now every subscription taken at that price is well-nigh a financial loss. It will be at a loss when the new price of paper goes into effect.

There is but one thing for small publishers to do and that is to increase the price of their papers. They should not expect to make the advance less than fifty cents on $1 subscriptions, and the same amount on $1.50 rates. No man can publish a decent weekly newspaper nowadays at $1.00, and no subscriber ought to expect to get a paper for that sum.—Newspaperman.

Rev. J. N. H. Summerell's Son Injured. Friends throughout the State will sympathize greatly with Rev. J. N. H. Summerell and Mrs. Summerell, of Norfolk, because of an injury to their son, who is a nephew of Mrs. J. R. Chamberlain, of this city. Of the accident the Norfolk Landmark of Sunday says: "As the result of injuries sustained by being struck on the head by a piece of timber, while he was at play at Atlantic City school No. 2, Howard Summerell, son of Rev. J. N. H. Summerell, is painfully injured. The boy was unconscious for probably half an hour but rallied and was much better yesterday afternoon."—Raleigh News and Observer.

A GREAT DETECTIVE.

Some of the Tricks Played by a Noted English Sleuth. It was in 1881 that Thomas Gregory joined the London metropolitan force. In his time Gregory arrested many notorious criminals. He captured a gang who were known as the "Cabinet of Crime" and under whose guidance all big robberies were carried out.

Gregory was gifted with a faculty for disguise, and he appeared in many characters. In order to enter and raid a club in Soho he was given the task of gaining admittance to the premises. At an appointed time, dressed as a poor old man, he was lurking up against the door laden with a basket of grouse. The doorkeeper, a pugilist, knocked him over into the road, but this gave the waiting officers an opportunity for getting inside and effecting their mission.

One summer for weeks he might have been seen daily outside the general postoffice as a boot cleaner, and eventually he brought off the arrest of a gang. Obtaining the position of valet to a wealthy coiner, who kept a mansion in Westminster, Gregory, with other officers, contrived a big coup four confederates being sent to penal servitude.

An amusing story is told of one of Gregory's adventures. He was keeping observation on the corner of Dean street and had adopted the plan of selling matches. He had only two boxes, a large and a small one. A Scotchman went up to him and offered a halfpenny for the large box, at the same time handing the officer a penny. Gregory said he could not let him have that one, but would try to get one for him. Just at that moment the man he was watching passed by, and Gregory went after him and located his residence. Some forty minutes afterward Gregory returned to the corner of Dean street and found the Scotchman awaiting him for his matches and changing him for his matches and change.

A Bond street capture is quite a dramatic little story. One morning Gregory noticed in Bond street a landau stop outside a jeweler's shop. A woman dressed in the height of fashion alighted and looked into the window. She somehow attracted the detective's attention and was seen to drop her parasol through the grating under the window. The shop assistants noticed her trouble and came out to help her recover the article. No sooner had they left the shop than two "swells" entered and proceeded to fill their pockets with jewelry. The detective got assistance and arrested all three, who turned out to be old crooks.—Pearson's Weekly.

Food For Canaries. The best of food for young canaries is hard boiled egg mixed with a little wheat bran. Cut up the egg and add to it a part of a roll that has been soaked in water for a few minutes and then squeeze dry. Great care must be taken that the food be fresh, for if it be the least sour it will kill the birds. The young ones are nearly always fed by the male bird, but in about two weeks they will feed themselves. When they are a month old put them in a cage by themselves. Feed them on the egg and bread mixed with some of the seed that you give the old birds, and, having continued this diet for four or five weeks, you may treat them as you do the old ones. Keep your cage perfectly clean, give the birds plenty of light and fresh air and keep them out of drafts. Sudden changes of temperature will be sure to make them sick.—Scotsman.

Funny Irish Sayings. Here are a few Irish bulls: An Irish member of the Ventnor local board some thirty years ago proposed that St. Boniface down should be planted with some fine old oaks. Horace Walpole records one which he pronounces the best he ever met with. "I hate that woman," said a gentleman, looking at a person who had been his nurse. "I hate her, for when I was a child she changed me at nurse." This was a perplexing assertion, but a similar instance is recorded in the autobiography of an Irishman, who gravely informs us that he "ran away early in life from his father, on discovering he was only his uncle."—London Telegraph.

