To meet the urgent need for joint organization of men campus, the Student Cooperative Movement, outlined in chart form elsewhere on this page, is here presented by the Constitution Committee as the plan proposed for reorganization of the student government associations of the college.

Worked out by a committee composed of Bessie Fay Hunt, Joyce Dunham, Carlyle Cox, Jennings Ballard, Virgil Ward, Estelle Davis, and Evan Griffin, the plan embodies ideas that have been growing in the minds of many people on the campus for several years. In fact, such a revision was begun four years ago, but was not pushed to completion.

The present plan is not a hasty piece of work, but is the product of much thought, study, and discussion. When it was outlined for President Meadows recently, he said, "after a careful examination of the proposed changes, "this plan has East Carolina's loss is the my whole-hearted approval and

Utopia For Students

With a growing demand for an improved student government organization on the campus, a committee of very capable students has drawn up a plan and is presenting it to the student body in this issue

This plan is the outgrowth of remarks and criticisms from students on the campus today, students of former years, and faculty members. Meeting after meeting has been held when groups, or the entire student body have gotten together for the purpose of finding the trouble of the present system and trying to exterminate it. Every possible "clue" for betterment has been followed The outcome is nearing Utopia! Every intri cate detail has been carefully studied, and vised upon, and reduced to an understand able minimum shown in the chart on page

Students who have given the most to this movement will not be here when the plan is put to work. They will have to watch from afar the progress of their dream. but assuring such an organization for future

If others are willing to work endless hours for such a movement, then the the remaining student body can do is give it careful consideration. Study the char and the plan, read it, question it, critize it to the extent that you become tired even. but-UNDERSTAND IT. When a clear un derstanding is reached it is not optimism to believe that the student body will be behind this movement 100 per cent!

Of course it is no secret that students read, study, and probably sleep through many chapel programs but usually with no disturbance to others. However, it would be impossible to open a thing as large as a newspaper and not call attention to the act by the size and noise of he paper.

Such a program as the memorial service held Tuesday, February 2, suggests the most reverent and respectful attention of any type program. It must take a let of nerve or ignorance to sit right under the speakers noses and rattle and turn pages of ness. How do you suppose the parents and friends of those boys who were being reobviously wasn't interested in their loss, be down right rude? It seems that even death doesn't touch some people. One never knows when the situation will come home, though
