Section III. Topics for the 1988-89 Faculty Senate.....7

In 1988-89, the Faculty Senate met eight times in regular session, once in special session, and once in organizational session. A list of the Senate's actions and the Chancellor's responses comprise Section I. These actions dealt with, in part, Unit Codes, the University Calendar, searches for several new academic administrators, the curriculum, a minorities survey, the grading system, and the establishment of an Excellence in Administration Award.

Noteworthy are the resolution on Ethics in Research and Creative Activity, and, particularly, the special session of the Senate which was convened for the purpose of hearing the presentations of the strategic work groups.

During the spring, the search for a new Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs was of concern to the Faculty Senate. The interview process was open and involved the entirety of the faculty. The Search Committee was appointed by the Chancellor with the advice of the Senate. Three Senate nominees were included in the five-member committee.

Most of the work of faculty governance is done in committee. The Academic and Senate Committees met 137 times and made 36 reports to the Senate, in addition to annual reports. Since much of the work involves consulting with administrators on the best way of implementing established policies, most committee accomplishments are not widely publicized. Some examples of the work of the twenty academic committees are as follows:

1. The Faculty Governance Committee has begun to consider a revision of Appendix D of the Faculty Manual.
2. The Educational Policies and Planning Committee is deeply involved in the ongoing Strategic Planning Process.
3. The Teaching Effectiveness Committee conducted a workshop on teaching effectiveness featuring Dr. Harvey Brightman who spoke on "Teaching Students in Ways They Learn Best."
4. The General College Committee and the Student Recruitment and Retention Committee continue to seek solutions to problems in the student advising system and have met with the Chancellor and Acting Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs.

Many more examples can be found in Section II which includes a brief summary of each committee's annual report. For those desiring information about a committee's activities, the complete annual report and a set of minutes for the year is available for review in the Faculty Senate Conference Room. It should be noted that the Appellate Committees and Faculty Grievance Committee, dealing with essentially confidential personnel matters, do not report to the Senate on the nature of their decisions.

I have learned much in this my second and last year as Chair of the Faculty and while I have always been impressed by the hard work of the committee members, I have come to an even greater awareness of the importance of the committees in the work of the University. It is in this work that faculty governance becomes reality. East Carolina University has a well deserved reputation as a leader in faculty governance in the University of North Carolina system. It is because of this that the Senate Office receives frequent requests for information as to our Faculty Manual.

It has been a pleasure to serve with Chancellor Eakin in his second year at ECU. Dr. Eakin is a strong supporter of faculty governance.

The Faculty Officers for 1989-90 are James Joyce, Chair; Stella Daugherty, Vice Chair; and Belinda Lee, Secretary.

III. TOPICS FOR THE 1988-89 FACULTY SENATE

ECU has selected a new Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs who will take office on July 1, 1989. The search for other administrative officers continues, particularly for the Vice Chancellor of Business Affairs and the Vice Chancellor for Health Sciences. The new Mission Statement is in place and strategic planning work continues. The Strategic Planning Process and the results are vitally important to the development of the University. In all matters affecting this University, the faculty has a clear stake and the Faculty Senate will play a vital role.

1. Student recruitment and retention continues to be a problem, particularly among the minorities. This is important to the future of ECU. Strategies to resolve these problems must be developed.
2. Strong faculty development programs must be implemented to encourage and assist faculty in keeping abreast of new ideas. If the University is to move to the forefront of comprehensive universities, faculty development is a must.
3. The University must continue to aggressively seek ways of improving the quality of entering freshmen. This is a complex problem, worthy of serious effort on the part of our faculty. It calls for far-reaching cooperation with the North Carolina Public School System.
4. Create a formal structure of University-level review for new academic programs before they are submitted to the General Administration for permission to plan and to establish the program is requested.
5. Seek ways to enhance the image of ECU as a strong comprehensive university.
6. A survey should be made which is limited to minority faculty, for the purpose of determining the strengths and weaknesses of ECU in recruiting minority faculty. The term "minority" should be clearly defined and the survey document should allow for the respondent to indicate what minority they believe they are (black, black woman, white woman, Hispanic, etc.).
7. The year 1989-90 will be the 25th anniversary of the Faculty Senate and some special note should be made of this.
