Are You A Supporter Of Christianity?

Every Sunday the number of persons who stay away from Church is greater than the number who attend. This may be attributed to at least two causes. There are elements that tend to keep people from Church, or their interests in Christianity is dwindling. Quite often the first cause may be accepted with reservations, but the second should be looked upon with much concern. In this so-called civilized world there are men created by God who tell the people under their jurisdiction, "There is no God. I am your master!" They have cast the Church and religious beliefs in the background and endeavor to rule their people fury and according to the latest reports the British defenses by force. An effort was made by the council leaders sometime ago to procure a room that could be used for meeting purposes. After available rooms were assorted the Council was left in the cold. It would be fitting, indeed, if the governing body of the men students on the campus could be provided with such a room. Provision is made for such bodies in other colleges, but has been overlooked at this institution. The oversight apparently was not intentional, but the need for a Council room seems strong enough to merit consideration. Members of the Council need a definite meeting place.

Now it is up to the societies to prove to this person that it was a case of misrepresentation. In each society there are persons who have been a member since they were in college, whether it be two years or four. Surely something has kept them there. People don't remain with any organization permanently unless they, as individuals, are enriched by what it has to offer. Literary socieities have been an integral part of campus life at East Carolina Teachers College through the years. They are more active in some years than others. Perhaps the fault rests in leadership. All in all, this is an issue for the societies to decide.

They Are Fitting Elevations

Dr. Lucile Turner has been named head of the Department of English, succeeding President L. R. Meadows, whose heavy administrative responsibilities compelled him to resign the position; and Mr. A. L. Dittmer has been elevated to chairman of the Department of Music to fill the vacancy created by the death or Dean C. Tabor. To Dr Turner and Mr. Dittmer we say that those whom you are succeeding did a splendid job during their respective administrations and their record will be one for you to shoot at. Both of you have been outstanding in your chosen fields at East Carolina Teachers College and have won the respect of both your colleagues and members of the student body. We are glad to hear of your promotion and feel you will render the splendid type of service your duties demand.
