A Little Pageant of Time

Presented by the Senior Class, with the aid of Juniors,
Sophomores, and Freshmen

I—MAN'S SEARCH FOR A MEASURE OF TIME.

Peaceful days of aeons ago when Dawn and Day, Twilight and Night, were the only measures of Time.

900 B C—The Sundial counts only the sunny hours, and knows no Time when Clouds hover near.

300 A D—The Hourglass, through any unit of Time, lets run the sands of life.

800 A D—King Alfred's hours of worship, timed by marked candles, close in disturbing Winds.

1352—The First Clock } count all hours, midst Clouds
1511—The First Watch } and Winds through Day and Night.

Still Day leads on the Little Ones of the Race, with rainbow promises, into the tender arms of Night.

II—THE POWER OF TIME IN THE SENIOR CLASS.

Little Children—1910—"Be on Time at school, dear".

Freshmen—1923—too "green" to know the value of Time.

Sophomores—1924—flaunt their colors in the face of Time.

Juniors—1925—equip themselves for Time's relentless hold.

Seniors—1926—rise to serene dignity in Time.

Women—1941—progress, as follows, with Time's own speed:

Lessie Cogdell maketh images because inspired.

Isabelle Cromartie swayeth by "the sweet power of music".

Kathleen Dail departeth not from her training.

Bruce Ellis knoweth all the wiles of the politician.

Bruce Exum "looketh well to the ways of her household".

Deanie Boone Haskett loveth the lure of printer's ink.

Janie Jackson seeketh deep to know the truth.

Maude Johnston toucheth the keys "with concord of sweet sounds".

Mary Shelton McArthur presideth with social charm.

Bertha Piland expoundeth the records of all ages.

Frances Smith marketh well the lay of the land.

Elizabeth Thomas buildeth as on the rocks of Time.

Christine Vick "sitteth among the elders of the land."

Helen Viniarski worketh against the ills "that flesh is heir to".

Juanita Worthington ministereth unto the sick and suffering.

Ruby Worthington employeth her pedagogic lore.
