Dear Dr. Ozman:

In response to your recent call for papers for the 1967 meeting of the South Atlantic Philosophy of Education Society, I enclose a paper for your consideration. I am sure that it cannot be classified as philosophy of education. Perhaps with some allowances it can be considered as dealing with foundations of (higher) education. In any case, I shall appreciate you considering it.

The paper I am sending you is a condensation of a paper of something like twenty-five pages, including footnotes, which I prepared for a history journal and which is to be published sometime during the next eighteen months or so. In any case publication would be after our fall meeting. In the interest of time I am not including documentation in the shorter version I am sending you. I can supply it, however, should you wish it. I have spent much of my limited spare time over the past two years in researching the paper, which is based almost completely on primary, including manuscript, sources.

I have given the questionnaire concerning philosophy of education courses to the chairman of our Department of Education.

Sincerely,

W. Conrad Gass
