1942 Graduates Thesis 'Behind Red Velvet' Written By Clifton Britton

By Margie Dudley Clifton Britton, because of his desire "to be serviceable to those English teachers who must add to their regular classroom work in high school the coaching of dramatics," has presented first-hand, as well as authoritative, information on all phases of dramatics in a thesis, Behind Red Velvet. This thesis was submitted to the English department during June 1942 in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Arts in English.

This thesis is an attempt to solve teacher-director problems, especially for those teachers

Y.W.C.A. Installs 'Big Sister' Policy For Freshmen; Aided By Junior Class

This year the Y. W. C. A. and the Social Conference members felt the need of having a plan to get freshmen adjusted to college life. A committee appointed from the "Y" cabinet made out plans and presented them to Miss Morton and Dr. Meadows for their approval, before bringing the plans before the student body last spring.

Before this year the Student Government officers and the "Y" cabinet have been responsible for writing to and greeting the new girls. The comparatively small number of officers and the large group of freshmen made it impossible for this plan to be carried out successfully. With "Big Sisters" each girl has someone she feels is a friend and to whom she can go Dr. Leon Meadows, president, for help and advice. From high school to college is so great a jump that guidance is necessary to make a freshman's first impressions and contacts pleasant. This plan has worked very successfully on other campuses. Duties of each "Big Sister" are very simple. After being assigned to a "Little Sister" the first duty was to write several letters during the summer and Chand was held for the first make her feel welcome.