Try This. Without any preliminary ask a number of persons to kindly draw from memory the figure which indicates 6 o'clock exactly as it appears on the dials of their watches. Now ask them to take out their watches and look at them. Most of them will discover that the characters they saw so clearly at the feet of the imaginary watch floating before their mind's eye have no existence at all on the dial of the real watch, where its place is taken by the small seconds hand dial.—Strand Magazine.

THE SHOEMAKER SAINTS.

Story of the Roman Brothers Who Perished by the Sword. St. Crispin and his brother, Crispian (always associated together in the calendar), were two natives of Rome who, having become converts to Christianity, set out for Gaul to preach the faith about the middle of the third century along with St. Quintin and others. The brothers settled at Soissons, where, in imitation of the apostle Paul, they preached publicly in the daytime and worked with their hands at night, earning their own subsistence by making shoes, though nobly born. They supplied the poor at a low price, and a legend tells us that an angel supplied them with leather. The heathen listened to their instructions and were astonished at the charity, disinterestedness, piety and contempt of glory displayed in their lives, and many were converted to the Christian faith.

After they had been thus engaged for several years the Emperor Maximianus Hercules came into Belgic Gaul, and a complaint was made against him by the brothers. He, desiring to gratify their accusers as well as to indulge his own savage cruelty, gave orders for Crispian Varus, the most implacable enemy of the Christians of that time. The saints bore with patience and constancy the most cruel torments and at length finished their course by being beheaded with the sword about 287 A. D.

According to a Kentish tradition, their remains, being cast into the sea, were washed ashore at Romney marsh. In the sixteenth century a great church was built in their honor at Soissons, and St. Eligius, richly ornamented the shrine. From their martyrdom to the present time they have been regarded as the patron saints of shoemakers, who were accustomed to honor their day (and are yet in some towns) by great feasting. One special ceremony was a procession of the brethren of the craft with banners and music, while various characters representing King Crispin and his court were sustained by different members.—St. James' Gazette.

The Laurel and the Sunflower. The laurel and the sunflower have been found, according to Country Life, to be the greatest recover by situations. People who live in such spots, especially near undrained land, think there is no help for them but by removal. Successful experiments have shown that it is possible materially to improve the atmosphere in low-lying, close to the house, will be found in laurels and sunflowers. The former give off an abundance of ozone, while the latter are potent in destroying the malarial conditions. These, two, if planted even on the most restricted scale in a garden or open yard, close to the house, will be found to increase specifically the dryness and salubrity of the atmosphere.

From Limerick. There was a young maiden of Leigh, A talented lady was sheigh. She baked some mince pies as a pleasant surprise for her lough, Who was coming to teigh. But when the youth tasted her dough he groaned out a terrible groan. "Thy angel," he bawled, "Thou'rt the doctor; 'Hops' he's off! That's emm!"—London Answers.

A Financial Genius. An old gentleman who had dia-moned from his horse walked into a wayside inn at Barley-in-Wharfedale and left the animal in charge of a scantily clad urchin. On returning he found another poverty stricken boy holding the horse. Examining the little lad through his eyes, he exclaimed: "You're not the boy I left with my horse!" "No, sir," replied the boy; "I just speculated and bought him from another lad for a penny." For his candor the boy received sixpence.—London Penny Magazine.

Domestic Courtesy. A Lambeth domestician and of-ficer, James Mc. Frank Bryan, told a story of a Lambeth lad who was questioned by his schoolteacher as to his father's Christian name? Teacher—"What's your name?" Boy—"Jones." "Your father's name?" "Mr. Jones." "And his other name?" "Mr. Jones." "No, no! What does your mother call him?" "Old fat head."—London Era press.

Wild grapes are getting ripe and the opossums are getting fat. In consequence of this, the sound of the hunters' horn and the glad yelp of the hound are familiar sounds to our ears of late. Last night Prof. Lineberry and a crowd of the school boys went out on an expedition of this kind. We have not heard the extent of the catch. The last we saw of them they were put up with' great expectations. We hope they were realized.

The residence being erected by Miss Alice Tripp is going up rapidly.

L. L. Kittrell and Miss Rosa Smith and Louise Satterthwaite went to Greenville today.

We regret very much to lose Messrs B. G. Taylor and Frank White, who have gone to Ayden to engage in mercantile business. We never met two more clever and straight forward young men, and our loss is Ayden's gain. Our best wishes for their success go with them.

MUST CHANGE HER RELIGIOUS BELIEF. Will Not Recognize Miss Vanderbilt Unless She Joins Catholic Church.

A New York dispatch says: Gladys Vanderbilt must change her religion when she becomes the bride of Count Tassio Szechenyi or the Austrian autocracy will not recognize the marriage.

The so-called "black aristocracy" of Vienna has become scandalized of the engagement, and unless the young woman becomes a Catholic the marriage will not be legally recognized in Austria. The Count being a Catholic, Miss Vanderbilt will continue to remain Miss Vanderbilt in Austria unless she changes her religion, although in the Count's country, proper, the marriage will be considered perfectly legal and the young woman's name will be enshrined as a full-fledged countess in the roster of Hungarian nobility.

Issue of the marriage of the Szechenyi would be looked upon as illegal in Austria. Hence the "black aristocracy" is convinced that Miss Vanderbilt, in order to gain a standing in Austria, as well as in Hungary must embrace the Catholic faith, as Anna Gould did when she married Castellane.

It is understood, however, that Emperor Francis Joseph does not share in the extreme views of the "black aristocracy" on marriage, and that as long as he lives he will insist that the American woman gets full recognition of the laws notwithstanding.

THE AYDEN DEPARTMENT

J. M. BLOW, Manager and Authorized Agent

An authorized agent for DAILY and EVENING EXPRESS, we take subscriptions and writing receipts for these papers. We have a list of all who receive their mail at our office. We also take orders for printing.

Tuesday night sometime after 12 o'clock someone set fire to and burned up the large tobacco package of Mr. Caleb Cannon, who lives about seven miles from Ayden. The loss was several thousand dollars and there was no insurance.

Death of an Excellent Citizen. Friday night the 4th inst., at a few minutes after 10 o'clock, Mr. Jesse Lemuel Sugg passed away at his residence on Fifth street.

Can't Make Money Fast Enough. Did you know there was only a three days' supply of one-dollar bills in the United States treasury, only a two days' supply of two-dollar bills, and only a ten days' supply of five dollar bills?

Mr. Sugg made Greenville a useful citizen, and once served as a member of the board of aldermen. He was public spirited, generous, a good neighbor and a warm friend.

Governor Glenn Coming. Governor R. B. Glenn will speak in the Jarvis Memorial church Sunday, November 24th, both morning and night.

The oil octopus should have been fined $100,000,000, says a contemporary. Still, if it would only come up with that $29,240,000, all would be forgiven.

A New Haven man married a woman, decided she was not his "affinity," got a divorce, thought it over and remarried her. And still, people talk about a woman's predilection for changing her mind.

General Linevitch says the United States owes too much on its fleet. The General doesn't understand; our fleet is not of the style he has been used to.

The Standard Oil Company is preparing to exploit the oil fields of Japan. After a little while, the Mikado will be permitted to stand aside and let the company run the government for him.

The Atlanta Journal and the Atlanta Constitution are engaged in a discussion about freight rates on stevedores. The argument is getting warm, too.

It is said that Mr. Roosevelt's forthcoming message to congress will be "extremely long." Well, it takes a lot of space to touch up everything from nature faking to not mentioning the tariff.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie may feel that he should die on the threshold of the parlor, but he doesn't seem to care particularly to have the tax collector help him get there.

A number of people are so distressed concerning the business morals of Mr. John D. Rockefeller that they actually would do those things themselves if they had the chance, just to keep the old fellow in the straight and narrow path.

Staff dates with fresh cream cheese, dry in a thin sugar sirup and roll in freshly grated coconut and you have a wholesome confection suitable for a dessert with crackers and coffee.

A Cake Hint. Try dipping stale cake in milk and rebaking it in a moderate oven. It is said to taste as if newly baked.

To Smooth Broken Tumblers. Emery paper, if lapped upon a board, is useful for smoothing slightly broken edges of thin tumblers. By carefully rubbing the glasses back and forth a smooth surface is obtained, but not if the glass is cracked.

NOT A CRIMINAL. We Was Only Serving Ten Years For Just "Quarreling?" The standard of morals is not the same all the world over.

Only three men were chained, and of these one remained moodily seated, staring on the ground before him. He formed such a contrast to his fellow prisoners' smiling faces that we observed him more closely and noticed that his clothes were such as the officials and better class wear.

"Who is he?" I asked. "A government clerk convicted of embezzlement," was the answer. "Six weeks in chains is his sentence."

"And what have the other criminals done?" was our next query. "Oh, they have mostly quarreled among themselves. They are not criminals. We have very few thieves and robbers in Montenegro. This youth," went on our informant, pointing to a young man with a pleasant face and who grinned with joy as he noticed the attention with which we favored him, "has a ten years' sentence for quarreling."

"But, quarreling?" we repeated, "is it possible to quarrel?" "Yes. Too many lives are lost," was the laconic reply. "Oh," we exclaimed, a light breaking in upon us, "you mean murder! They are all murderers?"

"We have no murderers," came the indignant response. "Our land is as safe from murder as any other in the world. No one kills to rob or steal in Montenegro. But we just quarrel among ourselves. We are hot blooded and shoot quickly, that is all."

The man from London passed in front of the little shop and read and reread the mysterious sign that was suspended from the wall. It read: "Englishmen will please not stand over this grating while talking."

The more the Londoner read the sign the more he was mystified. "Finally he summoned up his courage and entered the shop. "Good afternoon," he greeted politely. "Could you tell me why you have that sign out there which reads, 'Englishmen will please not stand over this grating while talking?'"

"I can, sir," replied the shopkeeper. "And why, my good man?" "Well, you see, if they stood there talking they would drop their hats, and the porter would have to lose time going down in the basement looking for them."

CONDEMNED STORIES. Senator Hanna's Remark to an Assistant Vice President. Few men have come closer to being president of the United States and failed than Timothy D. Sullivan of New York. He had long been backing for the vice presidential nomination in the 1900 election.

Senator Mark Hanna, who was then the dominant figure in the Republican party, didn't want Roosevelt.

One day shortly before the convention Woodruff was in Washington, and Hanna sent for him. "I hear, Tim," said the Ohio senator, "that you want to be vice president."

"Well, my friends have been talking of me for the nomination," replied the New Yorker. "But you're too young, Tim; entirely too young," declared Hanna. "If you'd carry that chubby face of yours into the senate chamber, people would take you for a page."

Woodruff pointed out that he was several months older than Governor Roosevelt and also that he was old enough to have a son in the junior class at Yale. "Yes, yes, I know," assented Hanna, "but if we were to put you to the job of bossing those baldheaded old senators one of them would be sure to turn you across his knee and spank you."

Grammar and Glory. Job E. Hedges was one of the prize students at Princeton. While Mayor Strong's secretary he was compelled to prepare in a jiffy a mayor's message to the board of estimate and appropriation. In the rush and tear one glaring grammatical error and two or three expressions of doubtful historical accuracy appeared in the message.

The following day a New York city newspaper severely criticized Mayor Strong for his incoherent use of the language. The mayor and Mr. Hedges were rather chagrined. "See here, Mr. Mayor," said Mr. Hedges, "you know I can write and speak grammatical English, and I know you and I want you to let me tell the newspaper boys that I was the villain in this case. I don't want you to be the victim for my headless secretary."

"Job," replied Mayor Strong, "suppose this newspaper had said that that message was the most brilliant message ever issued by a public officer, do you suppose I'd come out and say you wrote it? No, sir! Not by a jugful. I'd appropriate all the glory. You keep mum."—New York Sun.

President Castro's Conceit. Many stories have been told of Cipriano Castro, president of Venezuela, and of his monumental conceit. During the Russo-Japanese war the fall of Port Arthur was being explained to him. "Pshaw!" he exclaimed. "With 500 Venezuelans I could have taken it in four days."
